BRYANT COLLEGE

HOMECOMING 1998

THE TRADITION BEGINS
SEPTEMBER 26, 1998
Mess

Bryant College is a student-centered College, focused on excellence, that prepares its students to achieve their personal best in life and in business.

Message from the President

Dear Students, Alumni, and Friends:

Welcome to Homecoming 1998. While all homecoming weekends are special, this year's celebration is even more meaningful than those of the past. This year we step into the history books as we begin the time-honored tradition of college football on our campus.

Adding football and four other new athletic programs was a strategic decision based on "The New Century Plan for Excellence," our vision for Bryant in the 21st century. Among other initiatives, the plan calls for enhancing student life on campus, offering a value-added education, and solidifying our competitive advantage.

These new athletic teams will help to enrich campus life, especially on weekends when classes are not in session. By 2002, in addition to football, we will have added varsity teams in men's and women's lacrosse, women's field hockey, and women's golf — giving students 19 sports programs and more opportunities than ever before to develop skills and talents outside of the classroom. Our expanded athletic program will also increase Bryant's visibility and open new recruitment markets.

Perhaps most important, we are expanding our athletic programs because we believe that the classroom and playing field are linked together in shaping tomorrow's business leaders. While our athletes are expected to maintain Bryant's high academic standards, their classroom knowledge will be complemented by the discipline, drive, competitive spirit, and leadership skills learned on the playing field.

Our athletic programs will bring all of these things and more to our campus in the years to come. Please join me in saluting all of our teams — and in cheering on Coach Jim Miceli and the Bryant Bulldogs as they take to the field for the first time in the 133-year history of Bryant College. Thank you for your continued support.

Ronald K. Machtley
President
Bryant College
While high expectations are the norm for the volleyball team, last fall’s gutsy group carved out one of the most memorable and exciting campaigns in recent memory.

Facing an Ambitious Schedule

That included several of the East’s top squads, Bryant reeled off 28 wins, including nine in a row down the stretch, and became the only non-scholarship team in the 32-team NCAA Tournament field. For her efforts, head coach Theresa Garfacy was named NE-10 coach of the year.

An NCAA Tournament Appearance

Has become a tradition for the golf team. Last spring, the Bulldogs made their 13th straight appearance, the 21st in 26 years. Earlier in the season, the nationally ranked Bulldogs captured their sixth straight Division II New England crown.

The ’98 Season Was Simply the Best

In the long history of Bryant baseball. The Bulldogs won the conference title and reached the NCAA Tournament for the first time since 1986. Not satisfied just to make the tourney, Bryant overcame a four-run deficit in the eighth inning to take a stunning 7-6, 10-inning win over UMass-Lowell, the top seed in the Northeast Regional, in the opening game of the tournament. The Bulldogs broke 12 team records last spring, including wins (29) and consecutive wins (14). Nine players earned all-conference accolades, and head coach Jon Sjogren picked up his third conference coach-of-the-year award in eight years.

Matt Roloff Personifies the True Meaning of ‘Student-Athlete’

Roloff, a computer information systems major with a 3.79 grade-point average, was named to the 1997 NCAA Division II Men’s Cross Country Coaches Association All-Academic Team. The two-sport athlete was an all-conference selection in cross country and set school track records in the 3,000 meters and in the distance medley. The men’s cross-country team was honored as one of only 15 teams in Division II to carry a grade-point average of 3.0 or better.

Head Coach Jim Miceli

Jim Miceli came to Bryant in July 1997 from the University of Maryland, where he was an assistant coach and coordinator of the recruiting program. In his four years at Maryland, he had three top-20 recruiting classes (1993, 1994, and 1995) and, in 1995, was ranked by national recruiting analyst Tom Lemming as one of the top 10 college football recruiting coordinators in the nation. While at Maryland, Miceli coached quarterbacks, tight ends, receivers, punters, and the offensive line. He also served on the University Compliance Committee, interpreting NCAA rules and establishing university policies.

After serving as an assistant coach at Milford Academy in Connecticut, Miceli broke into the college ranks in 1980 as an assistant at the University of Pittsburgh, where he coached the offensive and defensive lines and guided the junior varsity team to a two-year record of 15-1. He also served as a Pittsburgh assistant coach from 1992 to 1993, coaching the tight ends and tackles and serving as coordinator of academic programs for football players.

Miceli's first collegiate head coaching job was with Ramapo College in New Jersey from 1986 to 1993. He revived its downtrodden Division III program, leading the team to a 33-9 record from 1988-92 after it had suffered through one of the worst losing streaks (1-29-1) in college football history. He was named New Jersey Athletic Conference coach of the year in 1989. His teams were nationally ranked in 1989, 1990, and 1991, when they finished ninth nationally, and captured the ECAC South title in 1990. Miceli coached three All-Americans, seven ECAC All-Stars, and 18 first-team all-conference players.

