CIBED Benefits Students

by Katie McLean and Kristen DuPont
Journalism Students

With all of the talk on campus about the Center for International Business and Economic Development (CIBED), students may be asking the question, "How is CIBED going to benefit us?"

The advantages to students are many. First, CIBED will provide internships and work-study programs which will allow students to assist in providing economic advice to businesses and linking companies to the business world overseas.

For example, students will be assigned through the Small Business Development Center to an established company with a marketing problem and will be responsible for helping to provide solutions to that problem. Internships at the World Trade Center Rhode Island will help students establish and maintain lines of communication throughout the global business community. Through hands-on experience, students will have an opportunity to work within their major while interacting with business professionals. They will be exposed to real-world problems.

Faculty will get involved in corporate outreach programs as well. Their job will be to serve as consultants to the businesses and advisors to the students. In fact, one of the main goals of CIBED according to Jack Oldham, consultant to President William Trueheart, is "to build a bridge between faculty, students, and the outreach programs."

Kumar Chittipeddi, head of the CIBED Task Force, sees opportunities to strengthen Bryant's academic mission. "With enrollment down and the business environment changing, business schools are revising their curriculum," Chittipeddi says. Bryant wants to be distinctive from other colleges, he observes. By providing more informed teachers, more relevant courses, more opportunities to work with businesses and business leaders, and more out-of-classroom experiences that are educational, Bryant will become unique, Chittipeddi states. The five outreach programs are expected to help accomplish this goal, he says.

Because CIBED will provide students opportunities no other institution could have offered, students upon graduation should be able to reflect on their Bryant education as a true learning experience, he concludes.

A side benefit will be to change the current attitude of the student population, he adds. Chittipeddi says as a result of CIBED he would like to see future seniors graduate with the feeling, "Hey, I'm going to miss this place."

The Real World is Not Much Different

by Kristen DuPont
and Katie McLean
Journalism Student

Everyone at Bryant College talks about the "real world" as if it is something of the future. However, Bryant is the real world; it is not just a place to earn a degree. The College is in touch with the latest trends in management and is involved with what is going on in business locally, nationally, and internationally.

Potentially thousands of "real world" people already in the workforce who want to advance in their field come to Bryant seeking direction and advice. They include men and women in midst of a career change, mid-level managers looking to learn more about computer resources, families who want to guarantee growth and continuance of their business, and executives of companies looking for trade overseas. All of these people come here bringing the real world with them.

These people come to Bryant specifically for the five outreach programs sponsored by the College. The first program, the Center for Management Development (CMD), was established in 1974. The CMD helps managers implement training programs for their company and also provides customized on-site corporate training. Each year, the CMD conducts over 300 programs and enrolls more than 8,000 people.

The Small Business Development Center (SBDC), was established in 1982. The SBDC provided consulting service for 1,029 clients in 1991-92. The consulting services are free for all people interested in starting their own business. The SBDC also helps businesses develop strategies to stay on top of the changing environment.

The Rhode Island Export Assistance Center (RIEAC), founded in 1988, manages the state's international trade activities. It provides training, seminars, consulting, and trade-lead services. RIEAC processed 26,000 trade leads in 1991, resulting in 12,000 "matches" for its clients.

The World Trade Center Rhode Island (WTCRI) was established in 1989 and Bryant is the first private college to have a World Trade Center. The WTCRI provides international trade information and offers programs, such as, trade information, education and support, communications, and hospitality services.

The fifth program, which was established in 1990, is the Institute for Family Enterprise (IFE). This program assists family-owned firms by providing consulting services related to operating and sustaining a family enterprise. It also provides educational seminars and workshops. In 1991-92 the IFE served 140 family business clients.

Now with the assistance of $2 million federal grant, Bryant hopes to place all five outreach programs in one center, the Center for International Business and Economic Development (CIBED). CIBED will provide one-stop shopping for businesses with real problems and challenges in Rhode Island and Southeastern Massachusetts. It will also provide one-stop opportunities for students to gain real world experience.

Kumar Chittipeddi, head of the CIBED Task Force feels the center will provide a learning experience for Bryant Students.

Six Expelled at U.S. Naval Academy

by Jim Egan
Journalism Student

In the biggest cheating scandal in 20 years at the U.S. Naval Academy, in Annapolis, Maryland. Six midshipmen are to be expelled for violating the "honor code" and cheating on a final exam last December.

The "honor code," which is held in strict standing at the Naval Academy, insists that midshipmen "do not lie, cheat, or steal." To violate the code is one of the most serious offenses at the Naval Academy.

Investigation of an alleged cheating "episode" began in December, when a midshipman complained the day after an engineering exam, copies of the exam were circulating around campus. The Naval Criminal Investigation Service interviewed over 200 midshipmen and found the master copy of the Electrical Engineering 311 exam, a junior level course and one of the toughest courses at the Academy, was sold to a midshipman, three days before the exam. Several copies were then sold, some for $50, at the midshipman's dormitory. Twenty-eight juniors were accused of cheating on the exam.

In early February, charges were brought up on these midshipmen. Each had hearings before the honor board, which is made up of fellow midshipmen. Those found guilty proceeded through military channels to Rear Admiral Thomas

C. Lynch, Academy superintendent, for disciplinary action.

Last Thursday, Rear Admiral Thomas C. Lynch announced the U.S. Naval Academy has recommended that six of the 28 accused midshipmen will be expelled from the Academy. In addition, they will be required to serve two years in the Navy as enlisted personnel.

Electrical Engineering Professor Raymond Wasta was also suspended for one week for allegedly failing to follow proper procedure for copying the exam. He is appealing the suspension.

Academy Spokesman Commander Mike John said the scandal was the biggest at the Academy since a 1974 incident involving cheating on a navigation exam.

Graduate School Names "Businessperson of the Year"

John E. Turpin, the president and general manager of Stanley Air Tools of Cleveland, Ohio, has been named the Bryant College Graduate School's "Businessperson of the Year."

Turpin has contributed 23 years of continuous service to Stanley

Works and its subsidiaries. Before assuming his present position in 1992, he served as senior vice president and controller of Stanley Fastening Systems for six years. Prior to that he was vice president and controller in the Bostitch Division of Textron for 16 years, joining Stanley Works when they purchased Bostitch from Textron in 1986.

Make the Best of the Times

The clock is ticking. And slowly but surely, time is running out. Another year has come and is about to go.

You have spent the past nine months studying, taking exams, and writing papers. Now it is time to kick back and relax. Well almost, you still have a couple weeks to go.

For some people, these are the last weeks of their college life. However, there are some students who still have one, two, or three years left. Ask any graduating senior, they will tell you how fast the time will go by.

Think back on all the good times you've had at Bryant. Remember all those Spring Weekends, late night chats with friends, road trips, and pulling all nighters. Also, remember all times you lost your student i.d., got locked out, went to the "yuck truck," being tossed in the pond and lastly, the numerous times you avoided the path through the Archway. These are the times that you will remember for the rest of your life.

