

Homage to Pythagoras

Maria T. Lema
Archway Staff Writer

Dr. William Haas, professor of Humanities and Business Ethics designed and donated a sculpture titled "Homage to Pythagoras". The sculpture is located in the library and can be viewed from the first floor classroom corridor rooms.

Three overlapping squares form the base of the eight foot, three hundred pound relief sculpture. The sculpture suggests a visual and temporal experience of movement and countermovement.

Professor Haas began work on the sculpture in his cellar, however in order for the grand sculpture to fit through the doors at Bryant it had to be taken apart into six different pieces. In three days the sculpture was reassembled and mounted in the library with help from staff carpenters Bob MacKnight and Barry Frechette.

The message Professor Haas relays to Bryant students through his sculpture is encouragement to think about the power and beauty of ideas. He stated, "A² + B² = C² may not sound very exciting, however when you project the idea through your mind and allow yourself to see squares and their relation to the combinations of living relationships, then one can realize how fantastically exciting the universe is."

Professor Haas adds, "We're here to think. Thinking is as exciting as anything. I think students have considerably more intellectual depth than they realize."

The sculpture was strategically placed so that it could be viewed between classrooms. "Students congregate around those corners. They observe the sculpture and wonder about it's meaning. The sculpture is a way to stimulate some thoughts." Moreover, Professor Haas adds, "Although primitive people could count, it took a genius like Pythagoras to appreciate the implications of mathematics. At this point in time, man has ascended from a clever animal that could manipulate its environment to a prober of the heavens with the audacity to project his imagination and intellect beyond what he could see."

Can I See Your ID, Please?

Angelo L. Corradino
Archway Staff Writer

Due to complaints from students over the use of the Multipurpose Activity Center (MAC) by non-Bryant individuals, the Athletic Department issued a new policy.

Since the start of the semester, students who wish to use the MAC, must enter by the doors near the Jarvis Fitness center and present a valid Bryant ID. One guest is allowed per student.

"When I first arrived here last year, I was approached by a member of the Student Senate with concerns about the use of the MAC by outside people," said Athletic Director Dr. Linda Hackett. "I told him to be patient, and I will try and work things out."

Dr. Hackett started by using a gentle approach to restricting the outside use of the MAC. She hired nighttime supervisors to walk around the MAC and ask people, who were not Bryant students, to leave in a calm and gentle way.

"I did not want to offend the surrounding community, but at the same time, I wanted to help the Bryant students," said Hackett.

She said she empathized with the student body's concerns about the availability of the MAC, and agreed that they should be able to use the building whenever they wanted. As a result, they took the whole process one step further.

Another major reason for the change, according to Hackett, was a grave concern about extreme vandalism.

"I don't believe the student body would damage the facilities. [As a result] I felt this was a step we have to take," Hackett added.

"At first it might be more difficult to always have your ID, but in the long-run it is a lot easier on the students."

Dr. Hackett stressed the policy of requiring IDs is not new to Bryant. The student handbook states all students must carry their IDs with them at all times.

Along with restricting the availability of the MAC, Hackett has also extended the hours of the MAC. She scheduled intramural events around prime time demand hours to guarantee students at least one to two hours of gym time. However, Hackett also said there is big lull during the daytime hours when students are in class.

"From 7 a.m. - 2 p.m. everyday, the MAC is open and free for students who want to come down and work out or play basketball in between classes. They could start a series of pick-up games and then

Sexual Assault Mock Trial Upcoming

Student jury to decide...

She says it was rape. He says it was not. A mock trial in Janikies Auditorium on February 15 allows you to decide.

As part of Bryant's awareness program on sexual assault, Associate District Court Judge O. Rogeriee Thompson, a Bryant trustee, will hear a case involving an alleged perpetrator and victim portrayed by Bryant students Tim Boyat and Maria Bras.

"We're really excited about the program. We've been working hard on it since last semester and hope everyone comes out to watch," commented Bras.

The two parties will be represented by prosecuting attorney Mark Freel and defense counsel Gina Vigliotti. Freel and Vigliotti are from the Providence law firm of Edwards and Angell.

Twelve people from the audience will be randomly selected to compose a jury. In addition to the opinions of the jury, the audience will be polled on the verdict they believe should be rendered. There is no pre-determined verdict.

Mock Trial Committee Chair Doris Horridge commented, "This program is intended to increase awareness of sexual assault and tell students, men and women alike, about the resources available to them. In addition, we hope students will gain a better understanding of the law."

The idea of the mock trial was developed last spring. It is part of an education program offered by a special Task Force on Sexual Assault which President Trueheart appointed in September 1992. This group was formed in response to the recommendations of a task force appointed by the Rhode Island Commission on Women.

The mock trial is a joint venture on the part of the Bryant community. Some of the campus groups involved are: Health Services, Students Activities, Department of Public Safety, Counseling Services, and Campus Ministry.

