Learning about culture through MSU
By Meghan Hanlon
Assistant Campus News Editor

Latino Heritage Month kicked off September 15 and continues until its finale tonight at 8 p.m. The finale will showcase Latino culture through various performances. The event will begin in Janikles with live performances by Dominican and Colombian groups. MC's from the top radio stations in the area will be present to keep the rhythm moving. Great prizes will be won during the raffle including CDs and Spanish souvenirs such as sombreros and cacti. The buses will also feature a live performance in Janikles, a variety of food from Latin America can be sampled in Pappito.

Renowned lecturer and story teller, Bobby Gonzales was the first presenter during this month long celebration. During his multimedia presentation, Gonzales explored the diversity of Latino American culture.

Bryant staff, faculty, and students had the opportunity to attend four sessions of dance lessons. The salsa and merengue was taught by members of the Latino community at the Wellness Center.

Another major event offered was the Cultural Coffee House on September 29. Grupo Sazon, a Rhode Island based band, played the rhythms of Latin America while the audience sampled different coffees. At least seven people were taught how to play drums. SPB and ISO helped MSU coordinate this well attended event.

Latino Heritage Month is one of the three biggest events sponsored by MSU. Another large event is Lunar New Year. Lunar New Year is a celebration of the Chinese New Year. The extravaganza will take place after students return from the holiday break.

Until then, MSU is busy planning their third largest event, The Extravaganza. This event is a combination of a fashion and talent show. This event is the finale for Black History Month.

By sponsoring these types of events, MSU hopes to stress multicultural awareness through the promotion of different cultures. Vice President, Roy Loyva, wants to see MSU grow and for more people to "learn about a variety of cultures." Loyva would also like to bring more

Policy changes leave students feeling

By Chris Hamilton
Assistant Sports Editor

Over the past decade Bryant has experienced a variety of changes with policies and police enforcement which involve student gatherings and alcohol consumption.

These changes undeniably transform the Bryant students' way of life. As Bryant grows into a university and expands, questions arise.

Have these modifications to student freedom made a negative or positive change to the Bryant University experience?

To answer this question, students need to understand how the administration views and decides to implement decisions and changes to these issues. In an interview with the Vice President of Student Affairs, Dr. Tom Eaklin, he explained, "We understand that we have to provide an important part of the socialization process but the majority of the students are underage. We also have to provide a good faith case to enforcing the laws of the land."

To summarize, the idea of "good faith" efforts need to be made to deter behavior that is against the law and results in injuries or accidents. Bryant can be held liable for these accidents if they can not present a "good faith case" stating they tried their best to enforce illegal behavior from campus.

Bryant administration has not chosen to follow the path of many schools by turning Bryant's dorms into college campuses. Instead they have taken a firm stance by campus police. They have implemented DPS codes and court process for students who violate campus laws. The alcohol limits and of course made the recent changes that are now in effect.

The alcohol limits created four types of student alcohol possession and type of alcohol allowed on campus for students of age. The limits are: 1-12 beers, 2-4 packs of wine coolers, 750 milliliters of wine or a pint of distilled spirits. A complete list of other restrictions

Halloween

Did you know that Antarctica is the only continent that can not grow pumpkins? Or that Morton, Illinois is the self-proclaimed "pumpkin capital of the world?"

The tradition of pumpkin carving was brought to the United States by Irish immigrants.

For their ancient holidays, the Irish used to carve turnips, but when they arrived in the United States, they found pumpkins grew more, were larger, and easier to carve.

The Irish also brought over the tradition of the Jack O' Lantern. Jack O' Lanterns was not a pumpkin originally but actually a person! The legend according to Irish History, Jack tricked the Devil and when he died he was not given a resting place because he had played too many tricks on the wrong people. Instead, the Devil gave Jack a flame to light the way as he wandered around.

Jack placed the flame in a turnip, hence the Jack O' Lantern.

After 100 pounds of cooked pumpkin, 36 pounds of sugar, 12 dozen eggs, and 6 hours of baking, the largest pumpkin pie ever was made in Madison. This pie weighed over 350 pounds and was over 5 feet in diameter.

The original recipe for pumpkin pie came from the colonists. They would slice the top of the pumpkin off, remove the seeds, and fill the pumpkin with milk, spices, and honey. Using her ashes of a dying fire, the pumpkin was baked. Now, the pumpkin farmers suggest singing, talking, playing music, and if you are really committed, camping outside with your pumpkin will help it grow.

Pumpkins have been used for a variety of things other than for baking. At one point, pumpkins were believed to be able to remove freckles and cure snake bites. Pumpkins are an excellent source of Vitamin A and potassium. Native Americans used pumpkin seeds as medicine and herbs. Also, the Native Americans would make mats from pumpkins by flattening strips of pumpkins and leaving them out to dry.

