

Administration Approves Proposals

Last Thursday the Administration approved the three student proposals: 1. Changes in the current calendar. 2. Changes in registration procedure. 3. Additional black administrators and instructors.

they get Acting President Galski to speak to them. It was explained that Dean Galski was attending an important meeting and could not speak to the students.

Dr. Manion then proceeded to explain the administration's answer to the student proposals. He was interrupted numerous times in order to answer questions from the floor.

Dean Smith then addressed the meeting and also answered questions from the floor. The first two replies were accepted by the students but the third proposal was turned down as it stood. The students felt that the administration's answer was too vague and ambiguous.

A major objection was that no date was set for enactment of the third proposal. Also brought out was that students wished a say in the selection of the black administrator. It was decided that a meeting would be held in Dean Smith's office on Tuesday, March 24 in order to form a committee of students to work along with the administration in its efforts to find a black administrator and faculty member.

World Affairs Visits U.N.

April 29 through May 3, the World Affairs Forum is going to make their annual trip to New York City and represent Bryant College at the National Model United Nations. The NMUN, which is sponsored by the National Collegiate Conference Association, is holding its 42nd annual conference at the Statler Hilton Hotel and United Nations Headquarters to further among students an understanding of the purpose and functions of the U.N. Offering delegates the largest and most comprehensive model U.N. program in the country, the 1970 NMUN will bring together over 1200 college students and faculty advisors.

Members of the World Affairs Forum who are participating in the conference and their specific titles are Rick Mazzariello, Delegation Chairman and Political Committee; Jim Moriarity, Special Political Committee; Pat Zawasky, Economic Committee; Ed Metcalfe, Trusteeship Committee; Steve Zinader, Political Games; Dick Smith, Legal Committee; Mary Goldener, Social and Humanitarian Committee; Maryann Hill, Liaison. Besides these eight students Doctor Sol Lebovitz will be the advisor on the trip and an asset to the groups performance.

The country to be represented at the Model U.N. is Cameroon. Fifteen resolutions on this West African country have been submitted to the Secretary of the U.N. and the members will have to speak for or against these resolutions. The object is to "play the role of the country" and officials at the conference will mark those speaking on how the role is played. Speech, appearance and the techniques used will determine the standings at the end.

Along with other universities and colleges that took part last year, Bryant ranked in the top 15. This year the World Affairs

New Major Offered

Bryant College will offer a new major in Institutional Management in the near future. The degree earned will be a B.S. in Business Administration with a Major in Institutional Management. Special emphasis will be placed on Hotel/Motel Administration, Club Management, Restaurant Management and Tourism.

THE INSTITUTIONAL MANAGEMENT MAJOR

The aim of this program is to assist the student to succeed in achieving the two most meaningful goals of any education: 1. to prepare him for work in the economic society of the future; and 2. to enhance his cultural background. These requirements are met in formal education for the business of Hotel, Motel, Club, or Restaurant Management. There are many professional opportunities for well-trained and well-educated persons, and preparation for work in them involves the study of so wide a variety of subject matter as to approximate a liberal education.

The hotel or resort of today is a complex institution. Its operation requires a wide range of skills and the guest must be cordially received. In addition to modern rooms he must be afforded wholesome, appetizing food, the procuring of which requires skill in purchasing, storing, and preparation.

The selection of curriculum and faculty is based on the understanding that the graduate should be both a well-educated and a socially useful person.

Tres Bien

Last week the students of Bryant College received an excellent lesson on how to run a student meeting and keep your cool at the same time.

Student Senate President Lynne Hayden did an excellent job in conducting both the meeting on Monday and the meeting on Thursday.

In the past I have not always agreed with her or her tactics. At times we have found each other at opposite poles. But I must give credit where credit is due. In a crisis, and I certainly feel that these student meetings can be considered crises at Bryant, Lynne did a great job. Her presentation was reserved, logical, and delivered with the strength of her own convictions. As Student Senate President, Lynne found herself in a precarious position between the students and the administration. The task of striking an agreement acceptable to both the students and the administration fell upon her shoulders. She could not abandon her position as the leader and representative of the student body nor could she condone unreasonable demands upon the administration much less a strike or riot.