"Our goal is to have everyone understand that all sexual assaults, including acquaintance or date rape, are serious crimes of violence that cause tremendous emotional and physical trauma," said Horridge. "A victim also needs to know that she or he is not to blame, and that help is available."

Other Bryant students who will be taking part in the trial include Joanna Hinds, who will play the role of the victim's roommate, and Brett Sandman, who will act as a doctor. Following the announcement of the jury's decision representatives from the Rhode Island Rape Crisis Center, Brother-to-Brother, and the Smithfield Police Department are expected to be on hand to answer questions about their support programs. Also at the trial will be members of Health Services, Counseling Services, and Peer Education program.

Thefts Continue on Campus

Julia Arouchon
Archway Staff Writer

A second theft on campus in three months resulted in the loss of $3,500 worth of audio equipment out of M 44 this weekend. Last October 29 a VCR and laserdisc player were reported stolen after the film series feature.

The audio equipment in M 44 was last seen in a wooden cabinet on Friday at 3:00 p.m., but was reported stolen on Monday. According to Public Safety Director George Coronado, there was no sign of forceful entry. The items stolen included a Technics receiver, Sony VCR, two diversity receivers, and two body pack transmitters. Coronado said DPS officers have been patrolling the area more closely in the Unistructure as a result of the theft in October.

"It is difficult to suspect this act was done by someone in the Bryant community, but so far it points in that direction. The individual(s) knows how we operate," said Coronado.

"Acts such as these rob the entire community," added Coronado.

Smithfield Police has been notified and the serial and model numbers of the equipment were entered into the National Crime Information Center (NCIC). This computer network can trace stolen equipment.

Did It Not Snow at Bryant?

Most students at Bryant were probably unaffected by yesterday's snow storm because they had the luxury of rolling out of bed, putting on their boots and walking to class. However, for the students, faculty, administration and staff who drive onto campus each day the conditions were less than desirable.

This was not the first snow fall of the season. So far, we have had a very difficult winter and Bryant should have been better prepared to handle the situation. The road conditions called for the decision makers to take a closer look outside.

Obviously, surrounding colleges and universities felt the roads were treacherous enough to cancel their classes. Schools including Rhode Island College, URI, Providence College, Johnson and Wales and CCRI canceled classes. Yet Bryant had only a two hour delay and still held night classes.

Wouldn't it make more sense to have everyone in one piece so they could attend classes the rest of the week? Last year the Commuter Connection expressed their concern over driving conditions after one student was in a car accident.

Even though the two hour delay may have been helpful, it was not communicated properly. Many were confused whether 8 and 9 a.m. classes were canceled or pushed back. One professor even called to find out if classes would be held two hours later.

If there was a concern that missing classes would throw off the schedule the calendar could always be modified. Extending classes one more day is a small price to pay for everyone's safety.

Sandler Off to the Big Screen

To the Bryant Community:

By now, I am sure you have heard about Adam Sandler. Last Semester we ran a survey to see if you would attend an Adam Sandler Concert if SPB sponsored it. After weeks of negotiations to get a contract, we are sorry to inform you that we were unable to book him.

Due to a recent signing of a major movie contract, Adam was forced to cancel all concert dates after March 1st. This makes it impossible for Bryant College to have him.

On behalf of the Student Programming Board, we thank you for your feedback on Adam Sandler. We encourage further suggestions on programming for you at Bryant College. Stop by our meeting at 4:30pm on Monday in Bryant Center Room 2B or call us at 232-6118.

Handicapped Deal With A Real "Challenge" at Bryant

We've all at least heard of the Americans with Disabilities Act that requires equal opportunities for the disabled. Undoubtedly, we've all noticed changes over the years as public places try to comply with handicap access laws. Perhaps, a new wheelchair ramp or another automatic door is installed.

However, if you're an average able-bodied person like myself, you've probably never really noticed these slight modifications in today's architecture to accommodate the handicapped. Instead, wheelchair ramps, elevators, and modified restrooms have become commonplace to us and blend into our daily lives.

When asked how we feel about opportunities for those challenged with a handicap, most of us would respond that they should have equal access and opportunities just as able-bodied citizens. Unfortunately, we seemed to have left our theory on equal opportunities at the end of the ramp.

I admit that I, too, am guilty of this offense. Prior to last semester, I recognized the importance of these simple accessibility features, but I failed to understand the real definition of accommodation. Typically, I thought that ramps, widened doors, and special parking spaces were enough to accommodate the handicapped.

Point of View

My thoughts changed dramatically when a new person joined The Archway staff as a staff writer last semester. After noticing Mike's writing talents, I went to compliment him one day on his very enlightening stories. Our discussion soon led to academics, and before I knew it, Mike had asked me to assist him in his Accounting Principles I course.

