Representative Of CPA Firm Visits Bryant

Mr. Richard Glenden, representing the CPA firm of Arthur Anderson & Co., visited Bryant on Thursday, December 15, for the purpose of recruiting junior accountants.

Former Bryant students who are now working for this firm are Bruce Hopper, August '54 grad, now working in the Chicago office; Albert Avelino, August '53, now employed in the New York office; Ralph Economu, August '54 grad, also working in the New York office.

Mrs. Love reports that several more companies will be recruiting on the campus in the near future.

Pawtucket Alumni Club Elects Officers

On Sunday, December 6, the Bryant Alumni Club of Pawtucket voted to have an annual meeting in the latter part of April. During the assembly, in which thirty members were present, it was proposed that a campaign be inaugurated to attract new members to the club. Among other things, an informal buffet supper to be held in the Bryant Auditorium with a prominent businessman or lawyer as a guest speaker is scheduled for some of the club's future activities.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Professor Walter D. Harris, of the Bryant faculty. Professor Harris outlined recent developments in the college and explained the need for active alumni interest in the institution. He was given a vote of thanks. Mr. Robert G. Drew-Bear, Alumni Secretary, acted as chairman until the group was ready to appoint Mr. Stanley J. Wojtowicz '45 as temporary chairman.

Other officers elected at the meeting were Mr. Thomas R. Grant '51, President; Miss Dorothy L. Roston '49, Vice-President; Mr. Hugh A. Dunlap, Jr. '55, Treasurer. A Steering Committee consisting of Mr. Nathan Shapiro '51 and Mr. Dominick Hysko '22 was then appointed.

As the meeting progressed Mr. Grant said, "The February graduates of Bryant living in Pawtucket will be entertained at a supper by the Pawtucket Alumni group. The main purpose of the gathering will be to give the graduates all possible assistance in getting positions."

Bryant College Sno' Queen for 1955
Barry Feldman, President of Sigma Lambda Pi fraternity, places the wreath of victory on Miss Doreen Gregory, winner of the 1955 Sno' Queen campaign.

Doreen Gregory Crowned Queen at 1955 Sno' Ball

Saturday night, December 10, another beautiful coed was crowned Sno' Queen at Sigma Lambda Pi's Annual Sno' Ball.

Blue and white streamers hung from umbrellas, while reindeer and Christmas wreaths adorned the walls to remind everyone present of what was to take place that night.

The Manny Allen Quintet supplied the music for this gala event, while our cute little snowman winked at all the beautiful girls as they danced with their handsome escorts.

As the hands of the clock slowly moved to the long awaited time, the tension and excitement constantly increased among all those who were present. Finally, that long-awaited moment came and the white carpet was rolled from the back of the auditorium to the stage where this year's Queen would be crowned. Everyone rushed for a choice spot where they could see all that was to happen. Barry Feldman, president of Sigma Lambda Pi, announced each candidate and sponsoring fraternity and acknowledged the president who escorted each girl to the stage.

The six lovely coeds took their places on the stage. The big moment had finally arrived and for the first time all evening the auditorium was in complete silence. When President Feldman announced: "The 1955 Sno' Queen is—Miss Doreen Gregory," the whole auditorium sent up a loud round of applause.

A lovely wreath of red carnations with a single white carnation was placed on the Queen's head after which Nick Facaris, president of Chi Gamma Iota, the sponsoring fraternity, accepted the trophy. Each of the members of the Sno' Queen's court was awarded a miniature cup.

Pictures were taken of the royal Queen and her court. What could have made a more beautiful picture than the Queen upon her throne attired all in red with the maidens of her escort beside her, each of whom wore white or red. The dancing continued as the Queen and court ruled over the Sno' Ball.

Miss Gregory hails from Pawtucket, R. I., and is enrolled in the Secretarial School at Bryant.

The Genie Can Help You As It Has Helped Others

The Genie Fund Committee is again asking for the cooperation of the students of Bryant College in giving generously to the Genie Fund. This fund was set up and is maintained by the student body of the college to give a helping hand to students who are going on to graduate school and are in need of financial assistance.

