Bob Gardner: Mixing Experience With Goodwill

by Linda Minnis

Enthusiasm is a catchy thing. After interviewing the new campus security chief, Mr. Gardner, I am convinced that his enthusiasm and concern for the welfare of Bryant College and its students will soon be apparent.

A policeman for 15 years in Inglewood, California, a suburb of Los Angeles, he worked through the ranks from general police patrol, traffic control, and investigation to bank robberies and homicide. Mr. Gardner attended various colleges and seminars in all these subjects. Interestingly enough, Chief Gardner found it necessary to use his gun only once in his career. He feels that by employing the correct precautions and common sense in law enforcement, problems are avoided. "Treat others as you would like to be treated, and you get a lot of cooperation." This is his prevalent philosophy.

Currently, student patrol officers are attending training sessions conducted by Chief Gardner. He wants to get rid of the feeling that security is here to police or harass students. "We are here to help and for the security of the Bryant College student." A procedure manual has been distributed to all student patrol officers. The manual includes written rules and regulations, principles of organization, ethics, obligations of an enforcement officer, first aid, and minor fire fighting.

Trying to create a non-police image of service and security becomes difficult in the area of traffic regulation. In this direction, policing is necessary to safeguard the rights and convenience of the campus community.

There are presently four full-time sergeants employed. One is available seven days a week, 24 hours a day for round-the-clock security control.

Previously, the M & S Security Force, a contracted company, had been lacking what

Radio Station Struggles Toward Airborne Status

by John Orrell

Top on the list of controversial subjects this fall has been the fate of Bryant's FM radio station, an organization which has been in the making for quite some time. Many students have become curious as to why their station, published a year ago as a near reality, has not become airborne. The answers follow. The delay in progress is due substantially to a grievance filed to the Federal Communications Commission by Television Station WTEV, Channel 5. Channel 5 operates on a signal between 82 and 88 megahertz. The FM educational band is located between 88 and 92 megahertz. Because tuners on television sets, particularly older models, are not very selective, WTEV alleges that they will pick up the FM radio signals, thereby creating a harsh effect on TV reception. However, any possible interference created would be limited to much less than a quarter mile radius of the FM

Transmitter. (There is only one MODERN home within the 1325 feet of the FM site at 1100 feet plus.) WTEV has filed objections to the FCC on requests by Bryant to operate the FM Station which appeared to be so much a reality one year ago. To date members of the Bryant Radio Board of Directors, Dr. Fullerton and others have tried to effect negotiations with WTEV.

The present outlook though, is not so bleak. Dr. Barry Fullerton, the Vice President for Student Affairs, is actively pursuing the matter on an executive level.

A future airtime date is presently unavailable; however, there is rising optimism that Bryant Radio will be operating this semester.

In the meantime, there are plans for immediate broadcast throughout the Bryant Unistructure and possibly the dorm and other campus areas of student concentration. There are openings in all departments of Radio Station work which must be filled at once. Interested students are urged to attend general meetings held each Tuesday afternoon at 3 p.m. in the room adjacent to the commuter lounge on the upper level of the Unistructure. PLEASE watch for more articles in the ARCHWAY each week.

Mr. Gardner's program now includes. The persons employed by M & S had no familiarity with campus problems or the general area. Through the current training program, Bryant is assured a more personal and specialized security force designed with the safety of the individual as its basic premise.

Weeknight Activities

In the past, there has been a lack of week-night activities available to students on campus. This year, the Coffee House offers us a change of pace. The Coffee House is a place where Bryant students who are musically inclined can go any night of the week and join in a jam session with other students who are into music. There is a stereo system set up in the Coffee House—just in case nobody's in the mood for jamming. A TV ping-pong game is also available for students' use. It's just like one of the games in the Game Room in the Unstructure and it's there for all you electric game freaks. There's also a color television in the Coffee House where you can watch your favorite shows.

Country Comfort has a lot to offer to the students of Bryant College. Not only is it open every night during the week, but it presents live entertainment every Friday and Saturday night during the school year.

The Coffee House is a non-profit student service operating on a mere $225 a month. Its possibilities are unlimited. So quit complaining about having nothing to do and drop down to Country Comfort. You'll probably dig it!!!

To the Bryant Community: Dear Editor,

This is to inform my former colleagues in the faculty, administration, staff, and student body that I have accepted the position of Special Assistant to the Chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities in Washington, D.C. My duties involve congressional relations and a number of special assignments.

The Endowment makes grants and awards fellowships in the broad area of humanities. It is an organization similar to the National Science Foundation which funds projects in the scientific area.

After five years of absence from Washington, it is good to be back. However, I greatly miss Bryant College and the many wonderful people who make up the college community. You have my best wishes for a successful and rewarding academic year.

