Bryant Aids in Evaluating Qualifications Of Schools Seeking Accreditation

By Douglas Fisher

Bryant College accredited by the New England Association of College and Secondary Schools in 1964 is currently aiding that organization by assigning staff members to take part in the evaluation of other institutions of higher learning which are seeking either accreditation or a reaffirmation of accreditation.

Dr. Charles H. Russell, Vice-President for Academic Affairs at Bryant, recently joined Dr. Nils Sahlin, President of Quinpiac College and Richard Bond, Dean of Westbrook Junior College in an accreditation visit to Newton Junior College. Their assignment was to observe the operations of the college and report their findings to the Commission on Higher Learning of NEACSS. Dr. Russell will soon serve as Chairman of the team that will visit Dean Jr. College in April for the purpose of reaffirming accreditation.

In response to the question concerning what the committee of men are looking for upon their inspection of the campuses, Dr. Russell remarked that it was their task to determine whether "the college is performing satisfactorily." Moreover, he stated that they are to decide whether the "faculty is qualified, courses well designed and taught, quality of administration, and the financial affairs of the institution." In other words, they are to "view the whole range of operation and its physical facilities."

The fact that NEACSS has summoned the aid of the faculty and administration is perhaps a vote of confidence in Bryant and its increasing stature in the business world.

Masquer's Production of "Malcolm" a Success

A fantasy of modern life with Christian allegory undertones, the play is described by Albee as "camp," a beat generation word that means many things. What it means in the play "Malcolm" is for each viewer to guess.

The story is relatively simple: Malcolm represents pure innocence, the innocence of youth. His adversary, the invisible Professor Cox, ruler of the city, master manipulator, represents what a major critic described as "the influence in human relations." Cox wants to destroy Malcolm's innocence, to corrupt him by exposing him to life. Accordingly, he forces Malcolm out into the world, into the lives of various couples whom Cox has previously corrupted. But in each couple at least one member is infatuated with Malcolm. This infatuation is sometimes homosexual, sometimes heterosexual. Cox, however, observing all of this, will not let Malcolm stick anywhere. Through various manipulations he breaks up each relationship and moves Malcolm onward to his ultimate destruction. For not only does Cox want to destroy Malcolm, he also wants to prevent any of his other subjects from achieving any meaningful relationship.

The Christian allegory is made apparent by Malcolm's golden bench, symbolizing a throne; by his continual references to his father, who many believed never existed; by his being called a prince, Malcolm, then, is Christ, an ineffectual Christ in a "God is Dead" world, a symbol of hope, but ultimately a failure.

Malcolm was played by Frank Kohanski; Professor Cox, Steve Crowley; Kermit Raphaelson, Bruce Broadbent; Laureen Raphaelson, Beth Whitmore; Madame Girard, Carla Jeanne Hyde; Girard Girard, Ken Cohen; Eloisa Brace, Sandy Miller; Jerome Brace, Bruce Broadbent; Gus, Bob Stosse; Melba, Laurie Levine; and, Miles & Doctor, Herman Reynolds.

Thanks are to be extended to the Bryant Christian Association for the dinner they sponsored for the Masquers on February 7. During this dinner there was discussion about the play.

Thanks are also to be extended to the entire cast of Malcolm for the fine job that they did, to the loyal Masquers who worked behind the scenes, and to our director, Mr. John LaFontaine, for his loyal support.

Dr. Priscilla Moulton Phillips, President of the Eastern States Association for Teacher Education, announces the selection of the keynote speaker for the Forty-second Annual Spring Conference to be held at the Hotel New Yorker, New York City, on March 16, 17, 18.

The selection of Dr. Horn for an encore was by popular request. Dr. Horn's Keynote speech at the 1966 Spring Conference received national recognition. It was printed in THE TEACHERS COLLEGE RECORD Vol. 62, No. 6, March 1961.