Lynne met all questions, heckling, and disorder squarely with unwavering calm. Because of her efforts communications between students and administration took a giant step forward.

Nothing that I could say could be more of a tribute to a job well done than this.

The Greek Way

Who are the true student leaders at Bryant College? Some people claim the Greeks are. To support their argument they list various statistics which show that they are involved to a greater extent than are their numbers in proportion to the entire student body. They do not, however, tell the reasons for these statistics. One is that a person who becomes a Greek is by his very nature the type of person who would also become involved with campus activities. Also when there are elections for offices in the senate, classes or any organizations, the Greeks ban together to elect Greek candidates. From this point of view they are nothing more than a strong pressure group. There are other examples to support this argument, but our attempt here is to strive for another issue. Before leaving this point it must be said that because some individual Greeks get involved does not mean that ALL the Greeks deserve credit for their activity. Also, we recognize that the Greeks do many good things; however, we all have room for improvement.

Exactly what kind of leaders are the Greeks? The past few weeks have been a trial of student responsibility. What have the Greeks been doing to aid the cause of the students? Two recent events, not necessarily including all the Greeks, give us some ideas. A few weeks ago during pledging several pledges came close to losing their eyesight. The reason? Two fraternities deemed it necessary to put their pledges through their paces by challenging each other to a mud race at the Bryant Field. However, the field was being used by some sororities for their activities and besides there didn't seem to be enough mud available to make the contest interesting. For this reason they proceeded to an adjacent field (behind Johnnie's). Here they found a large puddle approximately 2 yards from the entrance construction site. Another frat decided to join in the fun and helped to drive cars over the puddle to create an abundance of mud. The pledges then proceeded to defend the honor of their frats by leaping into the mess wholeheartedly. As a result many received eye injuries from lime which just happened to be on the ground and became mixed with the mud and water.

The second fun filled activity consisted of decorating the campus for St. Patrick's Day. Some individuals showing their sense of responsibility and concern for the memory of St. Patrick, took it upon themselves to paint and decorate the campus suitably for the day. However, instead of temporary decorations these gentlemen chose to use a more permanent oil base paint. They must have felt that their "worthy" intentions would not long be remembered if they had used a water paint which could be easily washed off after the fact. As a result of the painting excursion, the doors of three girls' dorms, Young Orchard Avenue and parking areas, the brick wall near the union, and a fire hydrant were decorated. All of this paint had to be removed or covered to restore the area to its original condition. Praise must be given to the maintenance department for their efforts to clean the mess and a question as to where the Bryant College Security Police (rent-a-cops) were at the time of the crime must be added.

Incidents such as these are very timely. They certainly do not make the Greeks as a body look very well, especially when the entire student body was trying to prove to the administration that it is a responsible and worthy body on the Bryant College campus. It is lucky that this time the actions of a few did not spoil it for all.

Letters to the Editor:

Crazy Apes

In the article from the New York Times, Reinhold does a good job of reviewing a book by Dr. Albert Szent-Gyrgyi, the biologist who received the Nobel Prize for discovering vitamin C. The doctor believes that the world is run by idiots and that man is a strange animal whom he so aptly names "Crazy Ape." I would like to elaborate on this strange vanity of man.

As Dr. Szent-Gyrgyi stated, there are many people in this world who go to bed hungry. Many millions of children are barely kept alive by one meal a day. Malnutrition and disease kill many daily. Most children cannot look forward to life past the age of ten.

Many Americans, including myself, waste millions of dollars a year just on junk and ravage more than we consume. Millions of dollars are spent each year on cigarettes, liquor, entertainment and quite frankly feeding our fat mouths and rotundous bodies. Speaking from experience I can say that many patriotic Americans are more concerned with keeping their weight down and their appearance up than with the more serious problems.

