Musical Clubs to Organize

The Bryant Musical Club under the direction of Professor Ralph S. Handy has started weekly rehearsals of the concert orchestra.

Three rehearsals have shown that Bryant College may expect a very finished concert in the near future.

Plans of the organization call for an active participation in the weekly assemblies, and a combined Musical Clubs Concert to be held in Stratton Hall soon after its completion.

It has been decided that this year the Glee Club, Concert Orchestra, and Dance Orchestra will be combined under one name, "Bryant Musical Clubs," with officers elected by the members. Any income derived from concerts and musical socials will go towards building up a library of music for the Club's future use.

Professor Ralph S. Handy has a splendid record in the musical field. A talented musician himself, Professor Handy has also conducted orchestras and bands in a high school where he taught before coming to Bryant, and brings to the Club the necessary musical genius necessary to carry on successfully.

Bryant College Girls Assist in Red Cross Work

Bryant College is gratified to announce that the officers, faculty, and student body contributed 100% to the Red Cross drive!

Initiation Week Ends For Most of Pledges

Young ladies with pigtails, hair ribbons, bibs, aprons, and overalls; young men with red ties, lapel ribbons, and the like, were very prominent the week of October 14th.

Initiation week at Bryant was the answer. The week set aside by the Inter-Fraternity Council as the week to make pledges realize how humble and small they really are, or should be.

For the upper classmen, it was a week of rejoicing, for it meant a week of free cigarettes, chewing gum, shoe shines, and valet service as well as an opportunity to exercise the right arm in the ancient art of "padding" while the pledgee assumes the angle.

Speeches and songs were heard in Alumni Hall and noon hour meant more than lunch; it meant entertainment and excitement.

Phi Sigma Nu, Tau Epsilon, Beta Sigma Chi, Sigma Iota Chi, Kappa Delta Kappa, and Sigma Lambda Theta—all helped to make the week a pleasant one, and to them a profitable one, for this year proved a boom year for all and more pledges were accepted than ever before.

The coming months promise to be filled with Fraternity and Sorority events. Beta Sigma Chi plan a big party for November. Kappa Delta Kappa have chosen Friday, November 8, for their next dance.

Bryant Students Write Song

Don Wray added to his list of accomplishments by composing popular music recently. His ability as an orchestra leader and saxophone player has long been recognized by Bryant students. Now that Francis Calnan has persuaded him to put into actual expression his own music, the students will be better able to appreciate his talents.

With Don writing the music, and Francis the words, they have composed the song "Moonspell," which will be played for the first time in the near future at one of the college dances.

This is their first attempt at this sort of thing, and they found it to be quite interesting. If "Moonspell" is well received, more songs will follow.

Independents Form Football Team Here

Boasting of such former high school stars as Anderson, Cone, Oberg, O'Connor, Taber, and many others, an independent football team has been formed in school to tame the Phi Sigma Nu and Beta Sigma Chi teams.

The team has already scheduled a game with Phi Sigma Nu at the fraternity's lodge in Rehoboth on a Sunday afternoon. The date has not yet been announced.

Stratton Gymnasium To Be Ready This Month

Text Book Author Speaks To Students

Students of Bryant College were privileged to hear Mr. Charles Langer of the Walton Publishing Company of Chicago speak on the subject, "Trends in the Preparation of Financial Statements," in Alumni Hall on October 15.

Using many illustrations to simplify the difficult subject, Mr. Langer gave a very enlightening explanation of how the large companies of the country are employing many methods to explain to the general public and company officials the status of their business. He spoke for an hour on his topic to an audience of one hundred students of both the day and evening divisions of the college. The majority of the audience consisted of men of the B. A. division, there being few girls. Members of the Bryant faculty attended.

Besides being the author of the accounting system used here in the cost accounting classes, Mr. Langer is the co-author of the tax system employed here and also the co-author of the math course used with it.

