TUITION RAISED $200

At a special meeting of the Student Senate open to all students, Dr. Schyler Hoslett announced the decision of the Board of Trustees to raise the tuition $200 to a new high of $1,450. There will be no change in room and board rates; and, assured Dr. Hoslett, none of this increase will be earmarked for the new campus.

The president stated that very well at keeping the tuition at the low rates it has been and continued on to compare similar institutions and their rates (Some examples—Nasson $1,800, Bentley $1,680, Babson $1,800, P.C. $1,700, RISD $2,000, Barrington $1,450.)

Inflation was given as the culprit, although salaries and other expenses were increasing in their own right. Specifically mentioned were:

Inflation	$150,000
Computer	60,000
Financial Aid	45,000
Salaries & Personnel	115,000
Student Services	10,000
	$380,000

General Fee Explained

In explaining the College's finances, mention was made of the much disputed "General Fee" of $75 levied on all students yearly.

Approximately 61% of the student's $75 goes for activities, which includes the operation of the Activities Office, the Archway, The Senate, the GLC, Masquers, the movies on Wednesday evening, and intermural sports.

The dispensary claims about 25% of the fee. This provides for a staff of three nurses and a general practitioner and specialists who may be called in.

About 14% goes for the nebulous "catch all" of General which provides for the Lecture Series, Class Day, Ledger, and Commencement expenses not met by the graduation fee.

Parking Solution Sought

In other business, Dr. Hoslett told of actions being taken by the Administration with the Traffic Department, the mayor and councilmen, to alleviate or eliminate the acute lack of parking facilities for commuters, especially after last month's posting of "no parking anytime" signs along various streets nearby. The College's approach will be toward making certain streets "one-way" so that parking will be permitted on both sides of the street.

Psychic Phenomena Demonstrated

An overflow crowd of Bryant students listened and watched last Monday evening as Mr. John Kolitsch, noted hypnotist, presented "Phenomena of the Mind." For the first time, at least since your reporter came to Bryant, the Lecture Series presented one of the most interesting speaker-demonstrations ever.

Volunteering from the audience, twenty-six students participated in the demonstration. Reminding his subjects that the demonstration was not a stage show, Mr. Kolitsch had the students relax by removing eye glasses, taking off coats, and loosening belt buckles. Mr. Kolitsch noted that certain types of personalities would be automatically disqualified for the demonstration because of tension or apprehension. This was done, and four individuals were asked to leave the stage.

The demonstration began by placing Jon Frede in a completely passive state. Mr. Kolitsch did this by having Jon concentrate on an object on the ceiling and through verbal suggestion. Mr. Kolitsch explained that the hypnotic state occurs with everyone between the time one is awake and the split second before sleep occurs. What hypnosis is actually is stretching this split second over a longer period.

Returning to Mr. Frede, the subject, while being placed in the hypnotic state, was told to stretch his arms in an upward position, at which point Mr. Kolitsch continued his discussion with the audience. Jon remained in this position for over reactions were those typical ten minutes at which point Mr. Kolitsch had his subject re-awakened. "The ability to overcome the physical strain of the feat performed is all part of the mind," Mr. Kolitsch stated. Continuing, he said that most people only use 10% of their conscious mind, while under hypnosis an individual in the relaxed state has the ability to use 100% of his brain power.

Following this point, Mr. Kolitsch placed those remaining individuals on the stage in a hypnotic state by having them clasp their hands over their heads as tightly as possible, and concentrating on the tips of their fingers. Once in this state and fully relaxed, the entire group sat down, and Mr. Kolitsch proceeded to demonstrate the existence of total memory under hypnosis. Betsy Bixler provided most of the attention at this point with her recollection of incidents when she was only six years old. Betsy, while under hypnosis, related her interest as a singer, and remaining in this state, sang two selections from Sound of Music. Once brought back to the normal state, Betsy related to the audience that she had no recollection of any of the incidents while under hypnosis.

