Community and College Join for Alcohol Awareness

Cindy Gale
Archway Staff Writer

On this past bright autumn Sunday morning, Bryant College didn’t have its normal placid atmosphere. Bryant’s serenity was shattered by over 1,000 participants and spectators on campus for the Second Annual Kristen Hatch Memorial Road Race.

An estimated $5,220 was raised for the Kristen Hatch Scholarship Fund during the day’s events. Eighteen students were raised in the three main events.

The day’s events started shortly after 9:30 with a 2.5-mile Alcohol Awareness Walk. It was followed by a one-mile fun run at 10:30. The five-mile road race, with 345 competitors, was won by Kieron Tumbleton of Providence in 25:31. The first woman to finish the race was Smithfield native Kim Goff with a time of 30:25.

The first male and female Bryant students to finish the race were Seniors Roger Stevens and Holly Grimmett with times of 27:41 and 27:46, respectively. Bryant students were visible in the race, but were not the only runners. Olympian and world-class runner John Gregorek took part in the race and finished 11th.

Les Pawson, a three-time Boston Marathon winner, was the Honorary Chairman and official starter. Pawson felt the race was “a good case” and there was a good crowd turnout. Pawson also felt the race was well organized, which he felt helped get everybody involved. Gregorek had a family commitment to attend to after the race but said, “I committed to this race and that too, and that’s why I’m here.”

“What a great day,” said David Hatch, Kristen’s father. “It’s a great tribute to my daughter and a wonderful memorial to her.”

Hatch stated he hopes to raise the alcohol awareness of the community through the race.

Unity and Devotion: Scott LeBeau (276) and Jerry Peterson (275), both veterans of the same unit that served in Operation Desert Storm, cross the finish line hand-in-hand after running the five-mile race in their Marine combat boots.

Lockout Controversy Resolved
Parking Services Coordinator Position Created

Mark Pilchik
Archway Staff Writer

The Office of Public Safety will continue to respond to lockout calls, but they will charge $5 for each request after the first one. That is the word from Office of Public Safety Chief George Coronado in the wake of his controversial decision last week to eliminate that service from the duty of Public Safety officers.

Following his address at last week’s student senate meeting, Coronado met with members of the senate ad-hoc committee on Thursday morning. A compromise was reached, according to a statement released by the senate on Thursday, which will give a student one free request for a lockout. All subsequent requests will cost $5.00, payable with a non-appealable citation.

The idea of charging for lockout requests is not new at Bryant. Last year, there was a $1.00 charge for a lockout request after the first time.

When a Student calls requesting a lockout, the dispatcher will inform the patrolling officer if it is their first or second or third request... when the officer arrives at the scene, he will write a citation before keying in, indicating on the citation that it is for a lockout,” said Coronado.

The citation will go on a student’s record, Coronado said, and if not paid will be grounds for withhold- ing grades and diplomas.

It is Coronado’s hope that the policy will cut down on the number of requests for lockouts made each semester, giving the Public Safety department more time to patrol the residence halls and parking lots, “where protection is needed the most.”

Coronado also announced the creation of a new position of Parking Services Coordinator, who will be responsible for all parking policy violations and appeals of citations.

Sergeant Ralph Pace will assume his new duties as Parking Services Coordinator immediately and will report directly to the Director on a weekly basis, according to Coronado.

The new position of Parking Services Coordinator now has responsibility for all parking related matters, including “taking requests for all special parking arrangements, ordering and design of decals, maintenance of all parking related materials, receiving and adjudicating all appeals for parking tickets,”
You Deserve to Know

The Student Senate voted after Wednesday’s senate meeting to not release the vote totals and voting results of the freshmen Senate elections. Such concealment is not new. Last spring, the senate also refused to announce vote tallies from the Executive Council and general elections.

The question we ask is why do they refuse to release the vote counts?

In the real world, election numbers are released to the media at the time. And no matter how strongly some people deny it, Bryant is part of the real world, with real purposes by reporting the news of the election objectively and depiction of the facts as they occurred.

The vote not to release the election results was unanimous, according to Senate President Jamie Bergeron. This vote, however, was not held during the same open Senate meeting where the election results were initially announced, but during a closed-door meeting held after a request for the results had already been made.

If a vote on such an important topic was to take place, the entire Bryant community should have been informed of the vote and been allowed to participate in the debate. After all, the Senate exists to serve the student body. Shouldn’t their constituency have an input on major issues before they are voted on?

The purpose of the media is to objectively report the news as it occurs. The Archway aims to adhere to this purpose by reporting the results of the election objectively to the student body because it is factual information the student body should know. The concern is for the accurate depiction of the facts as they occurred.

In contrast, the stated purpose of the Student Senate is to serve as a "channel of communication between the student body and the administration of the college," not to determine what facts and information should and should not be concealed from the Bryant student body.

Media outlets such as The Archway serve to inform their readership through the presentation of accurate facts. If relevant facts are suppressed, accurate and adequate information will be unjustly withheld from those who deserve to know.