The average American wastes 5.3 pounds of garbage each day of their lives. They discard over 20 million disposable cans, 10 million bottles and over five million pounds of paper. With this going on daily it is surprising that we haven't gone under years ago. We can be thankful for the people who try to clean up this huge mess. The Americans look tremendous. America looks like a backed-up sewer wallowing in its own scum.

Dr. Szent-Gyrgyi says that the world is run by idiots too old to change. I disagree. We are mostly all intelligent human beings too selfish and too vain to do something about caste and hunger in our world. It is true, in my opinion, that many of these people "are too old to change their habits and daily routines."

My suggestion is to appeal to the young people who are willing to handle their responsibility and are able to change their habits. I believe that many people, both young and old, are finally being aroused and are willing to stand up and fight this problem. The answer lies with the young because it is up to us to make the changes we desperately need. In 30 years, we will be the ones to have to live with our success or our failures.

In the last issue of the Archway a letter appeared with a hidden message in it. This method of coding is not new. It is, in fact, one of the oldest known methods of enciphering messages.

This method, taking the first letter from each sentence or paragraph to spell out the message, was widely used years ago because of its simplicity. To illustrate the simplicity I shall use an example of what could be a lesson to young school children.

Before we go into any greater detail in our study of animals we must consider several things. Rather than take everything at once, we will go over each point individually. Instead of attacking the ideas haphazardly, we will do it systematically. Another thing to remember is that we are working with somewhat limited information. Nobody, however, has much more information than we do.

Colliers are large but beautiful dogs. Owls on the other hand, while large, are ugly birds. Lions because of their size and bravery, are considered the King of the Jungle. Elephants, however, are bigger than lions. Rhinoceroses are as fast as elephants but are not as tall. In contrast to large animals we now turn to smaller animals. Dogs, while there are exceptions, are for the most part, small. Generally speaking, cats are even smaller. Eagles have a small body even though their wing spans are big.

Yellow jackets are large for insects, but are small when compared to other animals. Okapi, when compared to their giraffe cousins, have small necks. Unicorns pose a problem for size classification because nobody is sure just how large they were.

To continue with this farce would only insult the reader. Obviously, you have all gotten the idea. Other people may try to hide messages by this simple method when writing letters to this paper—it won't work.

Retraction

It was erroneously stated in last week's Archway that Mr. Spizman spoke at the Senate meeting as a non-senate member. Mr. Spizman has informed us that he is an alternate in the Senate. It was also an error in reporting Mr. Spizman said, "Bryant students are brain washed . . . computers." These remarks were made by Alan Kluger. The article "Campus Unrest" was not meant to be a direct attack or implied attack on Mr. Spizman, but rather a commentary on the ultra-liberal element at Bryant.

"I say to you today, even though we face the difficulties of today and tomorrow, I still have a dream. It is a dream that is deeply rooted in the American dream. I have a dream that one day this nation will rise up, live out the true meaning of its creed:

"We hold these truths to be self evident, that all men are created equal."

Contraceptives "Yes" or "No"

Palo Alto, Calif.—(J.P.)—Dr. James McClenahan, director of the Cowell Health Center at Stanford University said here recently he felt present University policies barring the prescription of contraceptive medications or devices to unmarried students "probably should be changed."

Dean of Students Peter Bulkeley said he personally believes decisions in these matters should be made only in consultation with competent physicians, who should take into account the entire fabric of an individual's background, including his family, his culture, and his previous medical history.

"I do not favor blanket prescriptions or prohibition," he said.

At present, Cowell Center physicians prescribe contraceptives only to students who are married or anticipate marriage in the immediate future. Information and counsel is provided to all those who request this.

Doctors at the Center will refer students to private physicians or community clinics, like Planned Parenthood which offers further help, if desired by students.

Dr. McClenahan believes that this service "ought to be handled just like the rest of medical care," in response to individual requests and need.

