The regional director of the Small Business Administration in Rhode Island, Anthony S. Stasio '49, has been appointed to the position of director of the SBA's Office of Business Assistance in Washington.

Tony was one of a staff of two which opened the SBA office in Rhode Island in 1958. He was honored at a dinner on August 25 at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel at which time he was presented with a citation by Rhode Island Governor John Chafee, a citation from the officers and directors of the United Fund, given by UF President Robert H. I. Goddard, Jr., and an engraved Revere silver bowl from the testimonial committee.

Describing the contribution that the SBA has made to the state, Governor Chafee quipped, "This man has really got it. He was appointed by Eisenhower and promoted by Johnson."

Eugene P. Foley, administrator of the U.S. Small Business Administration was the principal speaker for a group of over 500. Mr. Foley has since been appointed by President Johnson to the post of assistant secretary of Commerce in charge of the new Office of Economic Development.

Dr. E. Gardner Jacobs '21 and Judge Thomas J. Paolino '64 were also among the speakers at the dinner, which was sponsored by the Rhode Island Association of Public Accountants, Chapter 13 of the Service Corps of Retired Executives, and the Rhode Island Small Business Advisory Council, all of which Tony had a part in organizing.

Tony and his family are now residing at 9802 De Paul Drive, Bethesda, Maryland 20034.

ROY D. WELCH TO HEAD DEVELOPMENT OFFICE

The appointment of Roy D. Welch, Jr. to head a newly created Development Office was announced recently by President Jacobs. In making the appointment, President Jacobs noted that Bryant has reached a stage where alumni are being asked to take a greater share in planning the direction of the College's growth and supporting its progress.

"Alumni, more than any other group," he said, "are the key to strengthening our educational programs. The more they take an interest in the College, support her financially, and serve as goodwill ambassadors, the more we excel.

"Bryant College must obtain increased financial support if she is to continue advancing in her field. Our goal is to excel in educating young men and women for business leadership and meet our obligations to future alumni in light of the accelerating demands of business," he continued. "The Alumni Annual Giving Program brings Bryant unrestricted gifts. It is impossible for us to grow without this support, for tuition and fees simply do not pay for the cost of education today. We are pleased that so many alumni contributed to the College last year, reflecting a growing awareness of the important role we serve in higher education."

The Development Office will be responsible for interpreting the College's educational programs to alumni, corporations and foundations, and mapping opportunities for the financial support of present and future programs.

Mr. Welch received his B.S. and M.A. degrees from Northwestern University and has pursued graduate study in business administration at the University of Chicago. He was formerly assistant to the president of Rand McNally and Company and recently held the development post at Rhode Island School of Design.

GILMAN TO HEAD 1966 ALUMNI FUND

The 1966 Alumni Annual Giving Fund will be headed up by Hector A. Gilman '21, vice president in charge of the Industrial National Bank's West Shore area offices.

Although this past year provided the Fund with many skilled and enthusiastic Chairmen and Agents, there is room for additional participants. A note from you to the Alumni Office, indicating that you will be glad to help, is all we shall need. All of the Fund materials will be provided for you and incidental expenses you incur will be reimbursed at the end of the Fund program.

Won't you drop us a note to say you'll help?

The following remarks by Dr. Charles H. Russell, vice president for academic affairs, were part of a talk, "Businessmen and Colleges of Business," given before the Rotary Club of Providence. It was included in the July 21 issue of The Wall Street Journal in its "Notable and Quotable" column.

Businessmen are so completely immersed in making decisions every day that they take the whole process for granted. They do not think of it as an intellectual power. They decide daily whether to buy or sell, what to manufacture and how much, where the most profitable market is, whom to hire, whom to fire, how much of this, how much of that.

Making a sound decision is a complex and difficult art . . . The intellectual processes involved are similar to those in mathematics or science, where care and orderliness or a step by step build-up of reasoning are essential to success. The level of difficulty of business decision-making explains why we are developing today the scientific management and marketing movements. . . . Decision-making is the very breath of life for a businessman — it is the excitement and romance of business . . .

It appears to me we need to do one thing more than any other, which is to convey to young people the excitement of business as a career and, along with it, the challenge of the private enterprise system to individual talent. In my opinion, we have failed in this task . . . For over 30 years, since the beginning of the depression, business has taken a beating. It used to be that the story of rags to riches, the log hut to financial wealth was the great American dream—and the entrepreneur was viewed as a man who accomplished great things.

But 30 years of debunking, a constant harping in media of entertainment . . .

Dean Gulski reads Class Day Awards as Professor Richards reads names of recipients.
Each year the Class Day and Commencement exercises seem to take on more pageantry and beauty. This year was no exception. The weather provided a delightful setting for the Class Day program on the Campus Green. Speeches were pertinent and the proceedings carried out by Peter Castelli, '65 Class President, lifted the affair to a new level of good taste.

The Senior Class Gift to the College is a wooden Indian, Bryant's mascot. Several offers to nickname him “Ol' Sourpuss” have been turned aside, but we are sure he ought to have a "handle" by which he shall be known to all.

Principal speaker at the 102nd Commencement was William Webster, Chairman and Chief Executive of the New England Electric System.

Joseph D. A. Whalen, retired chairman of the board of Bostitch Company of East Greenwich, and a Bryant alumnus, Class of 1900, was honored with the degree of Doctor of Science in Business Administration, honoris causa.

Others who were honored at Commencement were Mr. Leon H. Keyserling, renowned economist and lawyer; Mrs. Mary Dublin Keyserling, his wife, also an economist and Director of the Women’s Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor; Dr. Edward J. Mortola, President of Pace College; Mr. Edwin C. Brown, an officer of the Rhode Island AFL-CIO; and Mr. Charles A. Post, Chairman of the Board of the Citizens Savings Bank.

Copies of the class day and commencement speeches are available to alumni. Send your request to Director of Public Relations, Bryant College, 154 Hope Street, Providence, R. I. 02906.
BRYANT ALUMNI CHAIRS AVAILABLE FOR HOME OR OFFICE

The Bryant Alumni Chairs announced in this issue of the newsletter may be ordered directly from the Alumni Office.

They are made by S. Bent & Brothers, Inc. of Gardner, Massachusetts and are exceptionally fine quality. The College Seal is reproduced by the silk screen process on the back of the chair.

All chairs are black with gold trim and a gold seal. The arm chair is available with cherry arms, if you wish.

Alumni considering the purchase of chairs for themselves or as gifts for delivery by Christmas must place their order no later than November 17; however, the chairs will be available at any time during the year.

The arm chair is $30, the side chair $20, and the lady's chair $18. Express charges from Gardner, Massachusetts, are paid by you when the chair is delivered and are most reasonable.

To place your order send a check for the appropriate amount, payable to the Bryant College Alumni Association, to the Bryant Alumni Office, 154 Hope Street, Providence, Rhode Island 02906.