The talk was preceded by an introduction to the speaker by President Jacobs who invited the evening school students to visit the new school and explained that more lectures could be expected in the future which will be given in the Stratton gymnasium upon its completion.

Sigma Lambda Theta Has Alumni Party

The Sigma Lambda Theta Sorority held a very brilliant social affair at Bryant Hall on October 10, to welcome in the pledges. The dining room was decorated in a very Bohemian manner to represent a restaurant called "Sloppy Joe's." The dark atmosphere of the dining room was relieved by candles which had empty bottles for holders. Adding to the effect were small round tables covered with large red and white checked tablecloths and napkins. Pillows of various colors were strewn around and very unique wall decorations were drawn by Francis Hanley, a student of the Rhode Island School of Design. Refreshments were served in "Sloppy Joe's" style, cookies in huge piles in the center of the table, cake in stacks on large plates, and coffee in mugs. The hostesses, Eleanor Wallace and Carmelia Rogers, with the assistance of Kay Hanley, the Alumni adviser, presented a floor show. The other Alumni members were dressed as tourists of all parts of the world.

The honorary guests present were Mrs. Stickney, Mrs. Galski, and Miss Appel. The following members of the Alumni were present: Dorothy Hague, Kay Hanley, Carolyn Hilliard, Mrs. Edith Fowler, Mary Canavey, Alice MacManus, Henrietta Clogston, Pauline Chace, Mrs. Helen Maffeo, Anna Bozaro, Marguerite Donoghue, Louise Canney, Mrs. Mary Stowell, Catherine Murphy, Betty Bonner, Alice Love, and Mrs. Maxine Martin.

BRYANT COLLEGIAN SPONSORS CONTEST

THE BRYANT COLLEGIAN is to sponsor a popularity contest to be conducted directly through the paper, the winner to be announced at the Annual Stunt Night, December 13.

All Co-eds are eligible for the title "Miss Bryant" and will be selected by popular vote; the ballot of which will be printed in the next issue of the COLLEGIAN.

Stratton Gymnasium, the long awaited, sorely needed recreational unit of Bryant College is at last a reality. With architecture befitting the dignity of the college and the neighborhood, this is a building of which one should be proud.

Over cinders and cement, a maple floor is laid. Knotted pre-stained pine paneling covers the lower sections of the walls, while the upper portions and the ceiling are covered with cream-colored paneled insulating board.

Light is furnished through the skylights and the many windows on the south side of the hall. Twelve electric lights are suspended from the beams in series of three, giving ample illumination at all times.

Circulating air currents are furnished through three suspended units, centrally controlled by General Electric oil furnaces, which also serve the purpose of heating water for the shower rooms.

The stage, so essentially a part of a combination assembly hall and gymnasium, is situated at the western end of the hall, flanked on both sides by dressing rooms. It is so constructed as to throw sound with the least possible effort.

A special non-skiddable finish has been placed over the section of the 40' x 80' floor to be used for athletics. When social affairs take place, an easily removed crystallized wax is applied.

In the northeastern corner is a staircase leading to the men's shower and dressing rooms above Alumni Hall. A doorway between Alumni Hall and the Gym facilitates the passageway of the students into the cafeteria. On the upper eastern wall, a wire-caged electric clock has been hung to allow speakers to gauge their time on lectures and to keep the students well informed on the time.

Baskets for the regulation basketball games are placed, one on the eastern wall and the other suspended before the stage. Baskets for interclass and fraternity games are placed the breadth of the hall, on the north and south sides. The most modern and safest equipment is available for all types of indoor sport.

The girls' dressing room to the right of the stage extends into the Faculty Club where showers and every comfort are provided for girl athletes.

Staggered chairs are placed along the sides of the gymnasium, allowing the maximum of space for athletics and dancing.

With the completion of Stratton Gymnasium, comes the termination of Bryant College's most active year of expansion since its incorporation.

