Business Administration Society Will Hold First Dinner Meeting of Semester Tomorrow Night; Mr. Wilcox of Union Trust to be Principal Speaker

New Vice-President And New Treasurer To Be Elected

President Manuel Nunes of the Business Administration Society announced last week that the society will hold its first banquet of the semester tomorrow night at Johnson's Hummocks.

Nunes said he felt the society was fortunate indeed to obtain Mr. Ralph Wilcox of the Union Trust Company as guest speaker.

Advance indications on the sale of tickets shows the greatest enthusiasm for any B. A.-sponsored banquet. The attitude of the third semester students is gratifying to the officers of the society, since nearly seventy-five per cent of this group expressed the intention of becoming members.

The Business Administration Society of Bryant College was formed in September, 1947. Its purposes are to conduct and promote the study of organized business principles and to further interest in general business topics.

The officers of the society this year are Manuel Nunes, president; Robert Sweet, secretary. The vice-president and the treasurer are to be elected at the business meeting preceding the banquet.

Wayne University Revamps Business Adm. Courses

DETROIT, Mich. — (I. P.) — "Where am I going to get a secretary who knows as much about business as about typing and filing?" To answer this question for the business executive and to free him from the necessity either of hiring a trained secretary away from his competitor, or training a new employee over a period of years, the School of Business Administration at Wayne University has established a curriculum to train executive secretaries and office managers for specific businesses and professions.

Aimed primarily at developing high-level office personnel, the program, first of its type in this area, will be open to those who seek college degrees as well as to the individuals already active in the business world who are eager to improve their positions. In addition to business specialization, such professional specialization as the medical, legal, and engineering fields will be included.

Under the plan, the traditional program of office training is altered so as to include not only training in such skills as typing, shorthand, and bookkeeping, but also special training and field experience to aid trainees in decisions and general administrative techniques in their chosen specialties.

BIB Sponsors Harvest Fantasy, 400 Attend

Beta Iota Beta sponsored a "Harvest Fantasy" on October 9 in the Bryant Auditorium. The outstanding feature of the dance was the decorations. Autumn leaves and branches lent an air of festivity to the affair.

Couples danced to the music of Stan Moore and his orchestra; vocals were by Lorraine.

Joe Bruno, vice-president of B.I.B., acted as master of ceremonies.

"Harvest Fantasy" lived up to expectations, having an attendance of 400.

National Student Assn Prexy Calls for More Democracy in Schools

CHICAGO, Ill. — (I. P.) — Debunking the idea that it is dangerous for students to have a direct means of expressing their opinion, William N. Welsh, president of the National Student Association, called for a re-evaluation of the democracy of college student governments, in a speech before the American College Personnel Association.

He believes "a practical education in democratic self-government.....is in effect an insurance policy for a nation that prides itself on the capacity of its people to govern themselves."

Welsh pointed out that too often college administrations are afraid of the public criticism that arises if mistakes are made by student governing bodies. For this reason they withhold complete delegation or authority.

Politics for politics' sakes, too much emphasis on disciplinary powers, were cited as additional pitfalls to properly functioning student self-government. The NSA leader feels that such factors too often interfere with the legitimate functions of student government—those of "serving the people who make it up and representing them to the other groups with whom those people must work and live."

Alpha Phi Kappa Holds "Harvest Moon" Dance

Alpha Phi Kappa Sorority staged a colorful "Harvest Moon" dance last Saturday night in the Auditorium. Approximately 150 couples rubbed elbows under the "stars" to the music of Stan Moore's band.

The most striking effect of the "Harvest Moon" theme of the decorations centered around the light of the autumnal satellite passing through a sky of blue studded with tinsel stars.

The efforts of the fraternities and sororities in running dances of late certainly is a challenge to those planning committees of future dances. From the talk heard on the campus, we know that these efforts are not going unnoticed.

Pandemonium Will Reign As Hell Week Descends; Plan Capers for Pledges

With "Hell Week" breaking loose on November 2, all you prospective fraternity and sorority members better hang on to your hats and prepare to absorb the three day shock. It's going to be a gala time with you receiving most of the attention. And what attention! You may expect to dress in a ridiculous manner with your ties, hats and socks receiving a change from uniformity to utter disregard for the appearance of the well-dressed male or female.

Sociology Prof Says "Student, Marry!"