I had tutored many students in accounting both at Bryant and at other colleges, but this time it was going to be a real challenge for me. Mike was blind.

Accounting is difficult for many students even when they have the ability to see. How was I going to adapt exercises, charts, T-accounts, ledgers, etc.? How could I explain these things in words?

Nonetheless, I readily accepted, feeling that this would be a learning experience for both Mike and myself. Mike would be able to pass accounting principles and I would be forced to explain, in words, accounting transactions and theories—something that I usually did quite visually. However, I did not realize that not only was this going to be an academic challenge, but a bureaucratic challenge as well.

It was about halfway through the semester. I met with Mike's professor. She and I discussed Mike's progress thus far, and my role in the coming weeks. What I learned from our meetings was almost unbelievable.

For half of the semester, Mike had no textbook or any resource materials in Braille that he could "read." Later, audio tapes of a textbook became available. However, the book on tape was different than the book that the rest of the class used. This made classroom discussions hard to follow. (We later discovered through a report from UCONN, that taped textbooks are of little or no use for blind students.)

Now with two weeks left in the semester, it was apparent to myself and the professor that Mike would not be able to finish the course. We convinced Mike to re-take Principles of Accounting I in the spring

Bryant Reaches Out to Family Businesses

Mary G. Grosso
Archway Staff Writer

With many of Bryant's students coming from families which own and operate their own businesses, the future of the family business is clearly important. Most individuals see business as large corporations when in fact, over 90 percent of the 15 million businesses in the U.S. are family-owned and managed.

These businesses play a bigger role than realized by not only employing half of the work force, but also by creating two-thirds of all new jobs. Also, not all of these businesses are small operations. In fact, nearly 35 percent of the Fortune 500 firms such as Ford Motor Company are family enterprises.

Even though a large number of businesses are family-owned, less than 30 percent of them survive beyond the second generation and less than 13 percent through the third generation. Consequently, family-owned businesses are left to find a means not only to survive, but also to prosper.

Bryant College's Institute for Family Enterprise (IFE) was formed to help family businesses deal with this dilemma. IFE recognizes the unique managerial challenges associated with operating and sustaining a successful family enterprise.

The newest form of assistance IFE offers these businesses is the Family Business Executive Circle program. This circle is unique because it brings together regional family business leaders, Bryant College faculty, and professional advisors in order to define and solve problems facing family-owned businesses.

As stated by IFE Executive Director Dr. William T. O'Hara, the purpose of the circle is to "combat the high mortality rate of family firms." The circle's quarterly meetings will include a presentation by a successful family business entrepreneur, a focused exchange of ideas by participants on related topics, and a workshop in management skills.

The February 24 meeting will be the Inaugural event of the circle, at which George Berkowitz, founder and owner of Legal Sea Foods of Boston, will speak.

Tips About Money

submitted by the Department of Public Safety

- Life is hectic, but it's worth a moment to record checks as soon as you write them.
- Balance your checkbook once a month, not once a decade. Bounced checks cost you money and ruin your credit. If you don't have it, don't spend it!
- Pay credit card bills on time. Late payments, no payments, no

- credit.
 - Your checkbook is the same as cash. Don't leave it laying around. Ditto for credit cards.
 - A money machine card could be a free ticket to your cash. Keep it safe. Don't advertise your access number.

Upon notification, DPS contacted the Smithfield Police Department and requested them to respond. The subjects schedule was checked and the officers proceeded to the classroom. Upon arrival to the classroom the instructor gave the class a break and the subject was approached. The subject was questioned about his identity and his purpose for the weapon. The subject was advised on Bryant College policy regarding weapons on campus. The subject apologized and agreed to remove the weapon immediately from campus.

Larceny
February 1, 1994 - February 7, 1994 - During the week two larcenies were reported. The first was a stolen lamp. The lamp was not recovered. The second was the report of stolen jewelry. This report was later proved to be unfounded when the items were turned in to lost and found.

Illegal Substance
February 5, 1994 - Department of Public Safety Officers were dispatched to investigate a report of a smell of marijuana. After identifying themselves the officers and the RA entered the suite. The paraphernalia was confiscated and a subject was placed under arrest by the Smithfield Police Department (SPD).

Illegal Substance
February 5, 1994 - Department of Public Safety Officers were dispatched to investigate the odor of marijuana. Upon arrival the officers were invited in. What Is Your Career Plan Strategy?

Dr. Howard Figler from the University of Texas segregates student's approaches to career planning in three groups:

THE DIVINE CALLING - "I have known all my life about what I want to do so there is no need to explore career options at all".

HANG LOOSE - "I am keeping all my options open, I have no idea what life has in store for me so why should I think or worry about it?"

GROCERY STORE MENTALITY - "Just tell me what's available and I will choose the one that is most attractive."

All three approaches have something in common, they permit other people to have control over your decision process and rely more on luck than reason you have no control.