Masquers to Begin Activities Soon

The "Masquers," under the able direction of President A. Gartner, who is anxious to get under way for the coming busy season, has plans for the continued success of the Dramatic Club in presenting intelligent, amusing plays.

Guy Dewey, director; Archer Gartner, president; and Cecile Landry, vice-president, are the only remaining officers, the others being lost by graduation.

The club held its first business meeting of the year November 5, 1935, in Alumni Hall.

KEEPS TRYING

Tommy's first school report, which was promising, read, "Trying."

The second term's report raised his parents' hopes still more by stating, "Still trying."

The next report, however, dashed all hopes to the ground. It read, "Still very trying."

He who thinks only of himself is hopelessly uneducated, no matter how thoroughly instructed he may be.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler.

EDITORIAL

Last Thursday a notice was read to the classes concerning cutting classes. It stated that those who cut classes would have to make the time up in a double amount.

Some say this is a silly, high-school idea. Yes, it is a high-school idea but maybe it doesn't occur to the students that cutting classes is a high-school idea, too, and we must fight fire with fire. The answer might come back that in a college the students pay their money and it is up to them to go to classes and get the knowledge. If they cut a class, that is their misfortune. But Bryant College seeks to make sure that students receive their money's worth in knowledge. The plan of making sure that students get the knowledge is fine, but being so particular about a person's cutting a class is rather foolish for after all isn't it up to a person whether or not he gets the knowledge? The cut goes down in the records as an absence from class. Prospective employers looking these cards over will see the story of a student's punctuality and dependability written in black and white. Therefore why not let it be up to the individual as to his attendance at classes? It will not benefit him in the end. Simple punishment such as "staying after school" does not bother the average student but the fact that it will hinder his chances in the future will awaken the student to the fact that "cutting classes does not pay."

Bryant — Our College

We are now starting our third month in our beautiful college home and campus, and have had opportunity in that time to become acquainted with its many advantages.

When our friends visit us, we point with pride to the handsomely furnished offices in South Hall and modernly equipped classrooms with comfortable posture chairs and tables instead of clumsy desks; the batteries of lockers where we may safely keep our books, and the young women's lounge on the second floor so conveniently located next to the Secretarial Department; and the men's smoking room on the third floor.

Then too, how we appreciate the extra buildings and grounds we now enjoy. A campus, Alumni Hall with its lecture hall and cafeteria, the latter to be used for small tea dances and get-togethers; Stratton Gymnasium with its facilities for lectures, athletics, dramatics, and dances; and the Bryant Placement Bureau and Library ideally located on the northwest corner of the campus.

BITS OF THOUGHT

Many people liked this column in the last issue so here we go again to try to gather more thoughts about the college.

Last week's initiation reminded many a senior of the days last year when they were being taken for a "ride" over the rough road of initiation.

Those doubting Thomases who thought that the gym would not be ready for November first have been surprised at the speed at which the men have worked in the past weeks.

Just after this paper was last issued, the lamp post near the driveway in front of South Hall was nicely pushed over by some freshman (a brute, I'd say), but we notice that it has been placed upright again, plus the globe.

Messrs. Richards and Foley made the Tau Epsilon pledgees stoop pretty low when they made the poor boys shine their shoes.

The new idea of holding a joint fraternity-sorority dance is a good idea, but it seems too bad that more can't support the dances. It doesn't help the treasuries of the organizations if the members are non-supporters.

We hear that quite a few Bryant students attended the DeMolay dance on October 11. Our small delegation, however, was, we understand, lost in the very large mob.

After the first issue of this paper came out, many remarks were made concerning the appearance of certain names in the paper, but I'll bet that if the names didn't appear, we'd hear more remarks than we did. They've got us, coming and going.

Somewhere in this paper you will find an announcement concerning a contest to be run by the BRYANT COLLEGIAN. In support of that, let me say that you ought to start looking around for your Miss Bryant, because there are many girls in this college who will be fighting for the honor.

