MSU's Gospel Jubilee kicks off Black History Month with a tremendous bang

submitted by the Multicultural Student Union

The Gospel Jubilee is a tremendously wonderful event that is held annually in Janikies Auditorium by the Multicultural Student Union. This year the event was the product of co-chairs Harold Peacock and Hughan Bolton.

In opening this joyous occasion, Mr. Peacock told the audience the history of the jubilee. He then handed over the spotlight to Mr. Bolton, who led the audience in singing the song, "I'll Never Forget." He also read a scripture inspiring the audience to feel the love of God.

Following Hughan's presentation, Peacock announced the first choir to perform. Fragrance of Christ, from Providence, RI, stirred up the crowd with three remarkable songs. Minor technical difficulties which occurred during their performance did not deter Fragrance from singing to the Lord.

Next up was Praises Unlimited, from Scituate, MA. This choir sang of going to a city where there is no fear, doubt, sadness, or burdens... a place that sounds appealing to all of us. Praises Unlimited drove the crowd to a new height of liveliness. In between songs, a speaker for the group told the audience, "If you've been to a place of higher learning and you didn't know that history is His story, then you've missed out!" The crowd applauded enthusiastically in agreement.

Before intermission, Francis Doehner, Vice President of the Student Senate, spoke to the crowd about the Make-A-Wish Foundation. Francis told the audience what the Foundation's purpose was and that donations would be welcome and collected during intermission. The Multicultural Student Union's event raised over $100 to benefit the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

Persuaded was last in the line up of choirs, coming all the way from Boston, MA. With their jazz style singing they inspired the audience with a song entitled, "You Don't Have to Be Superhuman." Immediately following the choir, Elder James Lewis delivered an encouraging sermon that surrounded the topic of love. Lewis told the congregation that "what's wrong with society is that it continues to try and fix things, when all we really need to do is love one another." His said love will fix everything by itself by making reference to the love God had and still has for His children. When Lewis finished delivering his sermon, Peacock spoke a few more words of encouragement and then gave the closing prayer.

This year's Gospel Jubilee was fun and exciting, both for viewers and those who participated. Hopefully next year will be even better than this year. The Gospel Jubilee is a major event on the Bryant campus, and the Multicultural Student Union is proud to host it. The tentative date for next year is set for February the seventh, a Saturday. We hope to see you all there!

Arkansas univeristy pioneers with CD-ROM campus tours

 The Associated Press (c)

John Brown University in Arkansas believes it has found the best way to attract students to its new digital media major. Digital media.

The school unveiled its "In the Middle of Somewhere on the Edge" CD-ROM on Monday after using many of the techniques it will teach in the new course of study.

"We wanted to do something completely different, something no one else had done. So we came up with the idea of a virtual tour around campus," said Lucas Roebuck, a senior and editorial director of the CD-ROM project.

Arnie Mayer, a professor of communications, said the new academic program will equip students with the skills necessary to operate in a multimedia environment. The possibilities include animation, presentations for education and business, architectural walk-throughs in buildings yet to be built, litigation art, World Wide Web pages and movie special effects.

Roebuck said he and a team of six other students have been working on this project for more than 1 1/2 years.

Senior Laura Wiley acts as a virtual tour guide, explaining the items that appear on the screen. Users of the CD-ROM may click on any place on the map and they are virtually whisked there.

On most screens a panoramic picture appears. Users may click on the picture and spin it to obtain a 360-degree view of the area.

The CD-ROM also can play short clips of interviews with students, professors, and others on campus.

The school's admissions office funded the project and offered the team members scholarships for their time. It cost the school approximately $5,000 to produce the CD-ROM and will cost little more than $1 to manufacture additional disks.

Don Crandall, the university's vice president of enroll management, said he was pleased at the low cost of the project.

"When (they) approached me with the idea I was a little bit skeptical that they could do what they said they could," he said.

Disappearance of Tennessee student under questioning

 The Associated Press (c)

The mother of a man who is missing from a Nashville, Tenn., college said she is trying to learn details of his disappearance.

Marcus Forte, 21, of Cincinnati, was reported missing January 22 from American Baptist College, his mother said she was told by her son's roommate.

Forte's mother, Gloria Forte Butler, said the roommate told her on Saturday, January 24, that he had reported her son missing two days earlier.

"I went to Nashville that Saturday and learned that the police had not been investigating," she said.

Nashville Police Department spokesman Don Aaron said Tuesday that the missing person's report on Forte wasn't taken until January 24.

Forte's roommate, Jerry Robinson, 20, said Forte had gone out with some friends to get food. Forte later called Robinson and said he had been robbed, Robinson said.

Robinson said he called police to report the incident.

On Saturday, a man being questioned about the disappearance went to his bedroom and killed himself while police detectives waited. James Garvin Jr. was cooperating with investigators and told officers he needed to gather some items before leaving with them, police spokesman Don Aaron said.

Aaron said police suspect foul play in Forte's disappearance. He would not say what information led detectives to Garvin, or what relationship Garvin may have had with Forte.

"All I can say is that James Garvin's name surfaced during the investigation and that is why we went to talk with him," Aaron said.

Garvin, 20, was being questioned at his parents' home.

OJ verdict reached

Compiled from USA Today

Now that a jury has determined O.J. Simpson was responsible for the deaths of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman, attorneys return to court Wednesday afternoon for a hearing in which the defense intends to challenge the testimony of two plaintiff witnesses scheduled to testify in the punitive damages phase. The damages hearing is set for Thursday morning, featuring opening statements and witnesses testifying about how much money Simpson has and, if allowed by the judge, how much money Simpson stands to make in the future. The jury unanimously awarded $8.5 million in compensatory damages to Goldman's parents Tuesday. The Brown family had not requested compensatory damages but is entitled to punitive damages.

Big darn paper mill

Don't get me wrong, I just love getting mail, but do you get the idea that the Bryant community goes through as much paper as does an average book publisher over the course of the year? A memo here and a memo there; it all adds up. Not to mention this newspaper; we never fail to order too many copies. What's worse is that we cannot even recycle them. I propose the usage of another medium in communicating such important information: the internet.

Okay, so not all of the offices are hooked up to acad as of yet; however, getting an e-mail address is as easy as cake (takes what, a couple of weeks?). In cooperation with the fact that checking your e-mail is not something you would conceptually want to be doing during your lunch break, Koffler is open straight through the day, from 7 to 12 a.m. And what's more, once the offices are all connected, checking in on your mail would be that much easier.

Would it be a big pain in the rear for someone to have to send a message to only the appropriate people? Not any bigger of a pain than it is now for that poor soul who must apply those computer labels to the countless memos that generate from various offices (Disclaimer: Does not apply to all memos; pun intended ; >). In addition, getting word out in this manner would allow for employees to become accustomed to using e-mail.

Problem: What about those hapless souls who refuse to reform and never check their "inboxes"? Here's where the community effort must be utilized; resist the urge to tell others about what e-mail they may have received, hence leaving them out of the loop. Feeling so guilty for not being on top of things, they will simply be forced to conform. Is this bordering on mental abuse?

Would it be problematic for this little newsletter to be solely on the internet and not a printed piece of media? Well, maybe... I guess the advertisements could still occur, though the clientele may be limited. However, with the reduction in costs on our part (no printing costs—out biggest expense), there would be less of a need for those funds. The printer of this fine little tabloid might be a bit angry with us, but those are the breaks. The only major loss resulting would be the hands-on experience of layout. Regardless, when only a handful of students are forced to sacrifice their souls for the layout, it would be just as well.