As Bryant College students one of the first things you become accustomed to (and learn to accept) is that you will be taken every year for the next four years by the bookstore when it comes to the buying and selling of books. It is inevitable that you bought for $50.00 will see you a return of wrapping $20.00 at semester end. One third return on your investment isn’t bad you say, but no this of course is the best possible deal you will get. Let us not forget about those study guides that become invaluable to those who choose them as an alternative to the book (or to the freshmen who are told by their parents that they must have them, yet, they have heard the study guides have helped many people). Yes those wonderful study guides that at $15.00 each will earn a $1.00 return. If you were told the shrink wrap is still in tack. We have come to know this process as a semester end ritual where you stare in disbelief at your hand as the cashier gives you back, in cash, one third of what you handed them, in cash, three months earlier. So why do we argue us all so early in the semester thinking about it? The reason is this. My experience of disbelief in the bookstore have come a little earlier than Christmas this year. You see my escapade began, as many of yours, the first week of school buying $300.00 worth of books on my shiny new maincard. But here’s where my story varies from the norm. Two weeks into classes I decided it was a wise choice drop Spanish while my GPA still had the chance. No problem... Until I get to the bookstore. Upon careful examination of my books they decided that four of the five (one of which had been bought only two days prior) would have to be returned as used. Understandable due to highlighting, but frustrating seeing they were only mine for a week. Thus my account was credited $50.00 for a charge that originated closer to $100.00. With credit slip in hand I went on my merry way and never thought about it again until today. You see, on one of my many first week trips to the bookstore, I also bought a financial calculator (for all you freshmen who just blew $90.00 on a scientific one for the analysis). If you have your math gate in store for you with FM). I brought the calculator home, took it and its 200 page manual (another subject for another time) out of the box and threw the box away. Proud of my new purchase I brought it to my FM teacher to show him my wonderful new calculator... At which point he informed me I had the wrong model (I amBt requiring any one, but he said it would be helpful for new until I could get off campus for a new one. So, today I am on my way off campus, but first to the bookstore to return my $34.00 calculator. The bookstore informed me that, "they were sorry but as far as they were concerned it was mine to do with it. A little shocked and a lot angry I asked what the problem was. She informed me that all returns must be in resalable condition (I’m the only one who never read this in the what, student handbook for shopping at a bookstore). Not too worried I smiled and explained that it was resalable because I had brought along the 200 page manual, not just the calculator, all the contents of the box where in my hand. Contents of the box become a very key phrase. She explained to me that I needed the box in order for it to be considered resalable. Well, words will fly, but here I am with a calculator that after only three weeks of classes doesn’t have the capacity to calculate my FM for me. And let us not forget the maincard bill. Yes a bill that I have taken a total loss of $50.00 on. Guess what guys...I still have to pay it! (Oh, just to be fair to the bookstore...do not sell the model calculator required for the course). So off I go to buy my new calculator and see if I can smile pretty enough to strike a deal with the Radio Shack clerk to trade the calculator for the upgrade and the difference in price. Well, its worth a shot right? Wish me luck!

Diversity is What We Need

To the professors who wrote regarding the Hari Krishnas:

I agree that the presence of difference is good for the campus. However, how different is it to have the same group changing faces of the Bryant Campus every year? Not very, I would say.

"Take exception" to the professors’ inference that Mr. Cartwright representing a closed-minded view. On the contrary, while I do not know Ms. Cartwright personally, I believe what she is saying is that diversity is what we need, and that we are not getting that diversity.

It seems to me that if the person who invites the Hari Krishnas every year was really interested in increasing self-examination and intellectual confrontation, then she/his would invite different groups each year, or better yet, different groups or individuals throughout the year. Some examples might be; the Mormons, Jehovah's Witnesses, representatives of the Catholic Church, representatives of the Protestant faiths, Buddhists, etc. I am certain that not all of them would want to come, but I think everyone sees my point.

In conclusion, I would like to say that perhaps the professors who wrote in should have thought this through more carefully, instead of wondering that may be, they are the ones who invites the Hari Krishnas EVERY YEAR has another agenda.

Dear Editor,

As I strollled into the Bryant center one night to grab a late night ice cream, I took notice of the particular radio station that the operation-office had playing and I frowned in distaste. Most people do not notice and listen to the radio station playning over the PA system in the Bryant center while they’re eating, studying, getting their mail or whoever evertheless brings them there.

What is really disappointing is that the radio station that was playing was 92 PRO-FM. Now, granted that PRO-FM is probably one of the Top 40 radio stations on the east coast, but isn’t Bryant College and the Operations Office slapping themselves in the face?

Don’t we have our very own radio station? It’s not like they can’t get it turned in - they’re only broadcasting from across the parking lot.

The difference between our radio station, WJMF 88.7 FM and 92
PRO-FM is the fact that 88.7 FM plays a broad range of music - ev-everything from R.E.M. to Billy Jo and back again. WJMF plays songs that everyone likes - whatever their tastes are. If you listen to PRO-FM long enough, you can appreciate the validity of my point. After playing Boyz II Men two times repeatedly in one hour, any decent person would get sick of it.

Now, it is time to act. WJMF broadcasts from 8am to 10m 7 days a week. The Bryant Center usually closes at 12 midnight. Can someone down there please have some respect for the organization that is funded by the college - is run by the students - and is an excellent medium for the whole Bryant community? Please tune in WJMF for the whole day and night on the PA system in the Bryant Center and in South Dining Hall. Everybody at WJMF works very hard to be sure that we broadcast the very best - and we don’t get paid for it. I’m proud to be a part of WJMF and I hope that I will soon echo through the halls of our campus structures - especially in the Bryant Center.

Sincerely,
Dustin Goldstein

Unhomecoming Weekend
Attempts to Unite Campus

Kelly A. Carrowright
Archway Staff Writer

Homecoming weekends at colleges and universities across the country are traditionally annual celebrations for alumni.

Bryant College doesn’t have a football team with an age-old rival, and therefore no tailgates. And Bryant holds alumni weekends at other times during the year. “Homecoming” just doesn’t seem appropriate under those circumstances.

Instead Bryant holds an Unhomecoming Weekend every autumn. “Unhomecoming” could be defined as a celebration for alumni-to-be. Or, as an Un-homecoming Weekend Co-coordinator Mike Yaffe says, Unhomecoming should be a weekend “by the campus, for the campus.”

Yaffe, President of the Student Programming Board, and his Coordinator Sara Beanstock, are leading a campaign to change the focus of this year’s events.