Whether you are a freshman, sophomore, junior or a graduating senior, take the time to appreciate the days that are left, for they are truly numbered. A lot of people may believe that they days in college are only a transitional period. This is not true. Your time in college is not just something you want to get over with, but something you should savor.

College not only changes you, but it exposes you to factors which force you to take a look at your life, make decisions that you've never made before and measure yourself against the yardstick of other people.

Tick, tick, tick, tick, the time is running out. Make the best of it.

Have a safe and happy summer!

Volleyball 4 on 4 Spring Weekend Tournament

To the Editor:

I would like to thank all 24 participating teams for making our volleyball fundraising tournament such a tremendous success this past weekend. We managed to combine some great fun and sun starting Friday afternoon at 4:00 p.m. and ending Saturday afternoon at 5:00 p.m. with our exciting finish between the Slammers and Chief's Tribe. Our first place finishers, the Slammers, went home with Spring Weekend Team Championship t-shirts and a $10 gift certificate to Gator's Pub; while our 2nd place finishers left with a $20 gift certificate to Parente's. Last, but not least, our Consultation Round Champions won a $20 gift certificate to Ron's Spaghetti House. I would like to commend all the students on their exemplary behavior through 9 hours of fun-filled yet intense competition. Hopefully, with your help we'll be able to continue this tradition each Spring Weekend.

Sincerely,
Coach Mendes

The Comfort is Yours

To Bryant Students:

While the majority of us were out enjoying the entertainment and beautiful weather of this past weekend, a few of our classmates were out robbing us of something many of us have yet to experience. The Country Comfort is the student bar on our campus meant to be a gathering place for us: a place where we can meet our friends, have a few drinks, and be assured we'll all arrive home safely. The Comfort does not belong to the school, nor does it belong to Brycol; it belongs to all of us. It belongs to those of you who have, do, and will in the future gather there to have a good time with your friends.

This past weekend, the Comfort was broken into. In Rhode Island, breaking and entering is a felony with a mandatory jail sentence, and in the real world a felony is considered a viable reason to not employ an individual. Brycol plans to file disciplinary and criminal suits, with both the Smithfield Police and Public Safety, against the individuals involved.

For those of you about to graduate, this incident probably seems very insignificant; but for those of us who will remain here at Bryant, this incident was an attempt to rob us of something that many of us may not even know we possess. We would have been robbed of a gathering place, of future fun with our friends, and of many good memories.

The breaking and entering of this past weekend should upset you; the motives of our classmates should puzzle you; and the taking of something that belongs to you should outrage you. Please be responsible for the actions of yourself and those around you, and help Brycol keep what is rightfully all of ours.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Walsh
President, Brycol Student Services

Senior Leaves Final Words

To the Editor:

I have a few things I want to say before I graduate, I thought I would make it through this year without saying anything, but I can't. I am glad I'm graduating and I know that I speak for quite a few fellow seniors who may be able to remember what this school used to be like.

First, I would like to wish the underclassmen good luck. Good luck grinning and bearing all the @! you have to deal with from this school.

The biggest problem that this school has is the office attitudes that fly around. People who work here feel that "this place would be great if the students weren't here." Well it's our fault that your coffee got taken away this summer right? I don't think so - suck it up!! Remember, we (the students) pay you, that usually means you work for us. How can we respect you when you blatantly show no respect for us?! This is not the case with all offices, but there are so few "good" people when you compare them to the "bad."

At least it is not only the undergrads, the grad students aren't being treated fairly either. A graduate class can't be held in MRC Lecture Hall this summer because the Patriot's have it! Considering we don't even have our own football team, I can see why learning football maneuvers should take precedence over higher education. NOT! But, I guess they can't really complain because of the nice study lounge that was taken away from us.

I don't think you'll be hearing, "My father (brother, sister, uncle, neighbor) went to school here at Bryant also." I will never encourage my child or anyone else's to go here.

I dread paying off loans for this school for the next twenty-years of my life. Ever feel like you wasted your money on something?

Public Safety Beat

compiled by Bob Holmes
Archway Staff Writer

Disorderly Conduct

During the evening hours of April 27, Department of Public Safety (DPS) patrol officers were in the area of the Senior Apartment parking area when they heard a bottle shatter on the pavement. After watching the area, the officers noticed someone from a second story window throw another bottle to the ground. The officers approached the unit in question and asked for the person who threw the bottles to identify themselves. All of the occupants said that the person who threw the bottles had left the unit after doing it. The DPS officers asked the residents of the unit to pick up the broken glass from the road. The area was cleaned up without any problems.

Alcohol Violation

At 4:00 pm on April 28th, an unidentified caller reported to DPS that a large amount of alcohol was being taken into a dorm in the village area. Two DPS officers and an RD responded and were allowed entry into the suite by the occupants. Nineteen cases of beer, which were in plain view, were confiscated because the students who brought the cases into the dorm were not of legal drinking age. The alcohol was confiscated and destroyed.

Alcohol Violation

During the evening hours of April 28th, a vehicle was seen driving on the access road behind dorms 14, 15, & 16. The students were asked as to whether or not they had any alcohol in the vehicle. The driver replied that they had none. After further questioning by the DPS officer and an RD, the students were allowed to leave. A short while later, the vehicle was seen out in the C-3 parking lot with the occupants taking alcoholic beverages out of the trunk. It was at this time that the students admitted to having alcohol. Four cases of beer were confiscated and destroyed.

Vandalism

On April 29th at 10:30 pm, a DPS officer parked the patrol vehicle in the townhouse area so that a large gathering in the townhouses could be checked. A short while later, the original officer was notified by another officer that he was chasing two suspects who threw a rock and bottle at the windshield of the vehicle. As a result, the windshield was shattered on the passenger's side. The suspects were able to evade the officer due to the heavy crowds. The windshield was replaced the next day.

Warrant Search & Arrest
During the early morning hours of April 30th, a DPS supervisor and officer were requested to meet with an off-campus law enforcement agency. The agency was requesting DPS assistance to escort officers to several campus residences. At a pre-determined time, two teams of police officers executed search warrants. Six students were arrested after the police determined that many controlled substance laws were being violated.

Several hours later, another search warrant was served in a campus residency. Another resident student was arrested after the police confiscated controlled substances.

The students involved in this incident have been placed on suspension pending campus judiciary procedures.

Vandalism

On May 1st at 5:45pm, DPS received a call from a concerned student who reported that furniture was being destroyed by the back side of a dorm in the village area. Two DPS officers responded to the scene and witnessed two individuals attempting to throw a piece of wood (possibly remains from the coffee table) through the second floor window. The student was asked for their identification, but did not want to admit to partaking in the activity. A guest was asked for their identification. The guest was later escorted off campus for taking part in the vandalism.