"There are reservations about the pill," he said. "Not everyone should have it. We need to make sure its use is properly evaluated for each patient."

The present policy raises the possibility that students may not receive the best possible care through misinformation, inconvenience, financial considerations, or lack of understanding of the medical history of each individual, he added.

A growing segment of physicians in the community would agree that contraceptive counseling and prescriptions constitute proper medical care for college-age youth, whether or not they are actually enrolled in universities, Dr. McClenahan stated.

"This sort of care already is available in the community. We feel it should be made part of the comprehensive care of the health service."

COLLEGE STUDENT COMMUNICATIONS

Scranton, Pa., (I.P.)—An eight month study has recently been completed at the University of Scranton by a Task Force, a body composed of five administrators, five faculty, and five students (elected at large from their respective constituencies) in addition to the Student Body President and Student Body Vice President in a non-voting advisory capacity.

Task Force Report (excerpts): Student Involvement in Departmental General Recommendations: The Task Force recommends that as a matter of University policy all academic departments explore means of involving students, especially majors, in the work of their departments so that students are active members of the department, responsible for their own education.

This proposal does not mean that faculty members should give up their prerogatives; it does mean that departments should extend the opportunities for contact between faculty and students to develop an adult relationship of cooperation.

By involvement is meant the personal engagement of students with faculty in academic work beyond the classroom and the opportunity for those students who are willing and capable to have some real function in the department.

The Task Force proposes the following addition to the Statutes: (Revised: Specific Tasks, Department Chairmen; Students). Involves students in the professional and academic concerns of his department.

Specific Recommendations:

1. The Task Force recommends that as a matter of University procedure all departments should have student representatives equal in number to 20% of the full-time faculty in the department.

These students should be elected by student majors in the department to participate fully in regular department meetings. (It is anticipated that there may be matters to which students should not be privy, in which case special meetings should be called.)

2. The Task Force recommends that as a matter of University procedure all departments schedule at least one meeting per semester for all members of the department, students and faculty alike.

3. The Task Force recommends that as a matter of University procedure all departments establish a system of individual faculty advisors for student majors who will help especially with planning for advanced study.

4. The Task Force recommends that as a matter of University procedure every department report each semester to the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences its success in implementing these specific recommendations and in achieving the general goal of student involvement.

Some Additional Suggestions:

The Task Force submits the following specific suggestions:

1. Student-faculty committees to advance student involvement in departments;

2. Collection and use of student opinion in departmental self-evaluation;

3. Collection and use of current opinion in curriculum revision;

4. Co-curricular activities which will extend academic influence beyond the classroom;

5. Collection of student suggestions for library acquisition and use;

6. Informal "bull-session" for faculty and students on departmental matters;

7. Social activities for faculty and students.

Lovecraft Follies Review

In this collection of satire by James Shevill the whole security-tight world around us is torn down and turned into a tight-fisted money-grabbing monster who sacrifices the creative minds of our scientists for increased technology.

Mr. Shevill, the writer, and Adrian Hall, the director, have created for the public a play that is entertaining and comic; yet, in another sense, gruesome and frightfully real. The play is about Stanley Millsage, an atomic scientist, who has resigned his post at the Marshall Space Center. His reasons for doing this are the springboard for "Lovecraft's Follies".

"Lovecraft's Follies" is the manifestation of Millsage's extremist interpretation of the security system. This ridicule reaches far beyond the security system into the weaknesses of our government and the men in it.

H. P. Lovecraft was a science fiction writer during the first half of the 20th century, Millsage rationalizes feelings and desires through Lovecraft's stories. This rationalization takes us from the real world of Millsage to the fantasy world of Lovecraft. This is the play, a dabbling of the imaginary real and the far out fantasy.

This artful combination of Millsage and Lovecraft takes the audience on a six stage journey full of comic entertainment and painful reality. The first three follies come before intermission and are the most confusing. In the first folly, we are taken from Mother Goose and the golden egg, which represents the financial control of the Military to the "seduction of contemporary youth by money."

