Newest of the Entrepreneurs!

Bryant Student Leases Smitty's

By Rick Hurst

Archway Staff Reporter

How do you get business experience? By running a business, naturally, so Ed (Pops) Beauchamp, a fourth semester Teacher Ed major has decided to try his luck at running one.

Ed got in contact with Oscar Smits, proprietor of Smitty's Steak House at the corner of Brook and Benevolent Streets and after a short discussion, came out with a five-year lease on the restaurant and building, with option to renew for three years. During semester break, cleaning and repainting of the restaurant took place prior to Ed's official takeover on February first. Although he has leased the restaurant, Ed stressed that there will be no changes in Smitty's operation other than its extended hours will be 6:30 A.M. to 2:00 A.M.

Bryant Diplomats To U. N. For Model Parley

By Roy Dempsey

On February 15-18, 1968, nine members of the World Affairs Forum of Bryant will attend The National Model United Nations in New York. The 41st annual conference will be held at the Statler Hilton Hotel and the United Nations Headquarters.

The NMUN offers its delegates one of the most complete model United Nations' programs in the country. Nearly sixteen hundred college students and faculty advisors from across the nation attend the four days of model U.N. sessions. Delegates participate in mission briefings by members of the United Nations' delegations, special plenary sessions to hear speakers discuss international relations as related to the United Nations, as well as seminars, lectures, and other educational activities. Last year the Bryant delegation was briefed by the Assistant Attache of the Afghanistan delegation. The meeting with the Afghanistan delegate was very informal and the members were allowed to ask questions about the workings of the U.N. as well as the role Afghanistan plays as a basically neutral country in the General Assembly. The NMUN is made up of an Economic and Social Council, General Assembly, and Security Council. The schedule of events is designed to encourage interaction among these three U.N. bodies.

Debates in the General Assembly and its six committees and in the Economic and Social Council will center upon resolutions submitted by NMUN delegates. The Security Council, however, will discuss issues without regard to specific reso-

Bryant Editors Attend Washington Newspaper Conference

BY MARVIN FRIEDMAN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (SPECIAL) — From February 1 to February 4, Kenneth Culp and I attended the United Student Press Association Conference in Washington, D. C. Although the expectations of the editors attending the conference was that of enhancement of their journalistic abilities, the final product of the conference was sheer amazement and disgust.

Events scheduled for Thursday and Friday included a psychedelic light display, a think-game supplied by Kaiser Aluminum, and a series of thought-provoking films. Subjects included in these films were the atrocities committed by the Germans during World War II, the effects of a would be nuclear attack on England, and the pressures of life itself.

The first indication that the editors had that this conference was no ordinary meeting was the presentation of a resolution concerning the Vietnam war. A public condemnation of the American military presence in Vietnam and a request for an immediate and unconditional withdrawal were two parts of a resolution that was to be adopted by the convention. Both parts of this resolution met with heavy opposition from the student editors.

Nearly one hour after the discussion on Vietnam started, a motion was passed to table the resolution. At this point in the conference, a Leftist group, not associated with the conference, disrupted the meeting. Lights were first turned off. Then, five North Vietnamese propaganda films were simultaneously projected onto a screen behind the speaker. When the films were prematurely halted, a voice bellowed over the loud-speaker system. The voice claimed to be the Police Commissioner of Washington, D. C. The voice proved to be an imposter.

Several hours later, the Leftists struck again. This time they broke into a news conference with the declared Democratic presidential candidate, Eugene McCarthy.

Five minutes after Senator McCarthy had begun his speech, one of the activists, Jerry Rubin, ran up to the Senator with a newspaper showing a headline saying that 2000 Viet Cong prisoners had been freed. While waving the newspaper in the Senator's face, Rubin yelled, "They're free. They're free. What do you think of that, Senator McCarthy?" Rubin and two other activists then sat down on the stage with McCarthy. McCarthy's reply was, "I expected something of this kind."

The United States Student Press Association, sponsor of the weekend conference later publicly apologized to McCarthy. Earlier, a member of the audience apologized to Mc-Carthy following the first outburst.

