On Saturday, April 12 and Sunday, April 13 Bryant College hosted the Relay for Life, an 18 hour long event to raise money for cancer research, education, and support. Most importantly, bring people together to fight for a common cause.

This was the first time Relay was held here at Bryant. Based on the results of this first event, the organizers hope this is the beginning of a new tradition at Bryant and a continued relationship with the American Cancer Society.

A large part of the event was to increase awareness about cancer and just how many this disease affects everyday. Statistics posted around the track were a constant reminder to people of why they were there circulating the track through the late hours of the night.

According to the American Cancer Society, approximately 1.5 million people are currently living with cancer in the US, with an estimated 1.3 million cases to be diagnosed in 2003.

Despite an even more sobering statistic is that since 1990, over 17 million cancer cases have been diagnosed in the US alone. These are the reasons why the Relay for Life Committee decided to take the initiative to bring this event to Bryant.

Alison DeMasi was a driving force in coordinating the event and as chair of the committee invested long hours, and a great deal of effort. Now, weeks after the event, she is very pleased with the results.

The initial fundraising goal was set months before the event at $18,000. According to Brian Charpentier, the event has raised $37,767.64 to date. This amount continues to climb as more donations continue to pour in.

Andrea Barbossa (left) and Karissa Walsh carry a banner for SPB as they walk the track. Numerous groups and organizations participated in the event which raised over $57,000.

In Alyssa Kuchen, who helped organize the event this year, said the fun atmosphere was very important to keep teams motivated. Despite the hot atmosphere there was also the opportunity to pay tribute to those who have died or are currently living with a form of cancer.

Over 300 numbers were lit around the track at nightfall, each with the name of someone who has battled cancer. The Relay participants then took a “lap of silence” while people were asked to walk around and see each name lit by a candle in the darkness.

At this time the Relay committee is busy collecting money for those affected by people about the event. Next year the committee hopes to improve on this year’s event and is encouraging feedback.

There is currently an online survey that anyone who participated in Bryant’s relay can take at:

http://FreeOnlineSurveys.com/researchsurvey/Id=35230

They hope to increase the amount of entertainment to keep people entertained and motivated throughout the entire 18-hour event. The committee also notice the energy and participation did lessen as the temperature and the sun went down.

They hope to include new ways to keep the participants going during these challenging hours.

Awards were given out with an announcement of the total fundraising amount as well as speaking from President Martin and Vice President Loker. In addition, all those who reached the halfway point were recognized for their hard work.

Bryant student, Tom Diminere, a second-year student at Bryant, has shown how much the Bryant community can pull together and raise money for a great cause proving that Relay is here to stay.

Deeply embedded in Bryant College’s mission statement are the principles of technological proficiency, a global perspective and most of all, knowledge of business.

This past full time Bryant student, David Devier, Timothy Watt and David Silk ranked among the top 1% nationally out of approximately 32,000 students.

They will be the first recipients of the Distinguished Achievement in Business Education awards at Bryant College.

The school will also be recognizing the twelve students that ranked in the top 10% and the further twenty-five that ranked in the top 25%.

They too will be the first recipient of the Distinguished Achievement in Business Education awards at Bryant College.

The school will also be recognizing the students of the Distinguished Achievement in Business Education awards at Bryant College.

Unfortunately, student performance and sentiment do not necessarily go hand in hand. A grade survey response is as follows: How do you feel about the ETS Exam? It was a waste of time.

What effect do you think it has on the School? None.

Your remark? None.

What advice would you give others who have to take it? “Don’t waste your time studying.”

Survey responses indicated that the majority of students cared very little about the outcome. In fact, many believed that it did little for them and their school and taking it was a more obligation.

There is great controversy regarding its content and preparation. Elizabeth Powers, Associate Dean of Undergraduate Studies, agreed that, “there needs to be clarity as to the purpose of the exam, its value and preparation for it.”

She began by explaining, “the ETS Exam is an assessment tool to measure a student’s skills and knowledge in specific business areas that are taken during a student’s senior year at Bryant College that is linked to the Business Policy classes considered to be the core of the business program.”