The second folly is a rape of the space race and the race of Nazi Germany against the United States for the "ultimate hardware". This folly also mimics the Apollo 10 and 11 flights and their revelation of the "Magnificent Desolation" of the moon.

Folly #3 is a mockery of racism, white supremacy, and Lovecraft's weapons which have the ability to destroy love. This farce is humorously done under the cloak of Tarzan and the Green Goddess, believe it or not.

After the much wanted and much needed intermission, we are tossed into the grotesque realism of the destruction caused by the atomic bomb. Folly #4 reveals this and also gives us a look at the lives of the scientists who are involved in the construction of the atomic bomb.

The fifth folly is the turning point in the play. It involves the confrontation of Millsage's real world and Lovecraft's extreme fantasy world. The result of this confrontation is a fast moving culmination of the gruesome world of the atomic scientist.

Last comes Folly #6 which is a re-enactment of the trial and sentencing of Stanley Millsage to an insane asylum. This turns out to be a satire on the Ship-of-State and the whole phony American system. Everything from gluttony to movies stars ride along on the "Folly Ship" in pursuit of happiness and atomic destruction.

If you have made it through this review, then you deserve the ultimate reward. That is, a night with the Trinity Square Repertory Company and its premiere production of "Lovecraft's Follies".

Tickets can be obtained now through April 11 at the Trinity ticket office, Room A, The Arcade, Weybosset Street, or by calling 351-4242. I recommend that for the student rate of $2.50 you will never be able to spend a more exciting evening in the theater.

SPRING WEEKEND

All you need to win a beauty pageant is good looks, right? Wrong! Knowing how to smile winningly and walk correctly are only a part of what this spring's Miss Bryant candidates will be called on to do. In addition to attractiveness, the candidates will be judged on their ability to answer questions, on their poise and talent. Miss Bryant, 1970, will be an agreeable combination of beauty and intelligence.

She will then go on to represent Bryant College in the Miss Rhode Island pageant.

On Saturday afternoon is the block party, consisting of live music and traditional Bryant College refreshments. Later Saturday evening the sophomore and senior classes are planning to sponsor entertainment of their own as a finishing touch for Saturday's activities. Look for more details next week, same place.

Investment Club Buys

After a considerable amount of discussion the attending members of the Bryant Investments Club on March 11 decided to purchase 5 shares of U. S. Steel. Whether this was an appropriate acquisition for the near future remains to be seen, but for long term appreciation (as in most cases) it is a very satisfactory investment.

High material and labor costs plus shortages of personnel have squeezed steel profit margins and profits. Competition from foreign countries also contribute to slower growth. The outlook for steel is not projected to be overpowering. Though it does have continued steady growth. If anticipated (speculated) demand for foreign exports increases, better efficiency is obtained, and the current economic situation improves, then it might become a bright spot in our portfolio.

Alpha Theta Chi Goes National

Theta Chi, formerly Alpha Theta Chi, was installed as a chapter of Theta Chi on Sunday, March 22. Dr. Marvin Fleming, National President of the Grand Chapter of Theta Chi, conducted the installation ceremony. The Brothers took the oath of Theta Chi and then in a separate ceremony the fraternity officers were installed.

Dale Slivinske, representing the national, visited the Bryant Campus last week to make the final arrangements for the installation ceremony. Mr. Slivinske became acquainted with the brothers during his weekend stay.

Following the installation ceremony, dinner was served at the Narragansett Room of the Bryant Dining Center. Peter Lynch acted as master of ceremonies for the Installation Banquet. Dr. Marvin Fleming gave a brief history of Theta Chi and then told of the high expectations from this chapter. A representative from each fraternity on the Bryant Campus attended the Installation Banquet.

The brothers are proud to be part of this great national fraternity and will maintain its high standard of scholastic, social, and athletic achievement.