Based on a national survey of college students, less than 10% of college students know definitely what they want to be. The other 90% have to search, analyze, re-

Black History Month In The Dining Halls

Montie Ciarlo
ARA Food Services

There are numerous parallels between Italian, Mexican, Irish, and Central European "Cuisines," and that collection of Southern recipes we know as soul food.

Each cuisine evolved from the restricted cooking made necessary by the environment in which each group lived. Some of the favorite dishes of each culture are simply prepared, unsophisticated foods. Born from a need for thrift, each culture has its own history of taking the best food to the market, and surviving on the rest.

There are those who assert that Soul Food has evolved with little or no European influence. However this is not true. The extensive use of beans and other plain vegetables, as well as the use of offal can be traced to settlers of German descent who emigrated to the Valley of Virginia, and the Carolinas.

Soul Food has been described as "full and rich in tastes." What is bland becomes exciting by the addition of spices such as: garlic, pepper, bay leaf, hot pepper sauce, either from the West Indies, or Louisiana. As a result, dishes like chitterlings, ham hocks, and collard greens, black eyed peas, and sweet potatoes have been developed into some of the most flavorful dishes we know. To commemorate Black History Month, the Dining Service will be offering several menu items, such as red beans and rice, sweet potato pie, seafood jambalaya, and fried catfish with hush puppies, to name a few.

Be sure to look for them this month.

Celebrating Valentine's Day: A Time To Say "I Love You."

Isn't it strange that so many of us find it almost impossible to say those three very special words — "I Love You." We have so many hang-ups about expressing our feelings, that we hide behind all sorts of ploys just to avoid having to express our intimate emotions with another human being. How many opportunities we are given throughout the years to tell another person — perhaps a parent, a brother or sister, a spouse, a friend — how we really feel.

Chaplain's Corner

by Father Doug Spina
Catholic Chaplain

St. Valentine, who gave her life for the love of Christ and his belief in the Christian faith, inspires us to find the courage and serenity within ourselves to share with those whom we love our care and concern for them, our deepest feelings and thoughts. My friends, seize the moment! Put away your hang-ups and fears. Let's start breaking down our protective skills so that we can be free enough to speak about our true feelings for those whom we love and who love us. Loving another is a rare and precious gift which God gives us. Speak your mind and your hearts. When we live by truth, we soon discover a fullness of joy which we alone can possess. Happy Valentine's Day!!

The Bryant APES seek campus change and want to create a higher level of awareness about alcohol consumption and other drug use. The APES provide options to drinking. They promote the fact that students do not have to give into the pressures to drink; moreover, they emphasize that students receive more respect when they choose not to drink.

Bryant ROTC Excels Cadets on Quest for the Gold

Bryant's ROTC Cadets in training.

by Cadet John Larence

Over the past two weekends, Bryant ROTC cadets have been training vigorously for Advanced Camp '94 as well as towards the ultimate goal of receiving their gold bars at Commissioning. The future officers of the Army successfully completed the weekends, gaining valuable information that will vastly improve their military and business careers.

From January 28-30, four Bryant juniors (Tim Arone, Jeff Giroux, Pat Kennedy and John Larence) and 153 other cadets from New England and New York converged on Fort Devens in Massachusetts for barracks training. The weekend offered unique training in barracks life and maintenance, as well as leadership training and squad unity.

The MSIII's from 13 different schools were divided into 4 platoons, each consisting of four squads. For many this was the first time they trained with complete strangers. Many cadets also accepted leadership positions (squad leader, platoon sergeant, platoon leader, 1st sergeant or company commander).

Over the weekend, the cadets had to prepare the barracks for inspection, the billets and uniform had to be spotless to pass inspection. The cadets easily finished a 4 mile road march conducted on Saturday with a full rucksack. On Sunday, there was a final inspection of the billets by the Fort Devens officials. An After Action Review, summing up what was learned over the weekend, brought the weekend to a close.

This past Saturday, all of the Bryant cadets were joined by the cadets from Providence College for an 8 mile road march from Bryant College to Providence College. Morale was high throughout the march with cadets singing cadences along the route. The highly motivated ROTC cadets finished the 8 miles within 3 hours, surpassing the expectations of the cadre.

If you are interested in joining the ROTC program, stop in the ROTC office. Scholarships are available for Freshmen and Sophomores. For more information, see Cpt. Peterson or Cdt. Amy Church in Room 371 or call 232-6278.

semester. The professor and I vowed to eliminate, during the winter break, all of the stumbling blocks that were previously uncovered.

Who was to blame? It was certainly not the professor's fault. She had no idea that Mike was even going to be in her class until the first day of classes. It was not Mike's fault. He made an honest attempt to complete the course and he went so far as to obtain a tutor to assist his efforts.

