

Saguaro

DENNIS SALEH

The desert night
touches the air

like the perfume
of a woman

you have lived
with for eternity

and never known
She is swaying

with the silence
ribbons of time

she hears over
the polished sands

of the ballroom
everyone has left

Overhead
at midnight

the moon
fastens

its antique
corsage