Anytime you have any spare time after school some afternoon, go over to Alumni Hall and listen to the Bryant Concert Orchestra. In spite of reports to the contrary from some of the students here and there, the group is really as they say, "not half bad."

Why not write your thoughts out, whether they be criticism, complaint, or compliment on the paper or College? Remember: constructive criticism is manly; criticism without putting something better in its place is meaningless. We like to hear what the student has to say so that we will be able to "please everybody." (A big job you'll admit, but we'll try it anyway.)

* * *

Both good and bad things come to an end, so this bunch of thoughts must end and we'll let you decide whether they are the former or the latter class. As a last resort to thinking we'll end with this bit of wisdom . . . "it is better to expect the least and receive the best than to expect the best and receive the least."

A Correction

In the first issue of the COLLEGIAN it was stated that Mr. Hammond taught twelve subjects. This was, of course, a typographical error, as he teaches but three major subjects, together with several collateral ones.

WHO'S WHO

Among our best known teachers is Kathleen M. Krueger. For two years she attended Rogers High School, Newport, Rhode Island, and then Hope High at Providence. A two-year course at Bryant followed. Besides her two years of teaching shorthand and Office Training she has taken courses at R. I. C. E. Likes dancing and tennis; adores football. "Kay" is the "tops" in teachers.

"I am a bit abashed," states Mr. Gulski,

Thanksgiving Greetings

Brave and high-souled Pilgrims,
You who knew no fears,
How your words of thankfulness
Go ringing down the years;
May we follow after;
Like you, work and pray,
And with hearts of thankfulness
Keep Thanksgiving Day.

ANNETTE WYNNE

PEOPLE WE KNOW

Suggestions for sanctions to be leveled at Miss Harriet Pierce will gladly be received by this column. Miss Pierce recently remarked that the faculty will not have to use the Gymnasium to get their exercise, because they are handling dumb-bells every day. I suggest that we have Mr. Russell send her a sharp note in the near future. Deah! deah!

Melvin "Mike" Miller displayed tact in a recent remark. Someone suggested that the nicest girl in the school be selected for Phil Utley, and Mike remarked that that would be impossible because he already had that pleasure.

Charles Hacking's recent "Gushing" episode was a masterpiece. He showed very clearly that he has a thorough knowledge of the art despite his youth, and that he can "gush" with the best of them.

If I am correct, the score of the Phi Sigma Nu-Alumni football game was not publicly announced. Possibly the Active Chapter did not care to cast any reflections on its older and more decrepit brethren.

If any of the out-of-town boys have difficulty in arranging dates, I'm sure they can be satisfied with Bunny Cogswell, who can get dates for whole parties at a time. She asks no fees whatsoever for this service, but should you wish to contribute, your gifts will be greatly appreciated by Mike Miller, who is in charge of the Cracker Fund.

The boys in the Senior Accounting Class should demand of Mr. Lee a Balance Sheet showing his earnings derived from the class. Possibly some ambitious member of the class could chart these figures and through intensive research, discover just what causes these enormous profits and just when the Seniors may expect another flurry of taxation.

Archie Gartner, the Voice in the Old Village Choir, finally decided to remove the shadow that he wore under his nose because he feels that it hindered his breathing and decreased the volume of his voice.

Miss Ruth Cobb, our own Georgia Cracker, and Miss Barbara Minikin, our Georgia Peach, both of Fall River, have decided that Ungberg and Gartner are altogether too firm with their Pledgees, who are really quite accomplished—even to the extent of putting something over on their superiors.

Mr. Richards proved to be an accomplished musician recently. While listening to the rehearsal of the Bryant Collegians, he seemed suddenly inspired and went right to town. His rendition of "Dark Town Strutters' Ball" was unique and highly entertaining.

Pledge season with its usual run of horse-play arrived and in some instances has departed much to the relief of the office. It is to be hoped that old worn-out pranks will be substituted in the near future for some that are interesting and worthy of notice.