Instead of SPB being in charge of all the planning, they called a meeting to establish a committee of members of the major campus organizations, including the Greek President’s Council, the Intrafraternity Council, Pan-Hel-letic, Commuters, Seniors, WAVF, the Archway, and Student Alumni Association.

At the meeting, Yaffe summed up the committees purpose: “I just think we all need to get together and figure out what we want…what we want to see, what we want to do.”

He added, “I don’t care who gets the credit…we’re going to get the money and pool it…get everyone to pay…
everyone to operate…everyone to feel they’re an integral part of the weekend.”

The goal this year is to get every organization on campus involved, because “everyone has something to give and everyone has something to gain.” By having many student leaders organizing this weekend, Yaffe believes more students will attend the scheduled events. Attendance is of primary importance to this year’s planners. “If we’re going to put on a high-quality show, we want high-quality attendance,” remarked Yaffe.

The ideas slated for Un-homecoming so far include a fireworks display, an MTV dance party, hayrides and ponyrides, video trax, sound systems, and photo booths.

Other major events for the week include school spirit days, the state flag football championship, and Phil Kappa’s Cardboard City fundraiser.

Yaffe added that a SPB is in the process of booking a “major” convention for the weekend.

The next meeting for the committee is scheduled for 6 pm on Monday, October 7th in Meeting Room 2A of the Bryant Center. Everyone is welcome to attend, according to Yaffe: “If you want to see something, bring it up!”

Student Loan
Program Expanded

Julia Arochon
Archway Staff Writer

A new student loan program implemented by U.S. representative Thomas Petri would expand student loan availability and save taxpayers billions of dollars.

The Income-Dependent Assistance Act (IDEA), introduced in May, calls for students to pay back their loans based on their income once they graduate. There is no fixed payment plan because repayment would be stretched out for as long as needed. When a student’s income increases so do their payments.

Each student would be allowed to borrow up to $70,000 - $29,000 for loans of $25,000 plus $4,000 for graduate school. Medical students would be eligible for more.

Students with high incomes would be asked to repay relatively quickly to help subsidize those students with low paying jobs or who are temporarily unemployed. After 25 years, any remaining loan amount would be cancelled.

The IDEA program hopes to reduce the $3.6 billion student loan defaults that increased 50% this year.

The Education Department estimates that student loan defaults will cost the government $2.8 billion this year.

The IDEA program will reduce student defaults because loan payments would be calculated and collected as part of former students income taxes, therefore, defaulting would be tax evasion.

The middle class, often locked closed out of current student loan programs, will benefit from the IDEA program because there would be no fixed payment plan, often needs an alysis. Loan subsidies would be targeted precisely to those who need them and balanced by premium payments from high income graduates.

IDEA currently has 60 co-sponsors in the House of Representatives from 27 states.

Look for The Archway/WJMF trivia contest, coming soon.
“Diversity” is the new shibboleth of self-appointed campus race monitors. They demand “diversity” of almost every kind—race, gender, sexual orientation, even physical ability. What these folks won’t countenance, however, is diversity of opinion.

As a black college student at the University of Maryland I learned this truth the hard way. As a black conservative, I was ostracized by the very peers who claimed to have value differences because I was, well, different. They didn’t mind that I was black, of course, but College Park’s politically correct student leadership seemed to prefer ideological lockstep within their “divers” student body.

Fortunately, I was never subjected to the kind of overt intolerance that many of my conservative colleagues endured, but there was always a palpable disdain for me and my views among other minority students. One black sophomore, for example, explained to me that “white people are puttin’ those ideas in your head.” Another of my peers wrote in the student newspaper that black conservatives must be “neutralized” (whatever that means). Still another person once complained, “you just don’t under­stand.” It came as no surprise, then, and when the president of Maryland’s Black Student Union refused to work with me and the other black College Republicans when we wanted to bring conserva­tive black speakers to campus.

Like many black college students, I found the student leadership’s at­tempts to insult me from diverse opinions odious and antithe­tical to the ideas of a university education. Black collegians should learn to appreciate the rich heritage of intellectual debate and dissent that has defined the black experience. Men like James W. Du Bois, Frederick Douglass, Booker T. Washington, Malcolm X, and Martin Luther King Jr., did not share a single set of ideals. Each came to their own conclusions through study and honest reflection. If any of us hope to understand the “black thing” referred to by those popular T-shirts, we must try a little study and reflection of our own.

In 1905, W.E.B. Du Bois scolded a young black girl when he ex­plained that, “there are, in the U.S., today, tens of thousands of colored girls who would be happy beyond measure to have the chance of educ­ating themselves that you are neglecting.” He further warned that, “ignorance is a cure for nothing... every time a colored per­son neglects an opportunity. Do you want to cut off the chances of the boys and girls of tomorrow?”

The campus diversity mongers should ponder Du Bois’ words. Each time we refuse to consider diverse opinions, we are “neglecting an opportunity” to learn. Each time a minority student demands “solidarity” from his peers he makes it more difficult for others of the race to get such an opportunity. And ignoring or extinguishing “western culture” in the curriculum is truly a cure for nothing.

Perhaps more important, this desire for intellectual unanimity and separation threatens to undermine the most cherished of all civil rights gains. Black Americans are closer today to being treated by white society simply as individu­als, but now many minorities them­selves assert that race is the defin­ing characteristic of every person. How quickly we forget that this was the very attitude that made sla­

We Are All Blind

Editor’s Note: This article was written by Michael Cain, an Arch­way Staff Writer who died in a fall from the Newport Cliff Walk on August 6, 1991. The article originally ap­peared in the February 23, 1990 issue of The Archway. Peri­odically throughout the semester, The Archway will reprint articles written by Michael.

I saw the blind man triumph up the stairs off the green line of the Boston Subway. I helped open the door for him and in the process he grabbed my hand. He smiled and said, “Hello, are you?” While tightly grasping my hand, I stom­mered out. “Fine, Fine.”