Powers continued by saying, “we didn’t lightly choose to describe it as a sort of ‘outcomes’ assessment produced by the same organization that developed the SAT’s.” It is essentially part of the school’s assessment planning. They are able to see just what it is they are not successfully teaching.”

Tom Diminere, the Director of ETS (Office of Planning and Institutional Research) is actively involved in the facilitation and analysis of ETS exam results.

Bryant’s Mission

The school has adopted a new culture of evidence, in which judgments come with strong proof.

In sharing Diminere’s sentiments, it is evident that they agree to that the winds of change have swept our campus and toward a future indicative of growth, a judgment passed in reflection of recent changes symptomatic of improvement.

Since the inception of the exam Powers and Diminere agree Bryant’s performance has been fair. Currently, they stand around the median point, with 50% of schools above and below them.

Bryant students appear strong in the areas of accounting and finance, which is not to say that the areas are weak but progressing. Many of the departments are working on improving effective areas.

In fact, Saraje Paveva, Associate Professor of Marketing, confirmed the marketing department was working toward their own assessment and improvement.

Diminere said, “the inherent value of the exam lies across the board because it gives the school a chance to go head-to-head against other top schools. Students are able to

U.S. Official Leading Rebuilding Efforts, Arrives in Iraq

By Nancy A. Yenius and Andrea Gerlin
Knight Ridder Newspapers

The retired U.S. general picked to lead America's military rebuilding in Iraq was on his way to Baghdad Monday and Iraq's top officials reported that the town was bedevilord by the city's electrical generating plants and might be producing electricity as soon as Tuesday.

Coalition forces also captured another member of Saddam Hussein's regime, Muhammad Hamza al Zubadi, 52, described as head of Baath Party's operations in the central and southern parts of Iraq, officials called him the highest ranking official taken captive so far. He was flown into Baghdad under U.S. custody of 55 that the U.S. military has said it wishes to detain.

But Saddam remained a fugitive, and no sign of what efforts were being made to find him. A local spokesman for the Iraqi National Congress, a Pentagon-backed exile group, said Saddam is not Iraq's leader, and that if he was in the country that was the end of Saddam's picture in Baghdad, a city northeast of Basra.

Earlier in the day, Saddam's supposed stephalf brother Mustafa Abdullah Sultan al Tikriti, turned himself in to the INC and was handed over to U.S. military authorities at 8 a.m.

Sultan was responsible for the shafaaq, or political network, of Saddam Hussein. Abdullah Sultan al Tikriti, had fled to Syria but was to have been handed over to U.S. military officials in Syria and flown into Baghdad under U.S. custody of 55 that the U.S. military has said it wishes to detain.

"We will leave fairly rapidly."

Another official, former security intelligence officer Khalid Ibrahim al Naseri, also was captured in Iran but has yet to be returned to the Americans.

While those behind bars, Iraqis by the hundreds were turning to the Red Crescent Society for help as families who shirked war-damaged families put up Saddam's picture in Baghdad, a city northeast of Basra.

"I have just an indication that the Saddam's plan was being handled. Once the boiler is functioning, he said, much of Baghdad will have electricity."

Gamer was accompanied by about 20 aides. Another 450 people are expected in the country to help administer the new civil government.

Iraqis have grown increasingly impatient. In response to a question about how long he would be in Iraq, he indicated he planned to stay until the end of the week, "We will leave fairly rapidly," he said.

During his whirlwind tour, Gamer often interviewed Iraqis asking if they were "All right, I'm gay," Gamer's visit drew some protests. Some Iraqis said they did not want to see an American coming to rebuild their nation. Some said they did not like the idea of an American leading their nation.

"We are not interested in an American, " said one of the protesters near the Palestine Hotel. Such protests have become almost a daily occurrence of the political atmosphere that has given rise to Iraq's new political groups, all of which are vying for a place in the new regime.

Among them: The Assyrian Democratic Party, the Kurdistan Democratic Party and the Democratic Party. Many of them are assuming positions of power quickly, and it is unclear just how they are able to do so.