Viewpoint

By William Holden

S. O.

In last Friday's issue of the Archway there appeared a letter which was written by a "secret organization." A critical look at secret organizations might be in order. I wish to point out that I do not mean to single out any specific organizations, but secret organizations in general. It should be noted that organizations such as the Knights of Columbus and Masons are not secret organizations even though some of their ceremonies are not open to non-members. Members do not keep their membership a secret. They are proud to belong to these organizations and are proud to let others know that they belong. Anyone can learn about these organizations by asking questions of the members or by going to a public library and obtaining the proper book.

What a Secret Organization is

If fraternal orders are not secret organizations, exactly what is a secret order? In most cases, the formal goals of a secret organization are kept concealed from non-members. The Secret Service is an exception. In all cases, the membership of a secret organization is withheld from those not in the organization. For example, the Secret Service, the C.I.A., the Ku Klux Klan, and the Minutemen do not open their records of membership to the review of outsiders.

Why Secret?

The Secret Service, understandably, cannot reveal its members' identities. To do so would be the same as to tell would be assassins when it is safe or not safe to try to murder government officials. The C.I.A., due to its confidential nature, cannot reveal its members' identities. What about the Minutemen, the KKK, and others like them? Nobody seems to know anything about the Minutemen except for what they hear in the news; they are a militant extremist group. The only known goal of the KKK is "to keep niggers, Jews, and Catholics in their proper place." With goals such as these, it is no wonder that they are afraid to let their members' identities be known.

If the reader will stop to think of as many secret organizations as he can on the left as well as on the right, and then ask himself how many of them do not have ulterior motives, he can infer that secret organizations, other than governmental organizations, are secret to protect their members because the goals they espouse would bring condemnation from the majority of people.

Micro-study

Goals may sound ideal but because of an intended vagueness may be anything but ideal. Let us look at the Committee for a Better Bryant to serve as an example in our critical look at secret organizations. We might ask, who determines what is better for Bryant? Is it better to have all classes held in the morning or is it better to have all classes held in the afternoon? In order to determine what the majority thinks is better, any issue must be brought into the open. Claiming honored membership proves nothing. To say that an organization consists of well known people says nothing for the people's character. Certainly, James Earl Ray and Sirhan Sirhan are well known. Secret membership also allows for propaganda-like claims. Nobody knows for sure if the Committee for a Better Bryant does in fact have two black members. The statement may or may not be true. There are no facts available. We must take their word, (for what it is worth) hence—propaganda.

Organizations truly working to improve something, it seems to me, would solicit all the help they could get. Help can be obtained much more easily when statements can be backed up with documented facts. For example, "We have some of the most well known campus people in our organization. They are Mr. X, Mr. Y, Mr. Z, etc. We are all working for one common goal and would appreciate your help. Please contact any of our members if you are interested in helping us."

It seems safe to conclude, barring government organizations which are secret to protect the innocent, that secret organizations in general are secret to protect the guilty.

Intramural Outlook

By Steven Diamond

After several weeks of hard fought basketball competition a champion was determined in both leagues.

In the semi-finals of the fraternity league, PKT beat OX 46-32. Jeff Cerlach and J. J. Lynch once again took control for PKT. The game was close throughout the first half as Manny Coloura collected points and rebounds. The second half saw Gerlach and Lynch collect part of their 15 and 14 points respectively. Dominick Palumbo smashed the boards as he hit the floor over a dozen times scrambling for rebounds. Herb Garrett ran into foul trouble and couldn't get clicking.

In the second semi-final game of the night, DSP defeated TKE. It was a see-saw battle through the first half until De Sousa, Wolfe, and Coletta connected to give DSP the edge at halftime 28-24. The second half began with Ferro and Scrivon getting TKE to fastbreak. DSP pulled out again on the ball stealing of Joe Guardino, 33-28. Doug Snyder continued to rack up assists with some fancy playmaking. Mogan and Beucher got hot hands and tied it up at 44 with 6 minutes remaining. Dave DeSousa then took charge by stealing the ball, getting fouled, and sinking 2 free throws, 48-44. After Mogan hit a quick bucket, 48-46, De Sousa wrapped it up with 2 more free throws to give DSP a 50-46 victory.