He asked me to find a certain number on the street. I became his eyes. We exchanged names as I helped locate the sequence of num­bers required. He took the direction he wanted to go in and helped him down the city blocks. Immodestly I was conscious of his every move, protecting him like an infant.

I found his shelter a couple blocks away and helped him in the door. My job was done.

Our eyes are responsible for over 80% of the information we receive. But are we using that infor­mation? In a sense, we are all blind. Per­haps its better that some of us don’t see what’s really happening in the world.

On earth we pile up more and more garbage buried on what is left of our open spaces. Plastic bags, Pamper’s, and beer cans are just not going to disappear. In fact, most things like hot dogs or clutch­ing suntan lotion to disintegrate. How much sunlight is there at the bottom of a garbage dump?

Somewhere on earth oil tanker accidents are occurring every week. Instead of seeing the damage, sur­fers and beach-goers journey to an­other beach, blind to the problem. I’m no expert on global warming, but a snowy winter for New Eng­land might be a thing of the past. Our car makers refuse to tighten emission controls by claiming fur­ther measures are impossible. Ironi­cally, they made the same excuse twenty years ago but have reduced emis­sions significantly since.

Most of us are blind to air pollu­tion, except for our friends in Cali­fornia, who can’t leave their homes on certain days. Now when we watch the morning news not only do we see the forecast, but also the air-quality report for the day. No one realizes that a single gas station can pollute the water supply of an entire city overnight until it happens.

President Bush pledges blindly for peace, while asking the Amer­ican tax payers for 3.1 billion dollars for 5 stealth bombers. Stealth bom­bers are designed to knock out en­emy targets after an exchange of nuclear weapons. Bush said when he saw them fly for the first time that, “it made him happy.” Why? He’s completely oblivious to the sight of peace and democracy all over the world. Face it George, the Soviets are going nuts about having one McDonald’s. How can they be enemies?

Yes, we are blind. Nonetheless, I can still see America triumph­ing through this mess and come out fighting. We need the vision for making the earth a better place.

Our eyes are the key to the world, we simply need to open them.
The Annual Choke-o-Rama

Off the Cuff

by the Red Sox to the Yankees for the only remaining parking space in New York City, the "Boys" have been making valiant efforts at a lot of things, most of which have involved losing.

This season, however, the Sox had me convinced that they would be able to overtake the Toronto Blue Jays and win the American League East. But just as it seemed they were ready to Make Their Move, the League of New England Sports Fans Committee on Making Sure That the Red Sox Never Ever Win Another World Series stepped in with a truly deplorable move which involved reminding the Red Sox that they were long overdue for their annual el-Folks (literally "finding new and interesting ways to lose"). I would rather not discuss the Patriots, but since I need to write another "Today in History" column, I might as well mention them here. In their defense, the Patriots have doubled last year's win total already, for a total of 2 wins. But the team is still in serious need of improvement.

The areas where I see the greatest need to improve include running, passing, catching, blocking, and finding the Foxboro Stadium exit without the aid of GPS. I also cringe at the problem with sports teams here in New England doesn't necessarily fall completely on the players. Some of it has to do with management. For example, Victor Conte, the man who put together a team of athletes so much, he bought the company. "Remember, we are talkable," he said. He had an impressive amount of experience in running a football team included coming up with the great marketing plan of selling mugs to football players as a solution to a nagging football injury which involved players sticking their fingers into the blades of a lawn mower as a form of primitive shaving.

But all kidding aside, most New England sports teams are, as the very least, consistently disappointing, and the total level of play is very much such that, on occasion, it could be considered downright ugly. That's part of the fun of living in New England. The excitement of a late inning run, the thrill of a last second touchdown. The felony record from throwing a large, TV shaped object through your neighbors window and down onto your actual neighbor after the Red Sox lost to the A's again. It's all part of New England sports lore. I'm sure if you think long and hard, you can see a few more reasons for being a sports fan in New England that are as good as these. Better, probably, because you haven't had five beers.

So keep your heads up, sports fans. Which know, maybe someday one of our beloved teams could actually win something besides the instant lottery. But don't bet on it.

Bryant Professor Tells Story of Women of WW II

Lisa Lucchesi and Mark Pilchik
Archway Staff Writers

In an office decorated with World War II memorabilia, professor Judy Litoff talked about the efforts that she and her co-author, David C. Smith, made in writing their latest book. Since You Went Away, is a chronicle of the war from the unique perspective of the American women whose husbands, boyfriends, brothers, and sons served overseas during the war.

Her double sized office seems too small to contain the nearly 25,000 letters sent to her after a query was published in hundreds of newspapers across the country asking for letters sent to American men on the front lines during the second World War. But amid the clutter and chaos of a project successful beyond Litoff's and Smith's wildest dreams, Litoff exudes confidence and happiness of a woman who proved the critics of this project wrong. "In the spring of 1988, I wasn't thinking 'this is going to be my life's work'" said Litoff. This isn't the first time Litoff has accepted a challenge. Her previous project, chronicling the history of midwives in America, received similar negative feedback from critics who said the project couldn't be done. After a search for diaries and letters of midwives turned up nothing, she was forced to rely on state and city departments of health and local and national medical journals as her primary sources of documentation for the history of midwives. Her success on that project gave her the determination to tackle the major challenges of researching the history of WWII from the perspective of American women on the home front.

"In each case, I was told 'It can't be done,'" said Litoff. "Midwives didn't leave very many records...I guess I like the challenge of seeking out the history of those people who have been left out of history, like American midwives, and like all of these women who were so much a part of the war effort."