DENVER, Colo. — (I. P.) — Students who marry while still in college have the approval of Dr. Eugene Link, professor of sociology and marriage counselor at the University of Denver.

According to Dr. Link, the advantages of married life to students very greatly outweigh the disadvantages if the following requisites are met: The couple should not be burdened unduly with economic responsibilities. "I believe in subsidization of education such as outlined in Truman's educational program," he said.

"If there is none—then parents, who can afford to, should finance the college couple."

Both the boy and girl should go to college. This prevents the man's intellectual development from getting too far ahead of his wife's. One of the great causes of divorce is too great an educational difference between mates, he declared. "Any man who does not want his wife to have the same educational background as he does is not really mature yet."

Children should not be postponed, until after schooling is finished. Dr. Link believes that couples who wait too long before starting their families have difficulty in adjusting to their children.

With the week extending through November 4th there will be ample time for the present fraternity and sorority members to make you suffer and pass the required initiation. Of course, you may not succeed in becoming a full fledged member if you falter during the three day experience. Last year many victims were required to kiss a boy or girl, depending on the organization. According to present information this unfortunately has been banned. Another of the required tests is called the "Rat Race." It's just that.

On the last day of "Hell Week" a present member of the fraternity will be elected Pledge Captain. You will be persuaded to prevent this individual from attempting to leave the College Campus at 3:15. If you succeed, no further initiation may be asked of you, but if you fail you may expect such things as this: a free ride to the country with a nice long walk back in return. Lovely, isn't it?

Many of the individual organizations may also require a separate initiation program with still more intricate stunts. This will be done in the confined areas of the fraternity or sorority, and probably behind locked doors.

The Archway staff desires to wish you the best of luck and may you survive "Hell Week" and become a member of the fraternity or sorority of your choice.

ARE YOU GOING TO VOTE?

You have been a keen observer of the argumentative Trumans, Deweys, and Wallaces on the current issues. In two weeks hence, November 2, an election will be held for the candidates to public offices. As an eligible voter and citizen worthy of the community, you must vote.

We cannot all be mayors, governors, or presidents, but we can make use of our ability by voting. Each year hundreds of eligible voters have to be reminded that exercising the ballot is a privilege and duty to their country—that their ballot is for faith in America.

We are almost alone among the people of the earth having free elections. Under dictatorship interwoven with the principles of Marx and Lenin, there is no free election. The only candidates are those strained through the filter of the dictator's one-ticket set-up.

The citizen who neglects the opportunity to cast a ballot throws away a direct means of continuing and preserving the American concept of government by consent of the governed. The vote of a citizen is vital to effective government. The power of a vote is the dynamo of politics. Votes supply the power that when brought to bear upon the issues, brings desired action from the administration and legislative branches of government. The exercise of the ballot is a right inherited from our forefathers. The citizen's principal security for his inalienable rights is the ballot. It is pertinent for every eligible voter to go to the polls to show the world America is determined to make its democracy lasting. We must show the world that our fundamental principles of democracy are based on the Constitution, and not the Communist Manifesto. The democratic obligation of voting should not be avoided by any eligible voters. To vote is a privilege, do not throw it away!

SAC Carries Several Motions At Session

The S A C, which held a meeting on October 11, has carried the following motions:

1. Organizations which do not have a dance on Saturday night may have a dance on Wednesday night, if they clear through the S A C.
2. The Archway Staff receiver permission to hold a dance on Wednesday, November 3, in the Gymnasium.
3. Stunt Night will be held Wednesday, November 17. Each organization should try to participate in order to retain the keen competition which has made Stunt Night a highlight of Bryant's annual affairs.
4. Plans to have a Suggestion Box on campus are being formed.
5. The annual Christmas Formal will be held on December 10. A committee of three—Wendell Cheney, William Charbonneau and James Murphy—was appointed to choose a band.

Don't marry for money; you can borrow it cheaper.

A Statement of Policy by the Staff

Since the days when we attended the public schools in our old home town, we have heard of the Four Freedoms, and have been regaled with the various versions of what the term means.

We are concerned here with Freedom of the Press and Freedom of Speech. We are all agreed that neither is a privilege or a freedom without qualifications. The right to slander, disparage or otherwise distort the statements of another has never been construed to be a part of the inalienable right of any man.

The right to advance and hold, speak of, or publish an opinion clearly falls within the definition of these two Freedoms.