My office address is the National Endowment for the Humanities, 806 15th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20506, telephone (202) 382-6037, and my home address is 824 New Hampshire Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037, telephone (202) 337-3814. If any of you come to Washington, it would be a pleasure to see you.

Sincerely,

Dear Big Brothers and Sisters:

Dear Editor,

Now that Freshman Orientation is over and the semester is well underway, I would like to urge all big brothers and sisters to contact each one of their little brothers and sisters. If you are having problems locating these people, please contact Delta Roaf (232-0054) or myself (232-0030) for assistance.

To those of you who have already attempted to locate their individuals, I thank you. Keep up the good work.

Sincerely,

THIS CONCERNS YOU

Dear Editor,

September 26 could become one of the most important days for the student body in Bryant's recent history. On this day, all of you will be asked to come out and vote for those people who will represent you and your ideas in the following year. The Student Senate is the representative body of all day students, dormitory students, fraternities, sororities, and independents. Six Senators from each class will be elected. It would be extremely beneficial to all students if each segment were represented. I ask everyone to put aside any grudges they have had in the past and come together as a united body. Only in this way will the student voice be truly listened to.

Last semester, many changes took place. A foundation has been created and the potential is there. This year's Senate can be instrumental in invoking many more desired changes for the Student Body, but it will necessitate that students take an active part as candidates and as concerned students. September 26 is your first opportunity.

MANAGEMENT PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT ANNOUNCES NEW OFFERINGS

by Martin J. Minnaugh

This fall, the Management/Psychology Department is introducing several new courses to enable the management student to cope with new trends in business and industry. These courses are offered in the management major concentrations of General Management, Organizational Behavior, and Management Analysis and Computer Systems. While designed for the management major, they are open to all students—the only restriction being completion of prerequisite courses, if any.

The major thrust of these new courses, according to Stewart Yorks, Chairman of the Management/Psychology Department, is to meet new specialized demands in the management field. Among the examples Mr. Yorks cited were courses in Labor Relations (Mg. 254), Labor Problems (Mg. 351), and Group Communications and Organizational Behavior (Mg. 357), all dealing with manager-employee relations. A course in Safety Management (Mg. 355), has been added to acquaint the student with problems arising from the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970.

Mr. Yorks stated that emphasis will be placed on close student-instructor relations and urged students to seek out instructors in the Management/Psychology Department for counseling and program planning. He stated that such a counseling situation, if developed, could be extended into independent study or work-study programs. Both are being discussed as future possibilities for certain courses. For the present, the courses mentioned will be taught in the general lecture format, although audio-visual systems will be utilized whenever possible. Also, plans call for lectures by figures from business and industry. Mr. Yorks pointed out that the latter is already being done to a degree by the Department's use of outside business as part-time instructors.

Any student desiring further information should see Mr. Yorks in the Evening Division Office or any instructor in Management in his faculty office.

Grand Funk: Getting Better?

By Bruce Meyer

Sometimes it is very hard to pin down just what it is about a given rock band that makes it popular. Popularity does not, of course, require good music.

Until recently, it was hard to tell what it was about Grand Funk Railroad, now known simply as Grand Funk. A three-man power band, they were decidedly mediocre musicians. There was no particular imagination in their songs and they produced none of the grinding energy of the British heavy metal groups.

But now, it seems the band itself has isolated that factor which has led to incredible popularity despite critical harassment and a severe shortage of Top-40 airplay.

That factor is audience identification. Most rock stars concentrate on playing the star role, isolating themselves from their audience. But Don Brewer, Mel Schacher, and especially Mark Farner are living proof that, with a few breaks and a good ad campaign, just about anybody can find himself up there in front of 7,000 watts worth of amplifiers, surrounded by 20-thousand screaming fans.

They are stand-ins for the white, middle-class youth of America: the lowest common denominator of rock; and they know it. In fact, they flaunt it.

Their newest album, "We're An American Band", amounts to a self-conscious statement that the boys have recognized the role they have been playing to the letter-jacket set for the past five years. Although in many respects it has all the weaknesses of previous Grand Funk lps, it is their most important to date.

Todd Rundgren, who has really been getting around lately, produced "American Band," and his expertise behind the 16-track console shows. You might not care for Rundgren's own music, but his progress as a producer has been amazing. In the past year he has turned into the golden boy of pop music, a sort of musical Mike Nichols.

In any case Rundgren's light touch is just what Grand Funk needs as they squeeze out of the mold of super-hype created for them by former string-puller Terry Knight. Their sound is tighter, more precise and a bit more complex. It's doubtful if such changes in their music will make much difference to the people who buy Grand Funk's records, but it should make them more palatable to critics and radio stations.

The favorites on "American Band" are the first and last tracks on side one—the title song and one called "Black Licorice." As with previous Grand Funk Albums, however, the lyrics—particularly in the topical tunes—are mostly tired clichés.