Mohammed Mahdi al Zabib, already was making his move in Baghdad, Gamer has decided himself the mayor of Baghdad and other local leaders on plans for Baghdad. "The new government has said it does not recognize Zabib's claim.

Supreme Court to Revisit Miranda Protocols

The U.S. Supreme Court said it will consider other questions on constitutional protections that are intended to ensure people know their rights before police question them, in a case that could have broad applications for so-called Miranda warnings: "You have the right to remain silent," etc., the court will decide whether physical evidence obtained when police fail to give the warnings can be used at trial.

Already, the court has said certain kinds of evidence can be admitted in court despite Miranda warnings, but that in a strongly worded opinion three years ago in Dickerson v. United States, the Supreme Court majority reaffirmed Miranda's basic principles.

The case issues are when a witness, describing a rape in progress, a sexual assault, or a rape in progress, a sexual assault, or a rape in progress, a sexual assault, or a rape in progress, a sexual assault.

In a 6-3 decision in 1995, according to the speed, the court ruled that the new Miranda warning rights, including in the case of a rape in progress, a sexual assault, or a rape in progress, a sexual assault.

Simon Says: Learn the Rules!

By Toby Simon
Assistant to the Dean

Before I even noticed the difference in the weather, I learned that spring fever had arrived at the Bryant Center. This past week was a classic spring fever week. The sun was shining, and there was a sense of excitement in the air. However, I found myself questioning the behavior of some students. In particular, I was concerned about the number of students who seemed to be disregarding the rules that govern our campus.

The rules are there for a reason, and it is important to follow them. One of the most important rules is that students must not have pets on campus. However, I noticed that there were several instances where students had pets on campus. This is a clear violation of the rules and is not acceptable.

I also noticed that there were several instances of students not wearing masks. This is a violation of the COVID protocols that have been in place for the past year. It is important to follow these protocols to protect ourselves and others from the spread of the virus.

Another issue that I noticed was the use of electronic devices in class. While it is acceptable to use these devices for educational purposes, it is not acceptable to use them for social media or other non-educational purposes. This is a violation of the rules and is not acceptable.

In conclusion, I think it is important for all students to follow the rules that govern our campus. It is important to act responsibly and to follow the guidelines that have been put in place to protect ourselves and others. By following the rules, we can ensure a safe and enjoyable environment for all.

ICC Holds Second Annual Recognition Banquet

By Vanessa Wrenn
In charge, Staff Writer

On April 11, 2003, the second annual Interfraternity and Sorority Council Awards banquet was held. There were over 150 students, faculty members, staff, guests, and administrators in attendance, including two visiting directors from China and Canada.

The banquet began with the presentation of the awards. Among the awards presented were the Outstanding Sigma Chi, the Outstanding Tau Kappa, and the Outstanding Phi Kappa Tau awards.

The keynote speaker was the President of the International Sorority Council. He spoke about the importance of education and the role of our sorority and fraternity organizations in promoting these values.

The second part of the evening was dedicated to the presentation of the awards. Among the awards presented were the Outstanding Sigma Chi, the Outstanding Tau Kappa, and the Outstanding Phi Kappa Tau awards.

In conclusion, I think it is important for all students to follow the rules that govern our campus. It is important to act responsibly and to follow the guidelines that have been put in place to protect ourselves and others. By following the rules, we can ensure a safe and enjoyable environment for all.

Chaplain’s Corner: Why Am I Wearing a Yellow Ribbon?

By Rev. Philip Devene
Protestant Chaplain

My initial response to this query is that a yellow ribbon signifies my care and support of the men and women of the Armed Forces, as well as women and men in our Armed Forces who are not in the military.

In conclusion, I think it is important for all students to follow the rules that govern our campus. It is important to act responsibly and to follow the guidelines that have been put in place to protect ourselves and others. By following the rules, we can ensure a safe and enjoyable environment for all.

Bryant community knows some- one serving in the military. I know, 40% of my congregation has a connection to families men serving both here and overseas. This makes the war even more real, in our midst.