Mrs. Clarissa Hayfield Patterson was the recipient of the Genie Fund in 1953. Mrs. Patterson has this to say about the Genie Fund: "Graduate work at Teachers College, Columbia University, seemed like just a dream, but through the aid of the Genie Fund, that dream became a reality."

"The Genie Fund offered me the financial assistance which I sorely needed; and the receiving of it gave me a feeling that my classmates had confidence in me."

"I sincerely feel that the Genie Fund constitutes a 'Helping Hand' and hope that the students of Bryant College will continue to support it. Aladdin's Genie may have been fateful, but for Bryant's Genie, I am most grateful."

Student Senate to Sponsor Winter Formal on January 7

The Student Senate takes this opportunity to wish all Bryant students and their families a Merry Christmas, a Happy New Year, lots of fun, plenty of rest, and above all, a safe and sane holiday. We want to see everybody back on January 3 in one piece.

We especially want to see all Bryant students on Saturday, January 7, at 8:30 p.m. at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel Ballroom. Why? Because that is the night of the first and biggest formal in the school year—the ALL-COLLEGE WINTER FORMAL. For you "cats that are hep, this is the craziest ball. No squares allowed."

Mind you, now, this is an ALL-COLLEGE dance. We don't care if you're an honor student, a slinking student, male or female, you are entirely welcome. The more the merrier. The ballroom is plenty big enough to hold everyone.

What's this I hear? Oh, yes! That familiar cry from the new students. "But I can't afford a formal, especially right after Christmas." Okay, okay, we know it. Who said anything about money? Leave the green folding stuff home. There is no charge for the Winter Formal. It's FREE. (Perhaps it would be a little tough for you guys to scrape up the loot for flowers. Don't give it another think. This affair is non-floral too. You can get that cute little thing some ponies if you want, but it just isn't required.)

So "latch on to the one that appeals to you and ramble on down." Bring your wife, steady, girl friend, mother, sister, aunt, or mother-in-law, but be there. Refreshments will be served free. (Man, we are splurging.)

TAKE NOTE. You're going to need an invitation. (They're free, too.) Pick them up at the Administration Building or in the Records Office.

The Winter Formal Committee states that the decorations will be elaborate, and that Tommy Mazzo will be on hand to vibrate the atmosphere with the "melodic sounds" (and I didn't take Word Study). This year's Committee is headed by gallant Fred Gafner, and his capable henchmen are Pat Jurzyck, Don Essmay, Carolyn Girelli, and Marty Bernstein... a fine crew doing a noble job of making this year's Formal the best yet.

Just in case you don't want to go floundering through this thing again, let's look at those details again. JANUARY 7, 1955. Dancing 8:30 p.m. to 1:00 a.m. SHERATON-BILTMORE HOTEL BALLROOM. TOMMY MASO'S MUSIC. FREE! FREE! FREE! See you there.

The Queen and Her Court

SIB-SIC Hold Joint Dance

On Saturday, December 3, Sigma Iota Beta and Sigma Iota Chi held their joint dance—The Mistletoe Hop—at the K. of C. Hall in Providence.

The sisters of SIC and SIB invited all the fraternities to present their candidates for Snow Queen. Each candidate was introduced by Santa Claus.

This was a good chance for students to meet the Snow Queen candidates and have a wonderful time.

The Real Meaning of Christmas

Open season on the validity of Christmas as we know it has begun, and the cynical are once again sharpening their scorn. Already they have begun to taint the holiday atmosphere with their lengthy discourse on what they term—the exploitation of Christmas.

A careful scrutiny of these modern-day Scrooges would reveal them as a rather narrow-minded lot, evidently not familiar with the real meaning of Christmas. For instance, some of them would have you compare the Christmas of today with that of a decade ago; and so steeped are they, in their nostalgia, that they cannot grasp the facts that such a comparison is impossible. Twenty years from now, others of similar mind will be telling people of the simplicity and purity of Christmas 1955. As a matter of fact, I suspect that real prejudice against Christmas is that its passing serves to remind them of their fleeting years. Others of their rank decry the commercialization of Christmas. I suspect that their prejudices are purely financial in that they are probably unable to participate in the exchange of gifts and must ease their frustration by condemning the practice. Most pitiful of all are the self-avowed agnostics who see in Christmas only the material rewards and social pastimes.