Beginning with this album, Grand Funk is a quartet, adding Craig Frost on keyboards. Grand Funk's recorded sound is virtually unchanged since Frost's style is very similar to Franer's.

Despite the problems, "American Band" hangs together better than any previous Grand Funk offering. The band seems to be maturing musically, while hanging on to that all-important image of chrome-plated mediocrity.

Thanks to these models of humanity, there are about five lockers left to be used by other male members of the College Community. These are not your personal lockers—they were put there for everyone's use and convenience.

Blame In Love

The confused realist of this fitting statement about young, affluent American marriage is a Beverly Hills divorce lawyer, Stephen Blume, played by George Segal. His practice is bustling while his marriage is busting.

As he decides to take his work home with him one day, his wife, Nina (played by Susan Anspach) flatly demands a divorce. They are soon divorced rather expediently through the Nevada system of "come-as-you-are" divorces.

Mazursky, showing his ineptness in producing logical narrative, has created a film which may be contrived as a maypole satire. After the Blumes are divorced, Stephen is faced with what he calls a "tragedy"—he is still in love with his ex-wife. The film draws much of its life from its secondary characters. Marsha Mason is Blume's mistress-in-waiting. He periodically confides in her how much he still loves his ex-wife. Kris Kristofferson, as Elmo, is a rambling troubadour who lives with Nina and becomes good friends with Stephen as they smoke pot while waiting for Nina to get out of work.

Stephen's persistence in trying to win Nina over is equalled by her resistance of going back to such a structured union as marriage. Mazursky is able to extract comedy from real situations in the realm of social institutions.

We invited a few friends for dinner and they helped clean up the Genesee River.

With the aid of a few thousand pounds of microorganisms, we're helping to solve the water pollution problem in Rochester. Maybe the solution can help others.

What we did was to combine two processes in a way that gives us one of the most efficient water-purifying systems private industry has ever developed.

One process is called "activated sludge," developed by man to accelerate nature's microorganism adsorption. What this means is that for the majority of wastes man can produce, there is an organism waiting somewhere that will happily assimilate it. And thrive on it.

The breakthrough came when Kodak scientists found a way to combine the activated sludge process with a trickling filter process and optimized the combination.

We tested our system in a pilot plant for five years.

(At Kodak, we were working on environmental improvement long before it made headlines.) And the pilot project worked so well, we built a ten-million-dollar plant that can purify 35-million gallons of water a day.

Governor Rockefeller called this "the biggest voluntary project undertaken by private industry in support of New York State's pure-water program."