Breaking and Entering

On May 1st at 8:00 pm, the Country Comfort (CC) called DPS to report that a breaking and entering had just occurred. Apparently, a worker had went to the CC at about five minutes before they were to work. The front door was secure. The employee then went to the Brycol House to retrieve the keys to the CC. After walking out of the Brycol House, the employee saw the last of several people entering into the CC. The employee ran over and demanded that all of the people get out of the building immediately. One suspect dropped a bag of food before doing so. A description of the vehicle used to leave the area was passed to DPS. A short while later, the vehicle was stopped by DPS at the ECS. The vehicle was escorted back to the CC for an identification of the suspects. The employee could not make a positive identification. HVAC was contacted to temporarily repair the damage caused. The case is currently under investigation.

Burglary

On May 2nd, a resident of the townhouses reported to DPS that some damage had occurred to their townhouse during the night. An answering machine was reported as missing. After further checking, nothing else was found to have been taken. The student reported that all doors were believed to have been locked and that entry could have been made through a window. The answering machine is valued at approximately $40.

Burglary

On May 2nd, a resident of a freshmen dorm reported to DPS that a dozen compact discs and a camera was taken from their room during the evening hours the night before. The student believes that entry was gained while they were sleeping. Apparently, the door was left unlocked while the student was sleeping. Value of the stolen items is $454.

Planned Parenthood is Misunderstood

To the Editor:

There is no more of a divisive and emotional issue in our society today than that of abortion, so I was not surprised to see in the April 29 Archway an attack on my earlier defense of Planned Parenthood. That the letter from "History 101" (why no name?) mounts an anti-abortion challenge to my views does not disturb me—that's what public forums like this are for. What is disturbing is that the writer distorts what I wrote and claims that I encourage "forgetting" such horrors as the Nazis and the Holocaust. No one who knows me well or has been in classes of mine can give any credence to this preposterous charge. When proponents of a particular view have to resort to such tactics to try to win adherents to their position, watch out.

Most of H.101's "He is wrong" statements about my views are simply based on opinions that people who are anti-abortion hold in opposition to opinions held by pro-choice people. One side considers abortion "murder," the other does not—and so far the law of the land, as affirmed by the U. S. Supreme Court, sides with the latter group. So let's look at some of the writer's statements that go beyond opinionizing.

(1) Planned Parenthood is racist because it promotes "anti-birth policies" in Zambia. Is the government of Zambia run by naive folks who have allowed PP to pull the wool over their eyes, not perceiving its racist motive? Or maybe it is instead racist to believe the Zambians can be so easily fooled.

(2) PP provides services which violate the law of the land. Evidence? A quote from a PP publication saying that affiliates might act outside the law if necessary. Does the writer say this has actually happened? No. Have anti-abortion activists acted in violation of laws? Time and time again, including recently murdering a doctor in Florida.

(3) PP is anti-feminist. Evidence? A quote, chosen from a PP-published book, whose relevance to an anti-feminist charge perhaps someone can elucidate for us, for it eludes me entirely.

(4) PP's founding by a woman who held elitist and racist views is, I'm supposed to have said, something we should "forget." Did I say we should "forget" unsavory aspects, even if distant, of an organization's past? No. I simply claimed that when an entity has shed once-held beliefs it deserves to be judged on its present principles and actions. There are neo-Nazi groups today who deserve condemnation because people can see, without recourse to any dogmatic belief, how those groups embody the racism and the claim to superiority represented by Nazism. To attempt to link an organization to Nazism based on one's belief system rather than on rational examination of the facts may be logical for some, but it is not for the rest of us.

Is it special pleading to ask judgment of Planned Parenthood for its present policies rather than for elements of its past? Let us consider. The Roman Catholic Church for a time employed harshly repressive measures, especially against native peoples in the Americas, to ensure its dominant position. Do we use that fact to condemn the church today? The American South went to war in part to defend the right to continue slavery. Do we still hold that fact against Southerners? The Daughters of the American Revolution decades ago refused permission for the use of a concert hall by the African-American opera singer Marian Anderson (who just recently died). Do we hold the current DAR responsible for racism?

But, the anti-abortionist would reply, PP still carries out Nazi-like policies. As we've seen, the only basis for saying this is the belief that abortion is murder. Now, I respect the right of anti-abortion people to reject on moral or theological grounds the argument that abortion is not murder. In fact, a colleague of mine and I often argue points in this debate. The difference between the arguments we have and the argument mounted by "History 101" is that my colleague does not twist my words or distort pro-choice views. We disagree civilly and even occasionally find points of agreement. I think we do agree that in an ideal world abortion would not be necessary, because people would always take care to avoid unwanted pregnancy. In the real world, though, people make mistakes (or they get pregnant through rape or incest). In the real world, making abortion illegal does not stop abortion—it simply drives it underground. Until we attain that ideal world, I, like most Americans, prefer to leave decisions about abortion up to the women involved and their doctors.

Morally minded people sometimes disagree on matters of morality; one wishes that on both sides of the abortion issue people could recognize that fact, and not act, for example, as if the pro-choice side must consist of immoral apologists for Nazi organizations. I'll agree not to forget that Planned Parenthood has some unsavory aspects in its past if "History 101" will refrain from making wild accusations in the present about people with whom he or she disagrees. We may indeed be, as that writer says, "one world and one people," but I don't believe any one group of us has a monopoly on morality.

Sincerely,

Jim Marsden

CDs Missing from WJMF

by Kevin Mescall
Journalism Student

More than 10 compact discs (CDs) were reported missing Monday from the WJMF on-air room, station personnel reported today.

The apparent theft was discovered when WJMF managers noticed conflicting numbers in the daily CD log. General Manager Scott Terrien counted the CDs and discovered 12 missing.

Disc Jockeys are required to count the number of CDs during shows and place the total in the log. The CD log verifies the correct number of CDs kept in the on-air room.

CDs have disappeared from

WJMF in the past. Kerry Anechiarico, former Program Director, recalled, "Fourteen CDs disappeared at the end of last semester and only one was recovered."

According to Terrien, the radio station has a limited budget and can not afford to replace all the missing CDs. He said, "Now the station is without some of the more popular music."

Pete Gosselin, a junior finance major and a DJ, said, "A lot of people spend endless hours for the betterment of WJMF. This problem [missing CDs] diminishes the quality of WJMF programming."

Terrien said an investigation is ongoing.

Nazi Label Inappropriate

To the Editor:

After reading the sad article by Gloria Paiva in The Archway, April 15, I felt I had to respond. I was heavily struck by the level of ignorance that dominates certain groups around this campus, and it is quite frightening to hear the naive, blunt, and somewhat offending voices from some of the most misguided individuals around this campus, many of them coming from the College Republicans.

It is scary to hear a naive self-righteous person such as Paiva compare Planned Parenthood with the National Socialist movements in Hitler's Germany. I am sure some older readers got upset from this ignorant comparison. For a lot of people in this world, the word Nazi has a strong meaning, and it is absolutely offending and naive to use it as lightheartedly as Paiva does.