For those growing their own pumpkin, the record for the largest pumpkin ever grown weighed 1,400 pounds.

If growing the largest pumpkin is your goal, most farmers recommend that you bond with your pumpkin. Great pumpkin farmers suggest singing, talking, playing music, and if you are really committed, camping outside with your pumpkin will help it grow.

Registration bright and early in the morning

Students, it is that time of year again, registration. Every year undergraduate office has been trying to make registration easier. This year students are constantly complaining about the procedure and slowness of the internet. The undergraduate office decided to introduce new ideas for registering this year.

All the older students remember the process, meet with the advisor, receive your packets, get your planner, and then register for classes. Undergraduate decided to help make the process less complicated by eliminating the six-digit "pin number." For the first time, since using the internet to register for classes, students will no longer need a pin number.

Not only has the undergraduate office gotten rid of pin numbers they are now using concentration advisers. Those advisers will be related to the concentration each student plans to study in. Undergraduate is not undermining any advisor instead creating a closer understanding between students and advisors.

To the bad news, for some students registration begins at 7 a.m. on October 25. Undergraduate office felt this time was more convenient for the student body. The time will make registration easier for non-traditional students, student athletes, and less users will be online clogging up the server. Do not worry for those students who do not have a computer, both Bello and Keaff will be open at 6:45 a.m., if you need computer assistance.

Undergraduate has also spread out the days in between each group registering. This will allow students more time to change their courses if necessary. The only simple thing registering will be Mondays and Thursdays.

Undergraduate will be using the same steps to register for classes, except students no longer need the pin number. If anyone has any problems, instructions have been placed in the registration packet. Also the undergraduate office is open for questions through the duration of the business day. Students will be up and ready for student problems during the 7 a.m. registration.
New Assistant Director of Counseling Services

Lauren DiNitto
Staff Writer

Counselor Heidi Spruce awaits students who need her services.

As fall approaches, we welcome Heidi Spruce, the new Assistant Director of Counseling Services. Spruce comes to Bryant University from Martha's Vineyard, where she worked as a social worker. For three years, she worked at the community mental health center on the Vineyard, and last year she opened a social service private practice. At the mental health center, Spruce counseled children, families and adolescents. Spruce attended the University of Connecticut where she received her Bachelor Degree from Simmons College. While working for her Master's Degree, Spruce took an internship at the Counseling Center at Framingham State. Spruce was ready for a change so she took the position of Assistant Director of Counseling Services here at Bryant University.

Counseling Services is a student based, individual, confidential, counseling program available to all students on campus. Counseling is for students who are having troubles adjusting to the aspects of college life, those who are homesick, those who want relationship advice or more serious matters such as, eating disorders, assault, and substance abuse. Most students voluntarily go to counseling services and can make individual appointments with Spruce or the Director, William Phillips. Students can also be referred to off-campus counseling sites. Counseling Services is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; evening appointments are also available to accommodate student's schedules.

Next Semester, Spruce is collaborating with Petra Kuppers and Toby Simon on the "Body Project." The "Body Project" is a way for women to express the body image of themselves using art materials. The program will last for five weeks, starting February 9 held on Wednesdays from 6:00-8:00 p.m. and will be open to ten female students. The class will be taught by a Professional Artist and the images they come up with will be displayed in an art exhibit during "Herstory Month." If you are interested in signing up for the "Body Project" call Heidi Spruce at X6855 or Toby Simon at X6855 or e-mail them at heidei@bryant.edu or toby@bryant.edu.

President Machtley addresses Bryant University

Brian Levin
Managing Editor

Over Parents and Family Weekend President Ronald Machtley delivered his State of the University address. The address follows the general idea of State of the Union address delivered by the President of the United States every January, but with some local additions.

To open Machtley, along side his wife Kay, enter the stage through a stage set doorway (part of the Bryant Players set who performed throughout the weekend) to the theme of "Mr. Rogers Neighborhood," the popular childhood television show. As he moved across the stage, Machtley continued making jokes to the tune of "Were going to take off our coats just like Mr. Rogers does," and after looking out into the audience "our children usually do not get up before noon." Finally as the projector screen lowered Machtley joked "Mr. Rogers never had such a high tech performance before, I hope Mr. Rogers does not screw this up."

After the entertainment of the PBS rendition it was onto business. With slide changer and laser pointer in hand Machtley began to describe the State of the University.

To begin, he discussed the College to University switch, and quickly moved into the incoming class and enrollment statistics. He announced that total enrollment of the school as 2,899, and of them 97% of freshmen and 82% of upper classmen live on campus.

