

Passio #008

GEORGE GOTT

If we know
what we ought to know
we join hands with the mighty world
and eat success
like a tomato and lettuce sandwich.

Forgetting the bacon.

But it is oh so wonderful.

If we know
what we are not supposed to know
we live a lonely life
unwelcome to eat
with the famous and fortunate derelicts.

Living in shame.

And tasting only the bacon
of desire.