The yellow ribbon is a symbol of a system that has worked and brought us hope, comfort, and healing. I believe that the war is not over, but rather that the sacrifices of those who have served are being recognized and honored.

In conclusion, I think it is important for all students to follow the rules that govern our campus. It is important to act responsibly and to follow the guidelines that have been put in place to protect ourselves and others. By following the rules, we can ensure a safe and enjoyable environment for all.

Editor's Comments:
My Hopes for the Future of Bryant

It is time for us to offer our final column in The Archway and I am met with a difficult decision. Do I write a high note, and why? Or do I go for the jaguar and comment on all of the things that have driven me not to write for the past four years?

I came to the conclusion that I should try to do a little of both. So I will take this opportunity to share what I hope will be the future of Bryant College.

I hope that students continue to get involved. Through my experiences here, I have not met many people, but I feel as if I were a person more tremendously. I have done things during those last four years that I never dreamed I would have the chance to do. Whether it be studying abroad, or taking on a leadership position like this one.

I have made friends who I know will be in my life for the remainder of my days, and I have made many incredible memories that I feel truly blessed.

Although all of this is going on, there are some things that I would like to see. First, I hope that students continue to get involved. I hope that new students have the chance to really experience great things.

Second, I feel that communication between students and administration improves greatly. It is very important for students to understand that there are many changes that are happening to the school at this time, and I am never to make aware of until after the fact. In regards to the construction of the gym, to show the future, why are so many students still unaware of the change? (I know that WMF, the Bryant Players, and perhaps most frightening the Student Senate, are finding that their job is almost impossible when it comes to advocating for students when they themselves are denied essential information.

I would like to see the relationship between DPS and students improve as well. For I feel that there are major inconsistencies in the way that DPS treats students and employs campus patrol.

I hope in the future that there is more student input in terms of the curriculum as well as the effectiveness of professors and their teaching style. For far too often I think that these issues are not seen as a safety net and some professors, who have lost these drive or desire to teach still conduct classes just because they had to.

I still remember my freshman year when I had a tenured professor say to my class while filling out semester evaluation cards, "Don't care what you say on these evaluations—I am tuned to your opinion really don't matter." This was a shocking statement and one that I hope no other student here at Bryant ever has to hear. To the distinguished faculty, there is no need to remember that we are the real reason you are here.

Let me say that although this may seem harsh, it is only because I care deeply about this school and I want to see it become something even greater. I hope that the change that is taking place will continue to go on as long as it is needed. As people continue to turn a blind eye to certain issues, I hope that people in the future will have had an outlet of expression in The Archway to encourage people in the future to use this newspaper as a way of voice to opinions about issues. To the means available to you and be as vocal as possible about things you enjoy as well as those that you disagree with.

Through the adoption of polyamory, the married man's utility can be consistently maximized in the absence of this socially unacceptable behavior. Polyamory implies that we have seen many changes that are happening to the school at this time, and I am never to make aware of until after the fact. In regards to the construction of the gym, to show the future, why are so many students still unaware of the change? (I know that WMF, the Bryant Players, and perhaps most frightening the Student Senate, are finding that their job is almost impossible when it comes to advocating for students when they themselves are denied essential information.

Photo Of The Week: Bryant Student Defies Stricter Firecodes

This page is devoted to sharing opinions of students regarding issues on and off campus. After The Archway's coverage of the new fire codes, we thought it might be interesting to display the opinions of our peers. Please feel free to write in to The Archway with your opinions on the new fire codes. The Archway does not condone such behavior, but this did occur in a building on campus, and thus we thought we would show it here. What does this picture say about the behavior or feelings of Bryant students? You be the judge.
Softball

Bryant 2, Bentley 1
Bryant 2, Bentley 0

Bryant overview
Bentley led in both games, as they registered 3-3 victories in both games. The win was marked by a win of Bryant's in-game winning streak.

Sophomore right-hander Dan Conroy scattered three hits and struck out five in the opener, while junior righty Nicole Komarek allowed four hits with seven K's in the second game to lead Bryant to a doubleheader sweep of Bentley Saturday.