So, becoming technologically efficient could be a nice little deviation from the norm. The paper pushing around here would be cut down a bunch. And think of how much longer those expensive toner cartridges would last. Saving trees and building resumes (so to speak) at the same time; what ingenuity! Now for the implementation...

Thanks to all who dressed down

Dear Pledge:

I have plenty of excuses as to why I've been tardy with my "thank you's"...only recently did I regain my strength from the ride from Boston to New York. Actually, the Fenway Community Health Center took til the end of November to recount to me those that pledged their support with their addresses. It took til now to find the time to thank you for supporting my ride....Nearly fifty of you contributed over $2,000 of the 3.17 million dollars raised for the Fenway Community Health Center.

Here is a short recap of my experience...

Overall I recorded over 1100 miles of riding to the actual jaunt. My regimen started in June with a huff and puff proud of myself seven mile ride around the block. By the Middle of July I was cranking out a minimum of twenty miles a day, with thirty, forty, and fifty mile shots on the weekends. I was actually commuting to work (45 mi. r/t) by the beginning of August. Murphy's law assisted with selection of my training routes. No matter which way I went it was always up the largest hills....

In the following, I'll summarize enough of my ride experience for you to get a flavor for what I went through....

Day 1: 106 mi. +/- Woke at 5 am, in Boston by 5:45 am, Hot & Sunny Day 2: 83 mi. +/- Sunny day....Connecticut Hills....

Day 3: 76 mi. +/- Woke to flat tire....Hurricane Fran

Day 4: 50 mi. +/- Sunny start, easy ride, torrential rains for closing

1. When I went to reconcile my pledges at the end of August I rode the elevator to the office with someone who appeared to be a fellow rider. We spoke briefly... he informed me that he rode over 100 miles/day and averaged over 25 mph. At that moment, my confidence crashed and burned. Prior to that I was feeling good about my twenty miles day and steady 12 mph average. Turns out I met with numero uno rider for the ride. How humbling.

2. Post ride when asked about hills....I can tell you that there is this one awfully big hill between Massachusetts and New York....Its called Connecticut....

3. As I was riding between packs (I was on my own) I rode by three young boys. One asked me "Excuse me, is this a race"....to which I responded "no"....the smaller of the three then retorted.. "Good thing, cuz if it were, ain't no way you'd win."

4. Riding in the city a group of us passed by a young boy who had an imaginary finish line drawn across his street. As each rider went through this "line" he proclaimed that rider "the winner." Had each of the 2,000 some riders gone by this fella they all would have been rightfully declared winners....how fitting.

5. In one of the more tense moments of the ride my chain fell off in a particularly bad neighborhood while riding between packs...I put the chain back on the sprocket at a full run...but not before I was told to "give me your bike"... Without looking back I was back in the saddle and racing along as if I were goin' straight downhill.

6. During the rainy day of Hurricane Fran I was doin' about 15 mph down a decent hill when the bike slipped from underneath me. I hit the pavement helmet first and bounced back onto my feet. Somehow I managed to walk the bike to the shoulder, pry the brakes from beneath the tire rim, and continue on my way. This would not have been possible without help from my guardian angel from the motorcycle group named "The Moving Violations." Without the helmet I would have been brain pudding.

7. By day three I could not sip another drop of gatorade nor crunch another energy bar....I began stopping periodically at convenience stores where I repowered with Slim Jims and Yoohoo....

8. My wife never looked more beautiful than when I finally found her, my mom, and my kids two hours after riding into NY City during a frightful thunderstorm that caused a power outage during the closing ceremonies. Had I not had memories of several hundred people performing the Marcarena for NY's finest during the afternoon lunch stop it would have been a miserable day...

All in all I am so happy to have participated in this event. You all made this memorable experience possible for me and at the same time contributed to a cause that is so near and dear to my heart. Thank you for your support.

Sincerely,
Doug Levin

Wanna Catcha' Movie ...or Something?

Nigel "F" Fubara

The Movies -

Star Wars - Where do I start with this thing? I call "it" a thing because "it" can no longer be classified as a movie, cinema, celluloid. I believe it would best be described as social or cultural phenomenon. The sum being greater than its parts. Lets review the facts shall we? A 20 year old movie, presently available for one hot dollar at video stores around the country is digitized, remastered, has footage added and is rereleased at $7.50 a ticket. There are hour long lines. Cineplex's are adding seats to theaters and cancelling other shows to suck up the money. It earns 36.2 million dollars in three days! Many movies made in the US today barely make that in the entire life of the film! What is most amazing is the fact that the movie lives up to all the hype! If the original genius of the film hasn't struck you yet, think of it like this; How many of your complete 1977 outfits (platform shoes and huge lapels to Farrah Fawcett haircut) could live under the intense scrutiny brought on by 90's nationwide media hype? I know that the 70's are back with a vengeance but this is something else.

At the screening I went to, as well as numerous other locations around the country, parents were bringing their children, people were dressed in costume, and cheering was par for the course. America, the force is still strong within you. It's like "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" phenomenon, only without the deeply unsettling image of Tim Curry in drag.

Needless to say, if you haven't seen it yet, you should. Jump on the bandwagon!! It's fun! Follow the crowd, become drunk in the intoxicating mindlessly of the masses. Occasionally it's good for the soul. It has also been reported to clear the sinuses, soothe the painful diaper rash and get rid of embarrassing itchy flaky scalp! How can you resist that?

What other movie producers and distributors are laying prostrate and humbly begging for your entertainment dollars? I'm glad you asked.

Gridlock'd - The new Tupac Shakur, Tim Roth movie. This dark comedy, about the escapades of two drug-addicted musicians trying to kick the habit while running away from various forms of body-specific unhappinesses, in the form of drug-dealers, gangsters and beauracrat pencil pushers. If you have ever considered throttling a DMV employee, or remarked as to how bass backwards the government is, this movie will make you laugh. Not just because it's funny but because it's sooo true! The film is also quite sad and ironic, as the now dead Shakur says, sometimes he feels that his time is running out, you feel a slight chill. It's either ironic sadness or the employee's at the Showcase Cinema's messing with the airconditioning again. Try to see it.

Another really cool movie out there is Jerry Maguire (1/2). This Tom Cruise Juggernaut actually dropped out of the top spot two weeks ago, seemingly to begin its long slide to video land. However, like an ex-girlfriend who decides, against all the advice of her often single and bitter friends, to give you another chance to screw up, this movie came back to claim the number one spot. This week, the first love and high school sweet heart, Star Wars took the Numero Uno. Kicking Jerry Maguire to the curb as the bitter and single friends looked on with I-told-you-so smirks on their faces. Let's stay tuned and see who wins the guy.

Beavis and Butt-head Do America - Retards get a movie! For some reason it is a ton of fun. At least the seventies, Charlie's Angels, intro. This movie is like a motor scooter. A whole bunch of sophomoric fun, but you don't want your buddy's to see you rocking it. If the television episodes however, are inducing you to throw up, check out "King of the Hill". Created by the same man, but a whole lot funnier. Described as a Redneck Simpsons in suburbia. Who knew propane salesmen were so funny?

If funny television is not what you are looking for right now, here are the rest of the movies -

Brain Fart of the Season -

Roxane and Zeus - A movie about the adventures had and friendship found between a dog and a Dolphin. Free Willy meets 101 Dalmatians.

