

93rd COMMENCEMENT ISSUE

VOLUME XV, NO. 18

JULY 13, 1956

William P. Rogers, Deputy U. S. Attorney General, to Be Commencement Speaker

WILLIAM P. ROGERS

For its 93rd Commencement speaker, Bryant College is fortunate in having Mr. William P. Rogers, outstanding man in the field of law and Deputy Attorney General of the United States.

Mr. Rogers, who is a native of New York state, attended Columbia University and graduated from Cornell Law School. Soon after his graduation from law school, he was employed by Governor Thomas E. Dewey as an Assistant District Attorney. During service in the Navy from 1942 to 1946 he rose to the rank of lieutenant commander. After the war he returned to the New York District Attorney's office until 1947 when he commenced his career as counsel for various Senate investigating committees. After a period of private practice in 1950-1952, President Eisenhower appointed him to his present position.

Message from the President

The time has come, Class of 1956, to make your education come alive. I have watched your progress and now that you are leaving the campus, I am confident that your years of hard work will be rewarded.

I have enjoyed watching your progress, since you first came as freshmen. You have accepted your college responsibilities with enthusiasm. Many of your activities have been allied with civic and charitable benefits. The day-to-day happenings of college life these past years have demonstrated your maturity, especially in these last weeks, when a great loss was suffered by the College in the death of our beloved Vice-President, John L. Allan.

Many of you have told me how much you value the practical business education Bryant has bestowed upon you. This makes me very happy. Business executives, who have already employed many of you, are loud in their praise of your preparation and character.

I urge you to continue thinking positive, vigorous and dynamic thoughts. "Affirm goodness, happiness and health and you will develop them. Assume that as long as you live Almighty God will continue to pour into you His own recreation of life, vigor, vitality, force and energy."

Come home to your alma mater often. As a cherished member of the Bryant Alumni Family, a warm welcome always awaits you.

Henry J. Jacobs

DEAN GULSKI

A Message to the Class of 1956

As your editor spoke to me concerning his desire for a farewell message to the Class of 1956 I was rudely shocked into the realization that this is the thirtieth Bryant Class to which I must say farewell.

As I cast about for some worthwhile thought to pass on to you it occurred to me that action certainly does speak louder than words, and anything that I might say to you at this time would be overshadowed by what we have done over the past two years. I hope that by word and deed we have given you an example that you will be proud to emulate.

There is, however, one basic thought that keeps coming to my mind and demands expression and emphasis. It is the matter of the relationship between you and your College. A College may be thought of in many ways—a group of buildings, a faculty and staff, a group of books, and so on—but all of these things are only a means to an end. They are the tools with which we turn out an individual trained to make his way in the business community.

No one judges the quality of a motor car or any other product by making an inspection of the buildings and machinery. The appraisal of the company depends on the beauty and performance of its product. By the same token Bryant College will be judged not by its buildings, its library or its faculty, but by you its graduates.

Whether you realize it or not you have become a member of the Bryant family, and your performance in the years to come will reflect glory or shame upon your College and your fellow alumni. We beseech you to constantly bear in mind that we will be watching you and hoping for your every success and honor, for as you go so goes Bryant College.

Congratulations and best of good luck to all.

"Ledger" Banquet Held in Town Room

The Town Room in the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel on Thursday, June 28, at seven o'clock was the scene of the annual "Ledger" banquet.

Although only ten are on this year's staff, many laughs were had as entertainment was provided by Dr. Charles T. Powers, an honored guest to whom this year's "Ledger" is dedicated.

Members of the staff also spoke to a famous movie star—Gregory Peck. Co-editor Mary Carpenter obtained a personalized autograph from him.

At this time and on behalf of the ten members of the staff, we wish to express our sincere thanks to Mr. Weaver for all his time and patience in putting the yearbook together.

To you, the student body, we hope that you will enjoy the 1956 edition of the "Ledger." The staff has put much time into it since the beginning of September. We expect this year's edition will be available for distribution by July 13.

New Archway Chief

GORDON V. CARR

Gordon V. Carr is the new Editor-in-Chief of the ARCHWAY. Carr, a Teacher Training student, is familiar to the readers of the ARCHWAY as "G.V.C." He has been Feature Editor for the past semester, and his editorials and "Tell and Spell" puzzles are well-known features of this paper. He is Treasurer of Theta Tau Teacher Training Society and a member of the Key Society.

DEAN MERCIER

To the Seniors in the Secretarial and Teacher Training Divisions:

May I on behalf of the Faculty commend each and every one of you upon the successful completion of your training, and may the career that you have selected prove to be a happy one.