In the first game, the Bulldogs got the game-winning hit when Lindsay Schoolcraft scored on Carly Maris's grounder to short that went for an errant throw. Just moments later, another comeback from a one run deficit in the second game, as well, was marked by a Celtic hit scored from four first hits an inning throw. Kemel did not walk a batter and allowed just the four hits with seven K's to win by 6-0.

Bryant came out of the doubleheader with an 11-13 overall record and a 6-7 mark in the Northeast-10 Conference.

Men's Lacrosse
Bryant 16, Southhampton 10

The Bulldogs scored strong with a 5 goal run and led 10-3 at the half. But Southhampton rebounded to play a game, as they put a few more in the back of the net. The Colonials also forced Bryant to utilize a variety of players, as they shut down the Bulldog attackers, limiting the line to just 3 goals that afternoon.

But the midfielders stepped up, accounting for nine of the 16 Bulldog goals.

Sophomore midfielder Bryant Cingen scored four goals, while sophomore midfielder Stephen Coppinger had three goals and an assist. Senior Attackman Kevin Bartlett and sophomore midfielder Mark Kapp had two goals and an assist each for the Bulldogs.

Bryant improved to 8-4 with the win, and will return in action in Baltimore Stadium this Saturday, April 26th, against conference rival, the Purple Dukes.

Women's Lacrosse
Bryant 22, Castleton 0

The Bulldogs sweep past Castleton State last Saturday, registering a score of 22-0. The game set a record high for goals scored in the history of the program, as every player scored for Bryant, with the exception of goalie. Samantha Libby. 1100 had her second shutout of the season.

The win was truly a team effort from highly different players scored for the Bulldogs. Senior Courtney Davis, along with sophomore Maureen Burns and Jen Byrne were the only athletes to score more than one goal that afternoon, as they each put back 2 goals.

The women also overpowered the Greyhounds of Assumption College last Thursday, enabling Bryant to move up in the NCAA Division III North Region poll to No. 6 rating. Bryant currently stands with a record of 9-4.

The Bulldogs return home on Saturday, April 26th against Philadelphia, and again on Sunday April 27th, to play conference rivals, St. Michael's.

Baseball
Bryant 7, Southern Conn. 4

Bryant senior starter Chris Shum struck out 10 and earned a complete game win to propel the Bryant baseball team to a 7-4 victory over Southern Connecticut last Thursday.

Freshman Paul Novokovskii ripped a bases loaded, three-run home run to right center in the bottom of the seventh that proved to be the game winner, while senior Jeff Menga went 3-for-5 with an RBI, and freshman Jim Collins added a pair of hits, including a solo home run.

The Bulldogs return to action on Saturday, April 26, to battle Franklin Pierce.

Track and Field
Senior Melanie Butler improved upon her provisional NCAA-qualifying mark in the women's hammer throw, and freshman Caleb Paul broke Bryant's school record in the 5,000-meter run to pace the Bulldogs at the Northeast-10 Solomon Hosky Invitational last Saturday at Northeastern University.

Other highlights on the weekend included senior Paula Krapf's third-place finish in the 1,500-meter run that saw her稍稍 among multiple competitors.

Krapf was third in a 31-athlete field. Junior Kelly McCullum was sixth in the triple jump with a mark of 10.55 meters.

Bryant's men set top-10 finishes in six of the four events. The women also overpowered the Greyhounds of Assumption College last Thursday, enabling Bryant to move up in the NCAA Division III North Region poll to No. 6 rating. Bryant currently stands with a record of 9-4.

The Bulldogs return home on Saturday, April 26th against Philadelphia, and again on Sunday April 27th, to play conference rivals, St. Michael's.

Men's Tennis
Bryant 7, Merrimack 2

Senior Anthony Vella was a straight-set winner at No. 1 singles and paired with sophomore Chris Dobson for an 8-3 win at No. 1 doubles to lead Bryant to a 7-2 win against Merrimack on Wednesday.

