Women's Center Director Needed

By Maggie Grace
Editor-in-Chief

On a campus where the student population is predominately female, it is surprising to some that one of the most important issues at Bryant right now is the Women's Center's search for a director.

In recent weeks, it has been brought to the attention of The Student Senate, Administration and the Bryant Community that the Women's Center, which opened in March of this year is experiencing difficulties in staffing their office and providing services like those on many other campuses.

Currently, the center employs two students in their resource office, and maintains a center coordinator and a student advisor, plus staff that coordinate activities and day-to-day operations.

But what they really need, and hope they will get, is a director. Rosanne Dara, Co-Chair of the steering committee explained that in order to effectively run an office, there needs to be a professional present to coordinate the activities of the people that are involved in the daily maintenance of the center.

In essence, "One person to coordinate the efforts of many." The issue now is not that there is no director to be found, but that there is not enough money in the Women's Center's budget to be able to afford a part-time director.

One of the main concerns of having a director is the ability to offer any continuity of service and availability. "What I consider to be the biggest benefit is continuity of service," says Professor Nancy Weingartner, "and we can't guarantee that with the current setup. I want that continuity of service that extends to students without a director." Weingartner is a member of the steering committee and helped with the planning and mission of the center.

There have been many misconceptions as to what the actual issues surrounding the absence of a director are, and both Dana and Weingartner clarified by saying that contrary to current belief, it is not that the school is well-holding promised funding. The operating budget that was allocated to the center has been received. The problem is that the budget is not enough to accommodate basic operations as well as the salary of a director.

Teri Hassler is Co-Chair of the steering committee along with Dana, and in an interview with her she was able to clarify how the Women's Center stands financially.

The Women's Center has an initial operating budget of $22,500 which was the original amount promised by the college. The proposal that is now in front of the administration for consideration is an additional $10,000 to go towards the operating budget.

Both Weingartner and Hassler agree that they do not believe this to be a very modest sum of money, and absolutely necessary to accommodate whoever will take on the role of the Women's Center Director.

Perhaps another misconception is that there is a lot of hostility surrounding this issue. At the present time the Women's Center does believe that the colleges have been supportive in its mission. "I have never heard any negative comments at all," Hassler commented that the issue at hand has more to do with continuing that commitment and support, rather than claiming that it wasn't there at all. "I would like to see a continued commitment on all sides, and one way is to provide the funding that we need to offer programs and support to students."

In a presentation made to the Student Senate in early October, President Allen told the college that the Women's Center is not just for women. It is important to range that the center is a place where anyone can go to get information, relax, talk, watch a movie or just hang out.

Find and foremost it does serve as a resource for women.

"Lesser crimes at Bryant take the focus of major crimes," according to George Ceranado, the Director of Public Safety. Bryant College is ranked the number one safest campus nationwide by an independent study conducted by APNews.com and CAP - Crimes Against College. This study included every college campus nationwide, it measured the crime on campus and in the vicinity of the area around the campus.

Bryant College was rated higher than the U.S. Air Force Academy and WestPoint. The university also received the academy's award, according to Ceranado in reference to his department's rating. To put it in the situation in perspective, Bryant boasts only 1101 student to DPS officer ratio.

In an independent study of 25 schools, it was found the range of their ratios was 800 to 1. Over the last few years Bryant's campus security has continued to improve.

There has been a steady decrease in incidents reported at the campus. Fortunately, Bryant does not have a reputation of violent crime against students. Crimes committed on campus are typically against students. This has been the case this year. So far crime is down this year compared to the last, however crime that has been committed is causing a significant amount of monetary danger.

Within the first few weeks of returning to Bryant College this fall, a series of car break-ins and in the last parking lot with monetary damage totaling in the thousands. The break-ins often occurred on the weekend in the early hours of the morning. As more break-ins occurred the suspects were becoming more professional in their technique. DPS and Smithfield Police worked closely together in this investigation.

It was suspected that the burglars responsible for the thefts were accessing the area through John Mowry Rd. Residents of that street were questioned in hopes of providing information about a potential suspect. DPS increased security to the hall 15 parking lot and is looking into fencing off the area along the woods to try to deter future break-ins. The efforts of DPS have yielded the arrest of two suspects.

Sgt. David Ray of DPS was stoming out the area this past weekend looking for evidence he was paid off. He saw two males dressed in dark clothing in the hall 15 lot and witnessed them throw things over the fence into the woods. Smithfield Police were contacted and the suspects where intercepted.

