Bryant students, faculty, and staff gathered in the Gymnasium September 13 to welcome the Class of 1999 and formally usher in the new academic year. The theme of Convocation 1995, "The Challenges and Opportunities of Global Citizenship," sets the theme for school year.

Mr. Peter Meade, president and CEO of The New England Council, the nation's oldest regional business organization, was the keynote speaker. He spoke of how dramatically the world has changed and how students must prepare for the future while at Bryant. "I would suggest to you that there is an obligation on your part to prepare yourselves for the world," he said. "As you look toward tomorrow, you need to think of just what your workplace will be like. I would strongly suggest to you that the workplace you're going into is the world -- and unless you understand it, you won't be able to do well there."

Mr. Meade urged students to gain an understanding about the rest of the world by learning about each other's cultures on campus. He also urged students to study at least one language and take advantage of international study programs.

President William E. Trueheart welcomed freshmen, transfer, and graduate students to the Bryant Community. Board of Trustees Chairman John E. Wolfe extended greetings from the board and Chairman Emeritus Gregory T. Parkos. Kahkaskan (Kate) Adil, president of the Multicultural Students Union, offered greetings in several languages representative of the multicultural students at Bryant.

Management Professor Hinda Pollard received the Distinguished Faculty Award from her colleagues. Dr. Michael B. Patterson, vice president of academic affairs/dean of faculty, recognized students' academic achievements and introduced new faculty members.

Richard Cumming, adjunct professor of music, and the Bryant Singers performed Bryant's alma mater, "Throughout Our Lives."
United Way Campaign Under Way

The 1996 United Way/Fund for Community Progress campaign began October 2, and committee members hope to make this a record-breaking year. The committee includes Bill Baker, purchasing and auxiliary services; Terrie Celentano, CIBED; Carol Coronado, volunteer admission programs; Rosanne Dana, counselling services; Carla Gardner, human resources; Mike Hebert, professor of accounting; Guiomar Melo, president's office; and Camille St. Onge, custodial staff. Eileen Chekal, of volunteer admission programs, and Guiomar Melo, of the President’s office, will serve as co-chairs of the campaign, which ends November 17.

A complimentary breakfast, provided by ARAMARK, will be held in Gulski Dining Room on Tuesday, November 28, from 8 to 8:30 a.m., to thank all Bryant employees who have contributed either to the United Way or the Fund for Community Progress. Prizes will be awarded to donors in three categories including those who give through payroll deduction, those who increase their giving total from the previous year, and all donors who give either through payroll deduction or by check.

Prizes have been donated by many Smithfield businesses including Stop & Shop; Such a Bagel; DMK Sports & Soccer Center; Gold’s Gym; Répété; NHD Hardware; Fantastic Sam’s; Country Rose Florist; Apple Valley Car Wash; Video Plus; Ron’s Spaghetti House; and Simply Elegant Flowers. Other donors include the Countryside Restaurant, North Scituate; Brad Folsom, Public Safety; Shear Art, Bryant Center; ARAMARK; Destinations Travel, Providence; and Suburban Fitness Center, Scituate.

Secretary of Commerce Visits EAC

U.S. Secretary of Commerce Ron Brown recently visited the Bryant campus with Congressman Patrick Kennedy. Brown praised the Rhode Island Export Assistance Center at Bryant for providing businesses with a database of export opportunities abroad and helping them to develop and expand their export programs. In photo are (l-r) President William E. Trueheart; Ron Brown; Jim Segovis, interim director of the Center for International Business and Economic Development; Doug Jobling, director of the Small Business Development Center; and Joe Loddo, district director of the U.S. Small Business Administration.
Wolfe Appointed Board Chairman

John E. (Jack) Wolfe, a trustee for the past eight years, has been elected chairman of the board of trustees for the 1995-96 academic year. He is president of two Bedford, MA companies—Holometrix and Tytronics. The companies manufacture instruments that analyze thermal properties, and chemical analyzers for both process and environmental control.