Sophomore Erik Zapp earned a straight-set win at No. 2 singles, and sophomore T.J. Eudy took a straight-set win at the No. 3 doubles slot.

Bryant improved to 12-2 overall and upset the Northeast-10 Conference portion of its schedule at 16-1 in the league.
New Seats Create New Memories, And Rekindle Old Ones

By Andrew Niles

A few weeks ago, I had tickets to a Boston Red Sox game against the Baltimore Orioles. I was excited. When I was a kid, I'd go to two or three games a year with my father and my brother. But now I had not gone to Fenway Park in about two years. I went with a group of friends, and the atmosphere really had not changed.

Could the Sox do it this year? That was the question everyone was asking. The first thing that I had to check out was the new section of seats behind the "Green Monster." The "Green Monster" is the large wall in left field that makes hit- ters have to use more power to hit home runs. These new seats are a fans' dream. Sitting in seats like them had never been done in the ninety-one-years Fenway Park has been in oper- ation. But as my friends knew I was "old school." When I was a kid, I used to rise to my feet when the ball was hit deep, and look for the ball to hit the screen, to signify a home run. The screen was getting set up behind the "Green Monster" to catch home run balls. The screen was clas- sic, it collected baseballs there under the red, white, and blue lights of The CitiGlow. When I think of the screen, I think of a few Sox I've seen hit his into that screen in left. Wade Boggs, Jody Reed, Mike Greenwell, Ellis Burks, Andie Dawson, Rich Gedman, Jim Rice, and Dave Henderson. When I think of the new seats, I think of the memories to come with Manny Ramirez and Nomar Garciaparra. I'm not so sure. All baseball fans, including myself, will welcome these new Monster seats. But I did always enjoy watching the ball hit the screen in an illuminated night in Boston.

Capwell Named All-American Wrestler

By Chris Rudewicz

Sports Editor

Justin Parker Capwell is ranked fourth nationally in the National Collegiate Wrestling Association. This season, Capwell improved from last year's standing of 6th in the nation, and also took first place at the Northeast Regional tour- nament. Individuals earning national ranking of 6th place or higher are All-Americans, so Capwell is now a veteran in this field.

Bryant's Wrestling team is a club organization and participates in a number of tournaments and matches throughout the season.

The team was led by captains senior Joe Bianco and junior Matt Conway. Bryant had a large squad this year, balanced well by talented freshmen and sophomores, and experi- enced upperclassmen. Junior Matt Christian and Andre Megna, along with freshmen Anthony Fecchi are notable contributors to the team. Competing against Division II programs and other club teams, Bryant finished his season with an impressive standing at the national in the NCAA conference.

Melanie Butler

The Bulldog's Best

The Archway's Athletes of the Week

Melanie Butler

Qualifying for outdoor nationals.

"Interestingly, I am allowed to pass. I have been throwing for 10 years now and plan on continuing my training and competing after college. A dream of attending the Olympic trials one day.

Superstitions: Although I have been too superstitious lately, Melanie explained that, "Last year, I had to have an ice coffee before every meet."

"I'm going with the Ten.

Jon Yeungling

Scoring 13 goals and dished out eight assists in a 3-0 week, including being named NE-10 Player of the Week April 24. Had six goals, six assists against Merrimack, six goals, two assists against Southern New Hampshire and a goal versus Southern Maine. The Bulldogs were ranked No. 7 in last week's USILA Division II poll. Bryant has won four straight following a 16-10 victory against Southern Maine that completed a 3-0 stretch on the road. Junior Jon Yeungling has reached the 40-goal mark for the second straight year and needs just 13 goals to match his sin- gle-season school record of 56 goals.

"Thank you to Mike Coyne, Chuck Sullivan, Brendan Shannon and all those who nominated athletes this year!"
Staff Profile: Beverly Daignault

By Niki Zois

Archway Staff Writer

Beverly Daignault loves coming to work at Archway, and she’s been working here for fifteen years. You probably know her afi as the beloved custodian for 12 years and oversees three buildings. She enjoys attending the band, ensemble concerts, speakers, and local concerts.