Primarily, the function of the college newspaper is to provide the student body with a living medium of expression. With this thought in mind THE ARCHWAY presents the following letters to the editor.

We of the staff sincerely believe these issues to be of sufficient interest to be published on our editorial page.

THE EDITOR
October 12, 1943

Editor, The Archway
Bryant College
Providence, R. I.

Dear Mr. Editor,

Do you know that Bryant College has a Student Activity Council? Do you know who represents you at their Council meetings? Well, to explain to the Freshman and also to every upper classman—this is the group that set the date and planned the All-College dance. All of the "recognized" organizations that carry on activities on the campus are represented at the meetings.

Now to get back to my topic question—"Who represents You?" Yes, you are right—if you belong to a fraternity, sorority, or society, such as the Business Administration or Accountancy and Finance Societies, and other clubs such as the religious, Masquers, Glee Club or Orchestra, then you are represented. But, even with all of these named societies, the number of students represented is a small percentage of the entire student body of 2300.

Representation is a necessity in a country like ours that has a democratic system, and it seems to me that it is of just as much necessity in a school that is teaching the everyday negotiations of a businessman. In fact every student in every school in this country should be rightfully represented on a Student Council. But as it stands, if you don't belong to one of the "recognized" organizations at Bryant College, you are not being rightfully represented at the Student Activity Council meetings that are supposedly held in the behalf of all of the students attending Bryant College. It was suggested in one of your editorials of the last edition—students should "Get in the Swim"—by joining one of these fraternities, sororities or clubs. But this is not always a simple matter—most of the fraternities and sororities choose a "select few" to their ranks as new members. As far as the other organizations, the problem of joining is small in comparison. But the chief problem confronting the average student is the time element.

Many of the students attending Bryant at the present do not live or board nearby the campus where most of the meetings of these organizations take place. For many students, joining these clubs, would be an easy matter; but to remain active in the attending of meetings and so forth would be impossible. Commuting to school daily is a task by itself for many students and when they are once home for the day there is little incentive with them to return those many miles for a second time. True, many of the students that have cars may easily attend the meetings and there are many others that may use the bus lines from the city, but we must think in respect of every student at Bryant.

Every student has different circumstances as far as the time element is concerned but we all have one thing in common—we are all attending the same school. Thus, for the simple reason that we are associated in the class rooms daily and are in close contact with one another, I feel that every student should be represented whether he has time to devote to attending meetings of the "recognized" organizations or not. Just as every American citizen is entitled to vote when he reaches the legal age—he is also entitled to

The following Statement was received from the president of the Student Activity Council just prior to our deadline:

October 19, 1943

The Editor

The Archway

Bryant College

Dear Sir:

The article concerning the Student Activity Council that has been presented to me is of too biased a viewpoint to constitute the opinion of the average Bryant College student. I am quite sure that the writer has not read his questions after writing them.

It is quite possible that some members of the student body have not heard of the Student Activity Council. However, notices of meetings are always posted on bulletin boards in South, Memorial and Gardner Halls, and any member of the student body who wishes to may attend the meetings.

In the second paragraph he asks a question, "Who represents you?" May I answer by stating that each member of the Student Activity Council considers each and every student in the College. The Council decides issues for the benefit of ALL. If Mr. X cares to inquire into the records of past Student Council meetings, he will learn that the present body resolved to forget all personalities in organizations and work for the common good of the students of the College.

Mr. X, being a member of a fraternity, shocked me when he said that the fraternities and sororities choose a selected few. For the information of all, may I say that fraternity and sorority members are chosen for their personalities, manners and scholastic ability—as in every other college in America.

Members of fraternities and sororities observe students before sending out invitations to them to join. May I state now that anyone who does not receive an invitation from a fraternity or a sorority—and feels that he has been overlooked—may come and see me in regard to the matter of joining.

As far as traveling is concerned, if a student does not have the interest to deprive himself of an evening out, or a couple of hours of his afternoon time, he has very little interest of value to any organization.

Purpose

Be it resolved that the organization known as the Bryant College Student Activity Council is organized for the purpose of promoting scholastic, social and athletic activities, to build a better spirit continually among the organizations of the college and the members of the student body, and to bring to the attention of the college administration, from time to time, for their advice and approval, any matters to be adjusted or acted upon which will assist the student body with its problems.