BRYANT BANTER

Ho Hum! and another Hum! Another month's rolled by and we're still at the old grind of carrying books and never looking at them. How can we? There are too many other things to interest us. For instance:

The initiations which have been held this last week by the Bryant fraternities and sororities.

BRYANT HALL NOTES

It is the general opinion of Bryant College that the Sigma Lambda Theta pledgees are the best looking girls on the campus. With such a lively crowd they should certainly be going places and doing things this year. Incidentally, the majority of the dorm girls belong to the aforementioned sorority. . . . We are going to get a bed by hook or by crook for "Wally." She is getting to be such a habit with us that the dorm seems lost without her. . . "Bunny" was overheard saying that she was quitting her position as "Fix-her-uppa." Have pity on those who have no technique, "Bunny." . . . Who is the mysterious Miss Green at the dorm? Would Bill Frost know anything about it? . . . Nearly half of the Bryant Hall occupants are going home for the weekend. . . Carmelia can't decide which blonde she likes better. . . The romance between the red head and Ralphie is still flourishing. Why? Competition! But you don't have to worry, Helen, "Cottontail" has plenty of heart interests now. . . "Cobby" appreciates the contributions from the cracker funds in charge of Mike Miller. . . The romance between Dave and Phyllis is dying out. Can it be that smoke has gotten in their eyes? . . . Van Zandtie seems to have made a hit with Phil Utley. Nice going, Barbara, here's wishing you luck. . . Why did Joe and Juliet come late to the pledgee dance? Was it engine trouble? . . . We wonder why Sally is so quiet this year. It might be love. . . Sarah Goldberg recently spent the weekend at her home in Maine. Tough luck, Vincent. . . Olive Rand and Anne King are still inseparable. . . Marion Merritt enjoys talking about her Mother's bridge-parties and "Winnie." . . Our own Lois Berry is playing the trumpet in the orchestra. At least there's one musician that rates in the dorm. . . I wonder what tricks the girls are always up to after dances . . . we won't tell. . . Bobby Minkin has to pay the taxicab man for waiting charges . . . what was the hurry, Bobbie? Have you noticed how kind "Muff" is to Cobbie and Bobbie? When they come in late she even makes up their beds . . . fancy that? . . . Dot Tarvers has never been the same since the Phi Sigma Nu Dance. . . What's the reason, could it be Pop? "Cobby" rates with the Moses Brown boys, they are always up to see her from seven to seven-thirty . . . and one even stays a few minutes later, how about it, Cobby? We bequeath Marion Merritt's undying speech to Doris Gay, who seldom ever speaks. . . Duddie's giggles seem to have won her into our hearts. . . We want a new doorbell because the one we have now is tired. . . What two maniacs are often seen together? . . . Well, that's all there is.

Mrs. Henry was employed for several years in the Trust Department of the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company. They are now at home at 32 Detroit Avenue, Providence.

ities. Has Phyllis Edwards recovered from that wicked whack she received from Wally? Wally certainly swings a mean paddle.

Archie Gartner certainly benefited from that initiation. He even was fed some delectable chocolate cake by Weenie.

Even Tommy Moran benefited to the extent of a proposal from a blushing freshie. I pity that poor initiate to Phi Sigma Nu who had to plait or rather braid the girl's hair. Oh, well, Clydie, you can take it.

Beta Sigma Gamma also had a rather interesting one in the downtown section of Providence. It's just too bad that that officer of the law did not enjoy the sight of the girls playing leapfrog down the street and ordered them to move on. However, the girls certainly made up for it in front of the Biltmore and Loew's State Theatre.

The Sigma Lambda Theta Pledgee Dance caused a lot of commotion at the dorm the other night. It was noticed that Vi Witikainen looked especially stunning in her green gown and white bunny wrap. Al certainly thought so. Duddie Best added to the excitement by springing her famous giggle every second or so. To further heighten the excitement, somebody started to yell, "Bill Williams is here." I wonder why one girl who wasn't going with him got so excited.

