Hello Bang,

New Guinea

Would have answered your letter of April 6th much sooner but for the fact that I've been spending my time moving around so rapidly that my mail has had one grand time catching up with me. As a matter of fact I've moved so much lately that I'm afraid when I return to the U.S. the wonderment will have gotten me.

At the present time am in a hospital here recuperating from another attack of malaria which has left me with anemia. The Dr. said today that they were going to give me iron, so if you hear any clanking around, you'll know it's me... of course that day is still far off.

To date haven't received the Easter package, but I'm in hopes it turns up for Christmas... that's really being an optimist at that. Anyway when and if I receive it, you can be assured I'll enjoy it, so thanks for your nice thought.

By now am definitely fed up with the trophies despite the fact that the local belles wear their lip lips and a hairing that Dorothy Lamour wouldn't dare to appear in, but when here modesty just isn't, at least not by the standards in the old country.

No more space now

V-MAIL

Sincerely yours,
Pat