Attendance at Meetings

Any member of the Student Body may attend meetings, but they must sit in the section of the room so designated for them. They may take part in all discussions, but they shall not have the right to vote. Meetings shall be held every two weeks at a place and time predetermined by the members of the Activity Council."

The above quotations from the By-Laws of the Student Activity Council should clear all of these points beyond a shadow of a doubt. I would like to invite all members of the student body to attend the next Student Council meeting on Monday, October 25, at 3:15 o'clock in Room 1A South Hall so that they may judge for themselves the degree of representation for them in our body.

Very truly yours,

FRANCIS P. NOLAN, III

President, Student Activity Council, Bryant College

In A Pig's Eye

"What in the good Lord's name is happening here?"—That's what Penny wondered about a week or so ago. She was tripping gaily along Bryant's campus, when she accidentally tripped over a pile of chawed-off finger nails, and almost got herself tangled up in some pulled-out hair that was growing wild along the driveway. Perhaps she had walked to the wrong building by mistake. Nope—the sign said Bryant, not Bellevue! Even her little sense told her that the nervous excitement wasn't caused by finals (although almost everything seems to be quite final around here). Why, oh why then, were everyone's nerves on edge and just about ready to jump off?

That day, when she was in class, Penny became conscious of a loud blare that echoed and re-echoed throughout the classroom. Immediately the entire class turned their attention from math to the blast of noise—of cheering people; of booing people; of an incoherent announcer—and became as those entranced! It had become more than too much!!.....Maybe Russia had declared peace! (or somethin')..... Maybe an Atomic Bomb had exploded and a search was being conducted for Mr. Adam! (or someone).....Or maybe, God forbid, Dr. Kinsey had come through with his long-awaited report on women!!.....Well, what was it???

Penny turned to the girl next to her and poked her a few times to bring her back to a conscious state.

"I know that too smart I'm not, but please tell me what's going on that I feel so left out of?"

"What!?!.....Don't you read the papers?.....Don't you listen to the radio?.....Don't you ever watch television?.....What is it?, she asks!.....It's none other than baseball, you dope!!!"

"Oh, baseball, is that all?..... Just a little ole thing like batting a ball around, and all these people are half insane about it,—or because of it. You can't possibly think that I've been missing something, can you?"

Which brings to mind a so-called joke that was printed not too long ago in a popular magazine. It told of a Russian spy returning triumphantly home, after observing the American way of life for a period of time. When asked for his report, he stated, "Now we don't have to rely on our own stupid propaganda to fool the people. We can give them facts, for a change. We'll be able to tell them that America has no order or unity or discipline. I saw for myself that America is just a land of riots!! When the people aren't going to the dogs, they're crowding into baseball parks!!!"

No, you and I know America isn't really anything like that—don't we? Hmmmmmm? Why, it's something like a baseball game that brings out the sportsmanship of the American people. "T'll betcha the Braves are gonna win!"

"Aah, you're crazy! I'll give ya odds on Cleveland!"
And no matter how beautiful

HILLEL NOTES

In Bryant's Auditorium, October 10, Hillel held its third meeting, President Julian Brownstein presiding.

Rabbi Nathan Rosen spoke to the group about a pilgrimage to be made to Brandeis University in the near future.

The guest speaker was Hugh McDonald. Mr. McDonald spoke ardently of Zionism, relating how he had joined the Haganah to fight for the Jewish people.

Sunday, October 10, began the campaigning for the U.J.A.

Refreshments and dancing followed the meeting.

On Thursday, October 14, an executive meeting of Hillel was held in Room 1A, at which Vice-President Ed Patashnick presided.

Notices from the Student Council were read and discussed.

Another "Brunch" at Pembroke Fieldhouse was held Sunday, October 17. These "foodish" excuses for college students' getting together have proved pleasurable and successful.

There will be a meeting held in Bryant Auditorium Sunday, October 24, at which there will be a guest speaker. Everyone is urged to attend.

ALONG THE SIDELINES

With the closing of the baseball season the sporting public of this great country of ours can once again return to a semi-normal routine. I say semi-normal for no sooner are we finished with the baseball season than the football season comes into prominence.

The past year has undoubtedly created an equal, if not greater, amount of thrills and chills for the baseball fans than they have had in many a moon. If that contest between the Cleveland Indians and the Boston Red Sox was a cause for high blood pressure, which it was, then the World Series between Cleveland and the Boston Braves, was ample cause for a cerebral hemorrhage.