Working with the entire group, Mr. Kolitsch demonstrated how attention of a subject or subjects can be directed towards a given goal. In the case of the demonstration, reactions by the subjects were shown to heat, cold, rain, the music of a merry-go-round, and the heat of competition in an ice cream eating contest. The of the real situations given although none of them actually existed on the stage.

Mr. Kolitsch demonstrated the power of suggestion with Chic McMahon relating an imaginative story about the arrival of a flying saucer. The amazing part was that Chic told the audience the story in the language of the saucer people. Further, another subject stood before the audience and interpreted the language and related the story in English.

Next, Mr. Kolitsch demonstrated post hypnotic suggestion by giving special commands to three of the subjects. Using special key words or phrases, one student barked refreshments as if in a ballpark, one danced as a ballerina, and the last repeated the phrase, "Its what's up front that counts" each time Mr. Kolitsch said "because."

The final demonstration showed the will of the mind. Here, Bob Warren stiffened his body, all under hypnosis, to the point where he could be suspended over two chairs. To further prove that Bob was not faking, Mrs. James Estey stood on top of his legs while he was still suspended between the chairs.

This reporter entered the auditorium as a skeptical non-believer, but once the demonstration had ended I was convinced of the power of hypnosis. Many students missed this worthwhile demonstration, but it is hoped that Mr. Kolitsch might be asked back in the very near future.

Computer Head Named

Charles M. Snyder has been appointed Director of Bryant's new Computer Center. As Director of Data Processing of Oswego County, New York, Board of Cooperative Educational Services, Mr. Snyder has been in systems design, programming and operation of installed IBM 402 Unit Record equipment and an outside IBM

1130 computer utilized on a leased time basis. The Center also rented time on an IBM 360/40, a 1401, and a Univac 9200. Mr. Snyder is now conferring with Bryant College faculty and administrative members regarding the applications projected for the IBM 1130 now on order and expected to be on campus in June.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR . . .

Is Bryant Outstanding . . . or Second Rate?

Dear Editor,

I am writing in reference to the series of statements made by the Archway. In the articles much has been said about the degree of advancement our school has achieved in the past year. I feel that while great strides have been made, there remains a serious problem in accomplishing the goal of being an outstanding school. This problem exists in the classroom — the heart of any college. Many classrooms have taken on the resemblance of a show with loud talking, rude remarks, or on the other hand, complete lack of interest on the students' part. The blame for these actions cannot be entirely in the lap of either the teachers or the students.

Many teachers show boredom, disinterest, and in some cases, lack of preparation in their presentation. It is no wonder that there is a corresponding response on the part of the students. Other teachers feel that their lectures would not be complete without anecdotes about their experiences, and in the meantime, any class discipline has dissipated. I feel that those teachers who do not reach the standards required of a college interested in improving its academic standard should be weeded out and replaced by qualified teachers.

school internally, no matter how much is done to improve it externally.

Sincerely yours,
James F. Moriarty '72

Student Officials Better?

To the Editor:

As a student at Bryant College, I am paying an activity fee. This fee is used, among other things, to pay officials and scorekeepers for intramural sports. In the past, the officials have been student athletes. I have no objections to paying these fine representatives of our school for this part-time work, but why should my money be spent on an official who is no longer a student at Bryant. This situation is very unfortunate, both to Bryant athletes as well as to the intramural program. In my opinion, any student at this school, especially athletes, deserves the job of officiating and probably could do a more competent job, than an ex-student has been doing.

Military Bugging You?

Here is your opportunity to find out how your military obligation will affect you. It will not be a recruiting program, but an opportunity for you to get a broader view of what the armed forces have to offer.

On April 23, 1969, at 7:30 p.m., the Veterans Club will hold a smoker for all students who are interested in finding out the facts of life about the military service. The program is designed to help the Bryant student make his choice in the inevitable — his military obligation.

The evening will include a presentation by veterans from the club who will give their impressions of the branch of service they were in. Recruiters from each branch will explain the benefits available to college undergraduates and graduates. The meeting will then be open to questions from the students followed by coffee and donuts for personnel talks.