The reasoning that Paiva uses is exactly the one we must fight in order to win the battle against AIDS and unwanted pregnancies. Apparently, she is a cold-hearted status-quo oriented ultra-conservative, who probably just inherited her values from her parents, just like most Republicans do, instead of developing her own. The way she attacks the so-called "safe-sex propaganda" shows what a totally misled and dangerous creature she is, and it is vitally important for the rest of us to put her in her place.

Choosing abortion is not a choice to many people. Miss Paiva might not understand that there are people in other income brackets that cannot support a baby. Paiva's reasoning builds on the old puritan viewpoint that we must learn to disregard in our modern world. And above it all, her facts are totally wrong and misleading, an error that must be taken VERY seriously, and it must be corrected. She says that "there is a 14% chance of becoming pregnant while using a condom... and an even greater chance of contracting the AIDS virus." OK, I am totally for freedom of speech, but misleading facts like these should be punishable because it has to do with the health and well-being of billions of people. Call the WHO and they will tell you the real safety fact about condoms (the best contraceptive, with a 95% safety rate), and the real chances of contracting AIDS. Paiva makes it sound like you have a 50/50 chance of contracting AIDS every time you use a condom while having sex.

Please save the earth from all these naive, ignorant, and misguided stiffs like Gloria Paiva. They are dangerous and degenerating. They are embarrassing.

So You're Looking for a Job?

Katrina Pfannkuch
Archway Staff Writer

The phenomenon is obvious, its all over campus. Seniors dressed in three piece suits and proper business dresses to prepare for the ultimate interview that will woo a company to its knees. Sorry, it may not happen.

Sure there are plenty of success stories about the "incredible interview" or the "supreme job offer", but easy is not always better. Most jobs are difficult to find in the newspaper due to lack of advertising. A company does not want an influx of resumes that are unqualified and then have to hire someone just to sift through them. There is a better way.

Increasingly, such services as job hotlines, job-matching services, computerized databases and specialty magazines and books list more opportunities presently available. Such resources are better targeted to qualified job candidates, and match experience with the jobs available. Word of mouth or having a friend or relative tell of a job is also a help.

The newspaper is a good idea if you are planning to move to a different location and need job information about that area. Just be sure to send resumes to respective employers a few months before, indicating the time you will be in town for an interview. This will eliminate any need for the company to advertise in addition to keeping information on record in case the job reopens or a different one comes along. Employers may worry that plans for moving may not be definite, so be all set with details and settle the job last.

Most importantly, have a resume that highlights your experience and education, not your career objectives. It is impossible to frame a career around all qualifications. They might pertain to many jobs, and scare an employer off if the projected goal is too demanding.

Graduates don't have to know a detailed plan of their career to be successful. Very prosperous people have an average of 18 jobs before finding their niche and making a fortune. Jobs are for experience too, test the waters before settling down. Sometimes a new field may introduced while working on something else. Rome was not built in a day. First find out what doesn't work before what does, just eliminate all possibilities.

If that job takes a while to surface, don't panic. It may take a few years of hard toiling before one can be the next Donald Trump.

Bryant ROTC Win "Bryant Ball"

by CDT Jeff Giroux

Bryant cadets upset Providence College and Brown cadets at the first annual "Bryant Ball" Championships held Friday 30 April 1993. Bryant came out strong against the numerically superior Providence team to win 6-1. Following the rival match was friendly games pitting the Junior year ROTC cadets against the Seniors and Cadre.

Bryant Ball is an invention of the Bryant ROTC department. The aggressive, fast-paced game is a mixture of Rugby, Soccer and Tag-football.

Bryant faced a PC team packed with numerous athletes. Among those athletes were an all-American Rugby player and a first string Brown football player. However, well thought strategies and fierce playing prevailed with Bryant cadets as victors. Good luck next year PC!

Water:

Use it, don't abuse it this summer

The grass looks parched. The car is dirty. The garden is dying for a drink. And the flowers are beginning to droop. These are all classic scenes from the summer months in New England. What's the solution to scorched vegetation and filthy cars? Water use, of course, but not water abuse. Because Mother Nature demands more water in heated times, outdoor water use during June, July, and August can soar to as much as half the total yearly water use. That compares to only 5 percent water use in the winter months!

The problem in the summer months is not that we use water or what we use the water for. The problem is that we often use much more water than we actually need. Everytime a hose lies running in the gutter, or a sprinkler overwaters the lawn (and driveway!), we're wasting our clean water supply.

There are many simple things you can do this summer to reduce the amount of water you waste at home.

First things first: don't overwater your lawn. Most lawns only require one inch of water each week. That includes both rainfall and supplemental watering. If it rains a lot in one week, chances are you don't need to drag out the hose. If you are not sure how much water the lawn received, check to see if the top inch of soil is damp or dry. Damp soil does not need additional watering.

The time of day and weather conditions should also affect your decision to water the lawn. If you determine your lawn does need watering, it is best to water it before 9 AM or after 9 PM to avoid excess evaporation and sunburned grass from the sun's intensive mid-day rays. Avoid watering on a windy, rainy, or very hot day. The weather will only defeat the purpose.

When using a sprinkler, be sure to aim it only at the lawn, not the street or driveway. And keep in mind that the most effective way to water shrubbery and gardens is through a slow trickle at the roots, not a quick splash over the tops of the leaves.

Another way to reduce the amount of water you need to feed your yard is to supplement the grass with a variety of shrubs, ground cover, wild flowers, and trees. They generally require less water and are easier to maintain than grass. Apply mulch around flowers, gardens, and other yard plants to reduce the evaporation of water from the topsoil.

Watering the lawn is just one of the yard chores in which we allow too much water to be wasted. Perhaps the simplest thing you can do to reduce the amount of water you waste in your yard this summer is never leave a hose running unnecessarily. When washing your car, use a shutoff nozzle while soaping the car. And always use a broom instead of a hose to clean the sidewalk.

Conserving our fresh water supply helps eliminate the need for projects that harm the environment and adversely impact waterways like Rhode Island's precious Narragansett Bay. The little things you do in your own yard added to the same wasteful things your neighbors do, collectively have a great impact on the overall environment. People often say education starts at home. When it comes to water conservation — particularly during the hot summer months — this couldn't be more true.

Do your part this summer and make a difference. Avoiding overusing water doesn't take a lot of effort, but it makes a world of difference.

EARTHwise has been brought to you this semester as a collaborative effort of The Archway and Save The Bay, Rhode Island's leading environmental organization. For more information about water quality issues and ideas of how you can protect the environment, contact Save The Bay at (401) 272-3540.

It's Going to be a Bumpy Ride...

by Ethan Allen
Journalism Student

Have you ever wondered what it would feel like to careen at speeds exceeding 60 miles per hour over rugged terrain while dodging road hazards and other moving obstacles? If you don't know someone who participates in cross-country auto racing, just ask anyone who commutes to Bryant from points south via Route 6 to 295.

Over the past several years Route 6 has fallen into a state of serious disrepair. The frost heaves and pot holes, coupled with the high-speed high-volume traffic, have created hazardous driving conditions for motorists. So what does the RI Department of Transportation (RIDOT) plan to do about this?