Well, Reader the Cleveland Indians are the World's Champs by their four wins out of six games with the Boston Braves. Cleveland returned home as the victors in shining armor, while the Braves returned to their humble abodes to lick their wounds. Perhaps that forty-six hundred and some odd dollars' check will help to heal the lacerations of combat more quickly and easily.

From this angle it looks very much as if the big difference in the teams was a man named Jeff Heath and a shortstop named Dark, who didn't live up to expectations. At any rate this writer feels it will be a long time hence before two teams playing in a world series will be able to produce pitching equivalent to that shown in this series just past.

Speaking of lacerations—It was this writer's mistake to wager on the Braves in the Series—is my face red, not to mention my proboscis which has all sorts of abrasions upon its surface. Believe me it is no fun rolling peanuts down a street with one's nose. It seemed utterly fantastic to think anyone would not bet on the Braves with the odds which were offered me. When told I would receive odds of 10 to 1, I hurriedly reached into the rapidly diminishing personal fortune and quickly placed one sou on the Braves to win—the result being that the diminishing fortune has diminished. The moral to all that rambling being, if you must bet, then for gosh sakes bet on the winner! You won't lose that way.

In securing Casey Stengel to manage the New York Yankees, the front office obtained a personality that has been missing from the Yankee bench since the days of Miller Huggins. Stengel should do away with that strictly mechanical attitude that has been so noticeable in recent Yankee teams.

Let us turn our backs on the baseball season and devote some of our time to football, which in only two weeks' time came in like one of the famed Florida hurricanes. It is very early in the season and already there have been such astounding upsets that the fans are reeling. Southern Methodist beaten by Missouri, Minnesota beaten by Northwestern, and Boston College tied by St. Bonaventure. Those are only a few of the games which left a wake of mourning experts.

At this writing there are but a few major college teams in the country which are still unbeaten and untied. Notre Dame, Michigan, Army, Pennsylvania, and California lead the list. Of this group only Notre Dame looks as if it is assured of an unbeaten season with only Northwestern capable of giving them any real trouble. Michigan might, but it still has Northwestern, Minnesota, and Purdue to overcome. Army will have trouble from Cornell and Pennsylvania, with the Penn-Army game sending one or the other teetering from the unbeaten ranks. California looks like the West Coast's answer to a prayer. She should, without too much trouble, be the host in the Tournament of Roses.

Saturday's game between Michigan and Minnesota should prove a natural. There is a good possibility that the "Little Brown Jug" will change hands this year. Bierman has been bringing the gophers along slowly and has them near their pre-war peak. Oosterbaan has great material left him by Crisler—Watch the fireworks!

Our neighbors on top of the hill should give trouble to their remaining opponents. After dropping one to Yale in the opener, Coach Rip Engle's boys have started to move. They have size, and combined with the forward passing of Finn, should prove themselves on a par with future opponents—Watch that Brown-Rutgers game.

It will be a lean season, as far as the writers who pick winners are concerned, but there is one thing of which we can be assured, and that is, that the usual percentage of cracked skulls, bashed-in faces, and punch-drunk heroes will be in existence at its end. Personally, I like to chew my food, not drink it through a straw.

Good News! At Last The Faculty Approves of Dating

BOWLING GREEN, O. — (I. P.)—The more most students date, the better grades they make.

So concluded a faculty member at Bowling Green State University after studying 3,000 questionnaires made out by students on this campus.

The professor, Dr. S. Harman Lowrie, chairman of the sociology department, teaches the only American college course exclusively devoted to dating.

He learned that the combination of frequent dates and high grades occurs more often among women than among men and more often among freshmen than among upperclassmen.

He: Although I'm having some trouble with it, I like the picture of you that you gave me.

She: Which one?

He: You know, the one in which you're standing with Farmer Brown's jackass.

She: Oh, yes. What's your trouble?

He: I can't figure out which twin has the Toni.

Girls Sports Will Commence Soon; New Policy On Teams To Be Used

The big show is about to begin! As the fall season sets in, which is synonymous with sports such as basketball and bowling, the Bryant Glamazons are preparing for their prospective teams.

Basketball seems to be the topic of conversation this semester. It is rumored that this year's teams will consist of many very good freshman players, and the fight for the championship will be vigorous. The various dorm and sorority basketball groups will organize somewhere around the first of November, with their usual two practice sessions, and then the ball starts rolling.