The Students First-At Last

The meeting before Easter between Dr. Hoslett and the student body marked a new stage in the development of Bryant College. At last it has been realized that the student body is an important and vital part of the college. Dr. Hoslett should be highly commended for his decision to inform the students of the new hike in tuition before releasing it to the TV and radio stations and the newspapers.

An act like this can only better the sometimes strained student-administration-faculty communications. Dr. Hoslett realizes, I hope, that the student is the most important part of the college. Without the student, there would be no college. A poor relationship between the administration and the students can be harmful if not deadly to a college, as can be seen in the recent San Francisco State trouble. If Bryant is to avoid this kind of unfortunate circumstances, it is up to Dr. Hoslett, his fellow administrators, and the students to insure clear channels of communication.

The above remarks are in no way to infer that the present president of Bryant was ineffective in his desire for close communication with the students. On the contrary, Dr. Jacobs was quite understanding of the student viewpoint. The point intended is that it is no longer possible for the president to see every student who desires a conference. The job of the president must be slightly isolated from the students in order to carry out the successful operations of this position. The president of Bryant is like that of a large corporation. If the president were to concern himself with the everyday operations of the college, he would never accomplish anything.

This is an important time in Bryant's history, we are not only in the midst of planning a new campus and a new educational policy, but we are also surrounded by a new breed of college student. With dissension everywhere, it becomes a question of whether or not Bryant wants or needs these revolutionary type students. It is my opinion that so long as Dr. Hoslett maintains his concern for the student, the channels of communication remain open, and the student senate continues as it has in the past, it will be an effective voice for student action, Bryant has no need for these revolutionaries.

In the end, it all boils down to a simple case of respect. If the administration respects the student, then the student will respect the college and the administration.

No Cuts Plus Two Months

Now that the new cut policy has been installed and is in operation for two months, let us take a brief look at a few of the initial reactions to the change.

During the first few days of the new semester, many students approached me and other senators with complaints about the fact that attendance was still being taken in most of their classes. They related their eligibility to participate in the new program, and that they were being "cheated" out of their just due. Following this outcry, the ARCHWAY proceeded to investigate the cause of the grievance, and we discovered that the Dean's office required the taking of attendance in order to meet requirements for financial aid given to students. However, since that time, further inquiry has been made, and it seems that only registered existence of the student using financial aid was all that was needed. Notification of successful completion of a given course of study at the end of the semester is enough to verify classes attendance. Therefore, on this one complaint the students were right in their efforts, and that the time being wasted at the beginning of class need no longer occur.

To determine what effect the new policy had on the student, I went to several members of the faculty to reveal the absence rate so far this semester. My results were notably conclusive, and they revealed two points of issue. First, some teachers noted little change in attendance under the new policy as opposed to the program during past semesters. Second, many teachers questioned stated that absences were, in some classes, more than double the figures available after the same length of time in previous semesters.

These are not opposing views necessarily, considering the individuals that I talked with on this subject. Based on classroom manner alone, I chose those teachers that were considered, in my opinion (or general campus gossip) to be either top notch in their field, or at the other end of the spectrum. Here is the point in which I found considerable correlation. The teachers that recorded little change in absences were the ones rumored to have a more improved classroom technique, while the teachers reporting heavy cutting were considered in the opinion of the college grapevine to be the proverbial rotten-apples in the barrel.

Needless to say, these facts herein presented might be taken as rubbish, and rightfully so, but still, one cannot escape the coincidence related in my investigation. As such, it would be foolhardy to pass off this revelation, as has been done by our academic deans in the past. Students, for three semesters plus, have been wasting time by evaluating their teachers, and for the first time Bryant has a test of truth in the new cut system.

With this evidence in mind, it would be wise to make the necessary adjustments in order to meet those lofty goals for Bryant's future.

The Vice-Presidency

Now that we're back in the swing of things after a well-rested (or should we say hyperactive) vacation, we would like to do some reflecting on an administrative change made recently. It is one of great importance to the College, the faculty, and the students, and in the future more than ever will have a direct bearing on where we as an institution are going.