RIDOT engineer Ivan McTaggart stresses that rather than a quick fix, the entire road needs "to be brought up to current engineering standards."

Massive reconstruction of the section of Route 6 stretching from the Connecticut border to the Route 295 on-ramp will begin somewhere around 1998. Road crews will tear up existing pavement, install new drainage, repave the entire section, and widen it in parts. The project is expected to take anywhere from five to ten years and bears an estimated price tag of $70 million.

The cost is not what worries Karen Salvatore of DOT Watch, an organization dedicated to scrutinizing RIDOT projects. Her concerns rest with the potential environmental impact. Although RIDOT maintains there will be minimal filling of wetlands, DOT Watch is more concerned with "non-point source pollution."

Non-point source pollution consists of little pieces of car tires and particles of exhaust deposited on the road as cars pass by. The next rainfall then washes the toxins off the road and, in the case of the stretch of Route 6 running through the Scituate Reservoir, right into a large supply of drinking water.

Wider roads, Mrs. Salvatore argues, "encourages more traffic, which encourages more pollution over our water supply," a key element in the decision to scrap the enormous I-84 venture nearly ten years ago.

The fact that something needs to be done remains undisputed. However, Mrs. Salvatore maintains that widening the road is not the answer. "We already have more pavement per square mile than any other state," she said. "The state's time would be better put to use developing an environmentally friendly mass transit system," and implementing what she calls "traffic calming" techniques which would slow the speed of individual cars while cutting overall travel time through efficient traffic control.

Many people will be watching to see if the project gets under way and whether or not it will be successful. One fact still remains, however. Until something is done, commuters will have to strap themselves in and get ready for Rhode Island's very own Grand Prix.

Hey! How was everyone's Spring Weekend? The sisters had a lot of fun. It was great to see Chiquita again.

I'm happy to say this is my last Greek News of the semester. I'm sure everyone is looking forward to finals. Good luck! Congratulations to all the seniors graduating and good luck to those who are still looking for jobs. We'll miss you!

In awards this week: S.O.T.W-Swist, SPACE-Rufer, and SIS-Skribbles.

Quotes of the week are: Wrong place, wrong time. Give it up. Sorry to hear about the concert, NOT! Drink it or dump it.

Finally, I hope everyone has a great summer and makes lots of money.

Lisa M. Lucchesi
Archway Staff Writer

The Archway has become what it is because of the dedication of many people. These people have continually devoted all their time and energy to the paper. Without an exception, these people have truly gone above and beyond the call of duty and have put their hearts and souls into everything they have done.

Needless to say, The Archway office is going to be very different and very desolate when several of our fellow staffers graduate. A heartfelt thanks goes out to all of you; Cindy, Marybeth, Erika, Kelly, Billie-Jean and Marguerite. Good luck in all your endeavors. You have proved time and time again that you are destined to succeed!

So, from myself, Aziz, and the rest of the staff - thank you, thank you, thank you! We will miss you greatly!

"Alone in space, alone in its life-supporting systems, powered by inconceivable energies, mediating them to us through the most delicate adjustments, wayward, unlikely, unpredictable, but nourishing, enlivening, and enriching in the largest degree - is this not a precious home for all of us earthlings? Is it not worth our love? Does it not deserve all the inventiveness and courage and generosity of which we are capable to preserve it from degradation and destruction and, by doing so, to secure our own survival?" -Barbara Ward and Rene Dubos

Well this is it. The end of the year and the end of my role in the Bryant Environmental Action Club. You should know what I've discovered in these last three years. When you believe in something that is important to you, and important to people in general, you acquire an undying determination to pursue your beliefs. It's not enough to sit back and gripe about something in a passive fashion - get up, do something about it, be active.

Although things were difficult and frustrating from time to time, I'm confident that we did make a difference. Bryant now has full scale recycling; We've helped put pressure on the government to Save the Bay; We've told Clinton we want higher fuel efficiency standards; Our school was recognized as one of the most environmentally friendly campuses; And, above all, we've heightened awareness about environmental problems.

Thank you to all the members of the club - you helped make it all happen. Good luck to Stacey, Meagen, Brenda and Kristen for a successful year with a new beginning. You will continue to make a difference in this world. Thank you to Doug Levin who has been our faithful advisor since the beginning. He has continued to influence his students and pursue having an environmental minor at Bryant.

BRYCOL

by Kathy Krason

Hi everyone! BRYCOL hopes everyone had a great Spring Weekend. We would like to thank all those who enjoyed the ice cream at the track, thanks for your support. Also the board of directors would like to thank one of the board of directors for putting the couch to good use.

Tupper's during finals will have a special: if you purchase a large pizza with one topping, you will receive a small salad or two medium drinks for free (while supplies last).

If you are craving a late night snack while studying for finals, call the Country Comfort to satisfy your hunger. See you at the Comfort!

College Republicans

by Kevin J. Pishkin

Another Spring Weekend has come and gone. Once again, Bryant

College students have acted maturely, as future business leaders of America, and desecrated the campus in litter. That is always a sure sign that we have matured here as adults.

The year itself, (1992-93), is over. It has been a busy one, and a highly publicized one. This has been the year of the "trials," as well as the year of "chaos." From the King Trial, to the standoff in Waco, Texas, this has truly been a year that no one will forget. Nor will the College Republicans.

With the final days upon us, there has been little to comment or act upon. However, the College Republicans are already looking ahead to September for an ever-aggressive recruiting campaign into our highly elite organization. Everybody wants in, and we love it.

In leaving the community for the summer, we would like to extend thanks to all who have helped us get off the ground this year. A special thanks goes out to all administrators who supported us this academic year, especially our new advisors.

The voice of reason is growing. Finally as we pack our bags for another year, we leave everyone with a few thoughts:

1.) The only message sent out from the King Verdict is that Police Dept's hands are tied in a profession that needs both hands free.

2.) The end to the Waco standoff was inevitable. Stop blaming the FBI.

3.) Mollicone and Hightower were as guilty as you can get.

4.) The Presidential Election was fixed. We demand a recount!

And finally, our favorite motto: "Why be politically correct, when you can just be right?"

Until next year Bryant College. Bye.

Even as the year was winding down, the Brothers were gearing up for Spring Weekend. On Wednesday, Brothers attended the Greek Banquet and enjoyed the festivities at the Spaghetti Warehouse. Levity and Mirth was held on the floor on Thursday. On Friday, Brothers enjoyed the hospitality of the townhouses and the floor. On Saturday, Brothers visited the track, enjoyed the band and other activities throughout the day and night. On Sunday, Brothers regained their strength and stamina and started to focus on getting out of here.

In sports, soccer lost in the playoffs to International, but we will return strong next year. After the last softball game there was only a single casualty— Marcel, how's your knee?

Quotes of the week: "It's too personal," "It's a Tucker, John," and "Why did you call me?"

Finally, good luck on exams. We'll see you next year.

