I am sitting in the grass. My body in the center of everything, my mind wandering far away, carried off by with the wind rustling through the trees that line the sidewalk. A playful laugh cuts through my daydreaming. Back in reality I listen closely to the friends that chat with voices raised in excitement, to the heavy boots of the boy headed to class, and the squeaky hinges of the car approaching the cross walk. My friend, Abby, sits with me quietly singing while she writes. An interesting juxtaposition to the clanging of construction not far off.

Beyond the small lawn where we sit, I hear a car alarm start and end as quickly as it begun. A car accelerates somewhere beyond the tree line. I hear cheering. I am not sure what for. The door opens behind us, its hinges squeak but it closes softly, easy to miss if you were not listening for it. The person that emerges shuffles across the bricks, the keys around their neck jingle with every step. The timer goes off, a loud whurring that cuts our focus. We leave our small lawn, ending the orchestra that surrounds us.

Have in common?

Hand-drawn musical score for a piece titled "Lemon". The score is written on five staves. A large, yellow, dotted lemon with a green leaf is drawn over the middle staves. The tempo is marked "Slowly" and the time signature is "4/4". The key signature has one sharp (F#). The score includes various musical notations such as notes, rests, and dynamic markings like "Cdim", "A7", "D", "Ddim", and "Cdim". There are also lyrics written below the staves: "came the world", "came the wind", "came the sky".

REVERSE EMOTIONS

Look around & notice someone laugh, but instead of hearing laughter, imagine the sound of crying with the vision of laughing