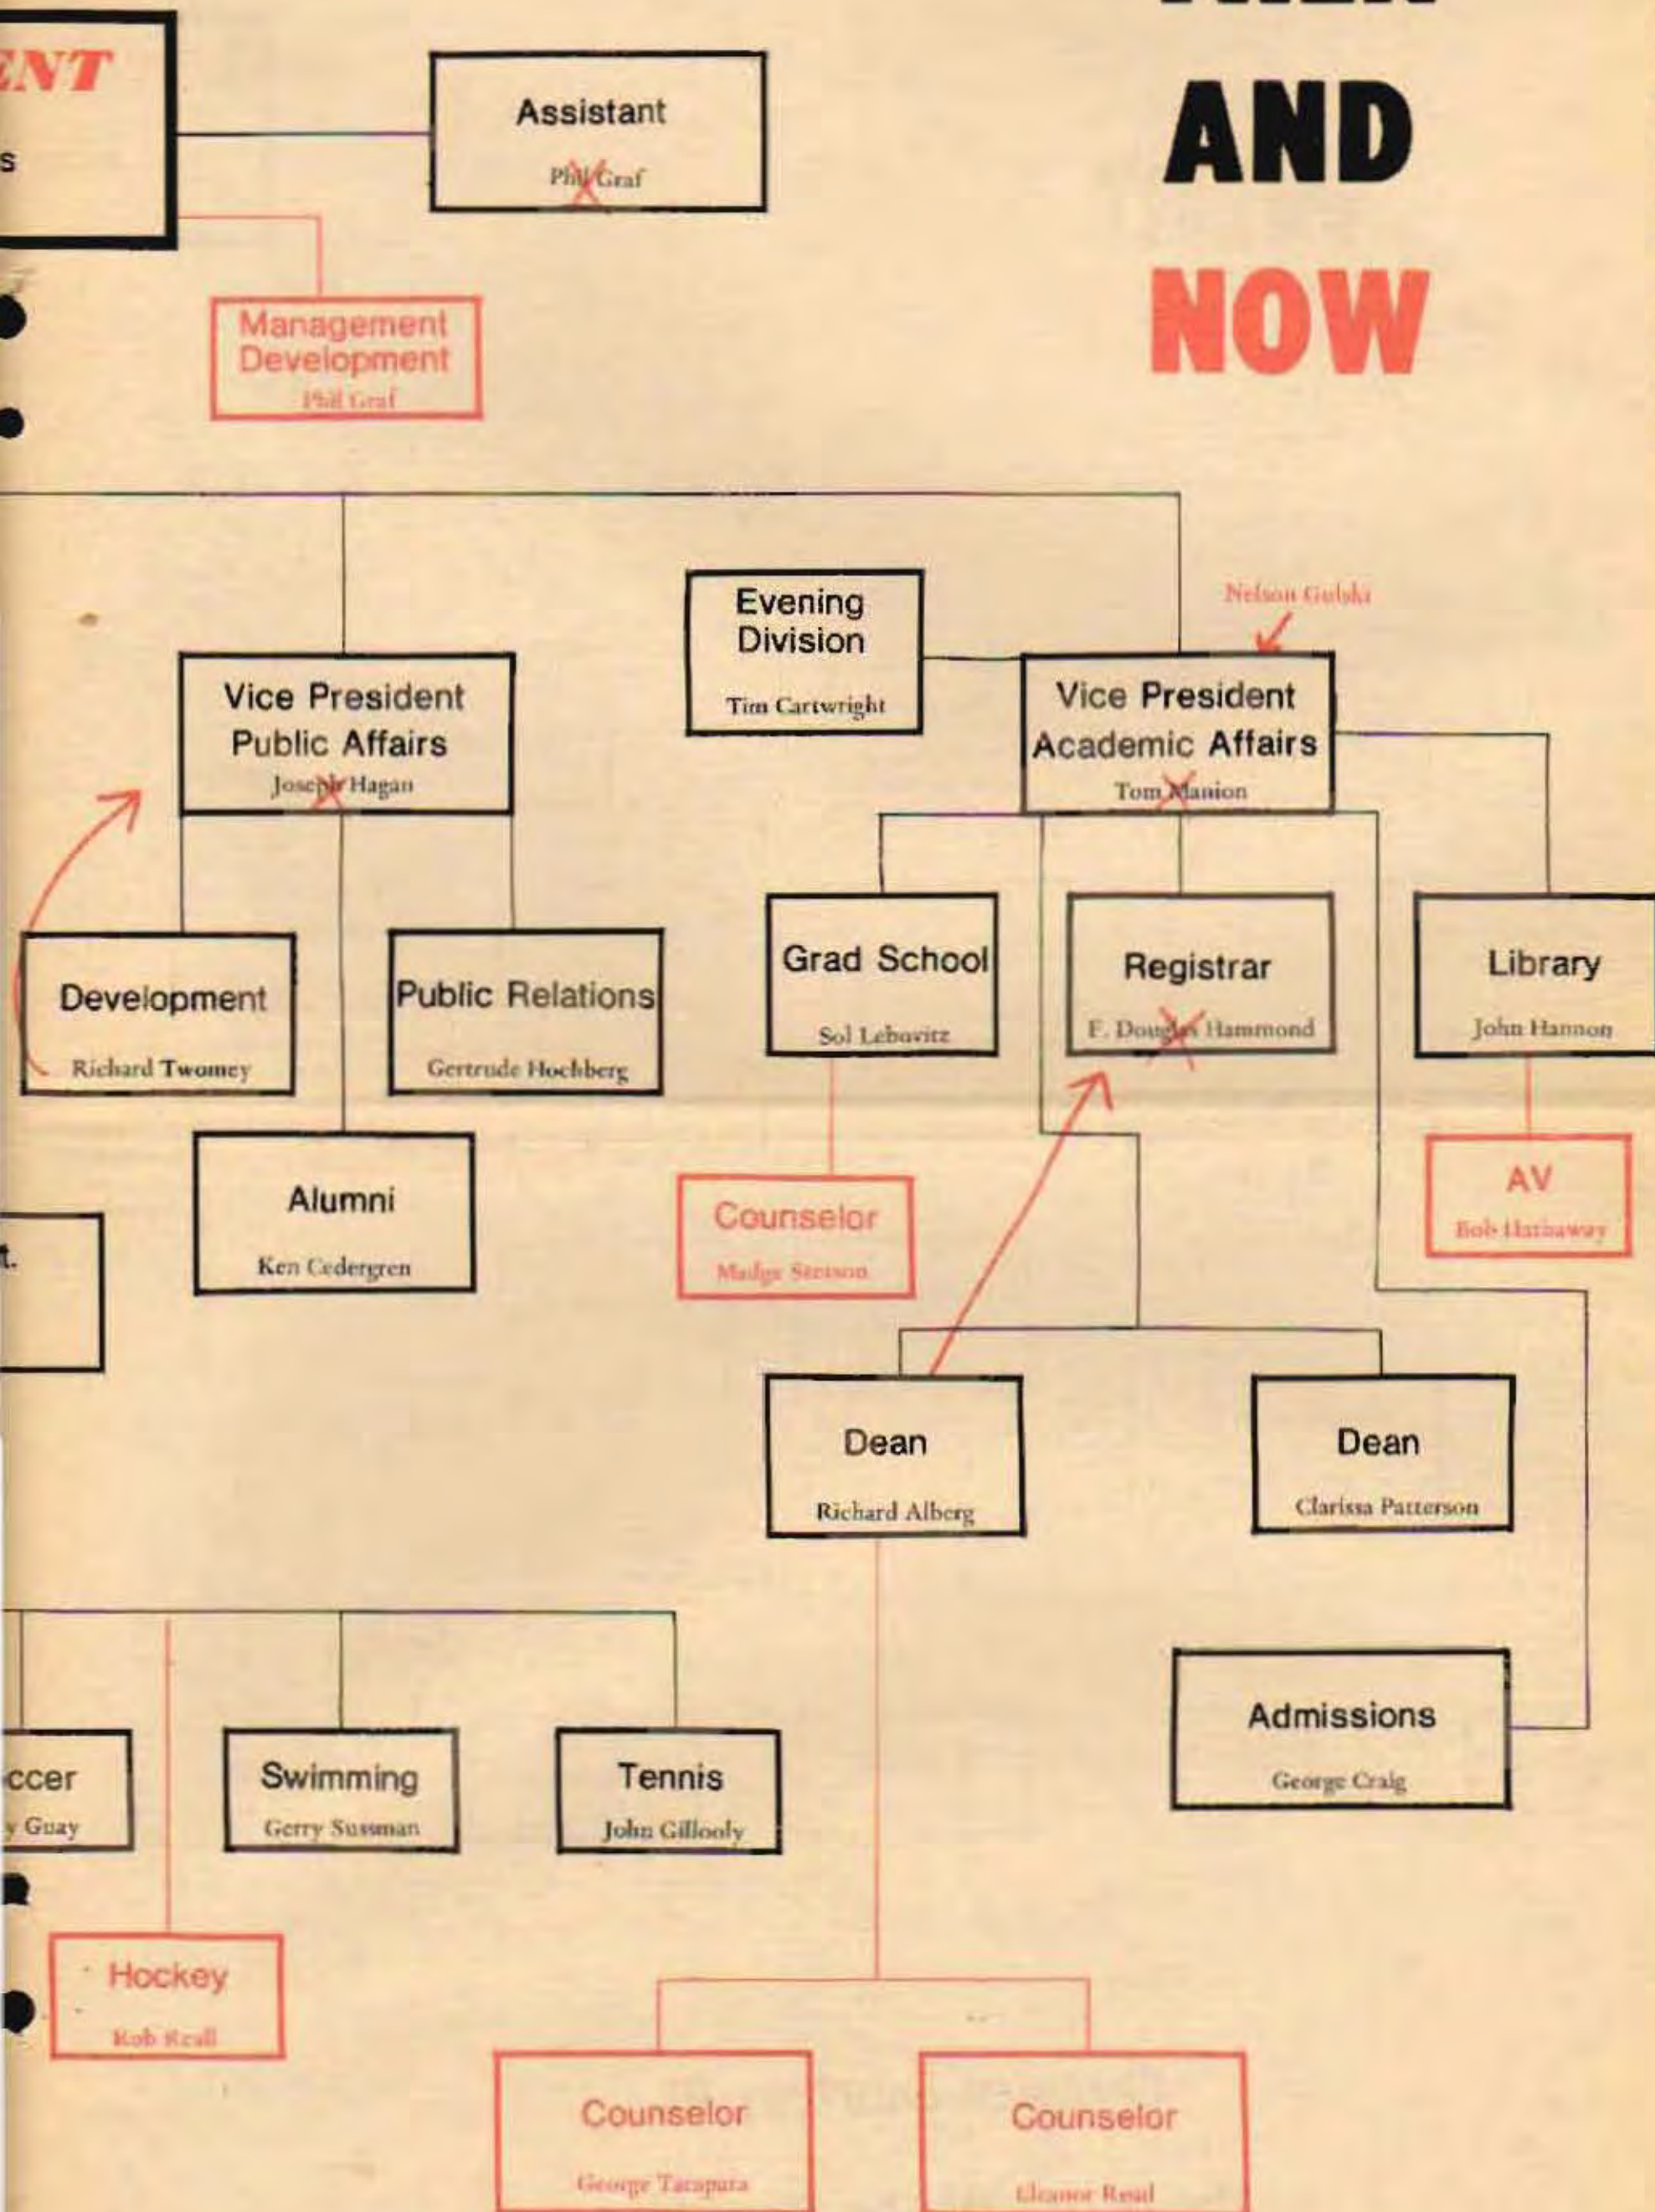

Why did we do it? Partly because we're in business to make a profit—and clean water is vital to our business. But in furthering our own needs, we have helped further society's. And our business depends on society.