President Francis H. Horn, University of Rhode Island

Dr. Horn was born in Toledo, Ohio in 1908. He graduated from Dartmouth in 1930 and earned the degree of Master of Arts from the University of Virginia and the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy from Yale. He has received fourteen honorary doctor degrees.

Dr. Horn taught at the American University in Cairo, in Egypt, from 1930 to 1933. From 1936 to 1942 he was head of the Junior College of Commerce, now Quinnipiac College, in New Haven, Connecticut. From 1942 to 1946 he served in the Army, rising from first lieutenant to lieutenant colonel. His decorations include the Legion of Merit and the Army Commendation Medal with cluster. His last Army assignment was as assistant dean of Biarritz American University, the Army university in France.

In 1947, he went to The Johns

Hopkins University as dean of the evening college and director of the summer session. From 1951 to 1953, he was executive secretary of the Association for Higher Education in Washington, D. C., and from 1953 to 1957, president of Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, New York. During 1957-58 he was distinguished visiting professor of higher education at Southern Illinois University. He became professor of higher education and president of the University of Rhode Island, July 1, 1958.

Dr. Horn is the author of over a hundred articles and reviews in the field of education and the editor of several books. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and other honorary, educational, and professional organizations. Currently he is a director of the Near East Foundation, the United Board for Christian Higher Education in Asia, futures for Children, the Rhode Island Higher Education Assistance Corporation, the Trinity Square Playhouse, the Rhode Island Philharmonic Orchestra, the Rhode Island Research and Design Center, and the New England Council (Chairman of the Education Committee). He is a trustee of Quinnipiac College, Windham College, Nichols College, Impact, R. I., and the Citizens Savings Bank (Providence). He is also regional vice president and a member of the National Advisory Board of the United World Federalists, Rhode Island Chairman of the New England Board of Higher Education, and a member of the Rhode Island Advisory Council on the Cultural Arts.

something all athletes know. Without the coach to direct and coordinate the efforts of the players, a team is nothing. This is true no matter how great the players are, and any player who is worth his weight in salt will admit it.

If these students think they can do better than the coach or his team, why aren't they playing? Why do these canaries, who do little more for the college than chirp, just sit in the stands and insult a coach who has done more for Bryant than all of them have done or probably ever will do? These students may think that they are some kind of gift to Bryant, but they are the worst possible detriment to the College, as well as to the students themselves. It only takes a few clowns like these students to ruin the dignity and ethical conduct of the remaining worthwhile students.

The students, officers, faculty, and alumni of Bryant College owe great thanks to Coach Duffy for a job that only a dedicated and talented coach could perform.

Letter to the Editor Bryant Students Show Disrespect

R. Scott Hamilton

While recently attending a Bryant basketball game, I was given positive proof that "empty barrels make the most noise." During the entire course of the game, several students were more intent on insulting Coach Duffy than watching the playing on the court. This type of behavior on the part of these students displayed their total lack of intelligence, understanding, ethics, and, most of all, appreciation.

Coach Duffy produced one of the most successful teams in the history of Bryant sports during the 1965-66 season. Coach Duffy and his team have an undefeated season so far this year. What more can anyone ask of a coach?

Oh, I'm sure that some of these unethical lip-flappers will say that it's the players and not the coach who win the games. Well, as an athlete, let me say

Annual On-Campus Job Interviews Begin

By Marvin Friedman

Seniors will be interested to know that the Placement Office is presently hosting representatives from many companies. These companies are looking for accounting, management, marketing, and secretarial majors to fill vacancies in their growing firms.

Any senior who is seeking permanent employment should check the schedule of visiting representatives in the Placement Office. A copy of the schedule will appear in the Archway on a weekly basis.

On Monday, February 20, representatives from the United States Plywood Company and the Central Intelligence Agency will meet with students majoring in Accounting, Management, and Marketing. The following day the Defense Contract Audit Agency will discuss employment positions and advancement opportunities with accounting majors. The representative of the Continental Can Company will also describe the benefits of that company to accounting and management majors.

Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Company will have its representative on campus on Wednesday, February 22. He will be here to interview accounting seniors. Roadway Express, Inc., a large trucking company, is also scheduled for Wednesday. Management and marketing majors will be interested in this firm.

All Business Administration seniors should be aware that Pratt and Whitney Aircraft will conduct interviews on February 22. It should be noted that this firm is one of the largest employers in New England.

February 24 is the date the accounting firm of Price Waterhouse interviews candidates for positions in their firm. During the week of February 27, Aetna Casualty and Surety, Owens-Corning Fiberglas, and the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, are a few of the firms that are sending representatives to interview applicants.

Seniors interested in attending these interviews can obtain information at the Placement Office. Any changes in the schedule will be posted.

Hagorski Explains Western Alliance and DeGaulle

After some delay and re-scheduling, Bryant College was fortunate to be able to have as a guest lecturer, Mr. Zygmunt Hagorski, Special Assistant to the President of the Foreign Policy Association, and former U. S. Information Officer and Attache in Paris with the U. S. Embassy and Foreign Service Officer elsewhere around the world.

Mr. Hagorski addressed the students of Bryant College, especially those in the Social Sciences, in the Bryant Gymnasium, at Noon, Wednesday, February 8th. His topic was "The Western Alliance: With or In Spite of De Gaulle." There was a question period.

All students, Faculty, and Administration were invited to hear Mr. Hagorski. His visit to our campus was made possible through Mrs. Marjorie Vinal of the World Affairs Council.

The Brothers of A.O. are really excited over the pledge class we have received this year. The pledge class consists of fourteen new able bodied men who are willing to work for the fraternity (We're on the rise). The pledges are John Hanhauser, Paul Popalardo, Vincent Osowski, Arthur Clark, Stephen Baker, Daniel Koojoolian, Todd Metcalf, Alan Potter, Robert St. Jean, Bruce Kleese, John Koziol, Robert Walsh, Phil Soazy, and Dwight Higley.

This year AO is planning to break its old basketball record of 0-8. We are anticipating a 1-7 record with a lot of luck and effort. We will also be entering the bowling league this year.

Congratulations to "Rabbit" on receiving the top fraternity average with a 2.5.

The brothers had a great time at the Blue Moon Hotel, 178 Ives St. (Reasonable Rates) over the recent vacation. Roy Roy had to leave the Blue Moon for a few days to intercept his marks, but returned in time to set a new world's record for the nightly run between the Blue Moon and Haven Bros. By the way, Roy Roy is no longer infatuated, he's now in love! O.C. (BIB) found it impossible to put the A.O. boys under the table. Stanley, go walking in the rain much? Wayne, congratulations on your recent pinning to Carlene Napoleitano. Crash has the only car on campus with crosseyed headlights.

The brothers of A. O. would like to welcome to Bryant College Ronald Lemme who is an honorary brother and legendary leader of the famous Satan's Breed.

Jack got engaged to Maureen. Stan, don't forget the $5.00 you will owe Roy on March 4th.

Congratulations to Gary Hooper on his recent engagement to Donna.

Well . . . a week of pledging has gone by and I know you pledges are really enjoying yourselves!! Tomorrow all our pledges will be supporting the fabulous Bryant Basketball Team and tomorrow night they will all be enjoying the entertainment of the Questionmark and the Mysterians. As you can see pledging isn't hard; in fact, it's rather restful, peaceful, and quite enjoyable (!!!?)

I just want to say that the sisters are very proud of their pledgmistress. Judy, you're doing a really fine job; just keep up the good work. In just one week the girls who have proved themselves will be on their way to sisterhood and they will have that certain feeling that they will never forget.

All of the sisters would like to wish our brothers, BEX, luck with their pledge class.

We are very happy to say that many past THETA girls will be here this week end and next, and it's really going to be great seeing these kids again.