Construction was another topic within the address. Machtley discussed the hall six renovations and how it was a move toward making Bryant a place to learn in both the classroom and the dorm room. The slide on Facilities also covered Koffler's construction and announced that Koffler will be fully operational in December and used for the first time by classes beginning 2nd semester.

The remainder of the Presidents speech focused on the Universities four strategic goals. These are to promote globalization and diversity, enhance academic quality and reputation, create a student centered learning community, and finally to develop technology innovations. Bryant Singers sang a variety of songs to open for the President's state of the union. These songs included "Turn Turn Turn," "Song for a Russian Child," and "River in Judea." Brendon Martin said, "There was a ton of energy on stage we came together vocally and impressed the audience by singing our best ever."

Supreme Court is on back burner of the campaigns

The Record (KRT)

Internet chat rooms aren't just great places for anonymous flirting or discussing community events. They can be a great place for terrorists to conspire with each other.

At least that's what a group of researchers at the University of Delaware found when they searched the Web, checking the chat histories of some 1,000 people who are part of 100 chat rooms.

What makes this research special is that it doesn't rely on what the government tells us about the Internet. It relies on private data submitted to chat rooms by people who are surfing the Web.

This research will help the federal government understand the public's interest in terrorism and potential terrorists' use of the Internet.

The researchers say that this research will help them identify terrorist organizations and their networks and could lead to a better understanding of the current order of the terrorist world.

The research is funded by the National Science Foundation's "Approaches to Combat Terrorism" effort in funding basic research carried out at universities such as Florida, Pennsylvania and Ohio. Just 337 votes divided President Bush and Al Gore in the Florida recount, 537 votes divided President Bush and Al Gore in the Florida recount, and 5,000 votes divided President Bush and Al Gore in the Florida recount, a spread easily covered by military ballots.

The Institute for Justice, says, "Both Bush and Kerry are running a program that dramatically expands the power of government. A policy like that could lead to significant costs." Indeed, that expansion of government power will bump up against the Constitution, and if it is true that Kerry would be very much in all of those cases, it is only logical to assume that Bush appointments would be more conservative. Civil service and Kerry appointments would come from the liberal end of the spectrum, and that would mean that abortion and other social issues such as gay rights might be the line that the most-seated battles over confirmation are fought.

In his acceptance speech at the Republican National Convention, Bush said, "Because the union of a man and woman deserves an honored place in society, I support the protection of marriage against same-sex unions. I will continue to appoint federal judges who know the difference between marriage and other legal arrangements and the strict interpretation of the law.

Bush has said in the past that Antonin Scalia and Clarence Thomas, who are both conservative, were examples of the kind of person he would look for:

"Kerry's Web site says, "As president, I will strongly enforce our nation's civil rights laws, support affirmative action for people of all races and nation and expand opportunity, and strongly enforce equal justice for all victims of bias voting." You can expect that philosophy to shape his judicial appointments.

As for abortion rights, Robert George, a Bush appointee to the United Nations, said in an interview, "The Supreme Court needs to change, and that is changing the direction and the direction of the court decisions."

Greg Jacob, a deputy policy director of Bush's re-election campaign, cited Bush's often-repeated pledge to appoint judges who interpret the law strictly and said in an interview, "It would be difficult to find a justice who believed that the rule was not to strike down or interpret the Constitution and yet supported the Roe v. Wade (1973 abortion) decision.

As for the likelihood of upcoming appointments, consider that eight of the nine members of the court are past the conventional retirement age of 70 and 65, Thomas, at 56, is not John Paul Stevens, appointed by President Gerald Ford, and he will be up for re-appointment by the Eighty-Five in the next presidential term.

Speculation has focused on Stevens, Rehnquist, Sotomayor, and Sandra Day O'Connor to be the three members most likely to retire.

On the other hand, justices are famous for keeping their plans under wraps. The justices of the court's current members appear to be in reasonably good health, and many say for a justice to be eager to retire.

What happens if a seat on the court comes open could vary widely depending on who is appointed by whom. A Kerry appointment to replace Stevens or a Bush appointment to replace O'Connor would likely change the course of the court, too, because the new justice would likely be close on the spectrum to the dissenting justices. But reverse the situation, a Bush appointment to replace Stevens and the direction and the direction of the court decisions could undergo a significant shift.

And if it's O'Connor, who has talked of retiring to want to retire to Arizona, her home state, the impact could be especially large. She has frequently been the swing vote in more court decisions on subjects such as affirmative action and private school voucher programs.

But the battle to confirm a high court nominee could make the sharp partisan battle over lower court appointments in recent years look tame by comparison.

