

Constellation

JANET MCCANN

The sky was full
of bears and warriors,
God put them there.
They wheeled over us,
their footfalls
padding down corridors
of our dreams.

Growing up erased
the lines between,
reset the sky to
a chaos of anarchic lights,

with only now and then
like a comet,
a connection.