The Theaters-

Into the Woods - If you are in the mood for the theater but you can't get a ticket to go see Miss Saigon, you should try going to the Trinity Repertory Theater to see, "Into the Woods". First off, one of my favorite teachers ever, Richard Cumming, who taught Appreciation of Music, here at Bryant, is the dude in charge of all the music and stuff. (I'm going to send him a copy of this review, that job description should give him a chuckle) Into the Woods is an amalgamation of several children's fairy tales into one often hilarious play with the usual death, sex, magic and dismemberment. But wait! There's more!! This fairy tale goes farther than just, "and they lived happily ever after" It goes on to show what happens after "happily ever after". This is where the real death and dismemberment come in. It is a metaphor for the simple physical law, "For every action there is an equal and opposite reaction" and the overused cliché, be careful what you wish for, 'cause you might get it". This one is for every girl who thinks only as far as her marriage and forgets about the everyday living that goes on for half a century after the big day. For every high school jock who wants to play college basketball and doesn't think about how it will effect his family, schooling, social life and body. You just have to be there to get the whole thing.

If you haven't been there lately, you are missing one of the coolest uses of production intellect in the business. Amazing use of space, theater in the round, innovative and creative style. It would be best described as upper class Sav' oir faire' in middle working class atmosphere. What they don't have in size, they make up for in style, creativity and enthusiasm. If you consider yourself somebody with wide bandwidth, check it out and try to figure out how it all comes together. Drop in, check it out, then hit the Trinity Brewhouse next door for something to eat and a drink of something or the other. Remember, friends don't let friends....yada, yada, yada.

If you are sufficiently stoked by the production of "Into the Woods" to go for more, and you will be, go on to the majestic, over the top, hugely successful Broadway plays, you guessed it "Miss Saigon". For me, the most awe inspiring thing about a evening at PPAC continues to be the somewhat spiritual effect the building appears to have on me. That's right, the building! The architecture is overpowering in its opulence and attention to the smallest details. I guess the millions that PPAC put into renovations paid off. The show itself is well worth the entrance fee but, you get more than that. It's a state of mind. With the arrival of Miss Saigon comes a chance to take a small and sometimes tunnelvisioned look at the pain and desperation of the Vietnam war. Try not to forget that in many ways our fathers and country caused that very bloody war. I will not go into a political debate, but when Robert MacNamara - one of the era's golden boys- says that the war he helped start and prolong, was a mistake you just have to concede. That aside, this play touches on deep emotions and does so in an amazing and entertaining way. See it before they leave.

Check this out, over 12 million people have seen it worldwide from London to Copenhagen, it has grossed $750 million worldwide, $425 million in the US alone and has won 27 major international awards. It has been translated into Japanese, Hungarian and German. That's since it's premiere on September 1989.

Next week, an interview with David Kater who plays Thuy.

Resisting temptation

Rabbi Lawrence Silverman
Jewish Chaplain

Martin Buber, one of the few true Jewish philosophers of the Twentieth Century, was also a story-teller with great sensitivity. In his Tales of the Hasidim, he narrates the tale of one of the rabbis who ardently believed in the imminent coming of the Messianic Age. This would be an age of freedom, release from political oppression, and peace among the nations. According to an old rabbinic dictum, if only the Jewish people would observe the Sabbath day faithfully all at once, at that moment the Messianic Age would come into being.

Our ardently-believing rabbi happened to live in a time when oppression was very real; the Jews had reason to fear outsiders, and the majority of the people lived on the edge, if not in the very midst, of poverty. His desire for the Messianic Age to begin was filled with self-interest, in behalf of his people, in his own behalf and, ultimately, in behalf of a world in need of redemption.

So our rabbi studied and prayed and performed such deeds of loving kindness as he could. He also kept constantly close at hand his walking stick and his heavy shoes, so that on a moment's notice, whether it was when he was lying down or when he was rising up, he would be ready to respond to the announcement that the Messianic Age had begun and would then be on his way to the Promised Land.

One day, while deep in study, our rabbi heard the sound of the Shofar, the traditional ram's horn, calling out boldly from near his house. It so happened that a fool had climbed to the roof of the nearby synagogue, where he was blowing the Shofar. The sound he was making was believed to be the sound that would herald the dawning of the Messianic Age.

Knowing nothing of who was sounding the Shofar, trembling and eager our rabbi went to his window to see what was going on. Looking out, in the square below he saw a man beating his donkey. The rabbi murmured, "This is no redemption," closed his window, and returned to his spiritual tasks.

One moral of this tale: Be true to your tasks, especially your spiritual and moral goals, no matter how tempting the distractions may be! There is work to do, my friends.

Rabbi Silverman may be reached in care of Counseling Services (232-6045). He is on campus most Wednesday afternoons and at other times by appointment.

Your pursuit of excellence

F. J. Talley, Ph.D.
Vice President for Student Affairs

Whenever our Director of Undergraduate Programs speaks about our standards of Academic Progress, she always begins by describing the achievement necessary to secure a spot on the Dean's list. There is a reason for this. We have chosen to focus on student success at Bryant, rather than on your academic failures. And this focus, we believe, will more likely result in your long term academic and professional success.

Our focus on your academic success led a number of staff members and administrators in Student Affairs and Academic Affairs to develop the Academic Success Program (note that we never considered calling it the "Remedial Support Program"). This program is designed to inform students of an array of support programs available to them and to match students in academic difficulty with staff members to aid in the students' academic development. While the program was developed for students in academic difficulty, the services described in the brochure are open to everyone.

This means all Bryant students who are pursuing academic excellence can be aided in their quest by the College. Our goal is to help you achieve academically to the best of your ability, whether you entered Bryant the top of your class or somewhere in the middle. That's what college — any college — is all about, and that's especially the case at Bryant. We are not just in the business of preparing tions, and communications, and that, through this pursuit, you may approach your future work in business with a moral and ethical orientation. And the pursuit of excellence is not just about specific achievements or meeting the goals you set for yourself. It has a great deal more to do with the fact that you set personal goals in the first place. The pursuit of excellence is more a matter of lifestyle — a lifestyle that says you will strive for the best you can in all your endeavors, specific achievements notwithstanding.

How do you challenge yourself academically as well as socially? Have you performed in an athletic contest at a higher level than in your previous attempts? How often do you place yourself in challenging situations to test your adaptability? Those achievements you earn as a result of challenging yourself are reflections of your orientation toward excellence, not excellence in themselves. In this regard, the pursuit itself — the process — is more important than the product.

You can pursue excellence if you'll only make the commitment to the lifestyle and start trying. Today wouldn't be too soon to start.

Behind the scenes: Miss Saigon

Scott Lushing

Last week I had the chance to go on a backstage tour of the performance of Miss Saigon at the Providence Performing Arts Center. Obviously, I jumped at the opportunity, knowing that it would be a chance that would not come along often. I arrived there in the afternoon around four o'clock and was greeted by other reporters waiting anxiously to go on this backstage tour also.

Miss Saigon is a traveling show. They usually do about five weeks worth of shows in each different location throughout the country and travel with all of their own equipment. Eighteen semi-trucks are used to transport all of what they need to put on the performance. I saw one of these trucks and boy, is it huge (45 feet in length to be exact)! They contain all the props, outfits, lights, sound consoles, and everything you can think of — even their own stage! This place was set up amazingly. We started off by splitting into two groups of about eight people each. Then the tour began.

The group I was in was first taken to the lighting and sound area. We met two people — one who worked the lighting, one who worked the sound. The area where all of this was set up was on the lower level in the back of the Arts Center. It only took up about fifteen square feet of space but held such an enormous amount of equipment and power; you wouldn't believe your eyes! There were so many buttons that were all being used and so many different types of lighting. I counted about 20 buttons and then realized that was only 1/100 of the amount of buttons it contained. The lighting part didn't look as complex because it was mostly run by a Macintosh computer. We stayed there asking questions for about an hour, learning all about how the lighting and sound works. We then had demonstrations of the lighting and sounds. We heard the infamous helicopter fly above our head and saw the lights from the helicopter scene go off. It was a lot more interesting than I assumed lighting and sound could be. The two men who worked them were real nice, and we learned about their past and how they got to where they are now.