We hope our efforts to cope with water pollution will inspire others to do the same. And, we'd be happy to share our water-purifying information with them. We all need clean water. So we all have to work together.

THEN AND NOW

THE ARCHWAY NFC SEASON PREVIEW

by Leonard Nicolosi

The Miami Dolphins were the kings of pro football last season. Will they repeat? It seems likely that Don Shula's boys will continue their reign for another season, but a second undefeated season is asking the impossible. If Miami is going to be the team to beat, where does the NFC fit into the picture?

The NFC has some fine squads in the Vikings, Redskins, Cowboys, and the 49ers, but none of them seem to have that solid Miami team. Even if a NFC representative fails in the Super Bowl, it will be another banner year for the entire conference.

Look for close races in all three NFC divisions.

EAST

WASHINGTON. The Redskins have one of the finest teams today. Even Nixon could not mess this one up! Coach George Allen has assembled a team in only three years, which other coaches could not do in ten. Off-season trades will further intensify Allen's hold on the Eastern Division Crown. Newcomers include Green Bay linebacker, Tom Robinson, safety standout, Ken Houston and San Diego's Duane Thomas. Add these key acquisitions to an already perfect offense and a good defense, and the Skins will be number 1 in the East.

NEW YORK. The Giants will be fielding basically the same team as last year. Last season was a banner year for the Giant offense. The line was near perfect, the running game was exceptional, the pass catching was adequate, and the quarterbacking was surprising. After a trial run last season, the Giant defense may bring back memories of past championships to New York fans. New York will be in strong contention for the wild card spot, but a tough schedule may be a stumbling block.

DALLAS. There is much dissension on the Cowboys, which could keep the Cowboys out of the playoffs. Even though there are many new faces on the team, it still looks pretty solid. Problems arise at quarterback and at middle linebacker. Coach Landry calls all the shots, and that may be his downfall this season.

PHILADELPHIA. A new coach and eight rebuilding plans later, the Eagles year is not this one. The front office took positive steps in drafting Sorenson of Texas and Young of Southern Cal. Philly also picked up Norm Bulaich and Roman Gabriel to pick up the sagging offense. The Eagles defense has some standouts, particularly Safety Bill Bradley but not enough to plug up all the holes.

ST. LOUIS. The Cardinals changing scene. Once the St. Louis front office decides on a coach, the team might move. Donny Anderson is a standout on offense. Cards' defensive secondary is good. Unfortunately that is all the Cards have.

CENTRAL

MINNESOTA. The Vikings will not suffer the same misfortunes as last year. Minnesota will return to greatness on defense, that is if Carl Eller and Alan Page can stay healthy. Fran Tarkenton will be trying to win his first title.

GREEN BAY. The Pack should give the Vikings considerable trouble in securing first place in the division. Green Bay's defensive prowess will be soon felt. McCoy, Ellis and Buchanan have all grown out of their diapers. Coach Devine may have some trouble with the Packer offense. Brockington and Lane are an awesome offensive threat, but the Green Bay quarterbacks are not. Unless Scott Hunter, Jerry Tagge, or Jim Del Galbo excel, the wild spot may slip by also.

DETROIT. An aging contender will be slipping this year. Can a new coach shake things up? Probably not. The Lions offense is in the capable hands of Bill Musson and Greg Landry. Sanders is the best in the business at tight end. Unfortunately, Lem Barney cannot hold up a retirement ridden defense.

CHICAGO. Dick Butkus and Co. will be the NFC's surprise team this year. With Butkus in the middle of the Bear defense, Chicago will be tough to score points on. Left handed Bobby Douglass will probably be at quarterback. If Bobby can throw as well as he can run, the offense may score enough points to win more than a few halfgames.

WEST

ATLANTA. The Falcons deserve the nod because they've improved while everyone else in the West has stood still. The offense is top rate with one exception. The exception is at quarterback. Bob Berry is gone, and Coach Van Brocklin is depending on Heisman Trophy Winner Pat Sullivan. The Dutchman may have made a mistake in unloading Berry, only time will tell. Claude Humphrey is a mean customer, and so is the Falcon defense.

SAN FRANCISCO. An aging John Brodie will lead the 49ers through another season. Steve Spurrier showed the class of a big league quarterback when he took over for Brodie in the middle of last season. SF has another mean linebacker in the form of Tommy Hart. Hart battled the Giant's Jack Gregory for the league lead in sacking the quarterback. Behind Hart, opposition offenses will find Jimmy Johnston and Bruce Taylor. Even though the 49ers have talent to win, Coach Dick Nolan has too many question marks to win.