Over winter break and into this semester, we uncovered more bureaucracy and red tape as we planned a new approach for Mike's course. Everyone we encountered had a different set of objectives. Once it was apparent what we needed to convey our accounting message to Mike, it was difficult at times to have those needs met.

I am relieved (and so is Mike) that things are now underway, and we're all very confident that this semester, he will complete this course once and for all.

Frankly, I do not believe the blame can be placed on one person or department. This situation—and I'm sure similar situations with other handicapped students—is a result of a lack of coordination and proper planning. In these situations the only ones that get hurt or cheated are the handicapped students themselves.

The wheelchair ramps and automatic doors are not enough. We must take one step further.

The administration of the College should plan the academics for handicapped students more carefully. Alternative methods of learning should be investigated. Rigid rules should be bendable so that handicapped students are able to meet these guidelines. I'm not suggesting that these students should have classes waived or even easier course work. What I mean is that the course work for these students—depending on their particular handicap—should be altered to allow these students to complete courses in different ways.

For instance, we found that Mike was unable to perform some traditional accounting problems. In their place, more of the theory behind the problems was stressed. Theories and concepts can often be easily expressed in words. Mike learned the same accounting theories and concepts in a different way from his able-bodied classmates.

Handicapped people do not want to be treated differently. There are circumstances that require modification in order for these people to have fair treatment.

For the most part, Bryant College has at least made an attempt to make its facilities more accessible to the physically challenged. Perhaps the College should take a second look at the Americans with Disabilities Act. However, this time it should concentrate on providing access and equal opportunities to all services offered by the College—the most important being an obtainable education for all students.

grab lunch before going to their next class," Hackett added.

Hackett said she is trying to schedule groups in the MAC during off times for students, such as Saturday and Sunday mornings.

"We are trying to get the right balance of open time and time when the MAC is being used by intramural and varsity sports," Hackett added. "January, February, and March are the busiest times of the year for indoor facilities. Trying to balance a schedule at this time is very difficult."

Schedules of these events, can be picked up at the table in front of the Jarvis Fitness Center or by calling the sports hotline at 232-6736.

Suggestions on how to improve the use of the MAC can be addressed to the athletic department by mail or in person.

"We are looking for feedback, either good or bad. If you have any ideas just tell us," Hackett concluded.

Hey sisters, wazzup?! Well, we've certainly had quite the productive week. Thank goodness pledging is starting soon so we can take a rest from all these activities. Good luck to all the greeks on the start of yet another pledging season.

Thanks to Delta (or Kappa Delta Phi) for a really great time on Thursday night. It is just too bad your chairs don't stay together. Thanks for showing us how fun it is to be "Punch Banshee". Also, thanks to Slug for helping us with everything.

Friday flew by when the sisters visited with Beta in the afternoon and Delta in the evening. Thanks guys, we all had a wonderful time.

D-Chi was the place to be on Saturday night, where we all had an intense debate as to our favorite country. Can anyone remember the winner? Also, the sisters didn't know that Dr. Peppers tasted so good.

Don't forget our chocolate sale on the 9th, 10th, and 11th in the Bryant Center. Chocolate makes a wonderful Valentine's present. Hint, hint.

To Skribbles, Swa-vay, WKA, and Wyz- the Cancun countdown has started! Sparx is also getting psyched for Boca. How many days to go?!

In awards this week, Space goes to Wyz, and Sis goes to WKA and Wyz. Our quotes are "Sista" and "I dare you..."

Beta Sigma Chi

by Dave Brockett

The Beta A team lost to SigEp, but more importantly lost star player Dobber to an ankle injury. We almost lost Rosko because Wendy tried to Harding him. We still have not figured out which team was paying her off, but Phi Kap is a likely suspect. Luckily, he was able to play on Monday, and along with Dingo led the team to a win over Tep. The Beta B team lost its first game this week despite career high games for Clam, Hutch, Imus, and Mack who had the pass of his career. Burgis lead the game in rebounds, unfortunately the only one he put back up was the game winner for the other team.

Beta would like to thank DZ for the jello last Thursday, Burgis we are sorry that the shirt did not live up to its expectations. Thanks to Alpha Phi for Friday's get together.

This week on the floor we received the message that Splint is not coming up at the end of Feb. because his girlfriend has a tournament, Hutch got himself stuck in the door and lost all his memories thanks to Fudd, Mack got to go on his first date with his new girlfriend, Kim finally hit the target after missing with her first shot that hit Otis, Imus may have to go inactive, Burgis had a surprise visitor hiding for him late Sat. night, and Lewie announced his contribution to the floor.

Bryant Karate

by Eric Zine & Chris Bilotti

First of all, we would like to welcome everyone back from their arduous holiday stretch and break—just kidding Hitman—"AAHHHHGGGGG." Hopefully all was safe, prosperous, and substance free. Our congratulations goes to Sifu Renaud for the latest addition to his family.