For the infiltrators, the battle had just begun. About ten minutes later, the pounding of a wastepaper basket heralded the coming of a funeral procession. The "mourners" paraded slowly into the hall carrying a coffin on their shoulders. The black coffin was brought to the stage where Senator McCarthy was speaking.

At this point, the Senator was hustled out of the hall and into a waiting car.

The conference was covered by local and national television, as well as four newspaper reporters. Once the coffin was in front of the cameras, the contents — McCarthy buttons and an American flag — were dumped on the floor.

An NBC cameraman, infuriated by this display of disrespect, exposed the film in his camera to the light. He then retrieved the American flag. After the flag had been folded, a member of the reactionary group tried to retrieve it. The cameraman successfully fought him off.

Ray Mungo, 21, an editor of the Liberation News Service said he organized the demonstration. Mungo said the demonstration "was a witness to McCarthy's impotence." Mungo proudly displayed a pin depicting the North Vietnamese flag. It was recently given to him by supporters of the Viet Cong in Czechoslovakia.

Mr. Culp and I attempted to analyze how this situation could have happened.

Earlier in the afternoon we had talked to two policemen. During our talk, we mentioned that there would probably be trouble at the press conference. However, we were informed that nothing could or would be done unless an actual fight broke out. The hotel refused to interfere since it could suffer a large loss if the conference left.

When we talked to the two gentlemen following the second disturbance, one said, "You were right, but we couldn't do anything."

The Peace Corps Crisis

By WALTER GRANT

WASHINGTON (CPS) — The Peace Corps, once the Mecca of many student idealists, is on the threshold of what could be the most crucial period in its seven-year history.

Few will deny that the Peace Corps has been one of the most successful and popular of the New Frontier programs initiated during the Kennedy Administration. But the Peace Corps now faces many new and delicate problems, most of them a direct result of the war in Vietnam.

The tactfulness with which these problems are solved within the next few years may well determine whether or not the Peace Corps can survive on a large scale, and if it can, how effective it will be in accomplishing its original mission.

Peace Corps officials — who in the past have had little trouble convincing young people to give up two years of their life to work in an underdeveloped country — now find themselves on the defensive for the first time. The major problem is the Peace Corps' close association with the federal government at a time when the government is unpopular among young people.

Peace Corps officials, including Agency Director Jack Vaughn, are not ready to admit the Corps has problems. But some other high-ranking government officials have confirmed privately that the Corps may be in trouble.

Recruiting figures alone indicate the Peace Corps has less appeal now than it had a year ago. In November, 1966, the Peace Corps received 7,097 applications from college seniors. Last November, applications were filed by only 3,768 seniors, nearly a 50 per cent reduction.

Overall, the Peace Corps received 9,661 applications last November, compared with 12,411 in November of 1966. Recruiting also was down in December, with the Corps receiving 7,095 applications last December, compared with 8,288 in 1966.

Peace Corps officials, however, claim these figures should not be interpreted as meaning the Corps is losing its appeal to students. "The decrease is attributable to the style of recruiting in the fall of 1966 compared to that in 1967," one official explained. "In late 1966, we put on a major recruiting drive which hit its peak in November. In 1967, however, we visited 25 per cent fewer schools in the fall. During the current academic year, we will have our major recruiting effort in the spring."

Since most Peace Corps volunteers come directly from the campus, the Corps' recruiting figures are based on the academic year. So far, applications this year are running about 4,000 behind last year. "But with our major recruiting drive still ahead of us, we expect to at least equal last year's figures," Vaughn says.

Despite efforts by Corps officials to convince the public that it is not losing its appeal, officials admit the Corps is more controversial on the campus today than at any other time in its history.

The main reason for this, Vaughn said, "is a feeling that we are an official part of the Establishment." One government official explained, "Before the United States became deeply involved in Vietnam, young people did not mind so much being associated with the government, but now they do."

However, Vaughn says the expanding group of student radicals who want to be completely disassociated with the government is not affecting the Peace Corps. "We don't in any sense, or never have, tried to tailor a message for the activist. Our message is more to the concerned, and the concerned can be of almost any political stripe," he said in an interview.

But Vaughn admits Peace Corps recruiting on campuses is more difficult now than it was several years ago. "Most campuses are boiling," he said. "There is more noise and more turmoil, which makes it much harder for us to get our message through." A few years ago it was easy for a recruiter to talk with students, he said. "But now there's a lot of rivalry, and it's harder to get that conversation for a half hour."

