PAUL HOSTOVSKY

Careful, world.

Attention. Vorsicht.

It is dangerous to lean
out the window
while we're moving,
world. And yet
more dangerous to leave it to the engineer's son
playing up front
pretending to steer
in the big chair.

Just you wait
until we've come
to a complete stop –
for that's what we'll come to
if we're not careful, world.

And then what?

We get out.

And then what?

Nothing-
ness. But not before a train wreck

like nothing you've imagined in your life.

And not like you haven't spent your life trying to imagine it, haven't you,

world?
