

231-2479

The Bryn Mawr Club
Bryn Mawr College
Providence, R.I.
U.S.A.

Richard Thompson
Lindsay, Wash DC 20002
2100 Johnson City
6 February 1944

Dear Bruce

Hi,

Today I celebrated Christmas all over again for you perhaps reached the peak of the week... a little late, but more the less appreciated... thanks.

Since last writing to you, I've worked again... seems the way you must settle down in any one spot... as fast as I get back to civilian life I probably won't be content unless I'm working with a criminal or a circus.

I'm afraid that you'll find the writing illegible, but it's the best I can make. I've actually right now I'm parked on a log right next to the beach doing my damnedest to keep clear of falling coconuts and... there's one thing certain that when I get back. All the coconuts... saw the bird put up by Baker in those wretched little perches.

The spot I'm in now isn't too warm... in fact it's quite bearable... a nice breeze from the ocean certainly makes a lot of difference in the part of the wall. Outside of a couple of air raid alerts all the time from the artillery firing away there's really nothing really going on around here.

Best of luck to the club and thanks again
Richard Thompson