Although the Peace Corps is associated with the "Establishment," there have been no problems between recruiters and student radicals, Vaughn said. "Words have been exchanged on occasion, but nothing to consider a confrontation."

The major problem for Corps recruiters comes when a college or university gives them space in their placement office rather than in a prominent open area on campus, such as in the Student Union Building, Vaughn said. "We don't seek respectability. All we seek is a chance to talk, and if nobody knows where you are, your exposure is so limited you don't have a chance to talk."

When Vaughn talks about the present status of the Peace Corps, he emphasizes that the total number of volunteers overseas — now about 15,000 — is higher than ever before, and the Corps is expanding at the rate of about eight new countries a year.

Whether this expansion can continue or not, however, is uncertain. "In the past," Vaughn admits, "the only thing holding us back has been the lack of enough candidates to serve as volunteers." Since the Corps now must appeal to young people who as a group are becoming more and more anti-government, this problem may be just beginning.

Mr. Alberg Appointed Assistant Registrar

Effective February 4, Richard F. Alberg, instructor of Geography and director of the Choralaires, became Assistant Registrar under Dr. F. Douglas Hammond. His appointment was one of many changes occurring in the Academic Dean's Office since Dr. Lionel Mercer became Vice President of Academic Affairs early in January.

Mr. Alberg did his undergraduate work at Rhode Island College of Education, spent four years in the Air Force, and then did two years of graduate study at Clark University in Worcester, before coming to Bryant in 1957.

In addition to directing our Glee Club, Mr. Alberg is director of the Shubert Chorus, a German male chorus here in Providence. He is married and resides with his wife and their three sons and a daughter in Pawtucket. Mr. Alberg will continue to perform teaching duties along with those of his new assignment.

Transfers Join Us

According to the Registrar's Office, around one hundred new students have joined us for Spring semester, the great majority of them transfers.

YOU DID NOT DIE

You did not die like Mars,
Flaming god of war, flashing bright
In Armor.
You did not ride the last ride
Across the Valkyrie's saddle,
Rising like a brilliant star.
You died in squalor and mud
And amazement.
For you would not admit die so simply;
It was not so.
In splendor, in honor, yes.
And when you knew at last truth
Of quiet death
You were ashamed for not going out in glory.
You died so quietly, Love.

The Apathetic Student

There are two types of students at Bryant. One is active, and participates in organizations and activities on campus. Campus recruiters look for him and he is well known and well liked on campus. In several years he will be happily married and pleased with his well paying job.

However, at Bryant there is another type of student. He looks no different from the active student, but there is a difference in his campus life. He gains only "book" knowledge and does not reap the education an active campus life can give him. He is not a member of a religious organization, or a fraternity, or the orchestra, or the Glee club. He does not belong to Delta Omega, or A.M.A., or Youth Guidance, or work on the Archway Staff. He does not take interest in the Student Senate, dormitory council, and is not interested in being a class officer. He does not participate in the sports activities, or even attend Bryant's sports events. He refuses to be a member of the masquers, or work on the Ledger, or attend the lectures and special events that are held on the Bryant campus. Of all these activities and organizations listed here, and then some, he finds only few of interest to him.

What makes this difference in these two Bryant students? Not the education. The same good education goes to both.

Not the school they go to, not the campus round about.

The difference is that the active student receives, but does not keep, all he has learned. He shares with others his talents and knowledge by being active and participating in the numerous activities on campus. The giving and receiving go on in equal measure. The other student is shrewder, hoarding all his "book" knowledge and individual talent — uninterested in campus activities. Everything he knows he is not willing to share. The active student gives and lives. The other student gives nothing. He is called the apathetic.

REFLECTION ON A COLD GOD

We live in a vacuum
Between the threat and the

There is always the hope
That a gold shield will suffice.
When blood is trickling from mouths,
When bosoms rise only
To fall as dying tempests,
When rage retires its arms
Then
There are no great premiums
To be placed on a shield.

Draft Situation Still Unclear

By Richard Anthony

Last fall, education officials were saying that chaos would result if President Johnson didn't act to clear up the uncertainties in the draft situation by the first of this year.