During your stay with us we hope that you have grown—grown in many aspects. We hope that you have developed a healthy and happy outlook on life. We hope, also, that you have learned to make it a practice to think more and to produce more; to give your best to your work; to recognize your abilities and your shortcomings—and to plan improvements in both.

Personality may count more toward progress than does technical skill, but to rely solely on either personality or skill is an error.

The ability to get along with people coupled with the knack of getting things done right and on time will go a long way toward enabling you to move ahead on the job. Set high standards for yourself and then work hard to attain them.

Finally, develop concepts of what is right and what is wrong. Men and women of character are solely needed in the world today.

Congratulations on a job well done and the best of luck to all of you.

LIONEL H. MERCIER

A Message from Dean Wilbur

My sincere congratulations to the Graduate Class of 1956. As you go through the College portals to your vocational field, you will reflect your native acumen and the social graces that have been the result of nature and nurture.

My hope is that your hereditary endowment plus your sensitivity to cultural conventions has been nurtured to the full during your stay at Bryant College.

May the social inheritance that you have enjoyed as an American citizen be sustained, enhanced, and further endowed through your activities as a College-trained citizen.

May God speed your way.

The Temptations of Communism

To many, the allure of Communism is all powerful. To the fuzzy-minded theorist without sense to create an ideology of his own; to the intellectually frustrated, the concept of "people's democracy" seems an easy out; a desirable temptation.

For every temptation Communism has to offer, a dozen evils fester and persist. For all the surface glamour of the Red line, a thousand lies exist. For each "economic freedom" offered, a lifetime of human rights is forfeited.

And, for all its many twisted and perverted baits, the insidious philosophy of Communism neglects one thing: the natural law of mankind. Transcending all the social, political, and economic wants of a nation is always: the dignity of man. This dignity is blasphemed and denounced by the Communists in every way.

By advocating the abolition of the family, they suggest the tearing apart of all ties between parent and child, man and wife. By denouncing countries and nationality, they hope to build a race of faceless, nameless machines; no Americans, no Irishmen, no Frenchmen, no Germans, no Greeks, no Negroes—only loyal, servile beasts, devoid of individuality, stripped of personality, and without the slightest particle of human dignity.

The Communist Manifesto itself has a quotation that sums up the nature of Communism: "Communism abolishes eternal truths, it abolishes all religion, and all morality, instead of constituting them on a new basis; it therefore acts in contradiction to all past historical experience." How true! And from what better source may we find cold and precise descriptions of the Communists' creed than from their own Bible of hatred and falsehood—the Manifesto of the Communist Party!

Even the tempting, honey-coated words of "peace" and "coexistence" being issued forth from the Kremlin in a barrage of lies are more lethal than desirable. For the smiles on the Russians' faces are cast from the mold of deception, and their soft words are vile with ill intent. Can the word of a Communist be taken? Is there a "Communist morality"? Lenin, the patriarch of modern Communism, wrote that, in furthering the cause of international Communism, "a Communist must be prepared to make every sacrifice and, if necessary, even resort to all sorts of schemes and stratagems, employ illegitimate methods, conceal the truth." Are the Soviet peace phrases true; are they believable; can we take the Russians at their word? No, and again no! By their own leader's words, the Bolsheviks are deceitful liars. Never must the free world be fooled by outward acts of friendship. The temptations of peaceful relations with the Communist bloc must be avoided, for the dangers paralleling them are great and real.

To the peoples of America and the West, the temptations of Communism should be regarded as resembling flypaper: perhaps sweet from a distance, but poisonous on contact.

Weaknesses In Liberal Arts Education

New York, N. Y.—(I.P.)—Decrying the insecurity of the average liberal arts graduate's intellectual foundation, Dean William C. Warren of the Columbia University School of Law asserted recently that the liberal education which the Bachelor of Arts degree "is supposed to represent has certain marked deficiencies." In his annual report, Dean Warren pointed out that no law faculty can expect the undergraduate college to impose an intellectual discipline as exacting as that of the professional school.

"We are however," Dean Warren declared, "entitled to expect that the college graduate be able to read argumentative or expository prose swiftly, comprehendingly, and retentively; that he be able to express himself in speech and writing grammatically, literately, and precisely; that he has learned the basic lesson of using a dictionary." He added: "But we have found that few of our entering students, however carefully selected, possess these skills to the extent needed for law study."

