Bryant to host 1997 Women's Summit

Senator John H. Chafee announced recently that Bryant College in Smithfield will host the 1997 Women's Summit, to be held on Monday, September 15.

"The Women's Summit: Rising to Workplace Challenges in the Next Millennium," will consist of workshops which will examine such topics as mentoring, integrating work and family, and diversity in the work force, among others.

The keynote speaker is Sue Herera, anchor of CNBC's "Business Tonight," "The Money Wheel," and "Market Wrap," and author of Women on the Street: Making it on Wall Street -- the World's Toughest Business.

Also scheduled to speak at the conference are Hazel Henderson and Joanna T. Lau. Ms. Henderson is a world-wide syndicated columnist and consultant on sustainable development. An independent futurist and fellow of the World Business Academy, she is the author of six books, including Building a Win-Win World

Joanna T. Lau is president and co-founder of LAU Technologies, a manufacturer of electronic systems for military and commercial applications. Ms. Lau's many accolades include Inc. magazine's 1995 National Turnaround Entrepreneur of the Year award, as well as an honorary doctorate from Bryant College in 1997.

The event will be organized by Bryant College and the Public Forum Institute.

Senator John Chafee, the conference chairman, will deliver the opening address.

Although registration is free, seating is limited and those interested need to register by September 5 by calling (401) 232-6565. The summit will run from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Woman's Work

DAY-LONG WORKSHOP WILL FOCUS ON WORKING WOMEN

A day-long workshop focusing on issues that affect working women will be held at Bryant College in Smithfield on Sept. 15. Called "Rising to Workplace Challenges in the Next Millennium," topics including work and family, the importance of mentors, entrepreneurship, and workplace diversity will be featured.

Keynote speaker Sue Herera is an anchor of CNBC's Business Tonight, The Money Wheel and Market Wrap; she is also author of Women on the Street: Making It on Wall Street — The World's Toughest Business.

Hazel Henderson, a futurist, syndicated columnist and author of six books including Building a Win-Win World, will kick off the workshops at 9 a.m. with a session looking at "Women in the Work Force of Today and Tomorrow."

Lori Coakley, an assistant professor of management at Bryant, will present "Mission Possible or Impossible?: Integrating Work and Family." Coakley will give a how-to presentation for women looking to change their work arrangement, by perhaps moving from full-time to part-time or to an alternative work setting.

Among other local participants are Merrill Sherman, CEO of BankRI, and Carol Hurley, CEO of Econotel Business Systems, Inc., talking about invisible barriers that prevent qualified women from moving up, and Cheryl Watkins, CEO of Banneker Industries, talking about negotiation skills.

All seminars and workshops are free. The optional 12:45 luncheon, featuring CNBC's Herera, is $18; reservations are required. Call 232-6565 for more information about The Women's Summit, co-sponsored by a long list of groups including the Central Rhode Island Chamber of Commerce.