IFC Public Relations

It's been a few weeks since there has been a column, but it's back. This past week was a great time in Providence for those who attended the Greek Banquet. Another Spring Weekend has come and gone and except for a lack of sleep, most people have recovered nicely from their weekend endeavors. We would like to thank SPB for a great job setting up the entire weekend and all the organizations which participated.

Also, we would like to thank Erik Gaspar of GAMMA and his co-workers for providing an alternative from the Saturday night festivities, with "Bryant's Best." This program featured local foods from various vendors, with the proceeds going to Special Olympics. Good luck to everyone next week during finals, and to all seniors looking for jobs. See everyone next semester.

P.S. - Beer Garden, great idea.

Karate Club

by Brett Sandman

We are going to have informal classes through the end of the semester and during the final exam period. Please make an effort to stop by the dojo just to pay a visit or to release some stress from preparing for your final exams. Remember that Karate should not get in the way of your studying. It should help you to study better, especially when preparing for the final exam period.

We want to see the members of our public relations team some time before the end of the semester because we have something for the faculty and the administration in the works. Since new positions were just assigned, we want to get off to a good start. We are going to need a lot of effort to keep Bryant Karate going, especially during the next semester.

We will be doing a demonstration for the Special Olympics on May 8. The more members that show up for this demonstration, the better impression we will make on the athletes and the audiences.

Bryant summer Karate will begin on the first Tuesday of June. We have a roster for the club so we should be able to get a few car-pools together before the semester ends.

Thank you to everyone who attended the Lincoln Woods trip. I heard it was a lot of fun and most of the club attended the trip. Unfortunately some of us got overwhelmed with projects and things to do but we will be there for the next one. Everyone should have had a fun Spring Weekend '93 and if you did, good for you!

Good luck on your final exams and any other things that your classes require. We hope everyone has a fun and safe summer and that we will see you during Bryant summer Karate or at one of the tournaments over the vacation! Come to class for information about the tournaments and anything else that you want to know of. BKKA!

Phi Kappa Sigma

by Dan Bliss

Howdy. A fun time was had by all during Spring Week, although I am stating this by word of mouth since I am currently suffering from CRS. Unfortunately, it turned out to be much too eventful for the Greek community. But, most of the brothers made it to La-La Land.

Me and Madson saw people running in the fields. Also, me and Goon had a long talk with Public Safety out in the brush. Not to mention we spent Saturday afternoon dodging the ROTC. Fogs and Heat got into a slap fight, or was it Typhoon and Earthquake. Same difference. We all spent the weekend getting Wardy confused with a 150 pound lobster. Heat, after meeting a staircase last weekend, met an Oak tree this weekend. BJ never made it out of his bed Friday, and neither did Chet. Marcos forgot how to speak Spanish. And finally, Ram renewed old ties with a fyrebocks.

Congrats go out to Hammer for getting a job. To the rest of the seniors, remember, McDonalds doesn't pay that bad. And speaking of jobs, Ben finally got one; Hair Club President.

In conclusion, I would like to congratulate Scott from KT for getting invited to the junior prom with his niece. Cheerio.

First off, we'd like to announce that Walass had a great time at the junior prom.... Spring Weekend was no comparison. We'd like to thank everyone involved in setting it up. A special thanks goes to the yellowmen who made the campus gorgeous immediately after the bomb was dropped. Just one thing, no more lawn mowing at 7:30 outside my window.

Well, what else can be said about Spring Weekend? You forget what you want to remember and remember what you want to forget.

ARA made a bundle on the beer garden (a.k.a. kegs confiscated over the year). I'm glad to see kegs are once again legal.

In KT-LZ sports, softball rolled on to the playoffs with a 8-7 victory over the Ginny's floor. Fraz led the way with a 3 for 3 day and brilliant defense at third base.

I'd like to wish Steve, Gary, Plourde, Amon, Jim, Mike, and especially Ray and Bob, the best of luck in the future. You guys are the best, and living proof that brotherhood is forever. You know where to send your donations.

By the way Jota, if you are going to move out of your room, you might want to tell us so we can find you.

With that, I bid you farewell. Good luck on finals and have a great summer.

Hello everyone! Well I hope you all had a great weekend. The sisters had another wonderful Spring Weekend. The weather was beautiful and on Thursday, some decided to take an academic holiday and enjoy it. All the sisters who went to TKE's pig roast had a good time. Other sisters hung out in the quad and played. Did anyone see the display in Dorm 2? It was rather amusing. That night was fun and everywhere you went you seemed to lose someone.

Friday was another great day. Ruth gave us a scare but we are glad you're okay. We would like to thank Sig Ep for our get together on Friday (well almost). PS was rather

This week should be fun for the sisters. Many events are going on and everyone is looking forward to the last sister's gathering. All the sisters who were invited to Sig Ep's formal are excited. How many of our sisters are going? Good luck to everyone on finals. This is my last greek news for the semester so we would like to wish the graduating seniors the best of luck. APK/PSS! What an interesting Spring Week it was. Our softball season ended a little earlier than we would have liked, but it happens. As always it was good to see our alumni visit. Shoe-Bagger, Opus, Schrubber, Pookie, NoCard, and J-Dub always seem to have a good time.

The school year is coming to an end, as this is the last week of classes and finals start May 10th. A reminder to all clubs and organizations to register with Student Activities if you have not done so already.

As asked for by the students, there will be another Meet the Prez, on Thursday May 6th, from 3:45 until 5:30. During this time, Dr. William E. Trueheart will discuss any complaints or concerns you may have concerning Bryant College.

Congratulations to "United We Stand" a new organization on campus which recently had their constitution passed during the last senate meeting.

Thanks to all the individuals that participated in the dunk tank during Spring Weekend and a special thanks to Adrienne who made it happen.

The Student Senate would like to congratulate the Student Programming Board on a fabulous Spring Weekend. Congratulations also should go out to Laura Barret and Stacey Parron for being selected as Co-Leaders of the Month for April. Through their hard work and dedication, they were able to provide Bryant College with a sensational Spring Weekend.

This Saturday, Bryant College will be hosting Special Olympics Saturday out at the track. If you would like to volunteer, contact Jennie Rice or the Student Senate Office.

Instead of hotdogs and hamburgers for the Senate picnic, Rob has decided to go with Swanson's frozen dinners, put your order in ASAP, many dishes to choose from.

Good luck on finals!

Congratulations to Laura and Stacey for a great job with Spring Weekend. It was very successful and the weather certainly helped.

Thanks to Rob, Steph, Giuliana, and Faith for a great job this year.

And good luck to the next executive board, Steph, Jill, Pam, and Mike.

We also have three new voting members to congratulate, Bob Adams, Eric Booth, and Kristen Burns. And congratulations to all our new chairpersons. Have a great summer!

Spring Weekend '93 has come and gone but the stories still remain. Friday morning at 6am sharp, brothers awoke, some more easily than others, to kick off the weekend. On Friday and Saturday afternoon, some brothers traveled far away and returned that night for a hopping time at M-3.