In January of 1968, the Board of Trustees announced that Dean Lionel Mercier of the College of Business Teacher Education has been appointed acting Vice-President for Academic Affairs replacing Dr. Charles Russell, who had resigned to accept a position elsewhere. Everyone was intrigued by the title "acting," but as Dr. Mercier says, "I accepted the position only to fill in until a permanent candidate for the job was found."

Dr. Mercier, since coming to Bryant in 1939, has spent most all of his time in the Secretarial and Teacher Education Departments. It was this experience and that of his business background which led the Trustees to appoint him to the demanding, yet somewhat thankless job of Acting Academic Vice-President.

It's not easy to step into such an important position not knowing for how long a period of time it will be held, yet realizing that the College must continue functioning and that is your responsibility. But Dean Mercier filled in, worked quietly if unassumingly.

Teaching was always closest to his heart, yet he agreed to forego this to help the College in a trying time of need . . . a time of curriculum changes, expansion problems, tuition rises, administrative reworkings, increasing Bryant student power and responsibility, and constant upheavals and realignments in education.

Thanks Dr. Mercier.

Gold Bars to College Grads

Guaranteed assignment to Officer Candidate School is the Army's enlistment incentive offered to college graduates.

According to 1st Lt. Charles Barber, who will be on campus with the OCS Selection Team at the Cafeteria on April 28 and 29, the offer comes as part of the current expansion program to meet in increased need for junior officers.

"College seniors from accredited colleges may apply for active duty with assignment to Officer Candidate School if they are citizens and at least 18½ but not over 27 years old. This is an exclusive, demanding program for young men who are aiming high and who have the physical stamina and mental capacity to be an officer in the United States Army. Those who qualify will receive leadership training reserved for the cream of the crop. OCS graduates will be commissioned as Second Lieutenants and will build valuable qualities of self-confidence and leadership that will pay off in a civilian career."

Under the OCS program, college graduates are guaranteed attendance to Officer Candidate School before enlisting. The total length of active service is only 2 years and 10 months.

In addition, the OCS Team will be discussing all aspects of Army enlistment opportunities, such as Warrant Officer Flight Training and the Women's Army Corps Junior Program.

Investment Club Hears Non-Woven Fabric Representative

On Thursday, March 20, members of the Bryant College Investment Club visited the Turks Head Club as guests of Mr. William B. Sweeney. At this meeting the Providence Society of Financial Analysis presented a representative of the Kendall Company as their guest lecturer. Kendall is a leading manufacturer of health and hygienic products for hospitals and consumers. It is also a major producer of woven and nonwoven fabrics. The talk concentrated mainly on the non-woven fabric industry. Those members who attended found the talk highly informative and are looking forward to future visits to these monthly meetings.

After researching various investment prospects, members of the Investment Club recently voted to increase its portfolio with the purchase of six shares of S.C.M. Corp. at $39.64 per share. In addition to this recent acquisition, the club's current portfolio also includes ten shares of American Cyanamid at $27.25 per share, five shares in Conn. Edison at $45.75 per share, five shares in Northwest Airlines at $73.37 per share, ten shares in R. H. Macy at $41.25 per share, and ten shares in California Comp. at $38.87 per share.

Although S.C.M. Corp is known mainly for its typewriters and office equipment, it is in fact a well diversified company with sales in household appliances, chemical resins, coatings, paper, foods, communications devices, and electronics. The company has recently developed and received a patent for a new copy process that should be faster and more economical than office copiers now in use.

Members of the Investment Club are presently concerned with expanding their portfolio and researching those stocks currently held. All students interested in taking part in the activities of researching, buying, and selling of stock are invited to attend the next Investment Club meeting.

Dr. Manion Faces Difficult Task Ahead

We feel that the Board of Trustees' choice of Dr. Thomas Manion as Vice President of Academic Affairs was an excellent one. Dr. Manion has proven in the past that he not only understands the students' needs and problems, but is able to apply these wants and needs in a workable and speedy fashion.

