my darling husband...

what a beautiful day! the sky is as blue as it can be. the only thing is that it's almost freezing out. here i'm trying to get sunburned & it gets cold. five things.

it rained off & on all day yesterday. now we lost the little town i'd gotten. just as pale as ever again.

wish that you would hurry up & start flying. bee, honey, i'm getting mighty homesick. do you realize that we've been married almost nine days and we've been together, off & on, for only two & a half! honey when are we going to have a honeymoon? golly, what a crazy marriage but I love it. wouldn't be us if we didn't do things the normal nice, same & sensible way.

everyone is so helpful. they're always telling me how much worse it could be + that we should be thankful you've not overseas + they know people who – They just go on like that all the time. It's a damn good thing we got a sense of humour. This is really a riot when you think about it. It's not especially funny now but it will be when we're old + tell our children about it.

Honey, let's think of some nice unusual names for our kids—(not hard to). But we've got the First boy all settled, what about the next? I love nicknames we'll have to be careful though that the nicknames from their names are nice ones.

I'm waiting for the sun to get a bals.

have's warmer before I go out. There's a terrific breeze now + it's like the middle of winter.

See, darling, I love you so much. Every night when all the instructors start coming home I get so much more homesick. They all go home to their little wives + are very lucky. Sure wish that you were coming home every night, darling. Gee, honey, I really miss you an awful lot. Thought it was bad when you were down at Spence but this is much worse.

But I guess we are lucky at that. Seventeen days isn't such a long time. It is here. But if I see you this weekend it won't be so much longer before you're back here again.

Honey, golly, I love you—went out to the Post again today, wish you were here. Sounds like a postcard.

What weather—Golly, everyone's just about fraying around here. It was a nice day though—sorta windy but there were loads of AF-6's up. It's so quiet when they don't fly—

Golly, darling, tomorrow will be Thursday. You left for England a week ago today — it seems so much longer than that, though — what a week it's been.

Got the letter you wrote Monday night, Honey. And you're practicing your French like a good little boy. Well, it's nothing definite but I sure hope you're going to be a French Instructor. Yes, honey, that's all you need. That would mean that we'd be together that much longer. That means a lot to me — I think you'd been up under the strain. If they try to make you one, the only thing you could do would be to be a good one! That's easy!

Well, I dunno guess chances for yours getting off Saturday might be very good. ourselves well it would have been wonderful and it made the week goes faster. Just thinking about it.

See, honey, it's almost an emergency.

God, we've been married for so long--- so long being ten days---and have only been together less than two and a half days.

How well, if it were normal then it just wouldn't be us. Maybe someday we'll lead a nice normal peaceful life but I doubt it & hope not. That would probably be very dull.

Besides, I'm very homesick and in love. The being in love part is just fine but damn the old Army anyhow. They can't do this to us. But they really are very really just married. We, all the wives around here, have come to the conclusion that the Army doesn't like wives... and does about everything they can to make it tough for them.

Honey, do you think we'll get a leave after this? It doesn't make much difference to me we are away or the other. Just as long as we can be together.

Thought you were getting back on the 31st, Honey. It seems so darned far away. You said you might be back Sunday at noon.

Golly, darling, I'll be waiting for that call tomorrow night. Alice, an officer's wife down the street is going to let me use here hot water to wash my hair with. Can't do it with that foul hot water boilers.

Her husband's been in five years now. He's due for his captaincy any day.
They've both nice kids. Have been married nine months, married. They have a black cat and two Pekin cockers named Relled.
They're cute. Wish Ray was here. Everyone has a dog. Almost all cockers too.
Hey, if you have a dog or a baby, though, you might as well give up. None will want to you.

Why in the name of heaven
don't they let you fly when it's nice.
That's bugging me up. Why do they waste all that time. They'd think we'd been married for a long time the way they keep us apart.

Was hunting fun? I'd love to go sometimes. Golly I never could hit the broad side of a barn. Maybe you could teach me - well, well so you've got a nice even tan all over. hah. Think maybe I'll find me a place like Flights with the men to go for a swim & get me a nice even tan - I tried again today but just when the sun got warm enough, it got real cloudy & the wind was so strong I had to come in. So now I'm as pale as ever.

Wanted to get a nice tan before I went to Pensacola. I sure hope I'll be going now - It's awful not knowing but it's almost better not to know because then I can hope.
on is that how you found at my place. I thought the hotel had told you. They know where I was. Oh no - the night people didn't. The USA came is a big help sometimes.

Young man has anyone ever told you that you have very wolfish tendencies, and that now that you are a married man you must learn to control them.

In fact you should abolish them altogether.

Well, the room has a double bed.
Tried so hard to find twin beds, ahem! It's the most important thing. There's a closet on one side of the bed (right) and a table with a lamp on the other. There's a closed fireplace & a gas heater in front of it.

There are two windows & two mirrors & two chairs. Very complete description.
And there's luggage all over the place.

Yes, I like it. Mrs. Mosley is very nice to me.

Wonder when you'll start getting my letters. Have written about every day except last Sunday - You've been real good honey. It's been wonderful hearing from you every day.

aren't you kidding? if I think the trip will be too much for me. I'd walk all the way if necessary - a little trip certainly won't be too much for me. In fact I'll enjoy it. I've always wanted to go to Florida. Honey, I hope you can get that pass, honey.

Gee, Judd, we've really married.

Remember we used to write how wonderful it would be when we were together always after we were married. We certainly started off differently.

Well, darling, you must know how very much I miss you. Seems I've told you often enough now. But every day I miss you more + love you.
Golly, it will be wonderful to be with you again. Sure hope that it's this weekend, honey.

I miss so very, darling, and I love you so much. Well, you'd better practice up on your French, honey, just in case.

Hope that you get some letters soon, darling. They're going to come in a big bunch, I guess.

They've cut back on letters because I've been out most of the day.

Well, honey, I have a lot to do before I get to bed—wish that you were here to get in the way.

Golly, honey, I love you so. If we ever have a few minutes together, I'm sure we'll be the happiest married people ever.

Golly, darling, I miss you so much—

Well, honey, I've got my fingers... crossed, honey! about this weekend.

I love you so and miss you terribly.

Oh, if I could stay I'll bring Taffy's glasses dawn. Julie & Betty go are worried about them. Wonder how much money I should get out of the bank? Oh, well, I'll decide that tomorrow. I love you so, honey.

You'll have all my love always & I'll always be.

Yours,

Dottie