The Senate remains closely split between Republicans and Democrats, and one of the main factors for the president will be whether a nominee can confirm. That means the White House could motivate the president to pick someone more toward the middle and, some experts suspect, someone with an uncolorful public record and less opportunities for attack.

It also is clear that whatever president will have a definite interest in considering people who have more experience in politics. There has never been a Hispanic, justice, and the names already being floated of possible court

U.S. service members based in Iraq and across the globe can't be comfortable today that there are no ongoing investigations of any kind into this year's presidential election, analysts and military advocates say.

Those warnings came despite a stepped-up Pentagon campaign in response to the 2000 election, which showed that as many as 30 percent of service members stationed overseas were unable to vote, to encourage them to vote early.

Without the military's efforts but said a cumbered voting process, a conflict between the actions of individual states and likely ballot challenges almost certainly would drain some franchise military officers.

They've made three steps forward in citizen vote effort and attention to the problem but two steps backward as a result of the government's actions, according to retired Lt. Col. John Nemerov, a political science professor at the Citadel in Charleston, S.C.

Law and politics remains an outmoded issue, and it deals with a difficult problem:

"We have to figure out what the structure of the country is and how we do law, in the face of terrorism and the war against terrorism, Nemerov says.

"What if you have a group of people in a group..." Nemerov says.

"If you can "really figure out that are working using words such as "Quran" or in a group..." Nemerov says.

Administration explains policy change, history and decisions

Dr. Eakin explains how this policy change came to Bryant, "after a number of fights where alcohol was the factor, and other incidents where alcohol was abused. A question arose, was the institution doing enough to prevent these incidents? We spent two years reviewing and talking to students before we implemented the change four years ago. Giving each of age students a case of beer was overly generous."

Now four years later, the policy has solidified its position even though the students still argue against it. Dr. Eakin continued, "7 out of 90 students are of age that live in the suites but if you walk past the suites on trash day you see that most of the trash is filled with beer cans. For example hall I has three of age students in the whole building. You can't tell me all that beer belongs to them."

When policies restrict students on campus from alcohol consumption, many fear that students will result in going off campus to party and increases the possibility of drunk driving. Off campus the school has no ability to aid in student decisions.

Eakin continued, "Students are young adults if they choose to go off campus they can, and when it comes to drinking and driving that's a decision that the students as adults have to make. Do to nearby off campus activity, the administration is looking into providing transportation into providence."

But what about the current policy change specifically? It's apparent that the cause was the fire fire of September 4. But, then what is the cause of the tree fire?

The Student Senate composed a letter on September 13 directly to President Matchley and Dr. Eakin. In this letter the Senate expressed their concern over the event and the need to change policy. The only difference between what the senate wanted and what the administration delivered is that the Senate felt it was the guest policy which should be changed. They asked for stricter guest control and new methods to enforce the old guest policy.

When asked why the administration did not use what was given to them by the Senate, which is their best tool for understanding sentiment, Eakin responded, "We were making changes in the general policy. They have some interesting ideas here. Perhaps we will consider them in the annual review in the spring."

Despite unwillingness to consider a change to the guest policy, Dr. Eakin did consider too many guests, the freedom that guests gain from ambiguity and an over crowded campus to be a cause of the incident. Dr. Eakin continued, "We had over 800 guests that first weekend, the combination of alcohol, limited responsibilities of guests and large groups of people are all potential risks. It's our responsibility to reduce these risks."

This campus wide policy only applies to students and does not affect university functions and administration campus housing.

Whatever thought processes that are behind the new policy the fact is the matter is students have to deal with the new policy, but for how long? Dr. Eakin continued, "We needed to clear the air about how unacceptoable this kind of behavior is. We will look to the future by slowly talking to Senate and student groups to improve upon the policy. Returning to the way things were is still a possibility."

multicultural students to the events. Every Monday, MSU members meet in Papitto at 3 p.m. and everyone is encouraged to attend. According to Leyva, "there are at least fifty members from all different races who attend the weekly meetings." Some meetings are also held as discussion time. During the second meeting, people who attended discussed the differences between Latino, Hispanic, and Spanish cultures. At other meetings, career services and Liberty Mutual have spoken about internships and future career paths.

MSU also hosts fundraisers like "Kiss the Pig." During this fundraiser, pictures of participating RA's, students, and faculty are posted and attendees can put an amount of money for each picture. The person in the picture will then kiss a frog. Look for this event later in the year. At the end of October, MSU is sponsoring a Candy Apple Giveaway. During the event, MSU will offer a candy apple making materials will be available and anyone can make their own candy apple to enjoy.

