BRYANT COLLEGE
Alumni Association

As has been the case since the college first opened its doors in 1863, Bryant alumni are a dynamic group. You are one of 30,000+ alumni who are successful professionals in an array of diverse industries. You span the globe, if not physically then virtually, with the help of e-technology. As well as leading exciting, demanding careers, you are committed to your families and your communities.

Through the Alumni Association's strategic plan initiatives, Bryant is prepared to provide you with the resources that support your efforts and enhance your achievements. Because Bryant alumni are a diverse group, we are improving existing programs and developing new ones that meet your specific needs. We recognize the various stages of your lives and your careers. That's why we're remodeling the concept of alumni chapters. Today's alumni are best served by networks – groups of people who share goals and/or resources. We're considering the following networks, and we invite your feedback. E-mail us at alumni@bryant.edu or call (401) 232-6040 before October 13 and we'll present your ideas at the National Alumni Council meeting.

• Professional Networking Council – Alumni in this group are in the early and middle stages of their careers. Programs and services will provide networking opportunities and career development services. These are perfect candidates to mentor current Bryant students. Alumni will have the chance to connect with current Bryant students, passing on insights and strategies for a successful career.

• Family Connection – Special activities bring alumni together and include family members in the fun!

• Loyal Guard Society – This network targets alumni who have celebrated 50 years or more since their graduation from Bryant. A newly created newsletter will cover such topics as lifestyle issues, children and grandchildren, recreational and travel information, and a regular column devoted to updates on alumni whereabouts.

• Virtual Chapters – Thanks to e-mail, even Bryant alumni who are scattered around the world need not lose contact with their fellow classmates, or their alma mater. Electronic discussion lists will allow alumni to receive information about the college, and share what's new in their lives.

In the near future, we'll be asking you to tell us the best way to stay in touch with you. Please be sure to respond. We want our alumni right along with us as Bryant continues its journey into the 21st century through the creation of innovative academic programs and facilities. Together, we can sustain the momentum of success we have worked so hard to achieve – as professionals, as individuals, and as members associated with a college of which we can all be proud.

What have we done for you lately?

Since the beginning of the year, Bryant has begun carrying out the initiatives set forth in the Alumni Association's strategic plan. A few of the things we've accomplished:

- The new Alumni Association logo is a visual identity that embraces the memories and experiences of all Bryant alumni.
- The Community Service Committee and the Benefits and Services Committee have been established to provide opportunities toward personal, professional, and public causes.
- Alumni Association tents at Bryant Bulldog athletic events provided gathering places for several alumni groups to reunite.

How you've responded:

- Campus events such as Homecoming 2000, Reunion, comedy performances, concerts, and sports events have drawn together alumni who haven't seen each other in years.
- Requests from alumni for chapter event information has doubled.

More Good News:

Keep an eye on us. We're just getting started.

Web Site Construction Update

Just as our campus is undergoing construction to enhance our programs and services, our Web site is also getting renovated. When you log onto Bryant's Web site, click onto the alumni home page. You'll find links to event calendars, alumni networks, Career Services, Bryant's comprehensive business library catalog, and more. Check updates on the next Reunion and register on-line. You can also revise your contact information and submit Class Notes material for publication in Bryant Business our alumni magazine. Interested in establishing an internship for Bryant students at your place of business? Find out how to do that, too. Then, take a few minutes to browse through other areas of the college site that provide progress reports of the master campus plan construction, news releases, and business resources.

The Web site is still a work in progress, so if you don't find what you're looking for, please check back often. We welcome your feedback. E-mail alumni@bryant.edu with your comments.

Reunion 2000

Reunion 2000 had it all!

Al Herman '50 shares his experiences from Reunion 2000:

"My expectations were far exceeded by the event. I felt a deep sense of pride as I toured the campus. My wife, Mila, and I appreciate the kindness and courtesy extended to us by Ron and Kati Machtley.

Mila and I spent the evening dining and dancing, and reminiscing with friends about the 'old days,' which sparked long-forgotten memories. Thank you for a truly great time."

Paul DeLomba '60, Ruth DeLomba '60, Jeffrey Hedberg '91, Elaine Notarantonio, Ph.D. '75, Ronald K. Machtley, Ernest Santoro '71, William Conaty '67, Joseph Urgo, Ph.D.

Reunion 2000 – The Celebration of the Century

More than 750 people made this milestone reunion an event to remember. Alumni returned to campus from across the country and, in one case, even from Spain. The one-day format was enthusiastically received by all – it looks like a new tradition has begun!

Spotlight On . . .

"My job is my hobby. Food is my life."

Ken Oringer '87 doesn't speak those words lightly. The hotel institution management major has made food his vocation as well as his avocation. He is chef and co-owner of Clio Restaurant in Boston, which specializes in French contemporary cuisine. Clio was named best restaurant in 1997 by Gourmet magazine. Boston Magazine called Ken the city's best American contemporary chef. Ken has found his calling, and it keeps him busy every waking hour.

Like many in his industry, Ken plans menus, coordinates wine lists, and schedules service staff. But for Ken, those are just the basics. He meets with fishermen and farmers, suppliers of his freshest ingredients, to ensure he's getting the best of what's available on the market. "If that means having fish flown in from Japan, I'll do so," says Ken. "I don't limit myself." He has only one rule: "I look for flavors that are intense and focused. My goal is always to create something that looks so deceptively simple, that its taste blows you away."

But make no mistake – Ken does not function by his creative right brain alone. He chose to attend Bryant so he could learn critical business skills. "Only 10 percent of restaurants succeed after three years," he says. "Longevity in this field requires a keen business sense. There's a constant struggle between the creator and the capitalist. I have to come up with something that satisfies my creativity and sells – this is a business after all."

It is with this acute sense of balance that Ken embraces inspiration in any form. This acclaimed chef, who has honed his craft in Asia and on both U.S. coasts, doesn't hesitate to translate a Pop-Tart flavor combination into a gourmet dessert. Though his guests won't find toaster pastries on the menu, they will discern a grand sense of adventure. And to Ken, that would mean he's done his job well. "I want to create the best dining experience of their lives," he says. In other words, he wants to blow them away.

Alumni Networks For Rhode Island alumni, May 6 was a day of Olympic proportions. Alumni provided their support to the Northern Rhode Island Special Olympics, held on Bryant's campus. This was the first community service project planned by the Alumni Association and it will serve as a model for other alumni networks. Pictured above with staff are alumni who volunteered to make a difference in their community.