LOS ANGELES. Tommy Prothro is gone, and so are a number of Ram regulars. There will be many holes on offense. Gabriel, Ellison and Restani are all gone. The defense is no better. Standouts McKeever and Boherston are with other teams. It looks like Los Angeles will be a real rebuilding headache for Owner, Carroll Rosenbloom.

NEW ORLEANS. Archie Manning would be better off playing elsewhere. The Saints fans deserve better, but when are they going to get it?

A Needless Firing?

by Peter Lockatell

It was the first week in September, and not one baseball manager in the major leagues had had his job this season. No sooner had this fact been disclosed, then three managers found themselves without a team to manage. In each case, the firing has been second guessed by players, press and the fans.

A prime example of the above statement was the dismissal of Pittsburgh skipper Bill Virdon. The one time Pirate outfielder, last year led Pittsburgh to an Eastern Division Crown. This season the Bucs were a close second when the axe fell on Virdon.

Why did Pirate general manager, Joe Brown fire Virdon? The answer to that particular question may never be known, but there have been a few theories that have developed since the day the firing took place. Probably, the accepted reason for Virdon's canning was the Richie Hebner incident.

Early in August, Hebner was benched for not producing at the plate. (I also think Rich might have been "dogging it" on the field, and Virdon immediately moved it!) After a few games of riding the bench, Hebner got the message! After a Buc night game, he stormed into Virdon's office and demanded an explanation from his skipper. More than a few hot words were exchanged between the two which almost resulted in a fist fight in the middle of the locker room.

Later things were straightened out between the two, and Hebner has been clubbing out home runs and RBIs ever since!

Looking back on this season, that is the only problem that Virdon has had with his players. Of course, Bill has had trouble keeping the Bucs in contention; but he certainly had some very worthy excuses.

The loss of the immortal Roberto Clemente was a tremendous blow to the Pirates. Bob had to rank as one of the greatest right fielders in baseball today. He was a repeat .300 hitter every season, and he possessed one of the deadliest outfield arms ever seen. Clemente was the primary reason why the Pirates brought home the World Championship to the City of Pittsburgh. As great as Clemente was on the field, he meant even more to the Pirates morale in the locker room. His spirit and enthusiasm kept Bucs players off edge and in good moods. Most likely the Hebner incident would not have materialized, if Roberto had been alive today. That is why it is impossible to measure the total loss of Clemente to the Pirate players and manager Virdon.

Besides Clemente's death, the Pirates have experienced considerable trouble with Steve Blass. The entire season, the ace of the staff has been fighting his control and the habit of throwing the home run ball. The rest of Virdon's starters have not been able to fill the void, so it has been up to the Pitt bullpen to cover up the deficiency. The middle of the Pirate infield has also added to Virdon's many headaches. Dave Cash and Gene Alley have been disappointments; Dal Maxvill and Rennie Stennett are now successfully plugging the hole. Add all of the aforementioned problems plus the sagging offense of outfielder Al Oliver, and it's a wonder the Bucs are still in contention!

It is my belief that Bill Virdon and Joe Brown did not agree on how the Bucs should be run, which ultimately led to the skipper's exit. I can not recall Brown giving Virdon much help when it came to his pitching and infield woes. Sure Dal Maxvill helped, but that move did not solve Pitt's biggest headache. Brown reminds me of a certain GM in New York. The New York GM has not been pulling many strings, and if his team loses the pennant, he should be fired. In early July, Virdon saw the trouble he was in so naturally he asked for help. Brown disagreed, and the two have been feuding ever since.

Could Virdon be showing up Joe Brown? Really. It was easy to push the panic button when the Pirates fell three games behind in early September and in career reliable Danny Murtaugh. The trouble is Murtaugh isn't getting any younger, and he also has a heart condition to worry about. Thus, Brown will eventually run out of ways to cover up his mistakes. At that point it will be Bill Virdon who will have the last laugh.

Baseball's Pennant Contenders at a Glance

by Lawrence Selzer

As the final three weeks of major league baseball present themselves, I think it appropriate to offer brief commentary and predictions of post-season play.

The standings show Baltimore and Oakland possessing strong holds upon their respective Divisional races in the American League. However, the National League poses a high degree of pennant fever. The Eastern Division teams are commonly struggling to occupy first place. The two Western Division contending ball clubs are Cincinnati (last year's N.L. champs) and the Dodgers, presently in a head-to-head battle with the division-leading Reds. This series may prove crucial in Los Angeles since they trail by three games at this time.

The Eastern Division squads appear to be suffering from baseball's exhausting schedule. The Cardinals miss veteran pitching star Bob Gibson, adding pressure to their many inexperienced and youthful players. Pittsburgh displays an awesome hitting attack but their mound corps has proved ineffective. The Mets exhibit a talented pitching rotation, but their meager hitting lineup will not surpass the deficit between the New Yorkers and the other teams. I believe the Pirates will prevail in this, the weakest division.