As chairman of the Faculty Curriculum Committee, he has repeatedly echoed the students desires for more and better electives, a new major, and stiffer course requirements that will ensure Bryant's sound future.

The job of Academic Vice President is far more important than most people realize. The Vice President must be in close contact with the students as well as the various levels of the administration. This is sometimes difficult when the goals or desires of each group are different. In a way, he is caught in the middle. He is responsible for satisfying the student wants and at the same time satisfying the wants and wishes of his fellow administrators who at times have been known to isolate themselves from the student's point of view.

We sincerely hope that Dr. Manion will succeed in carrying out the duties of his office in a way that will be for the best interest of Bryant College. In this time of student unrest and revolt, a failure in this area could spell trouble for Bryant. There is a road full of obstacles and pitfalls ahead of us, and we hope that Dr. Manion and his fellow administrators will work with the students to attempt to steer a safe course.

"MAY I ASK WHAT THIS LOAN IS FOR?"

Educator's Spotlight . . .

Mrs. Clarissa M. H. Patterson

By Faith Davidson

The educator's spotlight has been turned on once again. This time it focuses on Mrs. Clarissa M. H. Patterson, Chairman of the Secretarial Studies Department.

Mrs. Patterson was born in Killingly, Connecticut, and presently resides in Greenville, Rhode Island. She received her B. S. in Business Education, Summa cum Laude, from Bryant College in 1953. The following year she obtained her Masters from Columbia University. In 1965 she was awarded a Professional Diploma from the University of Connecticut. She has taken courses at the University of Rhode Island Extension, Brown University, and Rhode Island College.

In 1955 Mrs. Patterson came to Bryant and has taught in the day and evening divisions as well as some special State classes. At Bryant Mrs. Patterson is a member of the Curriculum Committee, Callendar Committee, Council of Department Chairmen, Commencement awards Committee, and advisor to Alpha Sigma Tau sorority. She has also participated in Teacher Education seminars and was on the panel for the Faculty-Administration-Student dialogue. This year she is in charge of a special program for National Secretaries Week, too.

Currently, Mrs. Patterson is teaching Typewriting III, Typewriting Methods, and History of Education. Mrs. Patterson is a member of a number of organizations including the Eastern Business Teachers Association and the Rhode Island Historical Society. At the present time she is also coordinator for the OIC (Opportunities Industrialization Center) project being run jointly by Bryant College and the OIC. This project is to try to offer people who have some working knowledge of typing and shorthand a chance to upgrade their skills.

Mrs. Patterson says that in general her association with Bryant students has been "quite rewarding." However, she does think that there is an apathetic attitude towards many things on campus, both professional activities and campus activities. She suggested that the only way to do something about this situation would be to have students look at the situation in depth and express more than a surface interest.

The Students Do Know

Dr. Hoslett's appearance at the Senate meeting last March 31 marked the first time the President has addressed the Senate and brought his case directly to the students.

While announcing a $200 rise in tuition is no fun task, Dr. Hoslett handled it well with such a skillful use of humor and timing that most of the students seemed to immediately understand why the increase was inevitable.

True, there are many possible reasons in the student's behalf for NOT raising tuition. Many of the instructors here are no great shakes causing many students to wonder just how good their Bryant education really is. But the Archway feels that by and large a Bryant education is a good one, and there is certainly no doubt that as it improves, expenses will of necessity rise.

Dr. Hoslett spoke openly on what the College does with its "General Fee," what it is doing on the parking situation, how it intends to improve the curriculum, and build the new campus. We applaud his decision to bring his case directly to the students and hope that he will do so more often.

Keeping the students informed eliminates the "communications gap" and is the only way to avoid uprising of the sort encountered at San Francisco State, U. of Wisconsin, etc., etc., etc. Keep up the good work, Dr. Hoslett!

Your Inquiring Reporter

By Chris Kirk

A policy which seems to be greatly criticized by many students on campus is the girls' curfews. Many students feel that ten o'clock is much too early for a girl of college age to be coming in during the week. They also feel that the weekend curfews should be re-examined by the Administration.

