

Dr. Lebovitz Named Full Professor

By Kenneth A. Culp

Dr. Sol Lebovitz, Bryant College Faculty Co-ordinator for the Social Science Department, has been raised to the rank of full professor.

Teaching here since 1962, Dr. Lebovitz has a background which readily supports his appointment.

Dr. Lebovitz received his degree of Bachelor of Science in Journalism graduating Magna Cum Laude from Boston University. He furthered his education by working for the degree of Master of Arts in Government at Harvard, and finally earned his Ph.D. in Political Science from the same school. While attending Harvard, Dr. Lebovitz was a Thayer Fellow and a graduate assistant to the Dean of the graduate school.

He served in the army as an enlisted man and officer during the Second World War, connected with civil affairs and military government. He participated in the Normandy Invasion, the liberation of Paris, and the occupation of Germany during the war; and as part of the American Military Government, he found himself responsible for the schools and universities in the state of Baden in Germany after the war ended. Between his discharge from the service and 1962, he was employed by a New York Corporation as an executive. He also taught at the University of Georgia and New York University.

In 1962 Dr. Lebovitz started teaching here at Bryant and since that time he has become very much involved in its college life. He has served as the class advisor for the Class of 1965 and is now the Faculty Advisor for the Current Events Club and Bryant College's delegation to the National U. N. Model General Assembly held in New York each spring. As a Faculty Co-ordinator, he is responsible for the Senator Pell Internship Program and the social Science Department as previously mentioned.

He also has become actively involved in activities outside of college. He is a member of the college lecture committee and lectures and talks to civic, church, and social groups at various times, and from time to time writes for the Providence Journal. As a member of the World Affairs Council, he is on its Board of Directors.

Dr. Lebovitz, his wife and two daughters reside in Barrington. His older daughter now attends Rhode Island College while the younger one is in the Barrington public schools. Because Mrs. Lebovitz is originally from France, French, is usually substituted for English in the Lebovitz household.

New York Job Conference Feb. 9 & 10

The New York Chapter of the American Marketing Association, leading national marketing organization, will sponsor its second annual INTRO conference, bringing together graduating college seniors and graduate students with personnel representatives of business organizations at the Park-Sheraton Hotel, in New York, on Thursday and Friday, February 9th and 10th.

The objective of the conference is to bring together graduating students who are looking for post-college employment with prospective employers at a central location with a minimum of time, effort and expense. Some fifty companies with openings in marketing, retailing, finance, advertising, management or sales are expected to have personnel executives at the conference.

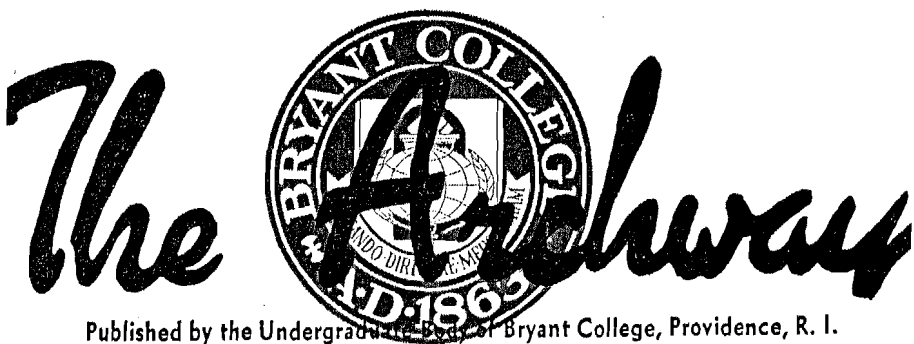

At the time of registration, each student will complete a personal data form. A copy of this form will be provided to each attending company before the conference. In addition, each registrant will also provide a more detailed resume of his background. This resume will be professionally edited and 50 copies will be provided to the student at the conference.

The registration fee for each student is $5. This includes registration at the conference, and 50 copies of a resume. Both men and women graduating seniors and graduate students are eligible for registration.

Conference registration forms may be obtained from the college placement office, or by writing Professor Leslie Harris, of Pace College, 41 Park Row, or Elmer C. Landon, the World Journal Tribune, 125 Barclay Street, both of New York City. The Park-Sheraton has established a special student rate for students staying at the hotel during the conference, and room reservations may be made now and until January 23rd, by writing the hotel direct, at 7th Avenue and 56th Street, New York mentioning the conference.

Members of the Board of Control met October 21-22, 1966, in New York and have announced some stimulating and exciting features for the 8-day Conference March 16-18, 1967, in New York at the Hotel New Yorker.

The theme "Teachers in Step with the New World?" will be provocative and challenging. Outstanding speakers which will appeal to student teachers are being scheduled for Friday morning's kickoff meeting. Following the talks students will break up into small discussion groups according to their areas of interest: early childhood, elementary, or secondary.

After a luncheon and speaker, students will have an opportunity to ask questions of the morning and luncheon speakers during an afternoon session.

