Music Clubs to Organize

The Bryant Musical Club under the direction of Professor Ralph S. Handy has started weekly rehearsals of the concert orchestra. Three rehearsals have shown that Bryant may expect a very finished concert in the near future.

Plans for the organization roll for an active participation in the weekly assemblies, and a combined Musical Clubs Concert to be held in Stratton Hall soon after its completion.

It has been decided that this year the Glee clubs will be given during the scholastic year, and professors from leading Eastern universities will be given the opportunity to exercise their talents as well as an opportunity to exercise their talents as well as an opportunity to exercise their talents.

Freshman class organization week of October 9-16, with the election of officers.

With Don writing the music, and Francis Tomlinson, Peggy Johnson, and Miss Marion Morris, the Bryant Musical Club under the direction of Professor Ralph S. Handy has persuaded him to put into actual expression his dream of a musical club.

Choirs were added to the shelves. Four were also included in the following publications who have donated many volumes of valuable books on musical subjects:

- American Book Company
- Gregg Publishing Company
- West Publishing Company
- Walton Publishing Company

Don Way added to his list of accomplishments by composing musical popularly known to his his audience and some of his musical friends. His work has been so popular that he was asked to separate them into two separate groups.

The talk was preceded by an introduction by Professor Ralph S. Handy, a critic of the Rhode Island School of Design. The talk was given in the Stratton gymnasium upon its opening.

The hall is available for all types of indoor sport. When social affairs take place, an easily removed crystallized marley floor is applied.

The team has already scheduled a game for November 20-Professor Otis E. Randall, for Wednesday, with the Brown University team.

This is their first attempt at this sort of singing, and they found it to be quite enjoyable.

Initiation Week Ends For Most of Pledgees

Young ladies with pigtails, hair ribbons, hats, gloves, and overcoats; young men with red ties, lapel ribbons, and the like, were present very prominently the week of October 14th. Initiation week at Bryant was the same affair. The week set aside by the Inter-Fraternity Council as the week to make pledges realized how humble and small they really are, or should be.

For the upper classes, it was a week of rejoicing, for it was a week of free cigarettes, chewing gum, shoes and valet service as no opportunity to exercise the right arm in the ancient art of "paddling" while the pledges assume the angle.

Songs and speeches were heard in Alumni Hall and soon beer was more than lunch; it was an entertainment of the highest order and most enjoyable.

Plans of the organization call for an active business meeting to be held in the Stratton gymnasium upon its opening.

Bryant Girls Assist In Red Cross Drive

A group of Bryant College girls under the supervision of Mrs. Stickney, and directed by Miss Minnikin, on Tuesday and Wednesday, assisted in making the Red Cross drive a success.

The coming months promise to be filled with Fraternity and Sorority events. Beta Sigma Chi plans a big party for November. Sigma Delta Kappa have chosen Friday, November 8, for their next dance.

Sponsors Contest To Be Ready This Month

Stratton Gymnasium, the long awaited, sorely needed recreational unit of Bryant College is at last a reality. With architecture befitting the dignity of the college and the neighborhood, this is a building that should be proud of.

To Students

The Sigma Lambda Theta Society held a social affair at Bryant Hall on October 10, to welcome in the pledges. The dining room was decorated in a very Redonda manner to represent a restaurant called "Sloppy Joe's." The dark atmosphere of the room was relieved by candles which left empty bottles for holders. To attract the effort were small round tables covered with large, white checked tablecloths and napkins. Pillows of various colors were used and an effective decoration of the decorations was drawn by Francis Butler, a student of the Rhode Island School of Design. Refreshments were served in "Sloppy Joe's" style, cookies in huge piles in the center of the table, cake in stacks on large plates, and coffee in mugs. The hostesses, Eleanor Wallers and Carmella Rogers, with the assistance of Kay Hanley, the Alumni adviser, presented a floor show. The other Alumni girls were dressed as tourists of all parts of the world.

The annual banquet present were Mrs. Stickney, Mrs. Gallo, and Miss Appel. With the wires drawing the music and Francis the words, they have composed the song "Mooselpell," which will be played for the first time in the near future at one of the college dinners.

This is their first attempt at this sort of thing, and they found it to be quite interesting. If "Mooselpell" is well received, more songs will follow.