I asked Judi Mendelsohn, '69, if she thought the Administration should re-examine the curfew policy. "I definitely think that the Women's Dorm curfews should be re-examined and changed. The present curfews are an insult to the maturity and intelligence of a college student. If a girl is mature enough to go to college, she is mature enough to handle the responsibility of a later curfew. Present curfews restrict the school and social activities of dorm students at Bryant—they should be extended to allow the student to get the most out of her college years."

Steve Berlin '71 commented, "With regards to the policies concerning girls' curfews and the times when men may visit in the girls' dorms, I think they are ELIZABETHAN like the people who make them. You can't even visit in the girls' dorms on a Sunday afternoon, which is supposed to be the day of rest!"

Another opinion was given to me by Kathy Cusick, '71. "The girls' curfews at Bryant should definitely be re-examined. The curfew system is ridiculous. Juniors and seniors are at the age where they should have no ties on them. They should be able to come and go as they please without having to be in at 1:00 a.m. on weekends, and 10:00 p.m. is much too early during the week. By the time the girls finish eating and doing their studies, it is already 10:00 p.m. There is no time for a movie or any social life."

Editor's Note: The present rules for the women students were compiled by the House Presidents in office last year. The consensus was that they had to live with the problems and with the students and were in a good position to make recommendations.

The students ratified these proposals, and they were incorporated into the Handbook to take effect in September 1968.

Changes and alterations will be considered by this year's House Presidents sometime after Spring vacation.

Tennis Beat... by David Hansen

The Tennis season started for the "Varsity Six" last Saturday. April 12, on a sour note as the Netmen stumbled over a well balanced Bentley club from Boston 5 to 4. Bentley preserved its victory by taking two of the three doubles matches in what was the opening match for both schools.

This contest was a thriller right up until the very end as it was nip and tuck all the way until Bentley was victorious in the three-set third doubles match.

In all fairness to the Netmen, it should be pointed out that three of their top six men were missing from the lineup due to National Guard Duty and other extenuating circumstances. So all in all, what should have been an easy victory for the Harry Robinson coached "six" turned out to be a heart-breaking loss.

Even though they were short handed, Bryant fought it out right down to the wire as the score was tied at 4 points apiece going into the third doubles (final) match. The final outcome rested with Brian Alkon and Tom Muhs as they squared off against Bentley's R. Mello and H. Luri. The Bryant combo got off to a poor start as they dropped a close first set at 7-5, but fought back strong to even things up in the second set 6-2; finally faltering they dropped the third and final set 6-4; thus a hard fought victory was assured Bentley.

Some bright spots in the Indian lineup Saturday was the Singles play of Dave Hansen and Tom Bass playing in the No. 1 and 2 singles slots respectively.

Dave put Bryant out in front in the match momentarily as he easily subdued Ken Gurney in straight sets 6-1, 6-4. Tom was equally impressive as he added another point to Bryant's score by overwhelming Dick Silver 6-0, 6-4. Both are expected to be mainstays in the Indian lineup in future matches.

Another bright spot for coach Robinson Saturday was the fine play of his top doubles combo of Omar Graddock and Tom Bass as they were victorious over Ken Gurney and Bob Gaudette.

The Netmen's next home encounter will be against Nichols College of Dudley, Mass., on Wednesday, April 16. The following day they will meet SMTI on the Benevolent Street courts; and the weekend of April 18 they will be in New Bedford to compete in the SNEC tournament.

DEX Is Back

By Dee Dee Verdone

The sisters would like to thank the GLC for allowing us to reactivate the charter, and we're doing our best to prove it is worth it. We would also like to thank our brothers from AOX for their concern and help. DEX now has ten sisters. The charter sisters are: Leslie Currie, Kay Goondrey, Debbie Lynch, Debbie Lyon, Angela Pirolli, Kathy Ricci, Pam Russell, Dee Dee Verdone, Peggy Vezina, and an honorary sister, Peggy Amatore.

The sisters of Delta Sigma Chi hope that their sorority will be a great success. We are working hard to get DEX back into active circulation, and we have some good ideas for the future.