This semester appears to be very promising, especially with the addition of some new students (who might want to write the article next week). There will be various outside tournaments to look forward to as well as a possible tournament at Bryant. We also expect that there will be a large turnout of black belts as was last semester. A Tuesday night class at 7:00p.m. will be taught by Sensei Doherty. Sensei Doherty is a dedicated alumnus who we can all learn a lot from. You are all encouraged to attend his classes. For all the upper belts, we're expecting a few changes which will inevitably further enhance your skills and knowledge in the martial arts.

Also, a few club social events are being planned at this juncture. Further notice and details will be given in class which gives you more reason to get in shape. Lastly, for the recently departed, we thank you for your time, dedication, and memories.

P.S. We'll try to get over it.

Bryant Players

by Tracy Banasieski

First of all, tomorrow the Bryant Players are once again sponsoring a Dress Down/Up Day to benefit the Ronald McDonald House. Please support the Bryant Players and help out a great cause by purchasing your Dress Down Day stickers.

The cast for "Little Shop of Horrors" has been settled. Rehearsals will be every Monday through Thursday at 5:30 (except Tuesday they will be at 6:00). Congratulations to everyone on their parts. The musical is expected to be performed in mid-April.

That's about it for the Bryant Players this week. Hope everyone's semester is off to a great start!

College Republicans

by Paul V. Liss

Hello everyone! Before I get into this weeks article, the Bryant College Republicans would like to send an important message to the entire campus. The Make-A-Wish Foundation needs everyone's help in order to succeed. This is a good cause and they could use your spare change to make a difference in someone's life. There is a table right in front of the Bagel Wagon that takes donations.

In other news, President Clinton will try to sell his $1.5 trillion budget to Congress this week. It will be interesting to see reactions to this package by both Republicans and Democrats. All you smokers out there will not like this proposal because it raises taxes on a pack from 24 cents to 99 cents, Sorry! Make sure that you keep up with the political scene because it could affect you. Take care and see you next week!

Delta Chi

by Frank L. Milazzo

Here we are at, yet another, week at Bryant. Not that much has been going on around here. I hope nobody is being overwhelmed with work yet. College would be so much easier if these darn classes didn't get in the way. It's like they expect us to learn something.

Our basketball team is doing well. We've won most of our games in the past weeks. Players like Derek Swanson and Greg Kosiorek have really helped us offensively. Not to mention our favorite hyper-active coach, James. His "unique" coaching style combined with his extremely loud yelling voice has pushed the team to win. We are looking forward to a strong season.

It's good to see the floor wasn't trashed when the E-Board went on its retreat last Saturday. I'm surprised they trusted us to stay up there by ourselves. Expect for a few minor breaks and bruises I think we handled ourselves pretty good. We'd also like to thank Alpha Phi and everyone else that came up.

The brothers would like to take this time to thank our faculty advisor, Ken Sousa, for all he has done for the fraternity since joining us. I don't think we have ever said it formerly, but we appreciate all the work he does for the fraternity and we look forward to many years of him with us. On that note, I will say a fond farewell. C-ya when I see ya.

The fraternities on campus are going to have an information session in the Main Lobby of Dorm 15 today at 5:30. All who are interested or curious of what a fraternity can offer them, are welcomed to attend. Each fraternity will have two members who will talk about their fraternity. The session should only be 20-30 minutes long. Come see what we are about!

Phi Kappa Sigma

by Daniel R. Bliss

Well, this semester started off a little shaky here in Phi Kap Land. Cappy is still mourning the loss of Hal, his iguana. We all new he was real thin and malnourished, but we all looked at Sugar D and thought, hey, if he can make it...

Anyway, enough fun and games. We are all looking forward to Friday's much awaited gala events. The coming weeks should be thoroughly enjoyable for all participants. Our basketball team started off the season right by overcoming TKE in a nail biter that will be remembered for years. And Heat is looking forward to the DKE game on Thursday. Speaking of Heat, he has put up missing person posters for his roommate. Has anyone seen a person with a huge nose?

Well, that is enough from me. Until next time, Cheerio, and Merry Christmas.

Phi Kappa Tau

by Rob Perinka

Hello Bryant!!! Long time no see. I even had to make special contacts to get this article in. It may be a little late but way to go Bills! 0 for 5 in '95 sounds like a good campaign. Anyway, welcome back and I hope everyone had a good break. Dudek and Jeff made a friend at Club Babyhead. How is Fishman doing Mark? Since we have been back, we have had the privilege to hang with those crazy Phi Sig sisters. Tri Sigma also gave us the honor to make their acquaintance. Theta came over to play this weekend and it was a great time until one of those Theta Phi Alpha sisters started a fire in Wolf's closet. At least that is where the Fire Marshall looked. Izzy just called and said it is 70 degrees in North Carolina. Just figured I'd spread a little news from the homefront.