Her books are a way of including American women in the history of the second World War. The Since You Went Away project began in 1988 with a 50 word author's query to all of the nation's daily newspapers - over 1,500 in all. "Sometimes, they [the papers] would wait to publish it at a special time where it would get wide readership, like Memorial Day, when veterans are thinking about various war," Litoff said.

"We knew that there were literally billions of letters written during World War II, and we just couldn't believe that none of these had survived, so that's why we did the query," Litoff continued.

The effort paid off, as they received letters from all 50 states. Litoff remembered being "so excited that I was jumping up and down," when she received the first letter, "It was on Commencement day in 1988, and I opened the envelope a string of V-mail letter fell out, with a letter that said 'Finally, our story is being told.'"

There are around 90 different letters in the book (Litoff hasn't actually sat down to count them yet) from 38 states. "One of the difficult things in putting the book together was there were so many wonderful letters that weren't included in the book."

The major themes exhibited in the letters were used as the chapter titles in the book.

"Many of the letters received were copies of the original V-mails sent to troops overseas. V-mail was a method used by the government during the war to reduce the volume of mail being shipped. Letters were reduced to fit on a microfilm slide, shipped to the soldiers address, and then enlarged to fit on a 4 x 5 1/2 inch card. Seven hundred of the respondents to the author's query regularly receive a newsletter formatted to look like a V-mail form."

Since You Went Away has received its fair share of publicity. The book received an excellent review from Publishers Weekly, "where everyone is anxious to get a review from."

All of the 25,000 letters Litoff and Smith received during their research. The volume of mail received has been so great that Litoff and Smith are planning a 700 red microfilm edition containing all of the 25,000 letters. "We feel that the most significant contribution to the historic record of this story will be the microfilm, because it will enable major university and research libraries around the country to purchase the microfilm so that other researchers will have relatively easy access to the letters," Litoff said.

Much of the credit for making the microfilm project possible goes to Bryant's Stephen Frazier, who designed the data base that Litoff's interns use to catalog the letters. Litoff came to Bryant straight out of her Ph.D. program in 1973 from the University of Maine, where her co-author Smith was her dissertation advisor. The two had always wanted to do a book together and have been working together on letter writing projects since the early 1980s. They are currently working on a sequel to Since You Went Away called We're in This War Too: American Women in Uniform. The book will tell the story of the war from the point of view of America's women in uniform.

Which Graduate Would You Hire?

The merits of getting involved in an organization such as The Archway are obvious.

In today's competitive job market, you need quality academic study and hands on experience to obtain a good position. After all, it's one thing to learn and talk about managing a staff, communicating your ideas, and applying your business skills. It's quite another to actually manage and operate one.

The Archway has provided an outstanding outlet for students interested in supplementing their course work with practical work experience. Why not take advantage of this outlet now?

You'll make the decision that much easier...and your future employer thanks you.
New Mentor Program to Pair Students and Alumni

by Sara Bresaden

If you have any questions about your major or your career options then the Alumni Mentor Program can help.

According to Kenneth J. Sousa '87MBA, a coordinator of the Mentor Program, it has an excellent rate of success in pairing sophomores and juniors with Bryant College alumni. Alumni are available from area locations and in most business majors.

A mentor's advice can help establish and reinforce plans and goals of the students that become involved in the program, explains Sousa.

According to Brian C. Flood '92, the student coordinator, it is not limited to career opportunities.

"A mentor is a friend who has already experienced Bryant life," states Don Cariddi '92, a student participant.

Alumni and mentor Frank Pate '79, '87MBA says, "Alumna remember student life, the pressures, and how to help students deal them." The mentor involved in the program can help make the student's transition into the business world as easy as possible. Sousa suggests that by shadowing the alumni at work, the student will learn what the "real world" is all about.

"Education becomes a learning experience and not just textbook examples," adds Sousa. The alum exposes the student to networking by taking the students to lunches or dinners. He also believes that this will provide the student with social skills needed to be successful in business.

The Alumni Mentor Program should not be limited to work and career issues. A student and mentor can take day trips, attend sporting events, or any activity that is fun and exciting.

"The only thing that limits you is your imagination," Sousa says.

The Alumni Mentor Program is co-sponsored by the Student Alumni Association and the Graduate Alumni Council.

"There is only one other program like this in the country," says Brian C. Flood and with the help of Bryant students this program will continue to expand.

Applications are available in each faculty coordinator's office. The application must be submitted by October 15 if you have any questions or need additional information, please call the Student Alumni Association at 233-6400.

Juniors

Harry S. Truman Scholarships for Careers in Public Service

Are you considering going to Graduate School/Law School in preparation for a possible career in Public Service (Public Finance, Public Accounting, working for a Public Interest or Nonprofit Organization) or Government Employment (State, Federal, Local, Uniformed Services)? If you are, the Harry S. Truman Scholarship Program offers up to $3,000 in financial aid for your Senior year and up to $9,000 - $13,500 per year for Graduate School depending on the length of your program.

To be eligible to apply a student must:
- be a full-time Junior student pursuing a Bachelor's degree in any major
- have an overall G.P.A. which puts them in the upper third of her/his class
- be a U.S. citizen or U.S. national

The Truman Program is aimed at helping students who will be entering their Senior year in September of 1992 to pursue academic programs which prepare them for a career in Government or Public service.

If you are interested, you may obtain a preliminary application from Dr. Bill Hill, Suite C, #212, Tues 3:15-4:30, Wed 1:00-2:30, Thurs 10:30-12:00, Telephone 232-6237.

The deadline for preliminary applications is October 18, 1991

Heritage Dining Room Changes

Due to the change in the hours of operation of the Heritage Dining Room, students may now dine there between 11:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m., Monday thru Friday. The existing dress requirements remain in effect, i.e.;

- Jackets and ties optional (but preferred), dress pants, dress slacks, sport/sportswear or sweaters will be acceptable for men and equivalent attire for women is required.
- Inappropriate attire includes: jeans of any type, sneakers, T-shirts or similar attire.