Last year's champions, Sigma Lambda Theta, have with them again this year Marilyn Sutphen, Grace Peterson, Midge Desiderio and Muriel Wheeler, which will make them a strong favorite to repeat.

Other sororities, dorms, and independents, which make up the league, have all strengthened, and are anxiously awaiting the opening of the league in anticipation of dethroning last year's champs.

Bowling leagues are beginning

Men's Bowling Loop Goes Into 2nd Round

The matches in the first week of the Intra-mural bowling season started an exciting race with each team fighting hard to capture first place. When the deafening roar of falling pins had subsided it found two teams, Beta Iota Beta and Chi Gamma Iota, tied for first place. In the second-place berth there is a three-way tie between Tau Epsilon, Kappa Tau and Beta Sigma. The Clocktowers, Brass City and Silver City tied for the third-place spot and the Ramblers and Phi Sigma Nu are tied for fourth place.

Since Tuesday, October 5, was a Jewish holiday, Sigma Lambda and The Independents did not engage and they were therefore left at the bottom of the league.

Montanaro, of the Silver City team, was the star of the evening when he bowled 132 for high single and 340 for high three. High individual scoring, however, did not play an important part in the way the teams finished. The teams listed on the win column were made up of average but consistent bowlers. The high-point men were found scattered among the losing teams.

It is expected that the next meeting of the teams will show a decided improvement in the bowling scores. Since the matches will be hotly contested, they will be interesting to watch.

Scores of Last Weeks Games

Chi Gamma Iota 4, Phi Sigma Nu 0; Beta Iota Beta 4, Ramblers 0; Tau Epsilon 3; Brass City 1; Kappa Tau 3, Clocktowers 1; Beta Sigma Chi 3, Silver City 1.

Meet Mr. Dickenman Sports Director For Bryant College

By MEL STONE

Mel Stone, Archway Reporter, Getting Scoop from Mr. Dickenman

Varsity Hoopsters Slate Promises Many Prospects for Season

The last week in October will find Athletic Director Curtis Dickenman and Coach Harry Platt putting the candidates for the Varsity Basketball team through the paces. There should be about seven or eight berths open this year. Seven of last year's regulars will be back. Among them are Fred Soltys, high-scoring right forward; Bob Sweet, another high-point man and playing center; Walt Rasmussen and Alex Tarasovich, playing left forward and right guard respectively. Also, Glen Townsend, Dick Schroeder, and Floyd Huntington. These men, plus the new material which Mr. Dickenman and Coach Platt hope to find in the class of new students, should provide the Indians with a high-scoring and very capable team.

Since a definite schedule of games has not been announced, we can only give you a list of teams that the Indians will face this season. In the Southern New England Coastal Conference there are such teams as Bridgewater State Teachers' College, New Bedford Tech, Calvin Coolidge College and Rhode Island School of Design. The non-league opponents will be the Providence College Freshmen, the Brown University Freshmen and the University of Connecticut, Fort Trumbull Branch. It is hoped that a game can be played between the Bryant quintet and an alumni team. If this can be arranged the contest will be played on Friday, November 12.

In future issues of the Archway this column will be devoted to the introducing of the men prominent in sports at Bryant. Since this is to be the first of a series, it is only fitting that we start with our Athletic Director, Mr. Curtis Dickenman.

Mr. Dickenman is a native of Norwich, Connecticut. He is a graduate of the Norwich Free Academy and Bryant College.

While at Norwich he was an active participant in the athletic program. Among these activities, basketball was his favorite and most outstanding. Upon being graduated from the Norwich Free Academy he decided that he would like to enter the teaching profession, but to do this he would have been compelled to continue his education at a school which offered a good teacher-training program. For this reason he chose Bryant College. During his four years here he was an outstanding basketball player, a member of Beta Chi Tau, a Greek Letter organization for teacher-training students, and other extra-curricular activities.

Upon being graduated from Bryant he took a job as teacher of business subjects at Farmington High School in Farmington, Connecticut, where he held the position of basketball coach.

After spending one year at Farmington he secured a position on the teaching staff of Bryant College. His duties here are to teach Accounting, Bookkeeping, Typewriting, and to direct the athletic program. Teaching here was interrupted when World War II broke out and he was called into the service. Thirty-eight months of his life were spent in the Pacific Theater of Operations.