After the lighting and sound, we were taken behind the stage to the wardrobe area. There were so many clothes back there — four hundred and fifty costumes, thirteen dresses, two hundred and twenty five hats, three hundred pairs of shoes, and one hundred masks, to be exact — all for the thirty-seven actors. I thought I had stepped into Madonna's closet. I had never seen so many clothes, and for so few people. It was so crowded back there that everyone had the question, "Where do the girls change after the bikini scene?" Well, they have a little area right next to the stage where they can quickly change and get back on stage. Besides that, there is very little room back there, and in between scenes it gets so hectic that everything is waiting for everyone on their chair and is done so routinely it doesn't really get nerve-racking. Puck was in charge of all the wardrobes — every single item of clothing worn from the dresses to the bras. The actors arrive backstage in nothing but robes, and every item of clothing they wear throughout the performance is given to them.

After the wardrobe, we were off to see the stage. The stage is what is called a raked stage, which means that it tilts downward, toward the crowd. It was at such an angle, I still can't believe people can perform on it. Surrounding the stage are white draped curtains which give the effect as if you were really in Vietnam. The scenery designer for the show had really gone to Vietnam, that is how much they wanted the scenery to look like Vietnam. There were so many different props that were used for this show. They had them all hanging from the ceiling and black drapes were separating them. The biggest and most spectacular prop of them all was the helicopter. For those of you who have seen the show, you know what I am talking about. During the show, the helicopter comes from above the stage with smoke and loud audio effects to make it as if it were a real helicopter. It then lands on a landing pad which is situated on-stage. I was lucky enough to be there when they were doing the weekly testing on it. They didn't have any sound effects or smoke, but just sitting in the front row and watching the helicopter above me come down was pretty amazing.

It was an excellent experience being taken on this backstage stage tour. I learned a lot about how performances were put on. All the effort that goes into this show is unimaginable. I was in awe about how some of these effects are put on and how much effort goes into transporting and setting up the whole stage and props and what not. It was an afternoon I won't soon forget and am delighted to have had the opportunity to go on the backstage tour of Miss Saigon.

Miscellaneous Charges

David Betsch
Department of Science and Technology

Thanks to Mark Orstedt for this week's question, "Why is there more static electricity in the winter?"

Triboelectrification, which normal people know as static electricity, is an electric charge resulting from the rubbing or sliding of dissimilar materials, at least one of which is a poor conductor of electricity. Although the sub-atomic causes have not been well described by researchers, it is clear that triboelectrification decreases in a higher humidity environment, presumably because materials conduct electricity better when they are more hydrated (wetter) and potential static charges can be more easily dissipated by conduction. Dry skin, chapped lips (thanks, Dana, for the Carmex), and nosebleeds are cold-weather reminders that cold winter air carries less moisture than warm summer air, even if it is heated (unless it is also being humidified). Less humidity, more static.

Triboelectrification is an annoyance, even beyond the embarrassing "static cling." When my grandmother got a new nylon carpet in the 60's, my sisters and I scuffed and skidded all over the thing to give each other shocks...what fun!!! My old vinyl records snap, crackle, and pop under the scraping of my phonograph needle. I've ruined whole sheets of X-ray film by handling them with latex gloves; static discharge produces black "lightning bolts" in the film (aesthetically pleasing but not good science). After the first time I cleaned the computer screen in my office (with a dry paper towel), I arced a three inch spark to the doorknob on my way out. Now, I ground myself for this task by holding the metal desk with one hand while I clean with the other.

Static can also be an industrial hazard. Pipes carrying flammable powders or fluids can explode from a static spark; aircraft mechanics always ground the fuel system with a wire, to conduct away dangerous static, before refueling a jet aircraft. Humans are good insulators and can develop a potential of 15,000 volts (here's one potential you don't want to live up to). Workers exposed to flammable solvents or sensitive microelectronics components wear conducting shoes on a metal floor and sometimes also wear grounding wristbands or straps to conduct away static electricity. Storing floppy disks in certain plastic sleeves can erase or alter the data on them. Rollers in machines that produce photographic film or paper must be specially designed to prevent static build up that would ruin the product.

We walk around covered in static electricity. I wonder if we can sense the electric field that surrounds others, and if it influences the way we interact.

If sufficient loyal Archway readers submit topics that we feature in the column, they will be eligible for a drawing worth 25 dollars in points. Submit questions to Dave Betsch, C223 and look for the answers right here in the coming weeks.)

Loving carefully

Jennifer D'Andrea

For the third consecutive year, The Office of Residence Life is sponsoring Love Carefully Month. Programming throughout the month of February will encompass the theme of loving things carefully. Lori Harrison, Resident Director of Hall 15 and organizer of the event, says the purpose is to "promote community and individual wellness." Some programs will be sponsored in conjunction with the MultiCultural Student Union, Peer Educators and Health Services.

Some topics scheduled for the month are:

- Rubberware Party
- "101 Ways to Please Your Lover"
- A video of a Tori Amos concert followed by a discussion on R.A.I.N.N. (Rape, Abuse, Incest National Network)
- Conflict Resolution
- Drug and Alcohol Abuse
- Eating Disorders
- Love: Is Your Next Mate in the Stars?
- Massage Therapy
- Exercise and Fitness
- Multiculturalism
- Volunteerism/Community Involvement

Get involved and take some time this month to learn how to love yourself, others, and your environment carefully.

Stressing out

Nicole Whitten
Health Services Intern

Stress affects everyone. It is a natural reaction to any tense or anxious situation. This could include everything from your upcoming exam to job searching to asking someone out on a date. Our bodies react to stress with a "fight or flight" feeling. In other words, we either seek to flee the situation that is causing us stress or act defensively. There is such thing as good stress. Too little stress can be damaging just as too much stress can be. Our bodies, however, do not distinguish between good and bad stress. In either situation, stress can manifest itself in a variety of ways in each individual.

Stress builders are part of our everyday lives. They are unavoidable. Some common stress builders or enhancers are change, noise, malnutrition, drugs, illness, and injury. Cigarettes can heighten your stress level rather than reduce it due to the toxins that are stimulating the body. Caffeine can speed up the body for up to 20 hours. This stimulation can also increase stress. Sugar will give the body a quick boost but will replace these boosts with a shortage of energy. This is because sugar depresses the system. Drugs and alcohol will alter the reaction of the body and increase stress responses.

Do you recognize these common symptoms of stress?

- Insomnia
- Irritability
- Increased smoking or drinking

- Headaches
- Inability to concentrate
- Angry outbursts
- Obsessive negative thoughts
- Feelings of general anxiety
- Feelings of hopelessness and depression
- Frequent illness

Here are a few ways to cope with stress. Exercise can reduce stress and anxiety. You can perform simple exercises while watching television or taking an exam. For example, while sitting in a chair, raise your heels to tense and relax your calves. Proper breathing is a great way to relieve stress. Fill your lungs with air and then let it out slowly to slow down your breathing pace. Relaxation and meditation can also help. Laughter is an excellent stress buster. Plan ahead, and you will not become bogged down with work. Take on one problem at a time. Do not overwhelm yourself by spreading yourself too thin. Take time out to relax and help yourself. Talk to a close friend or take a hot shower. The pressures of life may build to the point of utter exhaustion if we do not deal with our stress effectively.