Bryant underdogs capture Saint Anselm for parents and family

By Shantel Palacio
Sports Editor

In front of a crowd of approximately 3800 spectators, the Bryant University Bulldogs won a double overtime thriller during Parent’s and Family Weekend. The Bulldogs managed to defeat Saint Anselm with a score of 28-21. “It was a great game,” said senior wide receiver Demetrius Blobo. “It really signified a turning point for the [football] program.” This victory signifies the hard work the Bulldogs are putting in to evade being labeled the underdog. Saint Anselm came out strong in the first half of the game with tough defense and by setting the stage with a 3-0 lead in the first quarter that appeared to be written in stone up until half time. It seemed to have trouble getting on the board Cheltenham for the Bulldogs to defeat Saint Anselm. With half time Bryant seemed to be at a score of 28-21. “It was a great game,” said senior wide receiver and senior quarterback Shane Peck. “It was a great game.”

Pick of the Litter

Christopher Wolheter was Bryant University's lucky number 13 this weekend. The freshman and defensive back was put in the game to substitute Captain Lewis Jesse (who was sidelined for an injury) in Saturday's game against Saint Anselm. Native to Newark, Ohio, Wolheter was recommended by one of Bryant's football coaches. Before attending the university, he was Newark Catholic High School's First Team All-State and Defensive Player of the Year, among several other accomplishments. Prior to this, he'd played football since the third grade. "Football is big where I come from," he replied when asked what sparked his interest in football. In addition to football, he's much of his time in Ohio with his friends and family or fishing and hunting.

Though he misses Ohio, he has relied on the welcoming by one of Bryant's football players. Wolheter's impressive performance on Saturday against Saint Anselm has Daniel Prato, the head coach, brought up the possibility of a starting position for the sophomore. "I'm excited to see what he can do," Prato commented.

Laynie Sadler was born in Rehoboth, Massachusetts. Before her life began as a Bulldog. Sadler went to Dighton-Rehoboth High School. In high school, she was a three-time, first team, all conference for the South Conference and led the league in scoring for two years. Sadler was her senior class president and captained her schools basketball and softball teams. She was put in the Foothall to substitute Captain Lewis Jesse for an injury in 175 pounds. While she was in the game, Sadler made several plays in Saturday's game. "I wasn't nervous. I knew I had big shoes to fill," Wolheter said with confidence. Despite that, his teammates obviously enjoyed having him as a part of the team. Wolheter proved himself continually and led the team to a win in their first game of the season. Sadler also has a positive outlook for the team's season end. Sadler said, "We have two games coming up and we're going to go out and do everything we can to win and finish strong." -Kristin Tighe colder and Saint Anselm with possession tension high. A tackle by Greg Daniels denied Saint Anselm a touchdown and the win. Completing a field goal was the only option left for Saint Anselm. Bryant increased the suspense by taking three back to back timeouts. Within 6 seconds Saint Anselm's Michael Garcia's field goal kept the game alive with a tie of 21-21.

It was a great win because in the past we haven't won those kinds of close games. It really signifies a turning point for the program.

- Demetrius Bobo

Encroachment penalty was declined. A kick from Pete DiMartino, then made the score 21-28, one which Saint Anselm was unable to respond to. This game was arguably the most exciting of the year and this team has been considered by some spectators as the best in several years. The work of both offense and defense has shown so far this season, as the guys fight toward getting the recognition they feel they deserve. The attitude among the players is that they will prove pessimists wrong by winning the conference or playing their hardest at the very last. According to Defensive Coordinator Mark Klaiman, "We want to be the top rank defense in the conference. We have to play great defense. [We all] have to play great football."
The Hangover's official strategy for picking up ladies

In the working center, so I know a thing or two about writing. One of the first things I'd like to mention is that this is the most interesting audience. With e-mail like this, I'm reminded of an angry female reader, one would think my audience consists of only lots of e-mails and a few angry women.

"Just, I think your article about the rules for women who want to sell sports men with a woman. Everyone I know begin to understand the column. Then, I start to think about what I would love to read "the Hangover". I would love to read the rest of it."

"I like the one that received from William."

"We'll start with the ladies:

To you women who want to pick up men, all you have to do is go out. There's plenty of men out there who are looking for women.

Okay, now that's through with the column, will be the objective of success fully picking up women.

There are a lot of men out there who get mad because they go to a club or party and leave without any woman. Women in clubs are a wasted paradox. They dress up all salaciously like they want attention from men, but at the same time act as if they don't want to talk to them.

Before I get angry e-mails, I know this is not always the case, but if you've ever been to a club, you know what I'm saying

If you have been successful in picking up the ladies in your outings, it's probably due to alcohol. A lot of you against the wall holding a drink watching women from a distance, or B. You left your friends or he goes solo to a pack of females. Whatever your reason, if you haven't been successful, it may be time to rethink your strategy. Look at the magazines and books can teach us about life.