However, a great deal of the cynicism displayed toward Christmas is not entirely unfounded or without merit. Let it serve to remind us that we must not lose the true meaning of the holiday. Foremost in our minds on Christmas Eve should be the birth of the Christ Child and the glorious task he undertook that night—the salvation of the world. Let Christmas awaken in us a desire to become better Christians and let the spirit of Christmas influence our thoughts and actions throughout the year.

Enter the holiday fun and take advantage of the festive mood and mistletoe, reduce yourselves to financial insolvency and utter exhaustion, but don't lose sight of the real meaning of Christmas—the contemplation of the birth of Christ. The Christ, from whom all your material and spiritual blessings flow, on Christmas day.

The merriest of Christmases, and may the New Year fulfill your fondest wishes.

Help Week has again brought to this writer's mind the wonderful co-operation of the Administration in trying to understand the hi-jinks carried on by the students during their mass indoctrination into the various fraternities and sororities of Bryant College.

It is true that only one week out of our busy semester at Bryant is devoted to such antics, but it is noteworthy to bring to mind that where there is such activity, there is an undeterminable amount of damage wrought. The Administration has been truly understanding in this respect. The plight of the maintenance crew can well be understood also. They have gone about their tasks quietly and efficiently. They have stood by and watched their work undone by students and have kept silent. To them we the students of Bryant owe a vote of thanks for a job well done.

Look about you and you will see evidence of their work surrounding you. Try to be more considerate in your understanding of the tremendous job it is to keep our campus clean.

Next year, when Help Week rolls around, do your part to make it a true Help Week. Give the Administration and the Maintenance Staff of the school every consideration. Remember that Help Week is what you make it.

Last week was one which few Bryant students will forget. It was a most eventful five days as far as the pledges of the fifteen fraternities and sororities were concerned.

Every fraternity brother and sorority sister was bent upon the task of making their future brothers and sisters earn their connotation as a brother or sister, whatever the case may be.

The greatest amount of activity, it seemed, took place in the gym. In many of the organizations there is a ruling which requires all pledges to report to their pledge master in the gym whenever they have a free period. Their fellow students were virtually shocked to see their friends dressed in outlandish berets, baseball caps, and hunting caps.

The pledges were ready and willing to comply with the many requests of their brothers. It was nothing for a student to walk into the gym during a lunch period and cast his eyes upon a number of pledges crawling on their hands and knees in an attempt to outdistance the pledges of another fraternity. Pledges were the victims of one pie-eating contest after another. The prize being, as you may have guessed, another piece of pie.

Strangers to "Help Week" were sorely amazed at the versatility of the many pledges in their errands around the gym, yelling and screaming. Many a Bryant speech instructor would have been shocked to see his so-called stage frightened students dash up to the stage and carry out such antics as prescribed by a brother or a sister.

It was amusing to sit back and watch the many female pledges in their un-made-faces and odd attire, go through a comical sequence of proposals and conga lines. It is impossible to describe just what was going on at one time. It seemed that no matter where you looked some pledge was getting the "business". Strange as it may seem, they appeared to be enjoying it. Can it be that a shy girl is capable of performing the unbelievably funny requests of her sisters and enjoying it? The answer to that question was found in the Bryant gym last week.

The candidates for Sue Queen were not forgotten by pledges or brothers alike. Some pledge was always ready to remind the entire world to vote for his candidate and some of them even tried by exerting his vocal capacities to the nth power.

It was not strange to hear the sweet strains of many voices thrown together in harmony only to be virtually drowned out by a group of pledges of another organization.

Pledges were guilty of many acts against their brothers and sisters and were duly punished. Their crimes ranged from disobedience to simply running out of candy. Their future brothers dealt out punishment as if each act was calculated to make the pledge wish he were somewhere other than the Bryant gym. One pledge was guilty of passing a brother as if he were not even there. This cost him dearly. An unknown total of books was placed in his frail arms to be carried wherever he went. One pledge was spotted talking to a member of the opposite sex and he too was dealt with. Some say that it was the funniest thing they had ever seen. Can you imagine crawling from the gym to Memorial Hall barking like a dog? That would have been enough punishment for anyone, but the real test was when the pledge had to crawl back.

