Energy Conservation Continues with Ice

Engineers from Witham Associates have completed a design study that will result in greater energy savings for the College, says Bill Gilmore, Bryant's energy coordinator.

With a grant of $307,000 from Narragansett Electric Company, a cost-effective "Thermal Ice Storage System" will be constructed.

Engineers studied the energy required to air-condition the College's largest building, the Unistructure. The study showed a greater savings potential for shifting the electrical load from costly daytime electric rates to more inexpensive nighttime rates. Ice manufactured at night with the "Thermal Ice Storage System" will be stored in an underground tank and used to provide chilled water to cool the Unistructure during the day. The tanks are designed to hold the maximum amount of cooling the Unistructure would require on the hottest day of the year.

The concept of thermal ice storage dates back to the early 1920s when it was used on dairy farms, in churches, and was the first system used to air-condition movie theaters. Renewed interest in ice storage systems has been sparked by the rising cost of electricity during daytime hours and incentives provided by Narragansett Electric Co.

Expected to be completed and operational for this year's summer cooling season, the system will significantly reduce Bryant's electrical consumption and save the College more than $65,000 annually, according to Gilmore.

With the new system in place, Bryant will be using an ozone-safe refrigerant approved by the United States Environmental Protection Agency and will be in compliance with the EPA regulations for the use of air-conditioning refrigerant. In addition, the reduced electrical consumption will result in a significant reduction in carbon dioxide and sulfur dioxide emissions.

Bryant's Third Annual Toast to the New Year

Joining President Trueheart at this year's annual toast to the New Year is Professor Manuel Broncano Rodriguez, a visiting professor from Spain. At a special reception held in the Heritage Room last month, President Trueheart toasted the New Year and introduced Professor Rodriguez to Bryant employees. Professor Rodriguez was here through Wintersession when he taught "Frontiersmen to Imperial Army: The Case of Spain and the United States."

Hatch Scholarship Presentation from Lions

The third annual Kristen Hatch Memorial Road Race raised $7,500 for the Bryant scholarship fund named in Kristen's memory. Presenting the check to President Trueheart are (l-r) Kristen's parents, David and Joan Hatch, and Joseph Sweet, Smithfield Lions Club race organizer. Co-sponsored by Bryant and the Smithfield Lions Club, the race raises money and alcohol awareness.

Thank You to Bryant Contributors

The following supporters have recently made a difference at Bryant College:

ARA - For the tenth consecutive year, ARA Dining Service has contributed $10,000 to the ARA Endowed Scholarship Fund at Bryant. Special thanks to William Petti, director of Bryant's dining services, and Ed Gutasukas, ARA district manager.

Richard Oster, CEO, Cookson America and Bryant trustee - Oster, chairman of Bryant's Corporate Partners Program steering committee, contributed funds to underwrite the program's video and brochure. The program is the fund-raising and marketing arm of the Center for International Business and Economic Development. The video is expected to be completed this month.

Datatel - In lieu of a holiday gift to each of Datatel's customers, which includes Bryant, the company contributed an additional $5,000 to the Datatel Scholars Foundation. A leading supplier of software to colleges, universities, and non-profit organizations, Datatel's contribution enables eligible students to receive a scholarship to attend an institution selected from one of Datatel's customer sites.

The Sandwich Generation

Do you find, in the midst of screaming children, that your phone is ringing with the needs of an elderly parent? If you do, the Bryant Alumni Association Rhode Island Chapter has come to the rescue with a program that will offer tips for surviving with your sanity intact.

"Families in the Sandwich Generation," a continuing education program, will be held Saturday, March 27 from 9 a.m. to noon. The program will address caregivers' perspectives, the caregivers' Bill of Rights, challenges for employers, and challenges to the community. A panel of experts will offer a wide range of resources and information.

Organizations to be represented include Department of Elderly Affairs; Home Front, North Providence Senior Center; Westerly Adult Daycare; Respite Care Services; Mental Health Services; Waterman Heights Nursing Home; North Providence Senior Center; Bryant College Public Safety; Northwest Community and Health Services; Greater Providence Chamber of Commerce; Dora C. Howard Center; Smithfield Town Council; and two independent caregivers.

The cost is $20 per family (maximum of four). For more information call the Office of Alumni Relations, ext. 6040.

WEB Sponsors Collection

During the holiday season, Women Educators of Bryant (WEB) sponsored a collection of personal items to benefit residents of Sojourner House, a local shelter for battered women and their children. Making the presentation on campus are (l-r) Celia Windsor, manager, Sojourner House; Elaine Mailhot '93; Debbie Easterling, marketing professor; Tonya Kubas-Meyer, assistant director, Sojourner House; Barbara Burlingame '89, vice president of administration and support services, Northern Rhode Island Chamber of Commerce, and state representative, district 62; and Barbara Gregory, assistant director of Career Services.

WEB is comprised of women from the Bryant community (faculty, administrators, staff, students, and alumni) interested in providing education, assistance, and support to the Bryant community on issues of particular importance to women.

Dress Down Results are In

The total collected for "Dress Down Day '92" has been tabulated, and it is a truly impressive amount. Bryant employees contributed to 35 different charitable and community organizations and scholarship funds for a grand total of $9,237. Also donated were 20 cases of canned goods and non-perishable food items to a soup kitchen.

Two of the beneficiaries are among Bryant's worthwhile causes: The Shirley Morrison Scholarship ($589), and the Bryant Environmental Club ($326). Other recipients include homeless shelters, soup kitchens, and health organizations.

What makes this total even more outstanding is that "Dress Down Day" was launched in the summer of '91 as a weekly, summer-only event. By popular demand it was approved for winter semester break and in May of '92 was approved as a weekly ongoing year-round program.

"Dress Down Day" allows employees to dress casually each Friday for a $2 donation to an organization selected from names submitted to the clerical council.

The Secretarial/Clerical Council, which initiated this program and continues to coordinate it, thanks all participants for their continued support of this worthwhile community outreach program.