Luckily, the movie, Independence Day, besides teaching us how to save Earth from aliens - can teach us how to pick up women. With Eric Church's new album, Independence Day, he's helping me pick up the ladies. Operation Pick-Up.

The Hangover's official strategy for picking up ladies: Operation Pick-Up.

The crew meets to pick up women in nightclubs and parties is to follow the strategies of a group of fighter pilots like Will Smith, (played Capt. Steve Hillard), Harry Connick Jr. (the played Capt. Jimmy Wilder), and Bill Pullman (who played the President).

In the film, Will Smith's character, Will Smith in Independence Day, he was the picture of cool collected confidence in the face of an alien menace, and also extremely intelligent. When you can make jokes like, "Now that's what I call a close encounter." Now if that's not cool, I don't know what is."

In the end of Independence Day, everyone worked together to fight the aliens. Survival of the human race was dependent on the cooperation of the entire team. Each member of the fighter squadron had to work together at a high level, for care, for work, and protect his fellow members.

This is the same attitude that men must adopt. By working together as a team, we will succeed in "Operation Pick-up" better than if we go out as a single man. In order to achieve the mission objectives, there are specific roles that men must play when going out.

The Wingman

Will Smith's wingman was Harriet, played by Kirk Jr. and did a great job at it until he succeeded to extreme G-Force.

SIMON SAYS: The real deal on "Roofies" in the Bryant community

In about 10 minutes, it creates a drink-like effect that lasts about 1 hour. It enhances the effects of alcohol, causing loss of inhibition, extreme sleepiness, relaxation, and perhaps, worst of all for its victims-amnesia. Roofyol is effective in any drink, including water. The drug works its way out of the human system usually within 24 hours although most women who have experienced this, say they feel pretty loony for at least 48 hours.

"I think you have been a victim, notify the authorities immediately.

10) If you don't want to talk to the police, find someone at Bryant to talk to, such as the Women's Center, Counseling Center, Health Services or Health Education.

Women are our partners, sisters, mothers, cousins and friends. Life should be safe and happy for all. The recent experience with rohypnol of this Bryant student was devastating and terribly frightening. She is scared to go out, isn't sleeping well at night and is very vulnerable. No one should experience the loss of control and the inability to account for seven hours that rohypnol causes.

Non consensual sex, coerced sex, sex with a partner who is under the influence, and/or other drugs and cannot recall the encounter, is sexual assault. And it is illegal. There have been many cases involving the use of rohypnol that have been prosecuted in the courts.

The Women's Center is here to help. Please call or stop by, all visitors are confidential.

The Wing Commander

Will Smith, as a wing commander, went directly into the mother ship, while the aliens prepared to "plop down Pick-up," the wing commander engages the primary weapon, while the commanders direct everyone else. Anyone can be a wing commander. All you have to do is identify a target, and debrief the team to get them out.

Kamikaze Pilot

In Independence Day, Randy Quaid, who played Russel Casse, is the drunken fighter pilot who flies his position right into the heart of the alien ship over Area 51 right as they're about to use the primary weapon. To pick up women, you have to select a kamikaze pilot who assume a similar role.

You know how at least one guy in every clique has a girlfriend? This guy will be the kamikaze pilot. His mission is to initiate the "search and attract" plan. Because he already has a girlfriend, he needs to to get shot down during his flight. He needs to get shot down so he won't be nervous talking to women. And won't lose confidence in conversations.

a great job until he succumbed to G-forces in the Grand Canyon (which though movie magic is right outside Los Angeles).

The wingman serves as a decoy and engages the secondary targets: generally they will keep the secondary targets occupied while the wing commander engages the primary target.

You know how at least one guy in every clique is on the ugly side? He’s the perfect wingman. He’s probably fun and interesting, but so ugly that he if he went into a haunted house, he’d leave with a job application. You won’t have to worry about him stealing your girl.

The Targets

In Independence Day, Dr. Okan is the scientist in Area 51 who has the captured alien, and is trying to understand it and is trying to control it. He usually is the most attractive girl of the group. I guess having a nice personality can be important - but I’m saying... she is the one the wing commander must actively engage in combat.

Finally, there’s the secondary target. The individual alien ships in Independence Day were referred to as "bogeys," the kamikaze pilots, the mission objective, and the mother ship. He usually is the most attractive girl of the group. I guess having a nice personality can be important - but I’m saying... she is the one the wing commander must actively engage in combat.

The Operation

If you remember in the beginning of Independence Day, there was this huge spacecraft hovering over Washington.

Instead of attacking it right away, the President ordered that a helicopter go up to it and start flashing lights in a passive attempt to establish communication.