Bill Petti, Manager of ARA Dining Services, indicated that students on the 19, 15 or 9 meal plan would receive a $1.85 credit toward the purchase of a complete meal in the Heritage Room. He also stated that points cannot be used to pay for meal tax or gratuity.
Community and College Join for Alcohol Awareness

he said, "It will help us remember the tragedy and the responsibility, so another one won't happen."

Hatch went on to tell the importance of Bryant to their family.

"Bryant College means a great deal to our family. In 1934, Kristen's grandfather graduated from Bryant and her mother graduated here in 1965. Her Graduation Day would be a source of pride for our family. In 1991, Bryant graduates from Bryant~ and a dream I've had for many generations under the Archway. But due to the consequences, it will never happen."

Hatch is the Vice President of the Rhode Island Chapter of MADD and spoke about a proposed program entitled ARL, Administrative License Revocation, which is pending in legislation.

This program will authorize police officers to take the licenses of those caught driving under the influence if they have failed either a field sobriety test or a breathalyzer test. The license will also be grounds for revocation.

Kim Goff, the winner of the race in the women's field, said, "It's a great cause and a great event."

Since Smithfield is her hometown, Goff was "happy" she won the race.

This was a repeat performance for Goff who won the race last year at well. She was "happy to come back" and said she'd definitely return next year.

Goff helps the cross country team "[The race is] the college and the community coming together through a common bond of Alcohol Awareness. It will help us remember the tragedy and the responsibility, so another one won't happen."

David Hatch, Kristen's father

here at Bryant and she said she was glad to see them cheering her on during the race.

Special highlights of the day were the runners themselves. Junior Ed Daniels was running the race with his fellow basketball teammate. He said not only was it for a worthy cause, but it "shows our support for the Kristen Hatch Scholarship Fund and for the school." He also added it would help team conditioning and would "team unity."

Allison Padget and Shari Poulin from the tennis team also took part in the race. They were "psyched" to be able to run the race this year since a tournament prevented them from running it last year. They were proud to be there and take part in something "so exciting."

Scott LeBeau, a member of Bryant's department of Public Safety, and Jerry Peterson, both of the same Marine unit that served in Operation Desert Storm, ran the race in their Marine combat boots. LeBeau, who won the race last year, said they raised $400 in pledges by running in boots.

"It looks harder than it is," the pair noted, "but [was] easier this year since it wasn't as hot."

The two crossed the finish line hand-in-hand showing their unity and devotion to the cause.

After the events were completed, an awards ceremony was held by the track where winners were awarded for their efforts. Major sponsors were awarded "Certificates of Appreciation" for their work in helping to organize the event.

The race was designed to raise alcohol awareness in the community and serve as a fundraiser for the scholarship fund for Hatch who was struck and killed by Edward T. O'Brien, an alleged drunk driver, on April 16, 1990.

On Tuesday, it was announced the Hatch family was awarded $1 million in an out-of-court settlement from Parente's Family Restaurant, who served O'Brien alcohol just minutes before the accident took place.

Joan Hatch, Kristen's mother, was quoted in the Attleboro Sun Chronicle as saying the family will use the money to pay for legal fees and establish scholarships at Bryant.

"Kristen was a contributor to scholarships as a way of doing the kind of good she would have done with her life," Hatch was quoted as saying.

There still is a civil suit against O'Brien pending. He is currently awaiting trial on the criminal charges.
Taking in some water on Route 116 are runners Regina Crowshaw (235) of Foster, Susan Rudie (250), and John Anderson (232) of Smithfield.

Kieron Tumbleson of Providence takes first place in the five-mile road race with a time of 25:00.

Race organizers Georgette and Joe Sweet present awards to the top finishers during the post-race award ceremony.

Begin Poses Banking Solution

Bill Becker
Archway Staff Writer

Rhode Island Lieutenant Governor Roger Begin proposed a plan this week to end the nine-month RI banking crisis.

In the nine months since the closing of several RI banks and Credit Unions, countless plans have been proposed, but they have all fallen through.

Most recently, a deal in which Old Stone bank would have acquired East Providence Credit Union and four others collapsed in the final stages when Old Stone unexpectedly withdrew it's bid. The deal to acquire the five credit unions is being kept alive by NE Savings, who is currently examining the books of the closed institutions.

This new plan, proposed by Lt. Governor Roger Begin, calls for a three-phase plan. The first phase would be to absorb the institutions into DEPCO, the Rhode Island agency charged with resolving the crisis. This would take the institutions out of receivership.

Following this, the non-operating loans would be stripped out and liquidated to collection agencies.

The second phase would call for the sale of the operating loans to local banks, at 40 to 50% of their book value. The acquiring institutions would not carry the loans on their books. Instead, they would simply collect a "management fee" from DEPCO.

The actual loans would be carried on DEPCO's books. The proceeds from the loan payments would be split between DEPCO and the participating banks.

The final phase of the plan concerns the depositors from the closed institutions. These depositors would get a chunk of their money, approximately 45%, back in the beginning. The specific amount would depend on the proceeds of the sale of loans and the value of the non-performing loans.

Following the original refund, the depositors would get money back on a payment schedule devised by DEPCO. This schedule would be based on the cash flows from the loan proceeds.

The success of this plan hinges on two factors. First, the local banks must be convinced that the fees they would receive will be higher than the costs associated with servicing the loans.

Second, the depositors must be happy with receiving a portion of their savings over a long period of time rather than all of it at once, which some other plans, like the Old Stone-deal, are proposing. This seems unlikely, after the growing discontent of the depositors who staged a sit-in and a bonfire in downtown Providence Tuesday night.