"What is scarcely less disturbing is that there is in this group no common core of knowledge that should be in the firm and quiet possession of every person who lays claim to a liberal education, let alone of a man who expects to go to the Bar—a knowledge of American history, of American government, and of the structure and working of our economy."

Are Fraternities "Trivial"?

Boston, Mass.—(I.P.)—"Social fraternities can't be written off as trivial fringe activities. They are more useful than that," said Dr. Alfred McClung Lee at the annual Brotherhood Council banquet held recently on the campus of the Boston University Theology refectory. "More than one fourth of college undergraduates and 83 per cent of student leaders on campuses are members of social fraternities," according to Dr. Lee.

"While a good case can be made for fraternities, there is also a negative side," Dr. Lee said. He gave as a negative example, the recent Alabama university riot, which he said "was reported to have been started by a few inebriated fraternity men." He also said the loss of the Delta Kappa Epsilon initiate at MIT was unfortunate for all fraternities from a publicity standpoint.

Dr. Lee, chairman of the department of sociology and anthropology at Brooklyn College, spoke before some 200 students on "Fraternities Without Brotherhood," the title of his recently published book.

"Since World War II there has been a movement away from 'anti-others' fraternities, due to the influx of returning veterans, and as a result there are now only seven men's fraternities and one women's fraternity which still retain restrictive clauses in their charters."

Dr. Lee said the three main problems of social fraternities are scholarship, hell week, and discrimination. He offered four ways to cope with the problems of discrimination. They are as follows:

All discriminatory clauses and "gentlemen's agreements" should be eliminated from fraternity charters. The rushing system should be modified so that as many different fraternities have a chance to pledge a man as possible, and the final selection should be made on the basis of such things as common interests. There should be a limit to the size of fraternities on any one campus, so that each are put on the same competitive basis. Provide membership for all students who want to belong to a fraternity, even if it means drawing straws for the last ten pledges.

What's Wrong with 'Vigil-Auntie'?

New York—(ACP)—Cook's Tours have given up a seven-months search for a semantic "needle" in a haystack of words. They were looking for a new word for "chaperone" for their young people's tours of Europe.

Now they've decided to continue calling a chaperone a spade—er, a chaperone!

Search for a new word got started last summer when a poll of young returnees from Europe disclosed they liked to travel abroad with a chaperone but thought the word "smacks too much of over stern parental authority."

Soon the travel agency's "brass" noted that no one was coming up with an acceptable synonym.

So last March 7 they announced a "new-word-for-chaperone" contest for young people, with a prize of $200 in Cook's travelers cheques. Contest closed on April 30.

Result? Looks like there "ain't no such word!" Nothing better than "chaperone," at least. But lots of words like "fun-visor," "toureador," "tab-on-ette," "tour-mate," "outatruble," and "secretoury."

Travel agency has one consolation: maybe they didn't come up with a satisfactory synonym; but neither did a flock of young people from all over the country.

But the prize will still be awarded. A committee is going through the haystack of entries for a final decision on the best suggestion. Even though it won't replace "chaperone."

Need for Junior Colleges Grows

Tallahassee, Fla. (I.P.)—A report on the third annual Junior College Conference, held on the campus of Florida State University, reveals several forecasts by prominent educators. Dr. Ralph L. Eyman, dean of the FSU School of Education pointed out that if senior colleges restrict enrollments, there will be a greater need for junior colleges.

Dr. Lamar Johnson of the University of California at Los Angeles felt that the changing of junior colleges into four year senior colleges was a development for the most part, in the distant future—some 25 years away.

According to Dr. Eyman, it is not difficult to pick the best students and educate them only as is done in Europe and the Orient, but rather in a democracy teachers should develop their talent in seeing how much they can do for students who wish to be educated.

Dr. Johnson said that some junior colleges have an excellent counseling program whereby a student's high school and junior college record is reviewed and then the student is advised as to whether he should attempt to go on to a senior college or whether his scholastic record and aptitude tests show he might better enter a trade, business, or some other vocation.

He also pointed out that there were only 200,000 students enrolled in 1940 junior colleges in America, while today there are approximately 800,000 students enrolled in America's some 600 junior colleges.

There is a great variety of courses offered in junior colleges, varying with the local community need. In one community, food freezing courses may be taught, while in others there may be such courses offered as ranching, poultry raising, fashion designing, teacher training, business, banking, carpentry, auto mechanics and commercial art.

Community advisory committees work closely with junior college administrators to help set up courses which are needed in that particular community, Dr. Johnson explained.