She says that her favorite things about her job are getting close to the students and the flexibility that she has.

Daignault is friendly with everyone and often sits at the students’ study area away from home. She is constantly answering laundry and cleaning questions, and it is always there for her students.

Currently, she is the custodian for Harley 14, 15 and 16 and knows every corner there is to know about her job.

Daignault ended up at Bryant in 1997. She had spent 23 years at Tupperware before it closed. Hearing that Bryant was a great place to work, she put her name in, working first for the food service and then moving on to the custodial department. She has been a custodian for 12 years and overseas three buildings.

Junior Jump Off: The Lost Art
By Raymond Mills

Okay, I’ll be honest…there has been some, pushed off to the side, poorly-impreg-ated, and pushed off to the side, but…in other words, abuses, for those that need Rap Lingo for the day.

Now comes a new date, another attempt to bring rap music and its culture to Bryant College – The Junior Jump Off. Hip Hop Battle presented by The Junior Class as a fundraiser.

Chief organizer Laura Weisbrod, brought in the true meaning of rap back to the class again. As Karen B. Bost says, "This is the biggest Bryant College will ever get.”

The beauty of the music was brought back to life so many of the ‘rapppers’ could showcase the skills they claim possess for the crowd and the next MC with their raw talent.

We all know everyone wants to be a rapper but we can stop, on some because are out there working hard studying their flows.
Let’s not have a misconception people thriving off the top of their head is a serious business because it takes creativity and Wednesday night we saw just how much MACS were “inventor” and which MACs were “thanked back from the dead” all about the survival of the fittest.

Based on opinion around campus, tonight’s favorite is Bay Buzzy. His friends say he has a lot of talent and he put out a tape.

I found this night to be interesting because freestyle batches are based on lyrical combat and rhyme reversal. I hoped people’s minds were not already made up on who was going to win because there were a couple of Bryant College prize package.

This would definitely rule the day of freestyle.

* * * The battle * * * Mostly filled with people from other schools, which is common here at Bryant College functions. South remains dry as saltine crackers with heads nod-ing to the beat.

The group is from Jersey and the first couple of songs keep the crowd on their feet but that is mainly because people cannot sit down and are nearly dancing at the wondering what I am typing. The group is decent. I gave them their props.

Their lyrics are good but they just do not possess anyting to get the crowd hype.”
says Flash Ends, a knowl-edgable rap fan. However, the second round is straight fire… I do not know any names of the artists but it was the best round, by far.

The battle is turning out to be quite an event. It seems the crowd came to see freestyle battle and not the scripted songs.

There were a couple of impromptu raps that definitely got the crowd moving, and some that definitely got the crowd crowd.

Afer about 7 or 8 songs we finally get some comic feedback. Next up was Bay Buzzy, who is without a question the crowd’s favorite as everyone gathers closer to the stage and stands on tables.
The battle was a little unfair because you cannot hear his opponent, but as I suspected Bay Buzzy used pitches that got the crowd into the battle and moved him on to the next round.
The next few raps got better making the event worthwhile.

However, the best rapner had to be K-B. He Newport, RI, who put consecutive takes in how to count rhymes for those that missed the copy of Rap Lingo (Dummies). Even though his rhyme was written, the crowd could “spin” while he continued to rap.

As far as the battle was concerned Pride was the best freestyler claiming he had beat down “Knuckles for the $100.

I think there were some true rap fans in the crowd but more people were here just to listen and hear the next “Tupac or L.L.” A lot of people in the crowd said some MC’s were whack and things worse than that, but I on the other hand appreciate the skills these guys have worked on because not everyone can write dope rhymes. It is evident these guys have been working on their music.

Personally three people of the people in the audience could not get up and say an ill rhyme if they were in ‘The Lab” for 12 years. Thanks to The Junior Class and to Laura, for doing a good job tonight, and bringing this to Bryant.

Don’t forget to tune in to WJMF on Sunday 9-11 for Big Nothing and Coast Space, Wednesday 6-9 for Big Step, and Thursdays 9-11 for Pop & Jenney. It’s a wrap!
