Hi There,
At my last writing I was in the land of 'down under' however for the past few months we've been studying the nature of New Guinea pros and cons, mostly cons. Our work is purely signal and our work weeks of the seven day variety, however one doesn't mind too much if the work day is long and the day stand out and for we're paid off in self satisfaction in the knowing that our job is well done and is having a direct effect on the outcome of this war. If time and space would permit I'd send along a thesis on the ant and other insect life here and the Lord only knows that here there exists each and every variety known to mankind, however the result of such discourse on these lowlife wouldn't aid or abet their social standing. The natives here, or Tuzia Wuzia call them what you may, seem to have some sort of mania for the cultivating of a real heavy long bushy head of hair and anything that is bright or shiny sooner or later finds a home there, the heads of the females seem to be clean shaven and they also seem to be the beasts of burden. Now we're being furnished all the necessities by hand, saw such as gigawatts and articles et cetera. I was glad to hear of you.