"During Jack's eight years of service as a member of the board, he has earned the respect of his fellow trustees who value his unfailing dedication to Bryant and the wealth of insight and experience he brings to board discussions," says President William E. Trueheart.

Jack is upbeat about the next several years. "We are clearly getting a message of optimism. Bryant is positioned for the future," he says. "The college's biggest assets include an excellent academic program, an unusually talented faculty and student body, a superb campus, and AACSB (American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business) accreditation."

Jack feels Bryant's financial position has been strengthened under the leadership of President William E. Trueheart. "We have the capability to become the best of the best over the next decade," adding that a new strategic plan for the college is now under development and the trustees are fully committed to supporting it. Jack succeeds Chairman Emeritus Gregory Parkos '50, '88H, who will continue as a member of the trustees' executive committee.

Information on Bryant's newest trustees Stephen E. Crowley '70, Dianne M. Kan '95, Carlos Zuniga '82, and Joseph H. Lemieux '57, '94H, will appear in the next issue of Bryant's Business.

Alumni Giving Soars

The Office of Annual Giving announces that alumni giving is up 64 percent for 1994-95. This represents an increase of more than $200,000 donated by alumni in the previous fiscal year. The average gift also increased from $70 to $110.

"All members of the development and alumni relations staff deserve recognition for this dramatic increase in giving," says Jill Nosach, annual giving director. "No single individual is responsible for this success—it was a true team effort."

Contributions provide funding for scholarships, library resources, co-curricula programs, financial aid, and more.

In Memoriam - Roy Nelson

Roy Nelson, former director of admission until his retirement in 1994, died after suffering a heart attack at his Warwick home Sunday, September 24. He was 61 years old.

Roy's career at Bryant spanned 26 years. He began as admission counselor on the East Side campus and became director of admission in 1976.

Marcia Akerholm, office supervisor for admission, worked with Roy for 25 of those 26 years and recalls the special way he interacted with prospective students. "Roy had a charismatic style when meeting students. He was warm and cordial and took the time to talk to them as people first, and Bryant prospects second," she says. "He had a special insight that helped him relate to young people on a personal level, and they responded to him."

"The entire Bryant community is saddened by Roy's death," says President William E. Trueheart. "He was a gracious and respected colleague and friend, who touched the lives of generations of Bryant students through his personal insight and professional wisdom. His passing is a great loss for all of us."
Medivac on Campus

A medivac helicopter landed on campus as part of the first Rhode Island College and University Public Safety Officers Training Academy, which Bryant hosted for a week this summer. Paul Timmins, director of safety and security at the Rhode Island School of Design and Ray Perry, coordinator of Emergency Medical Services at Bryant, coordinated the demonstration with the "Life Star" medivac unit of Hartford, Connecticut.

The helicopter landed on the grass mound in the circle area outside the Unistructure to an audience of public safety officers and Bryant students, faculty, and staff. Captain Thomas Planagan, Flight Nurse Susan Gaeta, and Respiratory Therapist Blaise Smith opened the helicopter for viewing, and answered questions from the audience. A class followed in Papitto Dining Room in which officers were instructed on medivac protocol and preparation.

Landon Receives Honor Society Award

Jeannette M. Landon receives a $2,500 Beta Gamma Sigma Student Scholarship from Vice President of Academic Affairs/Dean of Faculty Michael B. Patterson and accounting Professor Janice A. Smith. Landon was selected for her academic achievements, leadership, and community service activities and was one of 12 national winners. An accounting clerk for the Center for Management Development, she will graduate from Bryant in 1996.

QUICKLY . . .

Vice President for Enrollment Management Barbara O'Connell and Marketing Professor Frank Bingham will present a paper at the 6th Symposium of Marketing of Higher Education in November. Its title is "Relationship Marketing: A New Way of Doing Business in Higher Education."

CIS Professor Wallace Wood was recently honored by the Dighton-Rehoboth Regional School District for 24 years of service on their school committee. He was presented with a chair bearing the district's seal.