Campus Security: DPS Apprehends Suspects in Car Break-Ins

By Kevin Hogue
Sports Writer

On a college campus, it's hard to believe that events that happen almost every day are considered "news". On Friday, September 27, a group of four students were stopped in the hall 15 parking lot. The students were part of a group of four that had been recognized by local authorities for engaging in a series of car break-ins on campus.

The suspects were stopped after attempting to leave the campus in a car that had been reported stolen. The car was observed by campus security personnel and reported to the police. Upon arrival, police officers approached the suspects and directed them to the ground for questioning.

Upon searching the suspects' vehicle, police officers discovered evidence indicating that the suspects had been involved in multiple car break-ins on campus. The suspects were arrested and charged with several counts of breaking and entering and theft.

The events that occurred on campus are a reminder of the importance of being aware of one's surroundings and taking necessary precautions to prevent criminal activity. It is crucial for students to be vigilant and report any suspicious activity they may witness. Campus security personnel and local law enforcement agencies work together to ensure a safe and secure campus environment for all students.

The college administration has expressed their commitment to addressing these issues and ensuring a safe and secure environment for all members of the community. They have increased security measures and implemented additional protocols to prevent future incidents from occurring.

It is anticipated that the suspects will be held for a court appearance and will face charges resulting from their actions. The college administration has also emphasized the importance of community involvement and encourages all members of the campus community to contribute to the collective effort in maintaining a safe and secure environment.

Police Link Latest Va. Shooting to Earlier Sniper Shootings

By Ken Morita of the Richmond Times-Dispatch

The Virginia State Police have identified a suspect in the shooting of a Richmond police officer last week. The suspect, a 50-year-old man identified as John A. Mayfield, was arrested in connection with the shooting.

Mayfield is charged with murder and is being held without bond. He is scheduled to be arraigned on Monday.

The shooting occurred around 5:30 p.m. on May 9, when Richmond police Lt. John R. Miller was killed while responding to a disturbance call at an apartment complex on South Side.

Mayfield was found with a gun and was taken into custody after a brief standoff. He is from the Richmond area and has a criminal history.

In a statement, Richmond Police Chief William Smith said, "This is a tragic and senseless act of violence. Our thoughts and prayers are with the family of Lt. Miller and the Richmond Police Department."
important information for the senior class

we are pretty familiar with the way things run around here, but they have been making it a point to tell us about some new changes that keep taking place. it doesn't look quite like it did back in 1999, but not too subtly if i may say so.

here's the scoop on what is taking place with the senior class. for example, you may already know, our job as a committee is to lead the senior class in raising money so when the end of the year comes around, we can have the best senior week ever (and not pay for it with our life savings). the committee is well-underway with planning and organizing fundraising events.

this weekend is parents and family weekend. the senior class will be sponsoring the 9th annual duck race. show some support and buy a duck for a chance to win some great prizes.

the theme of the class of 2003 is anxiously awaiting the first senior night. it will be happening very soon. there have been some temporary setbacks but we have no fear, we will have one before you know it. however, because they are going to be later than usual, we need your support by selling out and buying a class of 2003 magnet. (only $5) we are planning more fundraisers including a papa gino's night to be held on tuesday, october 29 from 4-9pm. check your mail for the coupon, and head over to apple valley for some all-you-can-eat pizza.

we will take home 20% of coupon sales for that night! look for more info about senior nights coming soon!

Phi Sigma Sigma

By Julie Anne Collins

Phi Sigma Sigma PR Chair

Phi Sigma Sigma would like to welcome faculty, staff, and students back to Bryant. It has been a good start to the fall semester and we hope that everyone is finally settling in and doing well.

For starters we would like to note that Formal Rush from September 20th-24th was a great success and we are extremely thrilled to have our new Chi's back on campus. Phi Sig would also like to welcome& new girls as part of this year’s class.

Some of our upcoming philanthropic events and fundraisers include ‘Jail ’n Bail (November 6th), The Trampoline-a-thon (December 4th), and The Walk For Breast Cancer.

We hope that you will be able to attend and support Phi Sig and the National Kidney Foundation. We will keep you informed on the dates and times of the events.

Have you ever wondered what life would be like if people stopped volunteering on this campus? Have you stopped to think lately how life would be different if we did not have students, faculty, and staff who were willing to take time out of their days to make this school a better place to be?