In KT-LZ Sports... Basketball is 3-0 this season. Highlights include Shaq Marino's recent scoring tear, Frazier's coaching and cheerleading antics and Jeff-Abdul Jabbar's 68 ft hook shots. In hockey, a sad note, we lost 7-4, but went out with style as we played with no subs and three people we never saw in our lives.

A brief congrats go out to Jeff and Justin on their Supernovas.

Hi everyone!! We hope that you all had a great weekend. We would like to thank DKE and TEP for a fun weekend. First welcome back to Kim. We're glad that you weren't gone that long. The sisters weekend was rather interesting. Thanks Beta for Saturday. It was a "treat" to hang out with you guys. Throughout the weekend one of Brigitta's dreams came true. Don't run up any phone bills though (867-5309). HAPPY BIRTHDAY to Alison, Coolie, Target and Connie!! Food for thought: Skippy peanut butter is on sale at Almacs this week. Byrd you need to pick up the pace, so far you're in last place. When will the ghosts of B5 show their faces? Hey Cleopatra- go back to sleep!! Well that's all for now. Except for the Question of the Week: Can you believe that some people always are on the same floor? Phi Sig Top Cat!!

Hi, everyone! Hope you are all having a terrific week! SAA has been very busy this past week with its Sweetheart Raffle. We were able to sell around 500 tickets. The drawing was held on Tuesday, February 8, 1994 at 6:00 in the Bryant Center. Congratulations to all the winners. Denise would also like to thank the members who helped sell the tickets. You all did a GREAT job!!!

As we told you last week, we will be collecting pictures for the Senior Supplement in the weeks to come. So start searching your drawers for all those Bryant College "unforgettable" moments. We are still looking for people to help us out with the supplement. So if you are interested in learning more, come talk to us at the next meeting.

Spring is just around the corner, or so they say! And SAA is getting ready to start things up for Oozball. But we do need your help. Start talking to your friends and think about setting up a team. We would really like to have lots of teams competing against one another this year. So, look for more details about the event coming soon.

Well, it's time to say goodbye. But I do hope to see everyone at the meeting on Thursday at 4:00 in Papitto. Don't forget, new members are always welcome. See ya later Bryant!!!

SPB

by Stacey L. Parron

Howdy folks! Congratulations are in order for the December Chairperson of the month, Laura Barrett for organizing the Spring Break trip and for Donna Parchesky, the Voting member of the month! We would also like to extend a warm welcome to the new Assistant Director of Student Activities.

The semi-formal is the big news this week. The big event will be Saturday, February 12th at Rhodes on the Pawtuxet from 7:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m. For only $25 you can still go and enjoy transportation to and from Rhodes, dinner, and dancing. No date is required to attend - get a bunch of friends together and go out for a good time! For those taking the bus, it departs from the circle at 6:30 p.m. Be sure to be on time!

On Sunday, February 13th, go see "Sleepless in Seattle" for $1.50.

Show times are 7:00 p.m and 9:15 p.m. Admission price includes a free soda. You can also purchase pre-sold movie tickets here or at the Info Desk for $5.00. All proceeds go toward Spring Weekend.

The last thing on my list is to tell you about the Roommate Game. It will be held on Wednesday, February 17th at 7:00 p.m. in Papitto. Come out and see how much you really know about each other!

All SPB general meetings are held on Mondays at 4:30 in meeting room 2B. Also, remember to make your donations to the Make-A-Wish Foundation. Help grant a wish to a terminally ill child for just $.25 an inch.

Week three begins. The basketball season is underway, TKE is 0-2, but we're hoping for a better showing as the season proceeds. Congratulations to those who actually made it around the world.

Going back to games, Deanna, hats off to your great performance. All I can do is ask for a rematch. Let me know when and where. Paintball was quite an experience, painful but definitely enjoyable. Dancing Bears, the TKE 'B' team had a couple of good games and all the players are looking forward to more challenging matches. An honorable mention for T.J., Chuck, Mike and Jeremy for their contribution to the team. That pretty much covers what was otherwise a pretty slow week.

Quotes of the week, "Thank you God for...!" (Chunky), "I've been shot." And from Zeus, "Shoot me again and I'll kill you!"

That's all for this week, until the next time, enjoy the snowball fights.

Men's Basketball Ousts Two Conference Opponents

Angelo L. Corradino
Archway Sports Writer

The men's basketball team split four games last weekend to bring their record to 10-12, 6-8 in the NE-10.

Last night the team played Merrimack and came away with their second win in three days.

Bryant jumped out 34-26 in the first half, with Jerome Grier leading the way with 19 points. In the second half the team was able to maintain their lead and win 71-63.

On Monday the team traveled to Springfield and came away with a much needed victory 83-72. High scores for the game were Dave Burrows with 26, Kevin O'Brien with 18, and Herman Thomas with 12.