Mr. Dickenman returned to Bryant after being discharged from the service, and resumed his former duties at the school. Since returning he has become advisor to Kappa Tau Fraternity.

We know that the majority of you will not have the pleasure of meeting Mr. Dickenman personally. "Dick," as he is called by students, is a regular fellow and is truly representative of the swell teachers here at Bryant. We know you are all interested in seeing him come through the basketball season with a winning team.

Whirling Discs

By NORMA VOGEL

Disc jockey programs are slowly crowding the daytime serials. A twist of your radio dial and the "sweetest music this side of heaven," the syncopation of the "city slickers", or the "swing and sway" music drifts into the room. But now, with a twist of the pen, we are going to bring you some of the latest releases and top hits of the day. The phonograph is stacked with discs. Shall we let them whirl?

Doris Day and Buddy Clark joined forces on this recent release to sing "Confess," and "Love Somebody". Bing and the Andrews Sisters have combined their talents for "A Hundred and Sixty Acres", and the flip is "At the Flying W". This is done in typical Crosby fashion and if you recall "South America Take It Away", you will know that this "combo" is bound to be good. The Andrews Sisters have made the best recording of "Underneath the Arches" that we have heard. They take their time, where most other artists roll through it as if it were a jazz number. The reverse side is "You Call Everybody Darlin'". "Mississippi Mud" has been made by Dick Jurgens and Tommy Dorsey, and both are excellent. The movie, "Two Guys From Texas", offered a number of worthwhile melodies. Dick Haymes has recorded "Hankerin'"; and its teammate is "Everyday I Love You Just a Little Bit More". Tex Beneke also recorded "Hankerin'"; but if you want a good vocal we would suggest Dick Haymes.

"A Tree in the Meadow" was made in England and Margaret Whiting recorded it in the United States. The two were put together and we have a top selling record of the top tune of the day. The flip, "I'm Sorry But I'm Glad" is nothing spectacular.

On the more humorous side, Spike Jones has come out with his own version of "I Kiss Your Hand, Madame" and I'm Getting Sentimental Over You". Jo Stafford has come up with another hill-billy song called "It's Clattering Up To Rain".

"12th Street Rag" has been recorded by Sidney Bechet and the Hearth Trio; but the one and only is Peewee Hunt. (May we say that if there is anyone who has not heard this "masterpiece", the best thing for you to do is to take yourself to the nearest juke box and play it.)

There are a number of songs that will be top flight in a few weeks. Watch for the "Banjo Polka" and "Little Girl". Another revival that is having a popular comeback is "P.S. I Love You". "Quant La Gusta", "Dolores", and "Sweet Georgia Brown" are pushing their way to the top with the rest.

Before we turn off the phonograph, we would like to mention just one more disc, that is one of the best recordings ever made. It is Randy Brooks' rendition of "Harlem Nocturne". If you like saxophones, you will be sure to enjoy this record because a tenor sax is the featured instrument throughout the arrangement.

Archway to Field Yokel Dance Nov. 3

The Daisy Mae Frolic that will be sponsored by the Archway staff at 7:30 P. M. on November 3, is a sure fire bet to provide all comers with a superb evening of dancing and eating pleasure. Old clothes will be the uniform of the evening as a strictly yokel band will provide old time and popular music for dancing at the Bryant Auditorium. It will be a traditional Sadie Hawkins day celebration with everybody with or without a date asked to attend and enjoy the fun. The Archway staff was extremely serious when the request for the wearing of old clothes was extended.

Following the dancing a Daisy Mae Queen will be picked by popular vote. Fellows, here is a chance to bring your girl to the dance and bring home a queen! The serving of refreshments will tend to round out a pleasant evening of fun and dancing. "Everybody Attends—Everybody Benefits" through a truly great evening of well-planned entertainment.

We are never more discontented with others than we are discontented with ourselves.

You may not be responsible for the things that happen to you, but you are responsible for the way you behave when they do happen.

Business Expects Employees to Continue Studies, Says Northwestern Survey

EVANSTON, Ill. — (I. P.) — Business and industry expect the college graduate to continue studying evenings while he is employed, according to a survey just completed by Northwestern University.

In the words of a railroad executive: "A college graduate should study just as hard the rest of his life as he did in college, if not harder."