I have been asking myself this question a lot in the past month or so and I have come to the conclusion that something good change in this town at least I have. We are not the only ones who work here. It is the attitude of the students here, the overworked faculty and staff that is at the root of this point in time.

Up until this issue, The Archway staff has consisted of a select few who have decided that the right thing to do was to have a weekly newspaper that was paid for, but the production and actual creation of the paper that is now on my shoulders almost entirely. I believe that has been on my shoulders almost entirely. I believe that is that that is published this issue, a member of the class of 1991 who thinks there may be a general lack of campus involvement, and it was his idea that I should get this letter to you today and that I should get this letter to you today.

In a time when we are concerned with helping up those all important things, it worries me that clubs and organizations must struggle to recruit and retain members. The Archway is just one example. What about other things? If those things are still up time slots, granted they may not be the most ideal times, but when will the majority of us ever be able to have enough time to contribute. Approximately take groups like Helping Hands or Special Olympics, who are in need of help, we brayd.

Collegiate students just too busy involved? I personally don't think that is the case, but when I hear the idea that most of the time is spent going to a free concert in South Dining Hall, I wonder why the people who try to make this campus better work so hard.

Why put time and effort into something to benefit the student body when not only is it not appreciated, but little recognition is given to those who work so hard? I think this is part of the problem. As charity-minded as we all think that we are, it is nice to be recognized for a job well done.

I believe that what makes getting involved so great on this campus is the feeling that you come away with after something has been accomplished, and I don't believe that students would have to start to support their fellow classmates a little more, the general feeling of increased involvement would decrease greatly.

Part of being involved on this campus is not only organizing events or running organizations, it is also showing up to these events and meetings. Spending extra time with clubs and organizations, concerts, speakers, bingo, movies, fondue, dinners, diners, dinners on and on. These things are available to all of us in the Bryan Community as something to enjoy and participate in and I think that we need to have lost sight of that.

It is as selfish. People in these things for yourself and not for the sake of others. Both are not hot commodities on this campus and are valued highly.

So get out there and do something with your time. Get a job, volunteer your time for a club or sport club, step assuming that other people will always be there to take the lead, because it is not always the case.

Up until this point in time, you can see that your college experience is what you make it and your time here consists of sleeping, drinking and watching "Crank Yankers" on Comedy Central. I hope you have really accomplished anything.

The Economics of Having a Girlfriend: Birthday Presents Part 2

By Tom Fischetti
Archway Columnist

As the last column suggested, this week we will delve into two variables that compose the equation used to determine how much the male should spend on the female’s birthday present.

The first problem facing the boyfriend in this scenario deals with the potential losses of the outcome. How does one avoid allocating too many financial resources toward this purchase?

More importantly, how can one minimize the potential losses that may arise from a break in the relationship subsequent to the purchase of her present but prior to your birthday? To approach this dilemma in an economically responsible manner, the boyfriend must ascertain the values of two variables, P, and A, where:

P = Probability the relationship will still exist on your birthday
A = Age of the relationship, expressed in months, on your birthday

Now, before the potential loss minimization equation (the girlfriend/birthday present equation) can be revealed, the logic behind the selection of the two variables must be explained. It is important to point out that the selection of these variables is essential that the boyfriend understands the probabilities of the relationship still existing come his birthday.

If for some reason the relationship materialized because of behavior on an event Friday night/Saturday morning, and her birthday hap

The boyfriend must question the probability longevity of the relationship before committing any financial resources to her present.

In such an instance, the boyfriend needs to ask himself, "Am we going to be together this weekend, nevertheless come my birthday in two months?" The answer should be a sufficient indicator of the general direction of the relationship and assist the boyfriend in the resource allocation process.

I mean, why buy jewelry when come Friday you’re becoming increasingly social with another female who may potentially be "the one?" Conversely, consider the situation of a boyfriend residing in paradise with his girlfriend of five years. In this case, it would be safe to affirm that the emotional fabric of the relationship is strong enough to ensure that the boyfriend will be receiving something on his birthday, whether they are still dating or not.

Here, the possibility of a financial loss is smaller than the latter case, the boyfriend’s financial outlay for his girlfriend’s birthday present is offset by a future affair on his big day.

The second variable, A, is also a logical inclusion because the equation applied by the female in determining how much to spend on the boyfriend’s present is expressed in the following manner:

A = 15% of her Semester Spending Fund.

