LETTER NINETY SIX-EDITH TO VIC

Tuesday, 11/21/44, 8:10 p.m.

Dearest One,

Tonight I shall take a bath and get in bed rather early, so that I can start reading "Porgy" by Heyword. I need to lose myself in a story because I feel very "blue" this evening.

When I walked into the house & didn't find any mail from you, the "blues" started "creeping up" on me. Darling--I know you write as often as you can, so I just blame it "on the war" as we do everything else.

you may be interested to know that I have rec'd every letter you wrote from Sept. 30---Oct. 20. Except a letter for Oct. 11 & one for Oct 15. Then, I miss Mail from Oct. 21 to Oct. 26. I have no letters for Oct. 28, 29, Nov. 1-3. The last letter I have from you is dated Nov. 5. I miss about 13 letters from you. I certainly hope you have been receiving my mail, plus the packages the families have sent, plus the articles & letters I've rec'd that I have sent you in separate envelopes for 3¢ postage.

We're still having "rainy" miserable weather. In fact, the last few nights I haven't slept too well, & it's probably due to this decided change in weather.

I got paid today & I think I shall buy us a bond for the 6th War Loan Drive. Altho' I've written to find out what's holding up our bonds, I haven't rec'd an answer as yet.

The guy that fixed the car broke off "the marker" that shows where to put the "oil tester stick" in. Garage Men "curse me up & down" when I asked them to check my oil as they can't tell where to put the stick back. -----But, I'm not complaining--- the car hardly eats any oil at all.

I love you, Bubsie--& already I'm looking forward to tomorrow as being one day nearer to being with you again.

All my love always,

Edith