Dr. Hugh Stickler, director of Educational Research and Service at FSU compared the junior college movement in Florida and California. He noted that there are five public junior colleges in Florida with an enrollment of about 5,000, while California has 76 junior colleges with an enrollment of some 300,000 students.

Disability Claims

Compensation payments to veterans for service-connected disabilities may be allowed retroactively to one of three different dates, Manager John L. Reavey of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Providence explained recently.

The dates, Reavey said, are determined by three different sets of circumstances, one of which is the time the application for compensation is filed.

Reavey listed the three dates as follows:

1. If the veteran files his application within a year from the date of his separation from active service, and VA finds that his service-connected disability was severe enough at separation to be compensable, compensation payments may be made retroactive to the day following separation.

2. If the veteran files his application within a year from the date of separation, but his disability was not severe enough at separation to be compensable, compensation payments may be made retroactive only to the date the evidence shows the disability became severe enough to rate compensation.

3. If the veteran files his application later than a year after separation, compensation payments may be made retroactive to the date the application was filed.

"This does not mean," Reavey stressed, "that there is a time limit for filing. Veterans may apply for service-connected disability compensation at any time during their lives."

Compensation may be paid monthly to veterans who have disabilities which are judged to have been incurred in, or were aggravated by, service in the armed forces either during war-time or peace-time.

Peace-time rate of compensation is 80 per cent of the war-time rate unless the disability resulted from extra-hazardous service, in which case the war-time rate may apply.

Disability claims for veterans in Rhode Island and Southeastern Massachusetts are handled by the Providence VA office, located at 100 Fountain Street.

The V.A. Corner A Farewell Note

Since this will be the last article of mine to appear in the ARCHWAY, I certainly hope that the V.A. corner has been of service to the veterans attending Bryant College.

The information pertaining to the various V.A. services was supplied by Mr. R. L. Reavey, Manager of the Providence Veterans Administration Commission. Without his cooperation, your "V.A. Editor" would not have been able to give you veterans present data pertaining to your benefits.

Now that this is "farewell," I extend a hearty "Good Luck" to you who are graduating; and to the underclassmen, a few words of advice—"You only get out of Bryant what you put into it—so keep trying and next August you'll see the 'bright light.'"

With those few words, I end my career as a writer for the ARCHWAY. So-long until Alumni week-end.

Entrance Requirements To be Tougher

Eugene, Ore.—(I.P.)— Entrance requirements for out-of-state students will be stiffened at Oregon state-supported schools beginning with the fall term, 1956. This is the word handed down from the office of the chancellor of the State Board of Higher Education. Starting next September students from other states wishing to enroll in state-supported institutions must be from the upper half of their high school graduation class.

Chancellor John R. Richards' complete statement read: "The privilege of attending a state institution in Oregon should be extended only to those non-resident applicants who show promise of contributing to the academic life of the college community."

"The minimum acceptable basis for the admission of non-resident freshmen should be a performance record of an aptitude rating which places him in the upper half of his high school class."

Looks like weird goings-on at Bryant Stunt Night, but it was lots of fun!

Phi Sig Wins Stunt Night Competition

By Al Hillis

On Monday night, July 2, Phi Sigma Nu reigned victorious over Kappa Tau, Alpha Phi Kappa, and Phi Upsilon with their imitations of various famous people around the Bryant campus and in the entertainment world. The auditorium was packed, the night was warm, and the Phi Sig boosters were doing their best to outshout their opponents' cheering sections. Their support wasn't in vain.

Kappa Tau and Alpha Phi Kappa combined efforts in their bid with a miniature minstrel. It was well presented and indicated that a lot of hard work went into it.

Phi Upsilon presented a "Broadway Revue." It was well done, and generously loaded with some of the prettiest girls on the campus. Ellie Ricci, Doreen Gregory, and Marty Petrarca headed the bill.

There were two unannounced highlights of the evening that were added to the show strictly for entertainment and were not in the competition. The first was a complete surprise to everyone, including Manny Allen. It was presented by a very talented young man named Norman Kronick. Norm appeared on stage in blackface. This was confusing to start with because he had no instrument to sing with, as most such singers do. Then his secret leaked out. Norm proceeded to imitate Al Jolson to the letter—in pantomime. A few of Jolly's top hits were piped out over the speaker system while Norm made the mouth movements and body expressions just as Jolson used to do. This was Norm's first appearance on a Bryant stage, and we certainly hope it will not be his last.