Professor of Economics Hsiang-ling Han has had an article accepted for publication in Applied Economics. The title is "Cointegration and Tests of Present Value Model in Stock Market."

Deb Pasquarella, director of student activities, has been appointed regional coordinator for the New England region of the National Association for Campus Activities (NACA). She will act as liaison between the region, the NACA National Office, and the NACA Board of Directors.

David DeBlois, associate director of financial aid, has been elected president of the Rhode Island Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators. Dave has served as vice president for two years and will serve as president for two more. He will represent the association at regional and national meetings.

History Professor Judy Barrett Litoff continues to speak around the nation about American women and World War II. In September, she spoke at the 1995 Emory University Alumni Weekend in Atlanta, Georgia, and was also the featured speaker at the Annual Meeting of the Rhode Island Historical Society. She spoke at the Heritage Plantation in Sandwich, Massachusetts, at the beginning of October.

Finance Professor Chantee Lewis has been named a Registered International Member (R.I.M.) of the International Real Estate Institute. He was presented with a certificate in September.
President Trueheart Meets President Clinton

President Trueheart met with President Clinton when area college presidents travelled to Washington to celebrate the first year of AmeriCorps, America's national service organization. Participating Rhode Island colleges and universities agreed to provide scholarship assistance to AmeriCorps volunteers who complete one year of service. Lawrence K. Fish '95H, president and CEO of Citizens Financial Group in Providence and chair of the Rhode Island Commission for National and Community Service, issued a challenge to other states to match Rhode Island’s commitment.

Literary Benefit for Hunger Relief

Bryant College will take part in a nationwide literary benefit for hunger relief on Wednesday, November 1, when the Writers Harvest: The National Reading, is held on campus. Writers and readers from the Bryant Community will read their own poetry or prose or a selection by another author. Poets Tom Chandler and Professor Jessan Dunn DeCredico are among those scheduled to read.

Bryant’s event, which runs from 7 to 9 p.m. in Papitto Dining Room, will take place one day ahead of the national event, when more than 1,000 people will read in 200 locations across the country. Since its launch in 1992, the Writers Harvest has involved many literary stars. This year’s national program is chaired by Richard Russo, author of Nobody’s Fool.

A minimum $3 donation will be collected at the door and all proceeds will benefit the Rhode Island Community Food Bank. Share Our Strength (S.O.S.) is the national sponsor of the event.

For more information about the program, contact Jessan Dunn DeCredico, adjunct professor of English at Ext. 6259 or 751-2979.

Employer Appreciation

Lynn DeNoia, executive director for information technology, was recently awarded a certificate of appreciation by the federal Defense Department’s National Committee for Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve. Brett McKenzie (left), instructional support specialist and naval reservist, and President William E. Trueheart presented the certificate.

Senior Class Gift is a Challenge

Groundbreaking for the 1995 Senior Class Gift, a “Challenge-by-Choice” course, was held on campus in May. The course, which is being constructed in a wooded area behind the grounds building, is often referred to as a “low ropes” challenge. Comprised of a group of physical activities presented in a prescribed sequence, it is designed to take individuals and groups beyond their own expectations or perceived willingness to try. Data has shown that persons who go beyond these self-imposed boundaries become stronger in terms of self-confidence and self-awareness.

The “Challenge-by-Choice” course also promotes team-building activities and is devised so that groups must work together to think of creative ways to master each activity.

“Symbolically, the course is representative of the challenges the Class of 1995 has faced at Bryant and exemplifies their spirit of teamwork and cooperation,” says Jennie Quinn ’95, who served as senior class gift chairperson.

Contributions from members of the Class of 1995 and many parents surpassed the goal of $4,000. The course is scheduled for completion this fall.

From the Editor: Thanks to all of you who called and sent cards and notes while I was home this summer recovering from surgery. I confess that the sound of our rural mail carrier's jeep became a high point of each day. Thanks again for your thoughtfulness.