The proposal by Lt. Governor Begin is viable and reasonable. It calls for cooperation and concessions from all involved parties. Unfortunately, the plan may be asking for a little too much, a little too late in the game.
Festive Ballet

The Festival Ballet of Rhode Island performed in Jimmie O'Roddy Auditorium last Friday evening. The event was sponsored by the Performing Arts Committee and was funded by the Rhode Island State Council on the Arts. The program for the evening consisted of three dance segments. The first dance, entitled "Nagot" was an Italian folk dance. The dancers wore traditional ballet dresses and bore various shades. Different in color, coupled with the use of tambourines throughout the dance created too much commotion.

In an effort to depict the Italian dance, the performers clapped and threw their tambourines in the air taking away from the art of dance itself. To heighten my distraction, the main sitting next to me was making origami with his program!

The second performance was a "Tango for Three." The dancers wore black and white along with an accent of red while performing against a mysterious air. This dance created a more unified feeling than the first, since the costumes and movements were harmonious.

The Archway

Michael J. Boyd
Archway Staff Writer

The Archway has received a second place award and three All-Columbia Awards in the 1991 Columbia Scholastic Press annual critique.

The second place award was the third consecutive earned by The Archway, Single All-Columbia Awards were also earned in 1989 and 1990. All-Columbia honors are only given when the publication has achieved the 95th percentile or higher in the specific category.

The Archway received an All-Columbia Award given a perfect score of 100 for its general operations. General operations scoring is based upon the publication's overall concept, readership, and frequency of publication.

"The Archway," stated the judges, "demonstrates a positive concern for its campus readers...by presenting an array of news and views is presented."

The Archway 1991 Commencement Issue received an All-Columbia Award for Special Single Topic Supplement. This is the second year in a row that The Archway Commencement Issue has received All-Columbia honors.

The Archway 45th Anniversary Issue received an All-Columbia Award and a perfect score of 300 for Special Single Topic Supplement. Judges referred to the issue as "a fine work enhancing the essence of tradition."

Delta Chi Sigma Chi

by Richard Knar
First off congrats to Tri Sigma for being installed last weekend.

We had a great social gathering last Saturday with Theta. We all had a second taste of the Beta Blue.

On Sunday we all had a great time at the Kristen Hatch Memorial Race.

In sports: Beta A ran out last week, but BSC had a good game Monday against Rolling Stone. It was close right to the end as the B-team suffered a very close loss.

BMA

by Kristin Kolka

Well, BMA will be holding its first fundraiser for this academic year and we hope you will be able to support us. On October 5, 1991 BMA will sponsor a CAR WASH at the apple Valley Exxon Station in Greenville from 12:00PM-5:00PM. Come and support us this Saturday in Apple Valley. You've got nothing to lose but the dirt on your car!

Delta Chi

by Todd Balcom

Hey now! Congratulations to Sigma Sigma Sigma for their installation in the Zeta Alpha chapter, Sunday's ceremony was a good time and it was race to see all the VIP's that showed up. Let's plan on having our own celebration with you in the next couple of weeks.

Last weekend started off with DKEERS inviting new members of the 100 CLUB, way to go boys. And as for that one exception, your encore performance certainly deserves around and around and around of applause.

The brothers would also like to thank those sisters of Phi Sig Sig who so graciously entertained us to all hours on Friday night. Fair warning that these "alummas" may be up again next weekend.

One question: why does Public Safety lock dorms 1-2 at 8:00PM on Saturday night, while dorms 1-16 stay open until 1:00AM? Inquiring minds want to know.

Lastly, I demand a retraction from Pi Kappa Phi on their preposterous claim that they have our lion. I can, however, understand why they would make such comments. I mean, they just haven't seen the lion in three years and they're a little upset.

First off, we'd like to thank all the volunteers, walkers, and runners that helped make the Kristen Hatch Memorial Road Race a success once again. Congratulations Raven for being the 2nd Bryan woman to place in the 5 mile! It was great to see all the alumns, especially ours, the pledges were psychological and it was an all day event. While we're on the subject, Good Luck to all the pledges. And now we proudly present ours, Crimson, Ricc, Davoe, Brewster, Olee, Mitchell and Minyon. You guys are the best, stick together and it will be over before you know it!!

Thanks to TKK for being such great hosts friday morning and to KDR for Saturday night - next time save some for us!!

The DESTRUCTION CREW with the help of Kenny & Shantke are ready for some action on the field!! Now that Greek Week is half over we want to wish everyone luck at the Games on Saturday, and let's all have a blast at the Banquet!!!

Lastly, Congratulations to TRI SIGMA on your installation! Word of the week: "MODERATION"....

Make sure your road trip proceeds without a hitch.

Sometimes road trips can be a little more adventurous than you expect them to be. Which is why you should always pack your AT&T Calling Card. It's all you need to make a call from almost anywhere to anywhere.

It's the least expensive way to call state-to-state on AT&T when you can't dial direct. And you'll be connected to the reliable service you've come to expect from AT&T. Plus if you get your Calling Card now you'll also get a free hour's worth of AT&T long distance calling.* And you'll become a member of AT&T Student Saver Plus, a program of products and services designed to save students time and money. The AT&T Calling Card. It's the best route to wherever you're going.

Get an AT&T Calling Card today. Call 1 800 654-0471 Ext. 4812.

*Good for one hour of direct dial, coast-to-coast, night and weekend calling, based on prices effective 2/16/91. Offer limited to one $8.25 AT&T Long Distance Certificate per student. Offer valid through June 30, 1992.

Men's Rugby

by Johnny Como

Powerhouse rugby you got when Bryant Rugby took on Providence College.

As the game got under way, it became evident that it was going to take a lot of spank to whip P.C. Bryant looked good though and thanks to the efforts of Blakie we found ourselves at an advantageous position. With P.C. scoring a penalty a try, the second half however, booted badly for us. A beautiful try by Super Dave sealed the game at an 8-7 victory.