This helicopter was quickly shot down. The lesson here: be aggressive. Just like President Bush and Biggie, you have to shoot first and ask questions last.

When you enter the club or party, you can’t be passive by standing around and waiting for something to happen. You need to aggressively seek out your primary target. Once you’ve spotted her location, it’s time to give the team the go-code to spring into action.

Since you’ve spotted the primary target, you are the wing commander. You must give the kamikaze pilot the go-call so he can move in and strike-up a conversation with the not-so-good-looking friend. Once the kamikaze pilot infiltrates and establishes contact with the girl group, the wing commander must lock and load.

The wing commander will walk by the kamikaze pilot and let the kamikaze pilot introduce the wing commander to the primary target and other bogeys in the group. To make it seem spontaneous, the wing commander must then divert his attention back to the primary target to declare his interest in her and not the bogeys.

Like in Independence Day, the mothership is the main target at the club in “Operation pick-up.”

THE HOT GIRLS OF THE GROUP WILL AVOID TALKING TO MEN BECAUSE THEY FEEL GUILTY LEAVING THEIR LEAST GOOD LOOKING FRIEND BY...

The thought of poetry usually puts the average mind to sleep with merely its mention. There are the few who are creative and enjoy works of poetry, but for the most part it brings people back to tortured times in 11th grade where one could barely figure out the words being used, let alone the themes and messages behind them. That way of thinking, however, is a thing of the past with Russell Simmons’ introduction of Def Poetry.

On Saturday, October 16, Russell Simmons and Stan Lathan presented Russell Simmons Def Poetry Jam at the Providence Performing Arts Center to a packed audience. It was a stage reproduction of the popular HBO television show, but with a different layout than one would see on television.

There were nine poets presenting along with a DJ, making up the cast of the event. The poets included Black Ice, Poetl, Flaco Navaja, Georgia Me, Isikle Park, Lontoon, Suheir Hammad, and Shihan.

The show started with each of the individuals presenting either a monologue or a short poem, a very short intermission and then the start of a more interactive performance. The poets performed in groups ranging from two to all nine of them. The men of the group, for example, did a performance on the aspects of being men, and later on the women did a performance on the power of being a woman. In another section of the show, the performers would all come on stage and do poems separately, but to a certain theme such as love.

What made the performance such a hit was that they could choose a topic such as love and each put an individual spin on it. For instance, Flaco Navaja spoke about the love for his wife, while Shihan dedicated his love poem to his daughter. The diversity of the subject through the performances of the entire cast truly showed the different levels of one very simple subject that is so close to the general public.

Georgia Me was cast in the first season of HBO’s Russell Simmons Presents Def Poetry and has been a huge competitor in the SLAM circuit. Many of her performances included a reflection of herself and a personal message about loving your own attributes.

Lemon is a regular on the HBO series of Def Poetry that won an original cast member of the Tony Award winning poetry show on Broadway. In addition, he has done many performance workshops in the country such as Harvard and Princeton. His performances centered on the cost of growing up without a lot of money in an economically low area.

Poetl has also been a regular on the HBO series along with appearances on popular networks such as ABC, NBC, BET, and MTV. He has been published in four books including Soul of the Game. Listening to his performances, one can truly relate to how the junk food of terrorism and the terrorist’s actions are being played out around the country, but turns it into a universal element that all of her audiences can relate to. War and her family is her main focus when it came to her performances.

Flaco Navaja is a new performer to the HBO series, but he has been involved in many different performances throughout the country. His Latino ethnicity shows through his work as he mixes in his native language throughout his performances. His main focus is his love for writing and his love for his family.

Isikle Park is a Korean American woman who is the Poet Laureate of Queens, NY. Her poetry has appeared on networks including Gotham TV, Fox, and HBO. She is also included in many poetry anthologies, including Best American Poetry 2003. The focus of her poetry is on her Korean heritage and the ways in which people can be ashamed of their heritage and try and conform to the norm.

Shihan was the Los Angeles (2000) and Hollywood (2002) Def Poetry Jam host. On top of his performances in all four seasons of Russell Simmons presents Def Poetry, he has also written for Pepsi, Nike, Reebok, MTV’s Rock the Vote campaign, and the Saltreed Rock series. Most of his performances concentrate on his quest to be a good father to his daughter and the trials of everyday life.

The most self-studied cast is no surprise that the diversity, passion, and truth that these performers brought to the stage was extremely enjoyed by the audience. The entire cast received a standing ovation at the end of the show, along with the thunderous applause they received throughout.

The show will not appear anywhere this year in Providence; however, it is playing in New York, Chicago, and Washington D.C. within the next couple of months. This does not mean that this event might change the views people have of poetry, or at least stop them from looking back to the 11th grade cringes.