Army ROTC Corner

Anthony L. Garifo

I would like to say great job to everybody in the ROTC for all of their hard work last week. The physical fitness test that was administered on January 29 was a success. If you did not get the score that you were hoping for, you now know what areas you need to work on. Start working on them now so that you will be ready for the physical fitness test scheduled for April 16. The MS III class was looking very good last week, motivation was high, and the class is starting to pull together as a team. We only have three more months before we each begin to head off to camp, so as our famous Major Corcoran would say, "Intensity, folks. Pre-season is over."

Just a quick reminder for all of those thousands of people interested in the ROTC Scholarship: You only have until February 21. If you are interested, you can contact SFC Stobb at 232-6275, or stop by the office located in the Unistructure room 370. We all look forward to answering any questions that you may have about the program. Keep a look out for the new bulletin board—currently in the making by Cadet Michael Pasquarello—for additional assistance about the program.

I hope all of the MS III's as well as the Ms IV's are looking forward to the upcoming Field Training Exercise that is scheduled for Saturday, February 8, at Bryant. This exercise should assist the MS III's for when they go down to camp this summer. There is also the Ruck-A-Thon Ruck March that is slowly creeping up on us on February 22. Make sure you drink plenty of water the night before and stay away from the one arm curls; we do not need anybody passing out on the highway.

Every member of the ROTC would also like the opportunity to wish Cadet Jen MacDonald good luck at Frosted Gold. Cadet MacDonald will be leaving to conduct cold weather training in Norwich, VT, on Friday, February 14. If you should pass Cadet MacDonald in the halls, do not hesitate to give her your full support. I will continue to keep everybody informed of upcoming events concerning the ROTC program in the future. If anybody has any ideas that would benefit everyone, feel free to leave it in my box, Cadet Porter's box, or bring it up at our weekly meetings, held Mondays at 1400.

Looking for a job made easier with BigYellow

Looking for a job just got a little easier thanks to BigYellow (www.bigyellow.com), a national on-line yellow pages service that lists nearly every business in the United States. Graduating seniors can find everything they need to help land a great job upon graduation by using this service developed by NYNEX.

It's not too early to start thinking about how to put that new degree to use and how to begin paying off those student loans. Rather than spending hours looking through piles of reference books, graduates-to-be can log on to BigYellow on the Internet's World wide Web to check out thousands of different products and services available to help find a great job.

Students can use BigYellow to find comprehensive lists of resume services, employment agencies and career counseling firms. Many of these businesses are showcasing their products and services with comprehensive Web sites so that graduates can make informed choices. BigYellow also has shopping information to help find a great looking interview suit or even a new car to help you get to those interviews.

With more than 5,000 advertisers, BigYellow far exceeds any other on-line shopping directory in content and is one of the largest advertiser-supported sites on the internet. The service is free to consumers.

Valentine Gala

InterArts and NewGate Theatre proudly announce the first Annual Dance All Night to Your Arts Delight Valentine Ball which will be held on Friday, February 14, 1997 from 8 p.m. to Midnight at the Casino at Roger Williams Park, Providence, RI.

This gala evening will begin with a Champagne Reception at 8 p.m. with music provided by the Tollgate High School String Quartet and a sumptuous buffet provided by the Tollgate High School Culinary Center. At 9 p.m. things get hot as Ballroom Dancing begins to the Big Band sounds of the Night Life Orchestra with special guest artist Maria Day. A cash bar will be available and late night coffees with a selection of elegant pastries will cap off the evening.

Tickets to the Champagne Reception and Ballroom Dancing are $65 per person. Admission to the Ballroom Dancing only are $40 per person. Proceeds from this benefit will go to InterArts and NewGate Theatre, two organizations who provide quality live performances that challenge and educate and who aggressively seek out and create opportunities to link the arts with education in the traditional classroom in non-traditional ways. For tickets or information call InterArts at (401)461-0087.

Student leaders sought

The Fund for American Studies is recruiting student leaders from colleges and universities to participate in its 1997 summer Institutes at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. Undergraduate students will gain critical work experience through internships in public policy, politics, business, journalism, or international affairs and will earn credits through course work at prestigious Georgetown University. The final application deadline is March 15, 1997. There is no minimum GPA requirement, and students who have been active on campus are encouraged to apply.

Scholarships are available to each of The Fund's three seven-week programs; the Engalitcheff Institute on Comparative Political and Economic Systems, the Institute on Political Journalism, and the Bryce Harlow Institute on Business and Government Affairs. Each of the Institutes includes internships throughout the city, courses at Georgetown University taught by top notch faculty, and unique opportunities to meet and talk with national and international leaders at site briefings, lectures, and evening dialogues.

For brochures and applications, students should contact The Fund for American Studies at (800) 741-6964 or visit our web site at <http://www.dciinternships.org>

Hall 16-Making Life Better for the Residents

Ken Wakefield
and Kevin Palmer

Every Monday night at 10:00 p.m., the Hall 16 Student Council meets to discuss fund-raising ideas and things they can do to make life better for all the people who share the building. There were a number of good ideas last semester and a lot of new ones have been discussed.

Last semester's fund-raisers ranged from a bake sale to Penny Wars. Both produced profits that will be used to better the hall. The other fund-raiser was a hall-wide recycling program that was implemented on a trial basis.

We have some very exciting fund-raisers in progress. Sunday, February 2 through Wednesday the 12, we are selling Candy Grams for Valentine's Day. You can stop by and put in an order for a friend or that special someone during dinner outside Salmanson or in the Hall 16 lobby while the RA's are on duty. Starting at 7:00 p.m. on the evening of February 13, the Candy Grams will be delivered to the indicated persons' rooms. Also look for a bingo night and another bake sale.

Recently, the Hall Council sponsored a Super Bowl party. It was a HUGE success!! Over thirty people showed up to watch the game on a projection screen and in booming stereo sound. The pizza went quick, but there was plenty for everyone.

The hall is looking into buying either an air hockey or a ping-pong table. An end-of-the-year party is also being planned. If you have any ideas, feel free to contact Mark Nardella at x4285, or stop by the lobby Monday nights at 10:00 p.m. and support your hall! Remember, all are welcome.

Accounting Association

Chad West

If you do not know already, our first meeting of the semester has been rescheduled for Tuesday, February 11. It will be held in Room 2B of the Bryant Center at 4:00. At the meeting we will be looking for additional sign-ups for the income tax assistance program; new members are always welcome to attend.

The primary focus of the meeting will be a guest speaker. Carl Basso, Regional Director of the Institute of Management Accountants, will be giving a talk about career planning and alternative career tracks other than public accounting. The presentation will be ideal for sophomores who need any advice about the profession and also for juniors and seniors who have not decided on what track they plan to take. Remember, as the director for the entire Northeast region, he knows a great deal of people and is an excellent contact person. Now is the time to get used to talking to people in the profession if you are a sophomore or junior.

Keep an eye out in this column for future speakers and events. Get involved!

Beta Theta Pi

David Koestner

Our annual candle sale has already started. Feel free to come to the couch in the Rotunda during the day if you would like to make a purchase.

This week, Crane washed Nugget. Cobb used up a roll of duct tape. Oscar was resting against someone's door Saturday night, probably tired from winning the wet T-shirt contest. Thanks Phi Sig and Tri Sig for a great weekend. Lark was the center of attention at Touch of Class. Angus drives like Proctor. Mork, Monte, Snipe, and Shep had dance fever up at Phi Sig. Merlin's friend came up this weekend. Ren is dropping bombs and not asking questions. Smithers threw in the towel Monday night. Lark suggests investing in water and is giving lessons on how to cut steak. Otis doesn't have time for Monte and Gunnar. And last but not least, Mork is still fancy.

Quotes of the week: "You're a little bit shaky, buddy;" "Hey Stu, take a seat!;" "I think I'm sleeping in this chair tonight."