The first has come and gone, the White House is still silent on the draft, and graduate schools and potential grad students are seeing the first signs of the chaos that was predicted.

There are two major questions that still must be decided regarding the draft: the first is, how are the actual draftees to be selected from the pool of draft-eligible men; the second is, what academic fields, if any, are to be designated as providing draft deferments for those doing graduate work in them.

(Under the terms of the 1967 draft law, the National Security Council actually has the power to decide the second question. The Council includes high officials such as the Vice President and the Secretary of State, as well as the President. In fact, though, the President will undoubtedly make the final decision on both questions concerning the draft, if any decisions are made.)

Graduate school deans have been predicting that their incoming classes next fall would be made up primarily of veterans and women, since they assumed most graduating male seniors would be drafted. This prediction may turn out to be true, but at this point there's no way of knowing, because the President hasn't yet said who he's going to draft.

Therefore, graduate schools which are beginning to make decisions on applicants can't tell whether or not the students they accept this spring will be coming in the fall.

A similar problem exists for students. College seniors and first-year grad students can't plan for future study until the government's draft policies are cleared up.

At this point any speculation about what the White House will do must be very tentative, because there really is no way of knowing. Education officials with close contacts in government predicted action by the President before Christmas, and nothing came of it. There are, however, a few observations that can be made.

It appears that the President (or, in this case, the President and other members of the National Security Council) will not grant deferments to all grad students in the natural sciences, math and engineering.

A special government committee set up to study the deferment question last year recommended deferments of this kind. Although the White House has not said anything publicly about a decision, education officials have been told privately that the President has rejected the committee's recommendations.

Whether he and the Council will designate certain narrowly defined fields as draft-deferrable is at this point unknown.

On the question of how draftees will be chosen, there is only one thing that can be said with a relative degree of certainty at this point—the White House will do something. If it doesn't, and if Congress also fails to act, then the traditional Selective Service method of drafting the oldest eligible males first will be followed, meaning that the Army will be full of college graduates.

To make sure that there is some diversity in the ages of the draftees, the President will have to take action. What he will do, and when, however, is not clear at this point.

John Morse, an official of the American Council on Education (ACE), believes the President will set up seven age groups, one for each year from 19 to 25, and then order draft boards to choose a certain percentage of each group for service. Presumably about a third of draft-eligible college men would be taken under such a system, since draft needs for the coming year are anticipated at about a third of the total draft-eligible pool.

Whether Morse's prediction is borne out or not, it is safe to say that not all draft-eligible college graduates will be drafted. Unfortunately there is no way of predicting which of them will be taken. Priority may be given to those with birthdays early in the year, as some have suggested, but then again it may not.

Morse and other education officials in Washington are now concentrating their efforts on getting Congress to clear up the draft situation. Although there is not much an individual student can do to get action from the White House, students can assist in pushing for Congressional action by writing to Senators and Representatives.

LBJ Asks More for Students, Less for Buildings

By WALTER GRANT
WASHINGTON (CPS) — President Johnson has asked Congress for modest increases in federal student aid programs during Fiscal 1969, but the increases will be offset by severe reductions in higher education construction funds.

In his budget message to Congress this week, the President requested an increase of $112 million for existing student financial aid programs. But the budget shows a decrease of $82 million in the amount of federal funds for construction grants to colleges.

The Administration's budget also asks $23 million for proposed new legislation in the area of federal assistance to students. This apparently refers to President Johnson's promise in his State of the Union Message that he will recommend passage of an Educational Opportunity Act "to step up our drive to break down financial barriers separating our young people from college."

Details of this $23-million student aid legislation will be included in the President's education message, which will be sent to Congress within the next few weeks.

The Administration's 1969 budget request also includes an increase of about $86 million for educational research in the Office of Education, and an increase of nearly $70 million for teacher training.

About $18 million of the increase for teacher training is designated for expanding the Teacher Corps, which received a severe financial beating by Congress this year. If the President's request is accepted by Congress, the present Teacher Corps of 1,000 members would be expanded to bring 1,500 new members into the program this coming summer, and 1,500 more in the summer of 1969, for a total of nearly 4,000 Corps members by the end of Fiscal 1969.