The first game of the finals in the fraternity league saw DSP continue their winning streak by overpowering PKT 59-39. The triple combination of Guardino, Coletta, and De Sousa scored 15, 14, and 12 points, respectively. Jeff Gerlach, Dominick Palumbo, and J. J. Lynch each popped in 9 points for PKT.

Delta Sigma Phi became the fraternity champions as they defeated PKT for the second straight time 48-45. Without the help of Dave De Sousa, DSP was able to maintain a little edge throughout the game. Joe Guardino and Mike Coletta were the big guns for DSP scoring 17 and 16 points, respectively. Jeff Gerlach looked impressive putting in 19 points in the losing effort. Palumbo and Lynch couldn't quite get hot. Doug Snyder, Al Wolfe, and Gary Jacome were all part of DSP's success.

The Barbarians got into the finals as they defeated Gardner Hall 58-48. Meeker, high man in the game with 24 points, led the attack for the Barbarians. Neff put in 16, and Wimmatt 13 points for the victory. Frank DeTerra kept the game close as he had 19 points for the losers.

The Transfers made the finals by defeating Charles Field 67-45. Pelletier and McGovern gave the Transfers the scoring punch they needed as they put in 21 and 11 points, respectively. All-star Eden couldn't get any help as he put in 25 points for the losers.

The two big teams of the league met each other in the finals of the independent league. McGovern once again took charge and led the Transfers to victory 78-50. Salisbury added 16 more points to the 26 of McGovern. Meeker led the Barbarians with 16.

In the best of three series, the Transfers once again repeated the task by defeating the Barbarians by a similar score, 76-51. The trio of McGovern, Pelletier and Salisbury dominated in the romp. Russell, Neff, and Meeker played well, but not good enough to overcome the Transfers.

SIB beat SIX in the first game of the sorority finals. Lynn Tyner led the scorers with 10 points to give SIB a 26-7 victory. Carolyn Zedda and Lydia Cohen each contributed points towards the victory. Cody had 4, and Rodgers 3 points for the losers. SIB went on to defeat SIX in the second game to become the sorority champions.

Fearless Forecast:

A Look Into The Majors

by Ron Briand

Major league baseball has already begun spring training for the upcoming 1970 season. There are twenty-four teams; and through 162 grueling, regular-season games and divisional playoffs only one team will emerge as the World Champion in October.

A look at the teams finds the New York Mets in a lofty position above all challengers in the National League Eastern Division. With a dynasty forming for the occupants of Shea Stadium, many people will be reminded of the Yankees, who were noted for their pin-stripes and pennant-winning glory years. The Mets have a young and solid team with pitchers Tom Seaver, Jerry Koosman, and Gary Gentry. Power will come from Cleon Jones, Tommie Agee, Jerry Grote, and newcomer Joe Foy, acquired in an off-season trade.

The St. Louis Cardinals have begun a rebuilding job, and the acquisition of Richie Allen from the Phillies appears to have headed them in the right direction. Besides Allen, Joe Torre, Lou Brock, and Carl Taylor figure to do their share of hitting. Top caliber pitching on the staff includes Bob Gibson, Steve Carlton, and Nelson Briles. The Chicago Cubs seemed destined to win the pennant last year, but a late season collapse sealed their fate. It would appear that stars such as Ferguson Jenkins, Ernie Banks, Ron Santo, and Billy Williams will not be able to gather enough enthusiasm for this year.

The Philadelphia Phillies have a chance for fourth place this year, but it will depend on the development of rookies Larry Bowa and Denny Doyle, the Phillies' double-play combination. The Pittsburgh Pirates have Roberto Clemente and Willie Stargell, and manager Danny Murtaugh has little else. The only good thing that can be said about the Montreal Expos is that they are the best pro baseball team in Canada.