Help Week has come and gone and yet the memories will live for many days to come. They will become part of the stories you will tell of the days when you were a victim of Help Week.

What's so Good About Winter?

(OR AN ANSWER TO J.E.H.)

King Winter in all his bluster and display has already given us several appetizers this year and, from what we have noted of the old gentleman's past record, will serve to New Englanders their usual annual helping of blizzards and refrigerator temperatures before this year passes into the realm of history.

The scourge or beauty of a snowfall (depending on whether you shovel or ski), the unparalleled sensation of myriads of icicles sending shivering cold volumes of ice water cascading upon the miserable mortal who steps into the song-praised "Winter Wonderland," and a host of similar phenomena invite us, one and all, to join in the merry chorus, "Winter? Phooie!"

Winter's beauties are immortalized in the poems of Robert Frost, advertisements for ski lodges, songs of Irving Berlin, and Christmas-card creations of Grandma Moses. But, where is the poet who has set to verse the qualities of grimy slush? Where is that genius of brush and easel whose artistry can capture the qualities of an ice-encrusted windshield? And where hides the composer whose talents should put to music the beauty of rear tires spinning in an icy rut?

Winter's ice brings joy to skaters and twisted ankles to pedestrians. How is it that when water freezes, it always freezes with the slippery side up?

So, sing the praises of Old King Winter. You do it; I'm too cold to speak.

Senate Members Attend Conference

Donald Slate, President of Student Senate, Fred Gainer, Treasurer of Student Senate, and Donald Eassey, a Senator attended the first Eastern States Student Government meeting at Salve Regina College in Newport, Rhode Island. Twelve colleges and universities were present at this meeting. The purpose of this meeting was to bring the Student Government of the campus closer to the administration and at the same time closer to the students. After a few hours of discussion, questions, and answers, it seemed that Bryant College's Student Senate and Brown's Government Body were the best organized and operated student government bodies at the meeting. Following the meeting coffee was served and plans for an all-college dance was discussed.

In the next issue of the ARCHWAY, 'The Veterans' Corner' will begin a new series of articles which will be contributed by various members of the "Grey Class" at Bryant. The writers, who have traveled widely in the course of their duty, will discuss, for the most part, the importance of current events in certain areas in which they were stationed. The first report will point out the delicate situation now to be watched in Saudi Arabia. Mr. Armand J. Goulet of New Bedford, Massachusetts will interpret these

In the following weeks views and opinions of the defenses of America in the far north will be offered by Mr. Earle Engley, of Warwick, whose career in the Submarine Service carried him to the Arctic Ocean. Mr. Edward Slater, also of Warwick, will describe the threat of Communism in Asia. Mr. Slater assisted in the evacuation of the Vietnamese from their northern province. The growth of interest in the sport of bullfighting will be explained by Mr. Peter R. Walters of Port Washington, New York, who was a keen observer of that game while he was stationed in Texas. The recent controversy, which involved practise methods in force at Camp Carson, Colorado, will receive the attention of Mr. Robert Swain, a tail gunner in a B-29, who will discuss his training at that base.

The Joy in Christmas Cards

How could a Christmas card have attained the same traditional position in the celebration of Christmas as the indispensable holly and mistletoe?

There probably isn't any explanation for Christmas cards being such an essential part of the Christmas celebration. However, most people have come to accept Christmas cards as something closely associated with the festive season. Christmas would not be complete unless they received a number of Christmas cards from friends, relatives, and casual acquaintances. Of course, to fully partake in this Christmas tradition, a person must also send a number of Christmas cards.

People send Christmas cards for many reasons. The businessman sends them to gain favorable recognition from his business associates. Friends and families send them to convey the sincerity of their friendship and love. Then there is the write-once-a-year person who uses the Christmas card as an opportunity to catch up on his correspondence.