Commuter Connection

Sherri-Ann Penta

Bonjour Commuters! Thanks to all who attended our meeting last week. We had a surprise visitor: the one, the only, Andy! There will be another info/pizza/fun-filled meeting on Wednesday, February 12. This meeting will be held on the third floor of the Bryant Center from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. with the usual goodies, pizza and soda. Remember, new members are always welcome, so stop by and say hi!

A groovy time was had by all at the 70's dance party Saturday night. The commuters "got down" with The Boogie Knights, who were adorned with funky afro's. Polyester, in powder blue and bright pink, were the threads for the occasion.

Hope to see everyone at our next meeting, but until then, PEACE!!

Delta Zeta

Sandra DiGianvittorio

Hello everybody. First of all, the sisters of Delta Zeta extend our condolences to Phi Sigma Sigma. You are in our thoughts.

Recently, we were able to show our spirit at the basketball game. Unfortunately, we were unsuccessful—but don't fret! We'll be back and louder than ever.

We've had yet another great weekend. It started with a Touch of Class on Thursday. Good time at TKE on Friday night. I just have one question: Who WERE all those people? I heard that I missed a great Saturday morning with TEP; raincheck? Savy will teach aerobics to those interested from now on. And to finish off, we had a blast with Rugby and those sing-a-longs on Saturday night.

We can't forget our recent national holiday-Vegas turned 21 on Tuesday. You're Dead! (16 of them, Vegas?) Cleo, please forgive me for last week's Archway, but it is hard to remember which state you live in sometimes...! Everybody must grab some plastic—we're going out in style! Every DZ must wear plastic pants to Boston from now on. Not a problem, Charshee! Preslee: Great time at 3 a.m. on Sunday morning-Kennedy (she's getting a little crazy). Pierce and Nikali thank the Magic 8 Ball® for predicting nothing. Congrats to Vedder on his first true words! Bazil, Darbi, and Monroe really know how to dance their way to KT. And thanks, Nick, for the soup and noodles-Baz & Monroe. Hey Cleo, still looking for a fork?-Jaycee. Jaycee and Wesli started dance party USA at Sig Ep. Hey, Will, try to keep you balance next time you get up early in the morning! And McGee,...watch your pillow next time! Who knew? Angus-Thanks for the phone-Galileo and Nikali. Thanks to Beta for their rendition of psycho killer Thursday & Friday nights. Hey Philly & Tony: Next time you want to stay up until 8 a.m., make sure I don't have anything planned the next day!! Val—we need more No Doubt-filled nights... "You came in with the sle..." you know the rest! luv Silva. Vegas would like to thank G6 for bringing her bowling-she had a blast. Thanx to Apollo and McGee for letting me stay the weekend. I had a blast-Navy. Last but not least: Klayton—we'll miss you very much! We love you and want you to be a happy camper!

Well, that's all for now. CHECK YA!

Society for Human Resource Management

Jessica Burns

Hello everyone!! I hope everyone's semester is moving along nicely. As promised in last week's article, I am now letting you know about our next speaker. Tom Brown will be visiting us on Monday, February 17, at 4 p.m. in room 2B of the Bryant Center. Free pizza and soda will be served. Don't forget, if you are interested in E-board openings, stop by the meeting to find out more. We hope to see you all there!!

The Hunger Coalition

Shane Sachdev

Easter is coming: WE NEED YOUR HELP. The Bryant College Hunger Coalition is an open club with bi-weekly meetings on campus in Dorm 16. The purpose of this group is to help the hungry and the homeless of Rhode Island. To do so, we volunteer at soup kitchens in Providence every Monday and Thursday.

This is a big semester for us, as we are taking on many new tasks and responsibilities to better the neighborhood. Drop by our meetings, which are typically 15 minutes long. We meet every other Wednesday at 4:00 p.m. in the LOBBY of 16. For more information about the Coalition, call Brian at x8300 or Shane at x4138. Our next meeting is Wednesday, February 12, in the LOBBY of 16. All are welcome. So...go for it. Here's five reasons to come to the next meeting:

1. We are working on a whole bunch of new projects so we need your support
2. It's FREE
3. It's only 15 little minutes for the whole meeting
4. If you come, I'll stop writing these stupid columns in the paper
5. No FREE BEER, sorry.

ISO

Eunjoo Lee

Hello. ISO has already had a second meeting last Monday. We discussed the Spring Semester schedule. There are lots of events during this year. We are going to have a sale for Valentine's Day on February 6, 7, 10 & 11, in both the Bryant Center and Unistructure. We are looking for some volunteers to help at the tables. Please contact any of the E-board if you are interested in helping. We've planned a Ski Trip, which will be held on Saturday, February 22. It will be a one day trip, since the price of staying overnight is expensive. The exact cost for the Ski Trip will be announced during the next meeting. Come with your friends! In March, there is a Dance Party sponsored by ISO. Not only is everyone in the Bryant community invited, but also other schools near Bryant, such as Brown, RISD, Johnson & Wales, CCRI, RIC, and PC are going to join us. It will be held at the Biltmore Hotel on Friday, March 21. Many exciting and striking events are waiting for you.

Come to our meetings, held every Monday, 4:00pm at Bryant Center rm 2A. ISO also invites all members of Bryant community. Come and join us! If you have any questions, contact the E-board or our advisor, Meg Springer, in Multicultural Students Services.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY FROM ISO!

Bryant Karate

Jason Bean

Pil son! We would like to start by welcoming all of our new members. Things may look hard at first, but eventually it will all come to you. Stick with it; you're bound to have a great time.

Hopefully everyone who went to the tournament on Sunday had a fun time. Maybe next time more of you can go. Some of you may even want to compete. This event probably also marked the first time that Keith arrived on time to actually compete in all of his events.

By now everyone should be ready to go out and try to get ads for the tournament. Try any business in the area even if you are not sure of whether they will give or not. You can also look for ads at home, which always seems to be a good area.

We would like to thank everyone who contributed to the event on Friday night. Sorry that it got shut off so early. Hopefully next time we will screen guests to make sure the event reaches its full potential before the stormtroopers hit the building. Probably some of the worst music to ever come out my stereo (and that's saying a lot) was hitting the airwaves by the end of the night. Ryan, your guest probably got a pretty interesting impression of Bryant. Quote of the week, "Are you deaf?" Until next time, BKKA!!

Phi Sigma Sigma

Valerie Arold

Hello everyone. I hope everyone has had a good week.

First, we would like to congratulate Jill on being elected Panhellenic President. Way to go, Gumby. Congrats to all other Greeks who have taken over positions on Panhell/IFC. Jess started her new job on Monday-good luck. The sisters would like to thank Beta, Delta Chi, and Sig Ep for a fun time this weekend. "You are doing this all by foot, Mason?"-Belle Cassie, we know this is a really hard time for you and are sorry to hear about your loss. We are here for you. We love you.

Our hearts go out to Christy and her family. We are thinking of you and are here for you. We love you-Your sisters.

The Bryant Players

Meagan Mirkovich

Hey everybody! Auditions for the spring production, Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, will be February 11 and 12 at 7 p.m. in Janikies auditorium. No experience is necessary so if you ever wanted to be on stage, this is your chance!

If anyone is interested in acting, singing, or helping behind the stage please check out our meetings. They are every Tuesday at 5 p.m. in Room 2A.

In other news: Have an exciting and stimulating weekend!

Women's Rugby

Sarah Couture
and Kim Noyes

Hey Ruggers! We hope everyone had a great week. Deanna will be happy to know the good news that we will be starting her favorite community service project very soon. We hope that we will all have a lot to contribute.