In the National League Western Division, the Cincinnati Reds have the edge. They have the best hitting team in the majors with Pete Rose, Bob Tolan, Tony Perez, and Johnny Bench. Acquired from the Angels, Jim McGlothlin should make a big contribution to the pitching staff along with Jim Merritt and Jim Maloney. The Atlanta Braves are strong with Henry Aaron, Rico Carty, and Orlando Cepeda and should not be counted out of the flag race until the final day of the season. The Los Angeles Dodgers could put it all together this year if they had one big power hitter. They have the pitching with Claude Osteen, Bill Singer, and Don Sutton.

The San Francisco Giants are used to finishing second, but this year it is not within their reach. Willie Mays is a year older, and Juan Marical, the Giant's best pitcher, has not been on good speaking terms with baseball's second best home-run hitter. The Houston Astros now own Joe Pepitone's contract, and he may make the Astros into a contender within a few years. Clay Kirby heads the San Diego Padres pitching staff after losing 20 games last year. Enough said about the Padres.

In the American League Eastern Division, the team to beat is the Boston Red Sox. The pitching rotation will have Jim Lonborg, Gary Peters (obtained from the White Sox), Ray Culp, and Sonny Siebert. Add Mike Nagy when he comes back from the military, and the staff is even stronger. Carl Yastrzemski, George Scott, and Rico Petrocelli should have good years at the bat. The Baltimore Orioles won the pennant last year, but only super efforts by Frank Robinson, Boog Powell, and Paul Blair will make them repeat. Mike Cuellar, Dave McNally, and Jim Palmer are above average hurlers.

The Detroit Tigers are good without Denny McLain, but with him they are an excellent team. Mickey Lolich looms as the number one pitcher, now that commissioner Bowie Kuhn has suspended McLain indefinitely from baseball. Otherwise, the Tigers still have Al Kaline, Willie Horton, Norm Cash, Jim Northrup, and Bill Freehan. Manager Ted Williams of the Washington Senators insists that his own Frank Howard is the best homer hitter in the majors today. Williams has been doing a wonderful job in making hitters out of the Senators, but he can not do anything with the pitchers. The New York Yankees have the pitching of Mel Stottlemyre, but he is not able to revive the Yankee pennant fever. The Cleveland Indians figure to get better as the year progresses, but nobody expects manager Al Dark to bring a title flag to Cleveland without the services of Ken "Hawk" Harrelson.

The Minnesota Twins and the Oakland Athletics easily outdistance their competition in the American League Western Division. The Twins should win the division title by only a narrow margin. They have the pitching of Jim Perry and Dave Boswell and the hitting of Harmon Killebrew, Tony Oliva, and Rod Carew. The Athletics have Felipe Alou (from Atlanta), Rick Monday, Sal Bando, Don Mincher, and slugging Reggie Jackson (if he signs owner Charlie Finley's contract).

The California Angels have their first legitimate batter with the acquisition of Alex Johnson from Cincinnati. Andy Messersmith leads a starless pitching staff. The Chicago White Sox have the hitting of Bill Melton and comebacking Carlos May, and the pitching of Joel Horlen and Tommy John. The Kansas City Royals are spearheaded by last year's rookie of the year Lou Piniella and pitcher Wally Bunker. The Seattle Pilots are mired in last place, and they are not going anywhere, or are they? The Seattle Pilots might become the Milwaukee Brewers, if their franchise continues to lose money.

The divisional playoffs will find the New York Mets defeated by the Cincinnati Reds, and the Boston Red Sox will beat the Minnesota Twins. Following the playoffs, the World Series will be colorful this year, and red will be the dominant color. The Cincinnati Reds will overcome the Boston Red Sox for the championship by bombing the Sox at Fenway Park, and Pete Rose will be the hitting star of the series. Baseball will continue as the nation's number one pastime as millions of people will flock to see ball games from April through October.