Despite these increases, the budget outlook for education in Fiscal 1969 remains gloomy for two major reasons:

—As a result of the rising costs of the war in Vietnam, a fiscally conservative mood prevails in Congress, and cutbacks are expected in nearly all of the Administration's requests.

—Higher education presently is suffering not only from the lack of sufficient appropriations in Fiscal 1968, but also from the across-the-board cutbacks in federal spending ordered by Congress late last year. Higher education construction funds, for example, were cut by about $150 million this year, about one-third of the entire year's budget appropriation.

Wilbur Cohen, Undersecretary for the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, described the Administration's budget request as "large but constrained." He said the Administration decided to give priority to "programs involving people and research rather than to bricks and mortar."

Cohen conceded that the unmet needs in education "are very great," and he added, "There will be unmet needs for years to come. But this budget will enable us to continue the forward thrust in the major programs."

The increases in federal aid to students are spread over a number of different programs, resulting in only modest increases for each program.

The President asked Congress to appropriate $149.6 million for educational opportunity grants to about 284,000 needy undergraduate students, as well as $8.5 million for contracts to identify and encourage needy youths to go to college.

Join a firm that'll give you executive responsibility your first day at work.

Now, that's a pretty funny thing for a civilian firm to say. A boss? Right out of college? The first day?

But the Air Force can make such offers. As an officer in the world's largest technological organization you're a leader. Engineer. Scientist. Administrator. Right where the Space Age breakthroughs are happening.

Or how about the executive responsibility of a test pilot clocking 2,062 mph in a YF-12A jet?

That could be you, too.

But you don't have to be a pilot in the Air Force to move fast. With your college degree you zip into Officer Training School, spin out an officer, speed on your way as an executive, in the forefront of modern science and technology. Right on the ground.

The Air Force moves pretty fast.

Think it over. A man's career can sometimes move pretty slow.

The Peace Corps Wants You!

Interviews February 14, 15, 16

Think of the wonders skilled American personnel could work, building goodwill, building the peace. There is not enough money in all America to relieve the misery of the undeveloped world in a giant and endless soup kitchen. But there is enough know-how and enough knowledgeable people to help those nations help themselves.

JOHN F. KENNEDY

This week is Peace Corps Week at Bryant—a perfect time to find out what you can do for peace. Mary Michlin and Axel Larson, both ex-Peace Corps Volunteers will be in the cafeteria on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. Take a few minutes to stop by and talk. Who knows—you could end up in Mozambique for two years.

More for Students

He also requested $193.4 million for national defense loans to about 408,000 graduate and undergraduate students; $109.7 million for advances for reserve funds and interest payments for 750,000 college students under the insured loan program; $146.5 million for work-study grants for about 228,000 students; and $15 million under proposed legislation for project grants to institutions for recruitment, counseling, tutoring, and other services for disadvantaged students in college.

As an example of why the President's requests are considered modest, the national defense loans program is operating a budget of $184 million this year, so the President requested an increase of only $9.4 million. The current educational opportunity grants program has a budget of about $131 million, so the requested increase is only $18 million. In all cases, President Johnson's request falls below the amount authorized for the programs by law.

The 1969 program level for higher education construction grants under the Administration's budget totals $225.6 million. Of the total, $200 million will support 470 new projects for undergraduate academic facilities and public community colleges and technical institutes, and $25.6 million will support about 33 new graduate facility projects.

The budget provides for a program level of $150 million for loans for construction of college and university academic facilities.

President Johnson also said in his budget message that he will ask Congress for 1968 supplemental appropriation of $4 million for the initial activities of the Public Broadcasting Corporation, which was created in 1967. In addition, a 1969 appropriation of about $33 million for grants to the Corporation will be requested.

The purpose of the Corporation is to strengthen the quality of non-commercial television and radio broadcasting and to make such public broadcasting services more widely available across the nation. The Public Broadcasting Act of 1967 broadens assistance.

Other major increases for higher education include $5 million for strengthening developing institutions and $8 million for inter-institutional sharing of resources.

Developing institutions include the many small Negro colleges and other schools which benefit from cooperative relationships—including exchange of facilities—with larger universities. And under proposed legislation, Congress will be requested to authorize support for the sharing of college and university resources, especially those requiring large investments for specialized libraries, computer services, and curriculum development.