This reporter foresees the coming playoff championships as follows: Oakland over Baltimore in four and Cincinnati taking the Buck in a similar manner. The A's have an abundance of both pitching and hitting stars; they are an intelligent group of experienced players. The rejuvenated Orioles are too young a team to overtake Oakland.

Cincinnati will be after its third pennant in four years. The Reds have an enviable combination of power, speed and defense which should prove their superiority over Pittsburgh's offensive capabilities. Should this battle materialize, it would be the third championship meeting between the two teams.

I see the October Classic as a rematch of the 1972 World Series. This time the Reds will revenge that seventh game defeat, and conquer the defending champions, the Oakland A's in six games.

Blackout Ban To Be Lifted

by Peter Lockatell

It was learned Tuesday that legislation has been approved by a House subcommittee to permanently ban television blackouts of professional football games. The legislation, if approved by a House vote, would ban television blackouts of football games if they are sold out 72 hours prior to game time. Sub-committee Chairman Congressman Robert MacDonald of Massachusetts, indicated he would try to obtain house action on the bill prior to this Thursday or Friday. The National Football League begins its regular season play with a full slate of games this Sunday.

For years, public interest groups have fought unsuccessfully to curb the ban.

Only this spring, a federal court threw out a monopoly case against the National Football League. At the time, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle seemed to indicate that the issue has been permanently decided.

Fortunately for local sports fans, Senator John Pastore of Rhode Island introduced a bill in the Senate to curb pro football blackouts. After Senate hearings, similar bills are also being acted on.

If the bill passes its House test, it is a certainty that President Nixon will sign the bill into law. No comment has been received from the commissioner's office on the progress of the bill. It is also uncertain whether the NFL is planning a court test for the new bill.

INDIANS EYE SOCCER TITLE

by Peter Lockatell

Coach Gerry Guay discusses last minute changes with Asst. Ed Blamires.

For the first time in three years, Coach Gerry Guay and his Bryant Soccer Team figure to be a strong contender for the NAIA District 32 South Crown. The fact that Coach Guay is talking of possible title chances this early in the season gives way to the belief that Bryant has finally measured up to the rest of the division. Guay says, "It's the best squad I've had."

After looking at his proposed lineup, one can easily see why Guay is so optimistic. This year's roster features 11 freshmen. "The best freshmen that I have seen—plus the squad has only one returning senior," said Coach Guay. Add a dozen returning lettermen, and Gerry has some very pleasant problems.

Last year, Junior Tom Catto was Bryant's starting goalkeeper. This year, Tom has moved to fullback, and his departure has left the position wide open. The players fighting for the starting nod are Sophomore John Feeley, Freshmen Tom Robbins and Pat Sullivan. At the time of my interview with Coach Guay, he was still undecided as to who would start.

The fullback position will be Bryant's strongest forte this season. Tri-Captain Jim Teixeira and Sophomores Dale Speicher and Hank Stepowski return from last year's fine backfield. Coach Guay will also have Junior Tom Catto and Freshmen Richard Bosworth, Gary O'Brien, Arnie Silva and Howie Widman to round out the position. Last year's backfield gave up only 31 goals, and indications are that the total will be even smaller this season.

Nigro and Sutherland and Sophomores Matt McManus and Howie Schreiber. Nigro was the Indian's leading scorer two seasons ago, so Guay could get some scoring from his halfbacks.

At forward, Guay has the team's three top scorers back from last year's squad. Tri-Captain Bill Flanagan is back to lead an improved Bryant offensive line. As a Freshman, Flanagan was the Indian's leading scorer with a total of seven goals. Bryant will also be counting heavily on Juniors Bruce Lestocco and Mark Shoham to do their share of goal scoring. The two accounted for five goals, as the Indians scored only 16 goals all last year. Bryant will also use Sophomore Sam Krut and Freshmen Jeff Arpin, Ron Capanera, William Eaton, Kevin Horman and Damien Zurich to solve Coach Guay's biggest headache last season.

Coach Guay expects tough competition to come from SMU, Rhode Island College, and Providence College. RIC has done widespread recruiting, and they are loaded with talent. SMU went to the Regionals last season, and they must be considered as Bryant's biggest stumbling block. Providence College is good, but not as strong as usual.

In conclusion, Bryant seems to have all the elements for a winning formula. Defense is strong, the offense has improved, the goalkeeping is in capable hands and the team has considerable depth. Barring injuries and bad luck, Bryant may bring home its first team championship.

Tri-Captain Dave Sutherland will head the list of returning halfbacks. Coach Guay will probably be shifting lineups of Senior Bob Bauer, Juniors Ken