The second surprise came when the incomparable Manny Allen sat down at the "ivories" and favored us all with his famous "Cocktail Hour." To close his part of the show Manny announced that he was about to play his "swan song" on the Bryant campus, and then sat down at the piano to play his theme song, "That's All." The dead silence that fell over the crowded auditorium at this point was a definite indication of just how much the Allen piano music is going to be missed on the Bryant campus next year.

A special guest of the evening was the top disc jockey in New England, the "Golden Greek," Dick Merritt. Dick is well known in this area for his Rock 'n Roll show on WRIB. Dick is a Bryant product, and it was good to see him back in his old stamping grounds. Music for the program was provided by Professor Ralph S. Handy and the "Stardusters".

The Greek Letter Society would like to thank Mr. Falcone for keeping his Snack Bar open during the show so that all students and guests could find some relief from the humidity with cooling refreshments.

Beta Sigma Chi Holds Semi-Annual Banquet

On Tuesday evening, July 2, Beta's semi-annual banquet for the installation of officers and pledges was held at the Admiral Inn in Cumberland, R. I.

The program consisted of the call to order by the toastmaster, Lee Bunker; the invocation by the Chaplain, Larry Daly; and dinner at 8:00 p.m. Donald Pfister, the retiring president, gave his farewell speech after dinner. In his speech Donald thanked the brothers for giving him their full cooperation.

The installation of pledges was performed by the retiring Sergeant-at-Arms, Herb Schaller. The pledges were, William Collins, William Ehrhart, Ronald P. Gilbert, Earle Jackson, Paul Kyilonen, Gerald Lanoue, Charles Martin, Larry Ottman, Roy Plumley, Donald Potter, Laurent Remillard, Brooks Rogers, George Savage, Albert Schaefer, Raymond Simmons, and Eugene Sullivan.

The new Sergeant-at-Arms, Mike Gillotti, installed the following officers for next semester:

President.....Nelson Brown
Vice President.....Donald Pfister
Secretary.....Tony Giglio
Treasurer.....Real Remillard
Asst. Treasurer.....Jack Donnelly
Alumni Secretary.....Raymond Plumley
Athletic Director.....Earle Jackson
Chaplain.....Wardner Angell
Historian.....George Olsen

The president-elect, Nelson Brown, presented his acceptance speech after dinner. Nelson pointed out that the fraternity is similar to a baseball team, of which he is only the manager, and of which the brothers are the players. Its success depends on the cooperation of each individual.

Mr. Bob Paul, advisor to the fraternity, delivered the traditional speech to all the brothers in his usual humorous and entertaining manner.

After Mr. Paul's speech a trophy was presented to Donald Pfister for the marvelous job he did in behalf of the fraternity.

To conclude a splendid evening, the advisor and brothers held an informal gathering.

First Spring Dance And Cabaret Party A Success

Recently, in the cool, gayly decorated ballroom of the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel, the Greek Letter Council presented their first Spring Dance and Cabaret Party. And, judging from the comments and applause, a wonderful and fun-packed evening was had by all in attendance.

The hotel ballroom was transformed into a night club, with the fraternity and sorority presidents and their guests occupying tables which circled the dance floor. A refreshment bar was set up in the ballroom annex to satisfy the thirst of some 800 patrons and guests.

At 9 p.m. the chic young ladies with their escorts began arriving. From that moment on gaiety and laughter were the main features of the evening.

Approximately 10:30 the house lights were dimmed; and Bob Sugarman, Chairman of the entertainment Committee, stepped into the spotlight to introduce the special feature of the evening—a 3-act floor show direct from Boston for intermission entertainment. Immediately the ballroom overflowed with students and guests vying for an advantageous spot to witness the show.

The "Top Banana," Comedian-Singer Jimmie Joyce, whose recent appearances at the Bradford Roof and Blinstrub's in Boston won the plaudits of the night club reviewers, performed magnificently to the delight and laughter of the audience. Co-starring with Mr. Joyce was television's Virginia Hauer. Miss Hauer captivated the crowd with her songs, as well as her personality and exotic beauty. The extra attraction was the breath-taking acrobatic antics of Miss Ann Carr. The smooth-rollicking rhythms heard throughout the evening was provided by the toast of the New England college set—Ed Drew and his Orchestra.

The Council wishes to thank everyone for the wonderful reception accorded their initial effort and is pleased to announce that plans are now being made to make the affair an annual social event.