President Johnson's budget also provides that educational improvement grants be awarded to medical, dental, and other professional schools to be used for a variety of activities, including recruitment of additional faculty, broadening the range of courses, and improving laboratory resources. About $66 million will be available for this purpose in 1969, an increase of more than $16 million over the 1968 program level.

In addition, the Administration's budget proposes increases in loans, scholarships and grants for medical, dental, and other professional school students, particularly for those from low-income families.

On Campus Recruitment

ATTENTION SENIORS!!

by Paula Pascone

On-campus recruitment is soon to take place at Bryant College. Mr. Stanley Shuman, Placement Director, has announced that interviewing personnel from leading industries, as well as all branches of the Armed Forces and the Peace Corps, will be visiting the College during the months of February, March and early April to interview seniors for job placement after graduation.

Each student who has not been interviewed by Mr. Shuman should do so immediately. This is necessary before an interview can be granted with any representative of any corporation. It will help the student prepare the twenty-five resumes that are required, supply him with a list of company prospects and a submitted class schedule will enable the interviews to be scheduled outside class hours.

Advance notice of the companies and their available positions will be posted in the ARCHWAY. Also watch the ARCHWAY for specific dates and times.

As many as six different organizations may be visiting Bryant on any given day. Their prospective positions will range from economic analyst to plant accountant to tax assessor to secretary. Statistics show that the average medium salary range for 1966 graduates was $7100 (starting salary). Indications are that salaries this year will be several hundred dollars more. Roughly 75% of the number of students who report to the placement service are processed for disposition—that is, they are placed in Officer Candidate schools, graduate school programs, and full-time positions with leading companies.

A special section of the ARCHWAY will be dedicated to on-campus recruitment each week. In this section all information pertaining to interviews—dates, times, places—and companies—types and positions available—will be posted, along with any other data needed to arrange interviews. So... be sure and catch each issue of the ARCHWAY... they may contain an important key to your future!

The following is a schedule of interviews to be held in the Placement Office this week. ATTENTION SENIORS: PLEASE RETAIN THIS LIST FOR YOUR OWN REFERENCE!!!

seven days a week. The same homemade soups and coffee brewed in small pots will be available.

Having heard of the possibility of leasing Smitty's, Ed became interested, and figured it would be an excellent opportunity to put his business courses to work for him, his first business venture alone. Several of his relatives have been involved with food service, and much practical experience has rubbed off on him.

Oscar Smits and his wife Mary have been in the food business since 1926-27 and have successfully brought back to life four bankrupt restaurants, one of which had been closed for five years. What is now Smitty's, back in 1942 was the original Brown Bear. Soon after, for some 14 years, a Chinese restaurant was on the premises, until Smitty and Mary again took over. Mary has retired from active participation in the business, but will continue to bake homemade pies and pastry along with being available for professional counsel.

Ed says that he, Smitty, and his two new grillmen will make grinders of any type and description if the necessary ingredients are on hand, and he is presently in the process of revising Smitty's menu and prices. If feasible, a delivery service may be instituted to serve dorm students directly.

As more capital becomes available, more improvements will be made in the building and the kinds of food provided. As Ed says, "We want to give the customer enough quality food at a reasonable price to make him want to come back," and with that as a motto, Ed should have no trouble in turning Smitty's into his first successful business venture.

INDIANS WAIT FOR SMTI

Revenge This Wednesday For Breaking 35 - Game Streak

BEN BILLIE: At only 5'11" Ben is the team's leader in rebounds with 16 per game. Billie, who easily gets over the rim, combines with Gray to give Bryant its great play making in backcourt. Averaging 14 points per game, Billie, a junior, is quick and has ability to break a game wide open.

GEORGE YATES: A big 6'4" center, currently averaging over 13 points per game, and 16 rebounds per game, George, a sophomore, is a great team ball player and is constantly harassing his opponent's ability to block shots.

JOE GODDARD: A tough 6'2" forward, currently averaging 10 points per game, Joe possesses great moves from the corner and a good left handed hook. Goddard, a junior, teaming with Greenblatt from the other corner, is most often seen crashing the boards to help out Yates.