Miceli is a 1979 graduate of Southern Connecticut State University.

A PRE-SEASON CONVERSATION WITH COACH MICELI

It's taken you a year to get prepared for this season. Looking back, was building a football program from the ground up harder than you anticipated?

A little harder. We were starting from scratch. I was always strapped for time between hiring coaches, moving into new offices, and recruiting. In fact, we haven't stopped recruiting.

This season will probably be the most interesting year in my career. I told the kids that these are the facts: the first day we get out there, no one will know anybody, no one will have a clue what we are doing, and no one will be better than anyone else. For the players, that has to be great.

This team is going to be made up predominantly of freshmen. Obviously, college football is a big change from high school football. What are the biggest challenges facing the freshmen?

The speed of the game is different. Everyone is two steps faster at this level and, in some instances, 30 pounds heavier. The biggest difference is in practice. In high school football, they spend up to three hours on the field. We will never be on the field more than two hours and twenty minutes, but there will be meeting time. The mental part of the game is much more intense at the college level. It is critical that every day the players focus on their classes, meetings, and practice.

You are playing a wide variety of teams this fall.

Yes, we are. Our schedule is very interesting. We are playing a junior college (Dean), and most people don't understand why. Physically, that team may be the best team we play.

Then we play three conference teams that we will see in the future. St. Anselm is in the same situation as we are with a new program. Assumption has a new head coach and has been feeling its way through the conference a little bit. Pace will be one of the stronger teams in the EFC, so that will be a tough game.

I believe that no other start-up program has tried to play three teams that are on a higher level (La Salle, Sacred Heart, and Siena). La Salle just revived its program last season, and will be much improved — as we hope to be next season. Sacred Heart, which was in the EFC in '97, makes the jump to Division I this season. Anytime you upgrade your athletic program, it translates into better players. Siena was 5-5 in the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference and had the leading rusher in the nation last season.

We also have a scrimmage against Western New England College, a Division III school in Massachusetts.

Ninety-nine student-athletes from 12 states as far as Florida and Ohio were on the pre-season roster. How important is recruiting?

Good recruiting is essential to the success of any program. I hired good coaches who are excellent recruiters. I wanted people who could fit a geographical bill for us. Scott Kochman, for example, is as good a recruiter in the state of New Jersey as there is on any level. It's impossible for one guy to recruit the whole state, so I hired Glenn Castiglia, another guy with strong New Jersey contacts. I needed someone strong to recruit in Massachusetts, and Jeremy Cameron and Wayne Simmian have done a phenomenal job, bringing in 35-40 student-athletes from Massachusetts. Mike Salomone, Tony Teolis, and Steve Knowlton were all high school coaches in Rhode Island, allowing us to recruit well locally. Dennis Moynihan is from Connecticut, and he basically ran the recruiting program at the University of Notre Dame. Jon Shelton will recruit in Maryland, along with me, and Steve Tully is from New Jersey, plus he graduated from Bryant and knows this campus inside and out. So, I am very comfortable with our staff.

Do you have any major expectations as far as wins and losses?

Not this year. This is the year that we will put our program in place. Does that mean no wins, one win, seven wins... I don't know. We are not going into this season worrying about winning. We are going into this as an evaluation of players for the future. We need to install a system both offensively and defensively, and prepare an academic program where the individual realizes what it takes to be a student and an athlete at Bryant.

EASTERN FOOTBALL CONFERENCE

Last fall marked the inaugural season of the Eastern Football Conference (EFC). The EFC comprises 11 NCAA Division II schools, all non-scholarship for football, from throughout New England and New York.

The conference is divided into two divisions, the Bay State and the Atlantic. American International College, Assumption College, Bentley College, the University of Massachusetts at Lowell, Merrimack College and Stonehill College compete in the Bay State Division. The University at Albany, LIU/C.W Post, Pace University, Southern Connecticut State University, and the University at Stony Brook make up the Atlantic Division.

Bryant and St. Anselm will join the EFC for the 1999 season. Albany defeated AIC, 27-20, in the first EFC Championship game last November.

BULLDOG STADIUM
nears completion

Construction on the outdoor facility began in May. Following Bryant's reputation as a top business specialty school, the new stadium will also be tops in its class. The facility will be used for Bryant men's and women's soccer, and men's and women's lacrosse varsity contests as well as football.

A 2,200-seat permanent bleacher is erected on the home side of the field, and there will be an additional 1,000 seats available on the opposing side. The state-of-the-art bleacher system utilizes a design that is usually reserved for larger stadiums. This technology will ensure excellent sight lines and maximum comfort.

The building under the permanent bleacher will house locker rooms for both Bryant and visiting teams, office space, an athletic training facility, and public restrooms. The press box area will be above the stands.

The stadium will be completed this year with the box office targeted for completion in 1999.