Editorial

Last Thursday a notice was read to the classes concerning cut classes. It stated that those who cut classes would have to make the time up in a double amount.

Some high-school students have this silly high-school idea. Yes, it is a high-school idea but maybe it is not so silly. Many students have cut classes in a high-school. They have gone home, smoked a cigarette, and then returned to the class with a good conscience. When our friends visit us, we point with pride to the handsomely furnished offices in South Hall and modernly equipped classrooms and get the knowledge. Some say this is a silly, high-school idea. Others say it is a high-school idea but maybe it is not so silly. Some say it is a high-school idea but maybe it is not so silly.

In the first issue of the Collegian it was stated that Mr. Hammond taught twelve subjects. This was, of course, a typographical error, as he teaches but three major subjects. This was, of course, a typographical error, as he teaches but three major subjects.

Bits of Thought

Many people liked this column in the last issue so here we go again to try to gather more thoughts about the college.

Last week’s initiation reminded many seniors of the day last year when they were taken for a “ride” over the rough road of initiation.

Those doubting Thomases who thought that the gym would not be ready for November first have been surprised at the gym, which the men have worked in the past weeks.

Just after this paper was last issued, the limp near the driveway in front of South Hall was softly patted over by a fresh freshman (a brute, I’d say), but we notice that it has been placed upright again, plus the globe.

People We Know

Suggestions for sanctions to be leveled on Miss Harriet Pierce will gladly be received by Miss Pierce. Miss Pierce has been selected editor-in-chief of the BRYANT COLLEGIAN. She has a band like Cass Loma’s—enjoys music, playing tennis and bridge. Miss Pierce is a member of the Beta Sigma Chi Fraternity and is taking the Actuarial Course. She has many friends and has a band like Cass Loma’s—enjoys music, playing tennis and bridge.

Who’s Who

Among our best known teachers is Kathleen Krueger. For two years she attended Rogers High School, Newport, Rhode Island, and then began Hope High at Providence the year course at Bryant followed. Besides her two years of teaching shorthand and Office Writing she has taken courses in music, dancing and tennis; adores football.

If anyone has any spare time after school some afternoon, go over to Alumni Hall and listen to the Bryant Concert Orchestra. In spite of reports to the contrary some of the students here and there feel this group is really so they say, “not half bad.”

If you answer a question, from the school’s point of view, you are wrong. We’ll end with this bit of wisdom ... “it is better to expect the best and receive the least.”

BRYANT HALL NOTES
It is the general opinion of Bryant College that the Sigma Lambda Theta pledges are the best looking girls on the campus. With such a lively crew they should certainly be going places and doing things this year. Incidentally, the majority of the dorm turning up in the Sigma Lambda Theta is the mysterious Miss Green at the dorms. Would Bill Frost know anything about it? Nearly half of the Bryant Hall population is going home for the weekend... Carmella can't decide which blonde she likes better... The romance between the red and Ralke is still flourishing. Why? Competition! But you don't have to worry, Helen, "Carmella" has plenty of heart interests now... "Cabby" appreciates the contributions from the cracker funds in charge of Mike Miller... The romance between Dave and Phyllis is dying out. Can it be that smoke has gotten in their eyes...? Van Zanem seems to have made a hit with Phil Uley. Nice going, Barry, here's wishing you luck... Why did Jane and Juliet come late to the pledge dinner? Was it engine trouble?... We wonder why Sally is so quiet this year, it might be love... Sally Goldberg recently spent the weekend at her home in Maine. Tough luck, Vic... Orlov and Rado and Anna King are still inseparable... Marion Merrill enjoys talking about her |March 1 and May parties and "Wintna." Our own Lois Berry is playing the trumpet in the orchestra. At least there's one university that makes in the dorm... I wonder what the tricks are the girls are always up to after dark... we... Baldy Minlin has to pay the taxi man for extra charges... what was the hurry, Bobby? Have you noticed how kind "Mell" is to Cabble and Ralke? When they come in late she even makes up bed... boys....

Those who cut, we are looking for reasons with those who we really can get excited. I guess we need advice from the Senior who once painted her eyelids with lipstick and called it stringent about enforcing penalty work upon the fraternity. The Edwards-Clark, Schirmiling-Westman romances aren't going along so very smoothly from all appearances. We are disappointed.