Congrats to Russo, Eddie, and Stretch who took the crown undefeated in DKE's three on three tournament. In TEP sports, well there were none, next subject.

We're coming down to the last weeks of classes and finals so all you seniors out there, make your last days here memorable. Until next time.

Hey Theta! This week has been a lot of fun. Spring Weekend is in the past, but that is no reason to stop all the fun in the sun. The bands and barbecue were great and the weather was beautiful. The excitement all started on Wednesday with Kirby's happy hour. A lot of fun was had.

On Thursday was the TKE pig roast which was fantastic! It was a great time until I saw those eyes and teeth peering out at me. The pig was good I heard, but I was afraid to slice off a bite of the charcoaled animal.

The gatherings at D, G, and L block, that followed the days of fun in the sun were fabulous. The townhouses were packed and everyone was entertained to say the least. There were many injured Theta sisters this week, but nothing fatal. Margo I hope you know better than to be jumping over barbed wire fences, and Missy stay clear of those flying maple syrup bombs! The sun is out to stay and there is no excuse for anyone to have less than a Caribbean tan! Tara, a little sunblock would be nice! I'll be closing with one little bit of humor: Toni Anne and Cindy, watch out for those pop-fly baseballs.

The quotes of the week are: "Dexx, I think I see another ticket," "Circle Dream is always a checkpoint," "Does anyone have a staple remover?" "Goose, is that stamp still there?" "Beta definitely has a thing for condiments!" "Mazda, I challenge you," and "It's coming out my eyes!" Lata Theta!

Track Teams End Season on High Notes

Pam Barry
Archway Sports Writer

The women's track team had an excellent ending to their season at the WPI Invitational this past weekend. After a disappointing Tri-States, the girls pulled together for a strong second place win out of fourteen competing schools.

"We did very well this weekend. It was a nice way to finish the season. We didn't expect much but everyone contributed and did a great job," said Coach Charlie Mandeville.

The girls came home with several medals this weekend. The 4x100 relay team of Megan Davis, Lisa Wainwright, Mary Gates, and Melissa Roberts, set a new school record, again. Last week, the girls broke the old record of 54.6 with a run of 53.9. This week the girls improved even more with a time of 53.65.

Roberts also broke the school record in the 400 hurdles. She finished in second place with a time of 67.7.

The 4x400 relay team finished fourth with a time of 4:26.7, the best for the school since 1987. The runners were Jessica Duval, Karen Groebel, Jody Russo and Roberts.

In the half-mile, Duval finished fifth. In the 3000m, Mandy Lapierre placed second and Heather Cronce placed third.

Megan McInerney placed second in the shot and discus and sixth in the hammer. In the high jump, BJ Kruzel placed fifth and Lapierre finished sixth.

In the triple jump, Heather Brown placed second and Jennifer Hagen placed fourth. This competition was the first time Hagen got over 30' with an impressive 31'2" jump.

"The meet was a nice ending to a great season. We had expected to do better in the Tri-States, but this meet made us feel good and end on a good note," said Mandeville. "The team next year will basically be the same so we should be very strong. The only senior we are losing is Chris Booth. She was dedicated, hard-working, and a real inspiration. We will surely miss her."

The women had a very strong season this year. Next year should find them strong again with almost all the same athletes and some new freshmen. Captains will remain Davis and Brown for the next season.

The men's track team did not fare as well. Although finishing third in competition, sophomore Adam Antonik suffered broken ribs in a fall during his pole vaulting event. This fall puts Antonik out of competing in the ECAC where he would have ran a leg of the 4x100m relay.

"All in all we did have a good season, though," said senior Kevin Nelson. "They should have a good team next year while losing only three seniors."

Next year will find the team without the three captains: Nelson, Jamie Noble, and Marty McNulty all of who were big assets to the team's excellence this season.

Softball Looks To Next Season

Angelo Corradino
Archway Sports Writer

The women's softball team went 5-6 last week as they ended their 1993 season. Overall the lady Indians were 17-24 and 6-12 in the NE-10.

On Tuesday, the team split a double header with CW Post from Long Island, New York. In game one, Post jumped out to a 3-0 lead and Bryant was able to come back and tie the game - sending it into extra innings. Post then exploded for four runs in the eighth and came away with a win 7-3.

The lady Indians were able to bounce back and take an early 3-0 lead in game two. Bryant was able to hold on and win the game.

Rhode Island College was in town on Monday and Bryant swept their double header, winning game one 11-5 and game two 16-1.

On Sunday the team dropped two to Quinnipiac in their final conference games of the season.

In game one Quinnipiac had a 3-0 lead and the lady Indians were able to come back once again. Quinnipiac was able to get an RBI single in the top of the 11th inning to win the game 4-3.

Despite the loss, sophomore Jen Flanigan pitched all eleven innings and had a good outing.

In game two, errors cost the lady Indians a victory as they lost 7-3.

The team traveled to UMASS/

Lowell on Friday and split their double header. They lost game one 12-8 and won game two 9-3.

The lady Indians shutout U M A S S / Dartmouth 6-0 on Thursday in a rare single game day.

Last Wednesday, the team traveled to AIC and were swept by the team ranked 13th in the nation.

The lady Indians are lead at the plate by Wendy Powell batting a .394; Heather Lopes .382; Amy Papamechail .342; and Jayna Fontaine .339.

Powell and Lopes also lead the team in stolen bases with 15 and 20 respectively.

On the mound, Flanigan is 7-13 and Lauren Smolinsky is 7-10.

"It went well, we could have done a little better," Flanigan stated when asked about the season. "But, we have a young team and hopefully it will help in the future."

The team is young and they have high expectations for next season.

"We have a lot to look forward to," Kim Potrzebowski said. "Our record (this year) doesn't give justice to how hard we worked. Next year, if we keep up the hard work, it will."

The team played the University of New Haven yesterday but, results were too late for this publication.

Open Forum for Concerned Athletes!

Meet the new Athletic Director,

Angelo Corradino

"We have talented athletes at Bryant. You can tell you have moved from Division 3 to Division 2. The staff is great, energetic and supportive of their players," Dr. Linda Hackett said about her first impressions of Bryant.

Dr. Hackett took office as Athletic Director on April 8th and has been busy ever since. If you want to find Dr. Hackett, just head down to the athletic fields during NE-10 competition and you will see her watching the games and talking to the fans which have taken up a major part of her time here.

From going to sporting events to meeting athletes, Dr. Hackett has become very involved in Bryant Athletics.

However, Dr. Hackett also believes Bryant should continue to have a strong club system. "Clubs give every member a chance to play. On a varsity team, you might have to sit out if there are more talented athletes on the team," Dr. Hackett added.

Athletics at a college should consist of three areas: varsity sports, club sports, and intramurals, according to Dr. Hackett. She hopes to build these areas to get the students more involved on campus.

Another important area for athletes, according to Hackett, is the classroom. "Athletes have to realize that academics come first," Hackett said. "But, when push comes to shove, we (athletics) have to be the first to give."