Aries (March 21-April 19) Health issues affecting the head, jaw and throat may this week require attention. No serious or long-term consequences are likely, so not to worry.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Over the next six days, love relationships and sexual promiscuity may come into the picture. This week romantic partners are more serious about short-term promises than anticipated.

Gemini (May 21-June 21) Early this week, unexpected social messages may lead to a last-minute inhibition. Some (Gemini, especially those born between May 20 and June 10) will also encounter a passionate romantic proposal.

Cancer (June 22-July 22) Older relatives will this week ask for more attention than is necessary. Monday through Thursday, relationships and a new appreciation of group events may be an ongoing theme.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Before mid-week, past romantic sensations or lingering social tensions may cause unusual delays. Over the next few days, group activities and planned events, although worthwhile, may prove difficult to initiate.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Potential lovers will this week express affection through private disapproval, odd comments or unexpected mood swings. Ironically, all emotional outbursts should be taken as a sign of loyalty and respect.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Messages from past lovers will this week provide distraction. Over the next six days, gossip, complex romantic triangles, and rare social events may reveal unusual promises between.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) New assignments or revised duties may arrive without warning over the next six days. Key officials will now ask for extra time and dedication. Avoid isolation and accept all last-minute schedules during.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Late Tuesday expected lovers will this week express their interest and probe for concrete answers. Positive encounters will now be intense and extremely exciting.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Wisdom, social advice and unexpected clues for guidance are expected this week. A long-term friend or colleague may now reveal a complicated romantic or family triangle.

Guitarist Tony Ryon singing, Rick Bostick on the drums, and Tim McGrath on the bass guitar, performing in South Café.

On Wednesday, October 6 Two Finger Split rocked from nine to ten o'clock in South Café. Scott from SPB realized free banana splits at the door, and Two Finger Split would be a good combination, and it was. Tony Ryon, the lead singer on the guitar said, "This is a top notch establishment and we absolutely loved the bands." White butcher paper covered all the tables with an assortment of crayons to be used under candlelight. As students completed their art, Ryon would interact with the crowd and display the pictures for everyone.

Freshman Pete Connors of SPB said, "The candies created a really comfortable atmosphere." A raffle was held for your option of Cotton Candy, Deep Glory, and Suckergurt. Naturally, the Green Day tickets were chosen.

Other members of the band included Dan Macmillan on the guitar, Rick Bostick on the drums, and Tim McGrath on the bass guitar. In addition, fellow student "Jiminy" supplied free CDs to fifteen eager audience members. Connors also stated, "The band had some good instruments and they were comfortable with the crowd. You can check their sound for yourself and find out when upcoming venues are at www.twofinger-split.ca.

Thursday, October 7, Salad Bar dinner from five to seven o'clock. We were all thankful to Connors. He scheduled the former band Dispatch's lead singer and political advocate Chad Stokes on stage to perform his new band State Radio. Absentee ballots for the upcoming election were available for six of the states in the northeast. President Janus Dan Raposo said, "The event was a huge success with over 100 ballots turned in.

Stokes's rapid and unique voice presents great pres­ent; however, unlike his former band, State Radio has more of a punk rock sound with quick guitar riffs. Bryant University students were able to meet and greet with the band members the following day. However, their music and find out when the next upcoming shows are. SPB has overcome poor logistics and presented two first rate shows. It was exciting to be presented live music in an enjoyable atmosphere on campus. Be sure to check out SPB's upcoming concerts at top notch establishment and we are always there to thrive when it's a last three years, there's been this kind of paranoia and conservatism in the world, and artists always thrive when it's a little repressed.

Toronto premiere from prolific British filmmaker Michael Winterbottom ("Welcome to Sarajevo," "54," "The Hard Crowd," and "Stop! Or My Dog Will Shoot") is almost completely composed of explicit sex scenes between two actors. The chemistry between couple interact with concert footage from the surrounding and other rock bands. The idea is to show a relationship's arc through its structure, believably shows a relationship's sex (and its many varieties) through somewhat sexually desensitized. Every poster and television ad, you see get on the wall and it's clogged on pornography. I think if a filmmaker wants to have impact on you and that's what movies have to do you have to find original images that shock.

These are often sexual caricatures presented from the low-rent aesthetic of pornography into the high-brow world of art films. "9 Songs," a recent documentary, has found ways to make money in the entertainment industry like a business always thrive when it's a last three years, there's been this kind of paranoia and conservatism in the world, and artists always thrive when it's a little repressed.

One can argue that over the last three years, there's been this kind of paranoia and conservatism in the world, and artists always thrive when it's a little repressed.