The team was reunited this weekend with a few exceptions. Pam-we hope you can make it next time! Friday night turned out to be more eventful than originally planned. Carolyn spent most of the night searching on all fours, while Gilly was raiding Sarah's roommate's fridge.

We hope everyone had a good time on Saturday. Does anyone know that song, "S-A-T-U-R-D-A-Y Night?" Too bad it's not in the vault! At least we all got to "Climb up the Sunshine Mountain." We were happy to see Toni, who was back in full force after being MIA for a while. While she was gone, she must have stopped to admire quite a few waterfalls.

We were happy to see Trish back in her element, but maybe she should have listened to her doctor. We leave you with a question to ponder: "Is there SAND in this?"

Student Alumni Association

Kerry A. Smith

Student Alumni Association meetings are every Tuesday at 5:00 p.m. in the Alumni House. We encourage everyone to attend. Now that winter break is over, we definitely have to get to work. We have begun to work on the Spring Survival Kits, Oozball, the April Raffle, and many other events. Please see any of the chairs if you are interested in helping out on the committees. Your help is always appreciated. We look forward to a very successful Spring Semester!

Student Senate

Scott Rattigan

Hello everyone! Welcome back to another installment of Senate news. If you were unable to attend last week's meeting, here's an update. Seniors, this Saturday night is the "97 Days 'Til Graduation" celebration! It will take place in the Rotunda from 10 p.m. - 2 a.m. There is a $2 cover charge and a cash bar will be on-hand. Be there! Be on the lookout for a tremendous Make-A-Wish Foundation campaign this year. Mark your calendars! The M-A-W kickoff is set for Monday, February 17th. Finally, I encourage representatives from clubs & organizations to come up to the Senate office and check your mailbox. Well, that's all for this week. Remember that the Student Senate meets every Wednesday, rain or shine, at 4:00 p.m. in Papitto Dining Room. Let your voice be heard!

SPB

Jeff Hill

Once again, hi to all. I hope that no one is getting to stresses out this early in the semester. However, if you are that gives you plenty of opportunity to come relax at some of our upcoming events, and we have many going on. First up, Friday the 7, Gina Merlino will be singing at the Junction. This event will be co-sponsored with MSU and will have a $1 cover charge. On Saturday the 8 and Sunday the 9, SPB will be showing Sleepers in Janikies. The Saturday showing will be at 9 p.m. which will have a $1 charge, and Sunday will be at 6:30 and 9:15 for a $1.50 which includes popcorn and soda.

On Thursday the 13 we start our Winter Weekend. John Aikers will be performing during dinner in South Dining Hall. He will be playing from 5-7 p.m. On Friday the 14, SPB will be co-sponsoring Singled Out with MSU. The winners couples will receive a pair of tickets to the Semi-Formal. This event will be held in South and all attending will be given a $1 off coupon for Michael Dean Ester who will start his hilarious comedy show at 9 p.m. This event will charge $2. Saturday the 15, starts the semi-formal in Newport. Back on campus, the movie Ransom will be showing at 9 p.m. in Janikies. Admission will once again be $1. Finally on Sunday, Ransom will once again be showing at 6:30 and 9:15. Admission will be $1.50 and will include popcorn and soda.

There is plenty of events coming up, so make sure you check them all out. Our weekly meetings are held on Monday's in Papitto at 4:30. All are welcome to attend. Have a great week all.

Huey, wow you rule! Beta, we all had a great time! The t-shirt situation was a little out of hand; Cindy and Gina's shirts are still wet I think. Dance party in the bathroom; how was that spill, Mel? Jennie, how about that Stogie? Deacon, I can't give you another one from the diaphragm.

Skivs, Ericka, and Jill seduced yet another pizza guy for free food. Ann, "Woo Doggie!" Hey Sherry, I hope your 21 was awesome! Sherry, did Steve teach you any new tricks Wednesday? Tonya, baby cakes is just not masculine enough, OK, so go sweet cheeks! Who's up for the graduation combo?

Well that's it for this week. Don't forget about our game night at J7, 8:00 p.m. Thursday. Get ready Sig Ep for Friday! Have a good one! Check ya later! Ivy May!

WJMF

Frank Milazzo

Somebody approached me last week and asked if I intend my Archway columns to be so sarcastic when I write them. Staring with a genuinely contemplative glare, I said, "Gee, I didn't think you could read."

Let's talk about some bands that you should be listening to when you are not studying for that 5th run at the PPS exam. First stop: MTV flavor of the minute- The Prodigy. This British band has been signed to Maverick Records (Madonna's label and home to Alanis Always Pissed) for a Summer '97 release. Since bands with techno elements seem to be catching on (Moby, Tricky, etc.), don't be surprised to hear from vocalist Keith Flint and crew in upcoming months. Mr. Flint might be the "Firestarter", but he looks like the bastard child of Rosanne Barr and Bozo the Clown. Next up are three bands you've probably never heard of: The Sneaker Pimps, Star 69, and Pigeonhed. All three bands have good albums out now (Yes, right now, so drop the Italian grinder and run to Strawberries), Sub-Pop's Pigeonhed being the personal stand out. Don't be surprised to see a lot of Garbage-based Sneaker Pimps in the near future. Remember, when you hear about them you can say, "I heard it from Frank's big mouth first." All three bands can be requested by calling 232-6150. In other music news, a little rumor for you. And no, the one about Me, Nigel, and the cross dressing midget wasn't true. Supposedly two bands have been signed for Lollapalooza thus far and a couple others are in the works. The annual summer festival is rumored to include Tool and Korn this year, with Prodigy, Republica, Tricky, and Marilyn Manson being worked on. I don't honestly know if any of this is true, so I don't want to fire you up just yet. I got overly excited last year when there were rumors of a Flock of Seagulls reunion tour.

By the way, all staff DJ's should note that the next meeting will be taking place on February 11, at the station, starting at 4 p.m. Remember to bring the six pounds of Captain Crunch, peanut butter, and duct tape. New members are always welcomed. Topics of discussion include how to make improvements in your show, profanity on the air, and why there should be more of both. Which reminds me, all carts with sexual acts must be cleared my James and his "fight the censorship posse." Until next week, I would like to dedicate this column to the person who is my inspiration. A guiding light, if you will- Mr. Bill Gates. Living proof that a little greedy guy with glasses can go a long way.

Passing Thought: Does anyone else find it ironic that Jerry Garcia was the lead singer of the Grateful Dead?

INTERNATIONAL INTERNSHIP KIEV, UKRAINE

1. Six credit hour internship with the Institute for International Business Development (IIBD) in Kiev, Ukraine. 20-24 hours of work per week for 14-week semester 40 hours of work per week for 6-week summer session.

IIBD is the leading business/economic consultancy and training institute in Ukraine. Launched in September 1995 as a joint project with the Watson Institute for International Studies at Brown University, IIBD works with private businesses in Ukraine interested in entering the global marketplace, particularly the U.S. market. IIBD also works with international organizations, such as the United Nations, the World Bank and the European Union, to support development transformations in Eastern Europe.

The Director of IIBD is Dr. Leonid L. Kistersky, Professor at Kiev State University, and former visiting professor at Brown University, Stanford University, George Washington University, and Konstanz University in Germany. A member of the Academic Council on the United Nations System and former Minister-Chairman of the National Center for the Implementation of International Technical Assistance to Ukraine, Dr. Kistersky will oversee the internship.

The Assistant to the Director is Anna Solodukha, who served as a Visiting Fellow in International Business and Economic Development at Bryant College during the fall of 1996. She is a post-graduate student at Kiev State University who has worked with IIBD since its founding. She will be responsible for the day-to-day management of the internship.

