DISCRIMINATION

ADDRESSING

There are many ways to address and counter discrimination on campus in order to create a more inclusive environment.

Here are some suggestions for the campus as a whole:

- Hold events on campus that show the importance of the many types of people that we have on campus;
- Shine light on the issues that our own campus faces with discrimination;
- Use our many communication outlets (email, social media, newsletters, packets in the accepted student packages) to spread the word of the vast range of organizations that Bryant has that give people a safe space;
- Allow for classes that are based around open discussion of discrimination and make sure that students properly understand what discrimination is and its effects;
- Educate students on how to handle acts of discrimination and how they can help contribute to making Bryant a better community.

Here are some suggestions for individuals:

- Being open to new ideas and people;
- Speaking up and not allowing forms of discrimination go unnoticed;
- Creating dialogue;
- Educating students on the negative effects of being a passive bystander;
- Reporting acts of discrimination when they are seen.