Speaking of the dance, we've heard good excuses for getting to a dance late, but Olga Ikkiewicz's and Adele Sherry's certainly take the cake. It seems they couldn't find the place.

These Sigma Iota Chi's certainly don't get tired of the same men. We hear that Ceel Landry, Archie Gartner, Elmina Malloy, and Dirk Hacking went to the Sigma Iota Chi Dance together.

HERE AND THERE

Amy Douglas is a criterion on how to "chisel" rings. Ask her how she got Carl Cranson's.

The favorite song of Bobby Czekala is not "Anchors Aweigh." You see her boy friend goes to Connecticut Naval Academy.

We hear that Ozanne's girl has squirrel teeth. Maybe that's why she picked a nut.

SPORTS

Varsity Basketball Schedule Includes Strong Teams

Phi Sigma Nu Athletics

Phi Sigma Nu has inaugurated a full schedule of athletic contests for the coming basketball and football season. The football team has competed in one contest with the Alumni, and are preparing for a game with Beta Sigma Chi. The fraternity has also issued a challenge to Tau Epsilon at a near date in the future. A basketball schedule is being arranged, but as yet no definite games are prepared for. Phi Sigma Nu also intends to carry on handball and indoor baseball teams if the gym is opened for these sports. The fraternity would also accept a game from a team organized in the school with boys who do not belong to a fraternity. The Athletic Committee consists of David Clark, chairman, Robert Hopkins, and Joseph Smith.

The Edwards-Clark, Schimmerling-Weissman romances aren't going along so very smoothly from all appearances. We are disappointed.

Horses aren't the only things that carry tales. Snooks Jarvis' car gives him away every time he parks outside that certain girl's home.

It seems that Sally Saletnik and Art are growing intellectual. We hear that they spent a whole Sunday night reading the Reader's Digest.

That strong and silent man, Nat Lipschitz, has a reason for ignoring the Bryant femmes. It seems that back home there's a certain brunette.

Is it Dave Clark or his car that attracts the girls?

We wonder—

It has been said that college-bred is a bunch of dough with a lot of crust, hanging around for a good loaf. DID YOU SAY LOAF, WITH ALL OUR HOMEWORK?

We want to warn those girls who are about to flaunt the ancient tradition that any girl who stands on the courthouse steps is fair prey to a kiss from any passing stranger. Imagine their embarrassment if Tommy Moran happened along.

We recommend Sara Goldberg's pickles and Bobby's salami sandwiches.

Since the faculty members have become so stringent about enforcing penalty work upon those who cut, we are looking for reasons with which we really can get excused. I guess we need advice from the Senior who once painted her eyelids with lipstick and called it a sty in order to get excused.

With the completion of Stratton Hall will come the call for candidates of the Bryant Varsity Basketball Squad.

Coach Winans will have only a few veterans to start with as Swanson, Wright, and Hazlehurst were lost to the squad by graduation, and Utke, star forward of the last season's quintet, failed to return for his Senior Year.

A strong schedule has been arranged and the team will face new opponents in Farmington Normal of Maine, and Brown University Freshmen.

This season will also see the return of the strong Newport Naval Training Station team to the Bryant Schedule after a three-year absence.

The Rhode Island State and Providence College games promise to be matches well worth seeing, as a natural rivalry has developed between these teams and Bryant.

Members of last year's squad who are back this year include Captain-elect "Red" Bray, "Snooks" Jarvis, "Dave" Clark, and Henry Jablecki.

Under-graduate manager of athletics, Leonard Paquette, has announced a Varsity Basketball Schedule of 15 games; nine of which are at home, and six away. The schedule of four other pending games will probably be announced later. The schedule covers a span of the four winter months with only let-ups for the Christmas recess and a ten-day period during examinations from February 8 to February 18.