Ukraine gained its independence from the Soviet Union in 1991. Located in the heart of Eastern Europe, it is comparable in geographic size and population to France. It is a presidential and parliamentary republic. Its strategic location and domestic market potential, together with its rich natural resource base and skilled, low cost labor create unique opportunities for international business development. The Ukrainian economy is in transformation from the old Soviet planned economy to a competitive market system.

2. Qualifications: Junior or Senior status GPA 3.0 (out of 4.0)

Students must have exceptional written and oral communications skills. Basic knowledge of Russian desirable in some instances. Students must also be prepared and willing to meet the challenges of working and living in a cultural environment that is substantially different from the United States. They should be able to demonstrate initiative and independence on a day-to-day basis.

3. Type I Internship

A. The student will meet with the supervising Bryant faculty member, in consultation, via e-mail, with IIBD staff, to develop the internship.

B. Prior to departure, the student will participate in an orientation program on living and working in Ukraine.

C. The direction of the day-to-day efforts of the student will be under the guidance of the IIBD staff.

D. Evaluation of student performance will be conducted by IIBD in consultation, via e-mail, with the supervising Bryant faculty member. This will include a written report on the student's performance by the IIBD staff. The intern will be required to submit a written report of suitable length, as directed by the supervising Bryant faculty member.

4. Major topics of research: International Business, Investment/Finance, Economics in Transition, Emerging Markets, Accounting, Marketing, Management, Business Development

5. Opportunities to arrange three semester hours of credit in Ukrainian/Russian language and culture at a local university is also possible.

6. Cost to student: Student will pay for round-trip airfare, visa, room and board, health insurance, university fees (if applicable), supplies, and spending money. This is an unpaid internship.

7. For further information contact:

Theta Phi Alpha

Michelle Kramer

Hey Theta! I hope everyone had a good week! Congratulations on the banner, Mona! Thanks for Greg Brady and free dinner.

Thank you to all on Thursday. Leah was spotted! Thanks to KT for Friday night! Mona tried to dance, but she had an accident.

This week was different. Cosmixx made snowangels. Otovic has strict Dorito laws. Nikki got hurt out of lack of courtesy and injured her throwing arm. "He's not cool, but he's kinda loose." Chloe, Ali and Marie need to be a little quieter looking for a mid-night snack. Thanks Cammi, Splash and Hailey for the Friday night movie-Chloe. Otovic and Jolie saw everything through the window! Bzzzzzz. Cammi thanks Stimpy for helping to get our group together. "Please pass the rolls..." Lata Theta!

Hello everyone! I hope you are all having a good week. I'm still having a hard time getting used to all the work. Well, this week this past weekend was definitely a good time! For those of us who went to Dave Matthews, I'm sure you'll agree that it was an excellent show; thanks SPB! Gina, how about those seats? Steve-o, your car is throwing sparks! Thanks Shila and Mel for the ride; who knows where we would have been without you.

Delta was a great time except for the fact that I was almost strangled; don't come in Mel. Good old table dancing, only at Delta! Sig Ep, we definitely got out of control for only 2 hours. Fusco, you can't beat me in quarters! Sigs, you can't leave the team. Gina, just get the quarter in the cup. Hey Cindy, no anchors for you this Friday, we want to see you past 11:00. Heidi, just bring some with you. Christie, "Is it my turn yet?" Kelly and Mel, nice hiding spot. Sarah, how about that wipe out!

Thanks Delta Chi for an awesome time. Love the disco ball! That gator can kill you. Kelly, nice

Bryant Hockey closing in on Nationals

Pete Somers

Bryant's ice hockey team is one win away from going to the National Championships in St. Louis, MO. With a 5-1 win over WPI Friday night and a 14-1 pounding of Daniel Webster College Saturday night, the Bulldogs are almost assured a birth.

In their win on Friday night, Bryant was lead by the offensive trio of Jack Edwards, Steve Delaney and Dave Zielinski. Delaney recorded his third hat trick of the year with some mind boggling moves that sent WPI in a frenzy. Edwards broke WPI's spirit in recording the other two goals. Zielinski showed off his playmaking ability while notching five assists. Other assists went to Rich Botham, Eric Toussaint, Kevin Gill, and Joe Pallotta. Vin Digoia and Pete Somers backboned the victory in net, stopping a combined 30 stops.

Saturday night, Bryant absolutely massacred Daniel Webster to improve its overall record to 11-3-2. Bryant had 80 shots on net, and the game got so out of hand that everyone but the Bryant fans were in on the action. Edwards finished his magnificent weekend with a hat trick. Jack also broke Bryant's penalty record which he set last season, congratulations Jack! Paul 'Smokin' Dube turned in gutsy performance while netting two extraordinary goals. Sophomore sensation Tim 'Nifty' O'Brien dumbfounded the Daniel Webster goalies while scoring two goals. Shawn Tyler continued his impressive season by notching two goals. Other Bulldog goals came from Seth Anderson, Zielinski, Dave Dolph, Brian Tortolano, and Jim 'Mad-Dog' McGlynn. Players notching assists for Bryant were Delaney(8), Anderson (7), Botham(6), Toussaint (6), Pallotta (5), Dube (5), Ryan Griffin (5), Jim Feen (4), Gill (3), Zielinski (2), Bob Clark (2), McGlynn (2), and Tortolano (1). Digoia and Somers stopped 25 saves in the victory. Daniel Webster's goal was more out of pity than anything.

Thomas hits 1,000 in Bryant upset win

Last Thursday night, the St. Anselm College men's basketball team scored one of its biggest victories of the season when it drubbed ninth-ranked New Hampshire College, 81-57.

Yesterday afternoon, the Hawks were on the receiving end. Bryant College, ranked 18th in the country, waltzed into St. Anselm's gym and posted an 83-74 victory.

The win was only the Bulldogs' third in the last 25 meetings against St. Anselm. Bryant improves to 14-4 on the season, 8-3 in the Northeast-10. The Hawks drop to 11-8, 6-5.

The Bulldogs were led by senior guard Noel Watson, who notched a game-high 17 points. Herman Thomas had only two points in the second half (nine points overall), but his bucket with 14:21 remaining marked Thomas' 1,000 career point.

The day began on a sour note for Thomas as he picked up three fouls in the first two minutes of the game. At that point, St. Anselm held on to a 9-2 lead.

The Bulldogs then went on a 14-5 run. Then Jason Bennett canned a three-pointer midway through the first half, that gave Bryant a 16-14 lead and the Bulldogs never trailed again.

With 4:41 remaining in the half and Bryant leading 27-22, a fire alarm went off causing the sell-out crowd to be evacuated from the building. A pipe bursting caused the alarm to go off and it took over a half hour to re-start the game.

However, the Bryant offense never cooled off. After taking a 32-28 lead to the intermission, the Bulldogs went on a 22-4 run at the start of the second half. Fred Wande had eight points in the surge.

The Bulldogs increased their lead to as many as 28 points before the Hawks cut the lead to 11. Adam Zedonis (16 points) sparked the St. Anselm comeback.

Bryant scored 51 points in the second half, shooting 71 percent. The Bulldogs shot 55 percent for the game.

Four players reached double figures for the Bulldogs. Along with Watson's game-high 17 points, Wande added 16, Bennett, a sharp-shooter from St. Raphael Academy, chipped in with 13 as did Jim Burton.

Watson and Marc Mulherin led the Bulldogs with five rebounds and Mulherin, Burton and Wande all handed out four assists.

Kris Tardio, who entered the game with a 15.4 points per game average, led the Hawks with 17 points. Zedonis and Todd O'Connell added 16 points.

Bryant's next game is on Tuesday night when the Bulldogs travel to Syracuse to face LeMoyne College, a first-year team in the NE-10.
