Welcome to Bryant 2003-2004 school year! I hope your summer was filled with close friends from home, relaxation, and jobs that will now allow you to live the life of a wealthy college student. I know that I am ready to have a great senior year filled with both challenges and great times with good friends.

The Bello Center and the Wellness Center are the two newest facilities on campus as Bryant continues to improve its infrastructure.

Welcome Guide

Wise Words from Returning Students

David Miner, '05

Management Major

"The best advice I can give to freshmen is for them to try something new and get involved. Meeting new people with the same interests opens doors and allows you a chance to get involved in the Bryant community."

Andrea Barbosa, '04

Marketing and Communication Major

"Don't forget that these will be the best four years of your life. Enjoy them and make the most of them. If you work hard it'll pay off in the end. But don't forget to have fun."

Julie Sauleer, '05

Marketing and Communication Major

"Take advantage of on-campus activities. Get Involved! It makes all the difference. Don't rush it! Enjoy it and study abroad!"

Welcome Weekend schedule (located on page 5)
Recipe of the Week: Broccoli and Roasted Red Pepper Pasta

The Archway will be sponsoring a new feature called "Recipe of the Week" in the Variety section. These simple recipes are especially dedicated to seniors and juniors living in the townhouses who may need some inspiration for improved dining. All students are welcome to submit recipes from home or that they have made. Easy Macs do not necessarily fall under the category of recipes. Pictures are also welcome. Submit recipes to The Archway in the Bryant Center on the third floor. The Archway reserves the right to feature recipes as it sees fit.

Ingredients
2 red bell peppers
1 teaspoon balsamic vinegar
1 pinch crushed red pepper flakes
Salt to taste
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
2 cups (1 1/4 cups) broccoli florets
12 ounces (350 g) penne or other sturdy pasta
Fine oil or cooking spray
1 tablespoon chopped fresh garlic
1 or 2 anchovy fillets (optional), chopped
2 vine-ripened tomatoes, seeded and diced
2 teaspoons dried basil
4 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Preparation
Estimated cooking time: Under 30 minutes

1. Preheat the oven. Place peppers on a broiling pan. Broil, turning frequently, until skins blister and turn black. Transfer the peppers to a bowl, cover with plastic wrap and set aside for 10 minutes.

2. To peel peppers, place under cool running water and peel away blistered skins. Slice open and wash out seeds. Place the peppers in a food processor or blender; add balsamic vinegar, crushed red pepper flakes, salt and pepper. Puree until smooth.

3. Bring a large pot of salted water to a boil. Add broccoli florets and cook for 1 minute. Scoop out the broccoli with a slotted spoon and set aside. Bring the water back to a boil.

4. Cook pasta until al dente, about 8 minutes.

5. Meanwhile, spray a large skillet with cooking spray and place pan over medium-low heat. Add garlic and chopped anchovies, if using. Cook, stirring, for 30 seconds. Stir in tomatoes and increase the heat to medium. When the tomatoes begin to simmer, stir in pepper purée and broccoli; cook for 2 minutes. Stir in basil and remove from the heat.

6. Drain the pasta and add to the skillet, stirring to coat.

7. Spoon into shallow bowls and garnish each with 1 tablespoon grated Parmesan.

It was definitely a time of uncertainties... a time when you thought you would never be able to find the friends you left at home (and if you did, you often thought we would be able to cope with the amount of reading thrown at us that we managed), and, despite the uncertainties, we hoped it would never end.

Welcome Guide

Simon Says: Do the Right Thing

By Toby Simon

Welcome new students and welcome back returning students.
I'm Toby Simon, and I'm Director of the Women's Center at Bryant. This year I will be a regular columnist for The Archway, offering advice and other useful information on relationships, sexuality, and gender issues.

For new students this is an amazing time in your lives. You will always remember your first few months of college as a time for exploration, experimentation, incredible learning, and the development of new friendships. There really is no other time quite like this.

And of course, there is no time quite like "la rentrée" as the French say—the return to campus. Everyone looks fabulous.

With warm weather and snappy clothes, students are able to strut about and show off the remains of a summer tan or the results of a workout regime. There's a whole lot of checking each other out going on. And there's a whole lot of wondering what the new year will bring, with respect to relationships, dating, and intimacy.

So it seems fitting at the beginning of the new year to return students and a fresh start for first year students, to offer some modern thoughts about relationships. I've written about this in earlier editions of this article, but I thought it might be a good idea to look back on my column this year.

It has to do with doing the right thing now that you're here. Of course we all have always done the right thing, but in college...

College students arrive on campus having had sexual experiences ranging from abstinence to intercourse. Maybe students already know what's appropriate sexual conduct. But then again, maybe they don't.

Note to first year college men and women: sex is perceived differently. Male students seem to be more comfortable with recreational sex and not necessarily with any strings attached. That is often a more difficult sell for women who have been raised in ways that value relationships and intimacy.

Sometimes these attitudes cause conflict for both men and women especially when there is no communication about how each person feels.

And if I have to tell you how to get what you want and need in a relationship, then I think I'm done with you.

So what do I mean by doing the right thing? For starters, let's talk about virginity. It's alive and well on the Bryant campus, and there's no competition about "taking it.

Men often need guidance with assertiveness skills and aren't sure how to go about getting what they want and need in a relationship.

Sexual intercourse are an important part of our sexuality—they also should be fun, caring, mutual, and interactive. Being harried and not remembering the sexual exchanges is neither interesting nor caring.

So there is a perfect but not necessarily perfect. There's always room for improvement and more learning. Communication is key. As is respect and safety. Enjoy the start of this new year and be safe.

Questions? Concerns about any of this? I'm at (636) 561-4248. And remember, all calls are confidential.

You can look for further columns from Toby Simon, Director of the Women's Center, on a bi-weekly basis in The Archway.

The information edge: Welcome Freshmen!

Library offers several services

By Colleen Anderson

Reference Librarian

The Douglas J. Judith Krupp Library located in the George R. Bell Center for Information and Technology invites all freshmen to stop by and investigate the services offered throughout the new library.

The reference desk is the second desk on the first floor. Reference librarians are available to help students navigate the many print and electronic resources available to them. These resources can also be accessed in the residence hall room or off-campus via the library's web page at http://www.bryant.edu/library.

Check on the e-resource links to be connected to databases containing articles in EBSCO and Proquest news in Lexis/Nexis and financial data in Mergent Online.

The reference librarians can help you locate the appropriate database to satisfy your research needs, and teach you how to find the information you need from the database.

To learn more about a particular database, sign up for one of the ongoing database instructional sessions offered throughout the semester at 7:00 pm Monday - Thursday.

If you are working on a paper or project and experiencing difficulty locating the information you need to complete the assignment, call the reference desk at 232-6299 and ask to make an appointment with a reference librarian.

During an individual appointment, you will discuss your research needs with a reference librarian and he/she will walk you through these print and electronic resources.

Welcome Freshmen from all over the world! We're so happy to have you here.

We would like to extend a special welcome to our international students. Your presence adds to the diversity at Bryant University and enriches the community of the Bryant family.

We look forward to seeing you in the library.