According to Hackett, Excellence in academics and athletics are "easily achievable." "It seems that the athletes do better in the classroom during their season. It's probably because they can learn to manage their time better," Hackett added.

"They are good users of time when they are busy."

Dr. Hackett's biggest area of concern is getting the word out on the status of the athletic teams. She wants to generate more interest and peer involvement at sporting events because she feels support of athletes is very important.

"It is the head coach's job to make a solid push for promotions," Hackett added. "Every season has its opportunity. They know when their key games - key events are; they should build this as their best pearl."

One way to get more students involved is to use The Archway. "I came from a school where you were not sure if the newspaper was going to come out. To come here and see the coverage by The Archway really makes a difference," Hackett added.

Another way Hackett wants to help promote the athletic department is through Midnight Madness, an open practice held on midnight of the first official day of practice. This is an event, usually held for basketball, and is a way for students to get to know the teams representing their school.

Awarding the athletes for their achievements is important to Hackett. "Anything is possible; viable support for excellence could be achieved," Hackett added.

Hackett is also working on getting actual varsity letters to replace the certificates given to the athletes every year. Her first few weeks here have been busy, but Hackett is glad she came when she did.

"The decision to come before the year ended was a good decision. I got to know the athletic department and the people involved before they went home for the summer," Hackett concluded.

Men's Tennis Ends Season With A Bang

by Paul Francis and Roman Pavlik
Tennis Co-Captains

The men's tennis team captivated their dream season, finishing fifth at the New England's and sweeping the conference awards.

Concluding another strenuous weekend of tennis, Bryant was the highest finishing of Division II and III schools in the tournament held at The University of Connecticut.

On the team's recent performance, Coach Jeff Bullett stated, "Going into the tournament, emotions were high, and the team knew that we would win some matches against the Division I schools. However, finishing fifth was another dream for the squad."

Bullett added, "I am at a loss of words. Being the best in Division II and III was the ultimate goal and it is a great accomplishment for everyone on the team."

Highest honors of the weekend, however, go to sophomore Roman Pavlik and freshman Jason Wall. Pavlik was once again crowned tournament champion. This time before a field of 22 Division I, II, and III schools, Bryant's ace also teamed up with Jason Wall to defeat top ranked Hartford for the doubles title.

En route to the final, Pavlik and Wall posted victories over Division I superpowers UCONN, Northeastern, and Hartford.

Strong performances in singles came from Wall, sophomores Paul Francis, Alessandro Barnabo, Steve Zinck and freshmen Andy Lipsky. In doubles, Francis paired up with freshman Brian Fries to beat Babson in three sets. Another victory was picked up by the duo of Barnabo and sophomore Tom Wall.

Upon returning from their roadtrip, more good news awaited the Bryant team. The squad's new-comer, Jeff Bullett, received NE-10 Coach of the year. Hearing the news, Jeff said, "I have always believed that hard work and dedication pay off. However, the true recognition belongs to the players who listened to what I had to say and improved each step of the way."

Joining him on the victory platform was Pavlik, who for the second consecutive year, received NE-10 player of the year award, hands down.

Bullett said, "From the beginning, I had no doubt that Roman would achieve a second straight (NE-10 player of the year) award."

"This kid has a real special tennis ability and from what I've seen in recent years, he is one of the best in the country," Bullett added.

Making it a full sweep for Bryant was newly voted NE-10 Rookie of the year, Jason Wall. "Jason is as consistent as they come. This, coupled with his unbelievable mental toughness makes him very difficult to beat. He truly is the best rookie in the conference," said Bullett.

"Great news for Bryant sports fans, bad however for opposing NE-10 colleges and opponents. A team consisting of all sophomores and freshmen will be returning to match this year's performance," remarked Francis.

Valvano Leaves A Legacy to Be Remembered

"Like I care about that screen right now, huh? I got tumors all over my body. I'm worried about some guy in the back going 30 seconds?"

That is one of my last memories of Jim Valvano, one of my last and best memories. What's being said here?

This quote came from his acceptance speech for the Arthur Ashe Courage Award during the ESPY's in March. He was talking to the guy on the TelePrompster who was telling him he only had 30 seconds left to talk.

If you missed this awards ceremony, you missed one of the most moving speeches in the history of sports. His acceptance speech seemed to last forever. But, that wasn't long enough either. Through this speech, you saw how much Jimmy Vee affected the sports world and couldn't imagine it without him.

Well, the time has come to not only imagine it without him, but to live it without him; Jim Valvano is no longer with us. He lost his long battle with cancer and passed away last Wednesday at the age of 47.

The ESPY awards ceremony showed the world why it would not be the same without Valvano. He was a colorful character you couldn't help but like.

One of my first memories of Valvano was when he ran out on the court after his 1983 N.C. State team

On Deck

Angelo Corradino
Archway Sports Writer

won the NCAA championships.

After the winning basket, Valvano was so moved he ran on the court looking for someone to hug. He just wanted to share his excitement with someone that his team was the national champions - a goal he longed to accomplish.

As Vee's career continued, he was rocked with a scandal that forced him to leave the coaching ranks for television and start a new life as a commentator for ABC and ESPN. This was a bit different for Vee, but he brought his love of the game to the audience for all to see and hear. He had a long and promising career in broadcasting that was unfortunately cut short.

For the reasons above, he was selected, and the deserving, recipient of the Arthur Ashe Courage award. The long emotional acceptance speech he gave showed the sports world all his emotion and strength.

Physically he was very weak. Fellow commentator and close friend, Dick Vitale, had to help him up the stairs. Emotionally he was as strong as an ox. The man who brought life to the basketball court was not about to let cancer get him down.

In his speech, he talked about his life and character; how important it was to him to be loved and to love other people.

That's what made him special. No matter what happened to him he knew there was always a light at the end of the tunnel. Even as that light got dimmer, he still acted the same and went on with his normal life.

The cancer eventually forced him to retire from commenting, but not after one last try.

Then in February, N.C. State held a reunion for their 1983 championship team and for the first time since being diagnosed with cancer, you saw the pain leave Vee's face. "What cancer can't take is my mind, my heart, and my soul," Vee said with enthusiasm.

He obviously knew as long as he believed in himself, he could accomplish anything; he was not going to die without giving 110% every day.

Vee kept his spirit up through his last few days. Even when his doctors showed him the black spot on his x-rays that would eventually take his life, he was cheerful. "You forgot to use the flash," he remarked.

Jim Valvano was a great man who left his mark on the sports world; college basketball will never be the same. There will never be another like him.

Athlete OF THE WEEK

Wendy Powell and Heather Lopes

This week's Co-Athletes of the Week are Wendy Powell and Heather Lopes of the women's softball team. Powell batted .410 for the week with 14 runs scored, seven RBIs, and 8-8 in stolen bases.

Lopes batted .455 for the week, scored 12 runs, 5 RBIs, was 6-7 in stolen bases, and had five doubles.