ST. PATRICK'S DANCE: On Thursday evening for the first time there will be a dance featuring a college band. Come and get acquainted!

On Saturday morning following the business meeting there will be a play put on by professional actors pertaining to student teaching experiences.

PLAN NOW TO ATTEND THE BIGGEST AND BEST CONFERENCE OF ESATE YET!

ber 8 at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel.

The two students were introduced to the delegates at the dinner by William Smith, Bryant's Dean of Men. Other colleges represented at the affair included Providence College, U.R.I., Rhode Island School of Design, Roger Williams Junior College, Barrington College, and Brown University. Guest speaker for the evening was Father Haas, President of Providence College.

Both Fred and Irwin commented that the evening would long serve as a rewarding and lasting experience for them both.

Last Delta Omega Meeting Features Selective Service Official

By Kenneth A. Culp

Colonel Kelly, questioned for about an hour and a half, answered questions either directly concerned or indirectly concerned with those present. This question-and-answer period was one of the longest anyone could remember.

The Colonel first explained that the Selective Service is a network of local boards made up of men in private life who are responsible for certain geographical areas. He further went on to explain that when the members of a local board sit down to classify a "boy," they start from the bottom and work up. To be exact, they see if a boy classifies to be 4f 1st, etc. After receiving one's classification, a boy can appeal within 10 days. Appeals can also be made to the State Board and the Presidential Board.

The Selective Service Head said that he found that both parents and young men thought that "The Selective Service gives and administers mental and physical tests for induction and sets the standards for induction." He flatly denied this saying that all the Selective Service does is send men to the Armed Forces whom they feel are qualified for induction. He also said that Selective Service files are confidential and that neither the FBI nor your father can see them without your permission.

Most information was brought forth during the question-and-answer period. It is listed below and readers may be interested in using it as a check list of problems to straighten out with their local boards:

The 1y classification is for those who are not now able to serve for some physical or mental reason, but will be able to serve in the future.

The 2s classification is not law, but a privilege granted by the board as opposed to 1sc which is law permitting you to complete your school year.

College students can go to grad school if they have over 80 on the Selective Service College Student Test or are in the top 25% of their class, but all depends on the local board.

Dates on classification notices have no meaning, as those with no dates on classification notices do not mean one's classification goes on indefinitely.

A classification is good until a new one is mailed.

A classification is considered received when mailed, even though it might never be received (lost in mail).

Your local board should be informed of your college address so you will not be classified as a delinquent for failure to show up at a physical (the letter may never be forwarded soon enough from home).

In June, 1967, the Selective Service's right to induct those under 26 years old expires, not the Selective Service law.

Even if you have been accepted by a grad school, a local board may induct you if you have not taken the Selective Service College Test.

New England colleges were rated highest on that college test.

You can find out your score on the Selective Service College Test by going IN PERSON to your local board.

Local board members are from the communities covered by that local board, not from the area in which the local board has its headquarters.

In answer to a question put to the Colonel by this reporter concerning the fact that most 18-year-olds do not know that a law exists that requires them to register within 5 days after they become 18, he answered, "I can only answer that in three words—Poor Public Relations."

All in all, the evening was well spent, and the whole evening could be summed up by the fact that one cannot even join the Peace Corp without the permission of the Selective Service, and thus, it goes with anything else one does.

Second semester freshmen who will be at Bryant in February are reminded that they are eligible to join Delta Omega if they would like to at that time.

The following is quoted from the "Student Handbook":

"Examination Conflicts—Every effort is made to prepare examination schedules which will avoid conflicts. However, students who transfer credits or fail to stay up with their class will be taking courses out of sequence and may have conflicts between two or more examinations. Examination schedules are posted well in advance and ample time is allowed to report conflicts. For those who report as scheduled special examinations will be arranged at no charge. However, when a student fails to report his conflict within the period specified, he will be assessed a fee of five dollars for his delinquency."

"Late Examinations—When a student, through negligence, fails to take an examination at the time scheduled, he will be given a special late examination only upon the payment of a five-dollar fee. This regulation does not apply to students who are genuinely ill or who have a death in their immediate family. Avoidance of the fee, however, will ordinarily require notice of inability to take the examination at the time of the examination."

Secret of Success

There was an old accountant,
A man of great renown.
He handled all the big accounts;
He was known throughout the town.

He sat up in his office—
"Best in the firm," they'd say—
He always worked at his own desk.
He never moved away.

The desk had a padlocked drawer
He'd open often in the day.
None but he could see its contents;
"It's nothing," he would say.

Vice Presidents were appointed,
Clients came and went.
No one was to move his desk—
The accountant was intent.

Curiosity grew like ragweed;
The controversy was a storm.
What was in the padlocked drawer?
Was it his good luck charm?

The accountant grew much older
And at last was laid to rest.
The staff attacked the desk with crowbars
For the secret of success.

They jimmied off the padlock
And opened up the drawer.
In it was a memo
That said this, and nothing more—

"DEBIT TOWARD THE WINDOW.
CREDIT TOWARD THE DOOR."
