Hello Bryant,
First, 'thanks for the package of candy which you sent me for Christmas. Paper was the first to arrive. Thanks too for the letter which followed, it covered a lot of ground in a hurry, but it's good to get some news like that for a change. Perhaps a lot of the current news flows originate over here, but we also have to keep abreast of the home front.

I have done a good bit of traveling since last writing to you, much of it as the captain. Our unit had been in Britain for so long that we were getting ready to vote for the local M.P. when the invasion came along, and we were far behind. We should all be expected on European campaigns by the time we return to our homes.

The summer over here wasn't so bad, but that gave way to a very smuddy autumn. I had no idea that this could be so much mud, but there it was and we went through it. For the winter not particularly severe yet, but annoying. It's just more difficult to live during the winter under makeshift conditions always looking for some thing better, mostly with our eyes turned toward the States with all its available comforts.