Ninety-three per cent of 127 large and medium-sized firms throughout the nation, in reply to a questionnaire, declared that they encouraged continued education for their employees, and approximately half of such firms have some form of tuition payment plan. All firms included in the survey actively recruit graduating college seniors for their employee ranks.

Typical of replies to the question regarding continued education were these:

"Enrollment in educational institutions is encouraged for subjects related to the employee's area of work, and part of the tuition is paid upon satisfactory completion."

"All office personnel are eligible to take night courses having a bearing on their work. The company undertakes to pay 50 per cent of the tuition."

FASHIONS

By SELMA PALO

A great deal of emphasis is now being placed on the "new look" of your feminine sex; but our stronger sex is far from being slighted. Have you heard about the Bold Look for men? The fashion designers of male wardrobes are really having a Roman holiday. Some are even trying to bring back sideburns, whiskers, and mustaches. In some parts of the country this Bold Look is meeting with great success. Are you wondering just what this is all about? Well, this is what I've heard.

Now a man can enter his favorite clothing store and very easily find waiting for him a complete outfit to suit his personal tastes. Every item in the ensemble has been chosen to go together. The war has changed many of our men into alert, confident, and dominant individuals. Now their clothes are featuring these traits. Designs in neckties are big, bright, and bold to go with the newly-introduced Keystone sweaters. They are wider than ever before to pair up with the wide, Bold Look pigskin belts. Colorful striped or checked designs are taking the place of old pattern ties which were to be worn only when necessary. Wide, sloping collars that button down are going to be seen more and more by all of us. Wide, thick jewelry is being introduced to match the rest of the new male wardrobe. Cuff links are as much as half an inch wide, featuring big, bright stones to attract the feminine eye to the wide French cuffs. Sounds pretty good, hey boys!

A man's leather is pigskin because it's so durable, tough and strong. The Bold Look gloves, belts, and suspenders are all made of this heavily stitched pigskin. We'll be seeing a great deal of homburg hats with dark brown worsted suits. Shoes now have thick, very dark soles to put the finishing touches to the new Bold Look.

So you see? You men haven't been forgotten! We girls will be waiting to see which of you on our college campus will be first to "wow" us with the look that is the rage of the country, THE BOLD LOOK!

Girls Sports Will Commence

to organize once more. It is hoped that the groups participating in this sport will not, as they did last year, drop out of the league, leaving one or two teams left with no opponents. The present Athletic Fund will be an incentive toward the retaining of all leagues and teams. In order to maintain the consistency of the various teams, a ten-dollar fee has been set up for each sport in which an organization takes part. If the organization does not keep up its team, their $10 will be forfeited, and placed as an addition to the Insurance Fund.

The girls are encouraged this year to really take part in their organization's teams and leagues. Where there is a sport, there is teamwork. Is teamwork the art of dropping out of your club's team after it has started off to try for the championship? Let's get some spirit behind us so that the student body will sit up and take notice of girls' sports.

Wayne University Revamps Business Adm. Courses

Among the "advanced" or higher-level courses to be included will be accounting, psychology, business law, personnel training, speech, collections, principles of office management, and business policy.

One of the most important phases of the program will be the stressing of the broad aspects and vocabularies of the field selected. For instance, the student desiring to become an executive secretary in the medical field will actually attend certain classes in the College of Medicine to familiarize himself with the vocabulary and problems of that field.

Similarly, if he intends to go into industry, he will attend classes devoted to industrial management personnel.

Good-humor is goodness and wisdom combined.

Overheard in a Retailing Class
Mr. Myrick: What kind of store would be best suited to a large city with a declining population?
Student in rear of class: A luggage store.

A certain economics prof made the statement that before the year 1608 there were very few women in the New World. A muffled voice from the rear exclaimed, "Oh, prohibition, huh?"

that song, "The House I Live In," is, one can't help thinking that in his enumeration of the many characteristics of America, he omits a very vital part of the true description.

(To the music) The crap game that I lost at; the fight I went to see—The amusement parks with their Penny Arcades.—"Ten shots for a dime—just one tenth of a dollar bill to see if you can hit the mark!....."

That's America to me!!

But that's not all! It's Drive-Ins and places like Lincoln Downs, and raffles and circuses and boardwalks and—most important of all, it seemed two weeks ago—Baseball!!

Now, isn't that America to you?