With all the hustle and bustle of the Christmas season, people seem to miss the full value of the message that is conveyed in Christmas cards. Until the early part of the twentieth century, people had to design Christmas cards in their homes. As a result, families were very limited in the number of cards they could send. Today, commercial Christmas cards are produced by the millions. It is not unusual for families to send a Christmas card to everyone they know. Hence, to many people, the value of a Christmas card has been deflated to a mere habit.

Although people today do not get the same intangible value from Christmas cards as people did in the early part of the century, they derive a new type of enjoyment from them. They receive so many cards that it is now customary to display them.

Christmas cards may be a decoration or a means of correspondence to some people, but for those who cannot be home for Christmas they mean much more—their family and friends have not forgotten them.

APK Takes First Round In Girls' Bowling

Because Kappa Delta Kappa became the victor in the first round of the Girls' Bowling League, everyone is fighting for that second round.

The second week of round number 2 is over and we find Sigma Iota Beta, who was very strong in the first round, falling further and further behind. Alpha Phi Kappa took away four points from them Tuesday, Dec. 6. Two strings were won by only 11 pins each but SIB didn't have that extra little push they needed to take a point. Alpha Phi Kappa is proving to be a much better team in this round. Marilyn Smith and Ginny Chase were APK's high bowlers with 93 apiece. Carol Kahn hit high for SIB with 114.

In alleys 25 and 26 Beta Sigma Gamma and Phi Up were battling it out. Phi Up came out the champs winning three out of four points. Beta Sigma Gamma took the second string by three pins but lost the other two by a large margin. Sandra Rosenthal was high for BSG with 92 and Nancy Veitch bowled Phi Up's high with 105.

Debating Club News

By LOWELL HANSON

Bryant College debated Brown University last week. The topic was "The Ivy League Colleges Are Naturally Superior."

Bryant College used the point that there was nothing to be found in the library or in any of the encyclopedias concerning the Ivy League. They used quotations from Ivy League men who agreed that the Ivy League was not necessarily superior. They quoted the articles from HOLIDAY by Ivy League men about football being a prelude to cock-tails and the fact that Ivy League parties must have drinkers and only drinkers. They mentioned articles by Dr. Keeney, President of Brown University, who asked the Brown men not to conform to the "norm." He mentioned that they were all wearing the same type of clothing, and he wished that they dress somewhat differently. They also mentioned the fact that three or four Ivy League presidents are not undergraduates of Ivy League Colleges. Both Dr. Wriston and Dr. Keeney were not Ivy League undergraduates.

Brown debaters mentioned the huge endowments of their schools. Harvard and Yale are the first and second ranking in the country as far as endowment goes. They also pointed out the vastness of their libraries, and they cited a poll taken by Columbia University which came to the conclusion that the Ivy League graduate was earning more money than the non-Ivy League graduate.

In the absence of a judge, Jovite Labonte, president of the Brown Debating Club, spoke and he pointed out the minor errors. Both schools received constructive criticisms. There was no decision reached. About twenty-five students were in the audience, including three Bryant students. Debating for Bryant College against Brown were Robert Scanlon and Lowell Hanson, president of the Bryant Debating Club.

Bryant College will debate Rhode Island College of Education Wednesday afternoon, December 14, at 3:30 p.m. in the Teachers Lounge at RICE. The topic will be "Resolved, that the Guaranteed Annual Wage Should Be Adopted by Non-Agricultural Industries." The students who will debate for Bryant are David Snyder and Eron Stankewicz. The admission is free and there will be refreshments. Everyone is welcome.

Mr. Falcione Candidate for Dealer of the Month Award

Mr. Edward Falcione, Director of Bryant College cafeteria and dining halls, has been nominated candidate for the national DEALER OF THE MONTH AWARD sponsored by Campus Merchandising Bureau, Inc., a New York agency of the Liggett and Myers Tobacco Co.

Aside from his daily duties of providing a nourishing menu for approximately 1600 furnished students and supervising the college bakery, Mr. Falcione has been nominated for the award because of his outstanding cooperation and helpfulness with the Chesterfield Campus Representative and local Salesmen. The award consists of a beautiful counter lighter and a special personalized plaque.