It proceeded to be a very close game in the early stages with neither side willing to concede. At half time the score remained leveled at zero all. Making the most of our new-found kicker, the B's converted a penalty to give us a 3-0 lead. P.C. retaliated with a try putting us down but not out. Another penalty and then a try gave us an unbridgeable lead of 8-4.

The two wins were a great boost to the teams' morale and thanks go not only to Lt but also to the great support on the day.

The season's hardest game is this week at home against Coast Guard Academy at 3pm and support on the day will be an integral part of the teams' performance. Congratulations also to the girls rugby team for their first try of the season.

Kappa Tau

Going into the second month of school, we are still trying to figure out what exactly the Theory is. We were all very optimistic about getting through the first month with as little damage as possible. But nothing that will not be out done by the end of the year.

We're looking forward to the dominating volleyball teams that we put together with Phi Sigma Sigma.

The weekend report includes some great events experienced with the Brothers. The F.A. (can't go in) on Saturday went like clock work.

Sunday proved to be lucrative, fun, and not worth a beating from sixty women which we had blown off after a tough night. (THANK YOU!!!) Our Alumni came up for the Monday Night Activities and we're still spinning. And this weeks quote of the week— "Who cares what kind, I said FREE! KT TOP DOG!!!!

Phi Sigma Sigma

by Kerry Argall

First, we'd like to say that the first full fall rush was a success for all! We would like to congratulate our proud pledges and wish them the best of luck: Monique Rossignol, Jennifer Bougainville, Robyn Rush, Cindy Pullafico, Jodi Knox, Renae Zahn, Lynn Cuzzi, Tracey Kelley, Holly Harrington, Karen Beaver and Janice Spitznagel.

We are glad to have you as a part of us. Good luck to our pledge educator, Melissa, and our assistant, Kelly. You guys will do great! To those of you pledges hang in there!

A special thanks goes to our National Representative who has been with us for the past week. Sandy Grossman has helped us out a lot with everything. Sorry you have to go, we know you've had fun.

Laura and Fear also deserve recognition for their hard work in organizing our Monday Night football and dog shows. The past two weeks were a success to keep buying!

We are looking forward to finally getting together with Sig Ep on Fri.

day. Hang in there, we love you. As always we started off the school year with an excellent gathering with our brother fraternity, Phi Kappa Tau. A blast was had at their floor that Saturday, until the F.A. was pulled.

Our football team had an excellent game against the "monsters," on Monday. Unfortunately, Andrea had to leave the game do to an injury. Some of the pledges played well also, but are a little sore. Lauren had an awesome catch thrown by Katy, which gave us our touchdown and Rachael kicked the extra point, but even after all that we still lost 14-7.

We'll do better next game. Hopefully, we will still have our coach Boozer, who hurt himself during the DKE/TEP game.

I'd also like to thank everyone who came to visit us at Bryant College this summer. It was a blast. Good luck to everyone in the Greek Week Festivities.

Quote of the week: It's easier to get forgiveness, than permission. Reminder: Excellence is in the tradition. APK/Phi Sig Sig.

Residence Hall Association

by Julie Holt, President

Our first meeting will be next week, October 9, 1991, in Room 1 of the Bryant Center. All our welcome, so bring all of your friends. We will be discussing upcoming events for the semester and year. We also need your help. If you have any suggestions feel free to bring them up at the meeting. hope to see you all there.

Student Senate

by Jill Kostenowski and Judy Dupre

We'd like to start by telling you the names if our six new senators...Rob Fontanella, Mary Gates, Mark Towle, Adrienne Sandberg, Maureen Mahe, and Josh Hansel. Congratulations to all of you. You're going to do an awesome job!

We're excited because we've received an alcohol education grant for $92,000. all we need is someone to teach Alcohol Education...we'll know by November 1.

October 25 is our Meet the Prov's/Senate look for us in the yellow shirts!

Parent's Weekend is just around the corner, so we're interested in getting an FBI. 15th at Bryant...there's a Mistletoe Ball in Newport for all ages...be on the lookout for the senior activities, every Wednesday night it's Comfort Nite.

Lock-outs have been a main concern on this campus and we're happy to say Public Safety and Senate has come up with a solution. You already know it, hope you approve!

SHRM

by Jane Brown

The Society for Human Resource Management's second meeting had another great turnout! We hope this continues. Professor Han, our guest speaker at last meeting, spoke on the topic of Personnel Files which was quite interesting and informative.

This year SHRM is looking forward to becoming chartered and getting our new organization underway. We are planning to have a speaker at each meeting to lecture on various Human Resources topics. Our fundraising and programming need your help so please come and bring any and all ideas you may have. Again, we would like to welcome the new members and anyone who is still interested in joining.

Our next meeting will be on October 16th at 7:00 p.m.

Tau Epsilon Phi

by David Delesdernier

What a week we had up here at TEP. The first thing that I want to mention in my report is congratulations to Tri Sig on installation. I also want to congratulate and wish luck to the new pledges of Theta, DZ, Phi Sig, Tri Sig, and Alpha Phi. Stick with it girls, it's all worth it in the end. Now on to events of the weekend.

The weekend started early on Thursday night when the floor started shaking after the sorority bid ceremony. Friday night brought another hopping evening with an excellent social gathering. Some of our brothers even played a few games of round and round that night. Some of the Kappa's and Phi Sig's came down and brought a little spice to the Saturday night iris Comfort Nite. Lock-outs have been a main concern on this campus and we're happy to say Public Safety and Senate has come up with a solution. You already know it, hope you approve!
Sports writers meetings are held every Monday night at 7:30 p.m. in The Archway office located on the second floor of the MAC.