Dr. Powers Speaks At Last Delta Omega Meeting of Semester

On Monday evening, June 25, Dr. Charles T. Powers spoke on the "Requisites for Success." From his broad experience with the problems of college graduates, he cited instances where tactfulness and patience were important factors in success. Much to the delight of his audience, he spiced his talk with numerous samples of the inimitable Powers' humor.

In addition to Dr. Powers' talk, Delta Omega Professional Society members and guests were treated to a novel change in the usual dinner-speaker meeting routine. Dinner was served buffet-style in the beautiful setting of the garden of the Administration Building. A delicious spread was prepared by Helen Gill, Barbara Witengier, Felicia Kulczyk, and Ann Kelly. The weatherman also cooperated by providing perfect weather for the evening.

At the conclusion of Dr. Powers' talk, Professor George A. Richards delivered a message from Vice President E. Gardner Jacobs, who was unable to attend. In his message Mr. Jacobs praised the Society and its members for the success of its activities during the present semester and commended Miss Helen Gill, President of the Society, for her skill and tireless effort in contributing to the success of the Society. Following Mr. Jacobs' message, an electric coffee pot was presented to Miss Gill from the members, in appreciation for her service.

The new officers for the coming semester were then introduced. They were Eric Corrievau, President; George Donzella, Vice President; Carl Mather, Treasurer; Barbara Witengier, Secretary; and Vincent Bove, Historian.

At a general meeting held after the dinner, plans were made to acquaint more students with the aims of Delta Omega Society which are (1) to promote professional interest in various aspects of business through talks by successful businessmen and interesting field trips to local concerns and (2) to create a feeling of fellowship and common interest among members.

Close Curtain!

By Al Hillis

Another semester is coming to a grinding halt, and with the end of the semester come banquets and elections of next semester's officers of the various organizations on the campus.

So it is with the Glee Club and Masquers. The season of comedy, drama, and music is over for this semester. The elections of officers for next semester have been held in both organizations, special awards have been made to outstanding students, and instead of trying to hold a banquet for the many people in both of these groups, a combined Glee Club-Masquers picnic was held on July 11.

Let's look back for a minute and see just what we had in the way of entertainment from these groups this semester. First was the Masquers' presentation of "Time Out for Ginger." This was a fine performance that drew a fine crowd and a good many laughs. Another of this type of play next year will certainly be welcomed.

The Glee Club made its appearance in a combined effort with the Masquers and the Orchestra in the musical production of the Broadway hit "Desert Song". This reporter, along with some of the "veterans" in the Glee Club, was a little dubious about seeing such a difficult program attempted by a Bryant College group. But all involved in the show rolled up their sleeves, dug in, and put over a musical production that gives professionals grey hair.

The Orchestra, as already mentioned, made one appearance in "Desert Song," and recently played fill-in music for the Greek-Letter's "Stunt Night." The Orchestra has made few appearances this semester due to the lack of proper balance of instruments. Professor Ralph S. Handy expects the incoming freshmen to fill the gaps where needed. The Orchestra will not elect its new officers until the first rehearsal of next semester.

Special awards were made to members of the Glee Club and the Masquers for outstanding contributions made during the semester. In the Glee Club, the awards went to Louise Tatro for her performance in "Desert Song," and to Don Esmay for his fine leadership as the President of the Glee Club. Masquers' awards were made to Lonnie Modica for her performance in "Desert Song" and as student director of "Time Out for Ginger." Jim Handy also received an award for his leadership as the President of the Masquers.

The officers for next semester's Glee Club are:

- President—Walter E. Fitzgerald.
Vice-President—Peter Carando.
Secretary—Nancy Hackensen.
Treasurer—Richard Studley.

The officers for next semester's Masquers are:

- President—Nancy Hackensen.
Vice-President—Jack Anderson.
Secretary-Treasurer—Eleanor Limmer.

That's it. One of the things that makes graduation a little sorrowful is that we must leave these groups behind. It certainly has been a pleasure to work with all the people in the Glee Club, Masquers, and Orchestra this semester. Without their fine cooperation there would not have been enough material available to make this column possible. Many thanks to all.

Aug. 10: Morning session
Buffet lunch at Dormitory, Bryant Campus
Tea at the President's home

Favors will be given out from National Headquarters and also from the local chapter. "Growth" will be Sigma's watchword—this does not mean only as applied to growth in membership but more to growth in Sigma spirit.

In regard to the matter of dress, the order of the day will be no fancy clothes at all; only sports and informal attire will be necessary. The officers of the sorority have asked the Sigma sisters to bring their bathing suits for a crisp dip in the Atlantic!