"We reversed a tough home court loss against Springfield last week, it was a game we should have won," coach Ed Reilly said.

"We did a nice job taking away their strength which is their two back court players. Everyone played nice on the defensive end."

The team traveled to Quinnipiac last Saturday and dropped a close game.

Quinnipiac came out strong and took an early lead, but Bryant was able to get right back into the game. At the half, Bryant was able to pull within two points and carried the momentum into the second half.

With .2 seconds left in the game,

Kevin O'Brien had a chance to send the game into overtime, but a hurried three-point attempt hit off the front of the rim. Quinnipiac came away with an 82-79 win.

High scorers in the game were Burrows with 28, Jerome Grier with 11, and Colin Lawson with 11. Burrows also grabbed 11 rebounds and was 10-12 from the free-throw line.

"We are encouraged with our last five games, except for St. Anselm's," Reilly added. "We have let the games get away from us in the second half, losing four of those game by a total of 10 points. [Despite this] The team has been playing very resilient and have stepped up their level of intensity."

Against St. Anselm's, the Indians were unable to hold off a second half charge and were defeated 102-79. High scorers in the game were Burrows with 20, Chris Berntsen with 16, and O'Brien with 12.

Coach Reilly hopes the last few games will be a "springboard for the rest of the season."

"Our goal is to win our last five games and head into the playoffs on a positive note," Reilly added.

The Indians will travel to Bentley on Saturday and Stonehill on Wednesday.

Ups and Downs for Women's Basketball

Pam Barry
Archway Sports Writer

The Bryant women's basketball team had a tough week, but came out with two wins and one loss bringing their record to 12-11.

In an overtime thriller, the lady Indians came away with an 82-78 win over Merrimack. The lady Warriors led most of the game and Bryant was able to make a late surge to send the game into overtime. Bryant was then able to pull away in the overtime period to win.

Early last week Bryant played St. Anselm's and were proclaimed the victors by a score of 76-73. Liz Davies topped the scoring with 29 total points and Stephanie Meyer added 13 points for the team's win.

The game against Quinnipiac was a tight game up until the last five minutes when Bryant was able to break out ahead. Up by only a basket at the half, Bryant was able to stay on top with the final score at 95-86.

Katie Haik and Jen Cloos had excellent games for Bryant. Kristin Regan scored 19 points and Heather Lopes, Davies and Haik all had 15 points each for Bryant.

However, the team faced a big disappointment two days later when they lost to Springfield by 2 points. The final score was Springfield 60 and Bryant 58.

Coach Mary Burke commented on the team. "We can beat the teams at the top and lose to teams at the bottom all in one week. We are looking for consistency in our game, especially in defense."

Coach Burke, as well as the team, is hoping that the winning team comes out for the remaining games this season.

Hockey Upset by Salve Regina

Jasen Crozier
Archway Sports Writer

The Bryant Hockey team traveled to St. George's ice arena in Newport on Saturday, February 5 to take on third place Salve Regina.

The team felt confident at the start of the game because they had previously beaten Salve 6-4.

Unfortunately, Bryant's prior victory induced a state of overconfidence, and the home team stunned Bryant by a score of 8-3.

During the first two periods, Salve drilled Bryant goal tenders Pete Sommers and Ben DiAngelo.

The home team scored six times securing a solid lead over Bryant's dazed club. Bryant's only highlights came from sophomore John Dube, senior co-captain Jim Barra, and sophomore Rollie Woodcock who each scored lone goals for the team.

Co-Captain Harry Kojoin commented about the upset:

"We played the entire game with zero enthusiasm. We were skating with arrogance instead of intensity. That loss put us in our place and will hopefully get us back on track."

The defeat lowered Bryant's record to 5-2-1, and their standing in the NECHA will be predetermined when the results of last weekend's games are posted. Bryant was previously in first place.

This Saturday Bryant skates at home against their long time rival W.P.I. The game starts at 9:00 p.m.

Home games are played at the West Warwick Civic Center.

Wallyball Overview

Wallyball is basically volleyball played on a racquetball court. The rules are similar and you would play with a volleyball size blue rubber racquetball. You are allowed three hits on each side, but you cannot hit two walls or the back wall on the serve or return. The game can be lightening fast because of the decreased size of the court or moderately paced depending on the level of play. We will organize leagues according to participation (i.e. advanced, intermediate, and/or beginners.) Please remember rosters are due by February 16th, so don't miss the chance to play such an exciting game. If you have any questions, please contact Karen at 232-6360. Also, the net will be 8' for co-ed purposes.

ATHLETE of the WEEK

Brett Dennett

This week's Athlete of the Week is Brett Dennett of the Racquetball Team. Brett's record stands at 5-1 this season. In a tournament this weekend, Brett was the only man to win a match against West Point as well as to win both his matches.