DON GRAY: This sophomore back court ace, currently averaging over 16 points per game is the team's leading scorer and playmaker. Gray, at only 5'9" is extremely quick and has all the moves.

DAVE GREENBLATT: A 6'1" junior, Dave is the great surprise to the club. Averaging over 12 points per game and 12 rebounds per game, he is a good shooter and extremely aggressive off the boards. Dave is an unselfish ballplayer, giving 100% during all games.

After taking Bryant by only 7 points last Wednesday, SMTI of New Bedford will meet the Indians on our home court next Wednesday. Following a 15-day lay-off, the Indians had a bad night against SMTI. Coach Duffy stated that the lay-off created by a change in scheduling plus the low percentages on hitting, affected the score. However, the following night the Indians showed their true ability on the court when they averaged 65 percent in the second half over Bentley College. On Friday night, February 2 Bryant defeated Nasson by a score of 88 to 56 with an overall average from the floor of 45 percent. In this game Dave Greenblatt along with George Yates and Joe Goddard combined in a stupendous effort in completely dominating the boards.

Greenblatt was high scorer with 18. Don Gray played only part of the first half and remained out the entire second half because of blisters. In the game Ben Billie continued to demonstrate his outstanding ability as playmaker with combined efforts of Goddard, Greenblatt, and Yates completely dominating the game by forecourt pressing, ball handling, and stealing.

In the up coming game with SMTI, Coach Duffy stated that there will not be too many surprises, that the Indians will continue their fast-breaking, running game and will be able to, in short order, take SMTI. Again Coach Duffy reiterated that although SMTI is a good team, the Indians will surely make a fine showing come Wednesday.

The disappointing aspects of the Indians' games has been attendance. It is understandable that attendance would be low due to mid-year break; however, with the number of commuter students here at Bryant and with the high pitched, high caliber team that we do have, attendance should have been greater than the twenty that were actually there. In fact, at the SMTI game in New Bedford there were more alumni present than full-time students. Needless to say, the Indians will go on to victory; but standing room only support of a top notch college team is the mark of a well-spirited college. For the doubting 'Thomas' who don't believe that Bryant College is noteworthy nationally according to the Official Basketball Statistics published by the NCSS, a part of the NCAA, Bryant as of January 27 ranked twelfth nationally in defense with an average of 63.7 percent in defense. For their average scoring margin Bryant is second nationally scoring an average of 87 points per game and their opponents averaging 63.7 points per game leaving a margin of 23.3 points per game to Bryant over its opponents.

Bryant's basketball future is brighter than ever. By the time this publication is on the streets, the Indians will have, no doubt, copped another Naismith crown.

The cry from the office of Coach Duffy and Moe Clare, Assistant Athletics Director, is for a schedule. Both Mr. Clare and Mr. Duffy agree that the Indians are ready to meet some bigger teams.

With the growth of Bryant, the school's athletic prowess has become more notable than ever before.

Question: The Bryant Indians are ready to make a new mark in the history of this college's basketball. Are you?

INDIAN BACK-UP SQUAD

MANNY ALVAREZ: A real aggressive 6'2" forward or center, who has spelled Yates and Greenblatt in many games this year, has been known for great rebound strength. Manny has been a great help to the club with his fine attitude and determined play.

ED McMANUS: A 6' guard with quick reflexes and good defensive ability. McManus is a good man on the fast break and has good leaping ability. He is an overall tough defensive ballplayer, and he has played the backcourt and forward slot when the need has arisen.

JOHN BARBA: a 6' Junior, he is a good shooter where he can play backcourt or forward. He has a great eye and he is an unselfish ballplayer. Barber with another year has been a great help to the club with constant hustle and drive.

JIM SQUADRITO: Squash, the co-captain, has been the spirit of '68 for the club and is probably the No. 1 team man on the club. Jim's fine attitude has helped Bryant to its fine record, keeping the club on its toes with his chatter.

JOHN McVEIGH: The greatest percentage shooter on the club, playing on guts alone, John this past summer, had an operation for a slipped disc, and now must wear a back brace in order to play. John with his great shooting ability can break a game wide open at any time, and he is a great co-captain with Squadrato.