The boyfriend is compelled to consider A, in his purchasing decisions. Armed with this knowledge, he is positioned to exploit the female’s predictability by adjusting the amount he spends accordingly.

Because the value of A will be varied in both the boyfriend and girlfriend’s equations, including A ensures that the boyfriend will not be depleting too few financial resources toward his girlfriend’s present.

In this respect, equity in the relationship is somewhat sustained (see that, ladies, your well-being is also genuinely considered in this column).

Unfortunately, because of both time and space constraints, the unveiling of the equation must be postponed until next issue.

Although this was not my initial intention, circumstances have dictated otherwise. Believe me, I am sincerely sorry for any consequent inconveniences and hope that your patience is as great as your kind hearts.

However, if your girlfriend’s birthday happens to fall before the release of the next issue, and you are in dire need to minimize your potential losses from this beloved expenditure, e-mail me. I’d be more than happy to help you save some of your semester beverage money.

Letter to the Editor: Student Participation on Campus Seems Low

Dear Editor:

Where’s the REST of it? I am writing to bring to your attention the lack of student involvement on campus. As the Archway is to get a sense of the campus. It seemed a little thin, but I was not sure if it was to be printed every two weeks, then it’s A LOT thin.

Upon further review I noticed that a number of the editor position are vacant. This confirmed what I heard during in the parking while walking old keats at VM. Student participation is down in most on-campus activities.

Does nobody want to step up and see their name in print? Do they not care about what goes on at Bryan? I miss Public Safety most, as well as the goings-on of the various clubs/groups on campus.

It would be truly said by the very students for whom The Archway is published, did not see fit to write.

Obviously, if you don’t have the horses, you certainly can’t run the race. I don’t as much as think of an attack on the Archway staff, but rather upon the apparent apathy of the current Bryan student body. It could only be kept from happening by taking the effort.

Keep trying.

Women's Soccer Shoots for NCAA Tournament

By Chris Ludwick
Archway Staff

Last year, the Bryant College Women's Soccer team captured the ECC semifinal title and achieved a national ranking of 21st in the country. This year, their success has not been easy, since the Bulldogs have been ranked as a team all others aspire to beat.

The girls came into practice with a strong mindset and a summer of hard training).

They established their goals early on, and knew where they needed to be two months down the road. Come November 2nd, the team intends to be playing in the NCAA semifinal once again, this time at home, right here in Bulldog Stadium.

Last year, the team's unexpected success was not foreseen by others in the conference. A Nobody had the soccer program at Bryant College been taken to such a level and recognized for so many achievements.

However, their winning season had last proved to be one of the team's biggest obstacles. Last year the Bulldogs were able to sneak up on some teams early on, and earn a legitimate status later in the season. "Our biggest challenge is not being the underdog anymore," explained coach Chris Flint.

"We are learning to play as a team, others want to beat us."

"It puts a different spin on the whole season," stated junior captain Rachel Bessette.

"Last year we went out and played for ourselves. There are a lot more expectations this season."

However, the team knows what needs to be achieved. Bryant to play in NCAA tournament next month. As junior captain Kelly Baccus explained, "We can either be playing in the tournament or handing out promenades for it."

The idea of a home field advantage in such an important series of games is definitely a motivating factor for the team.

The girls kicked off the season with strong optimism and a four game winning streak, which earned them a standing of No. 3 in the country. This is the highest ranking in the history of the soccer program for the college.

"We started out strong, and then had a show period where we weren't connecting," explained sophomore Elizabeth Besset. The team's first loss was to Saint Anselm College. St. Anselm's scored two good goals two off a corner kick with some help from the powerful wind. The loss was a shock, given the way that it happened, but "it was a reality check," said Coach Flint. "The game of soccer can go any way, anytime."

The Bulldogs have been able to learn from their losses, and take away something from each defeat.

Two juniors, Bessette and Kelly Baccus, share the role of captain.

Women's Golf

The women's golf team had a great season. We hosted our second annual Bryant College Women's Golf Invitational at Beaver River Golf Club on Sept. 21-22. Fifteen schools came, and the tournament was won by Florida Gulf Coast University. This coming weekend we are going on our 4th tournament for the fall. We leave Friday for Myrtle Beach for the long weekend. We will be playing in the Lexus/Ryder Invitational. We will be having a spring season as well, and we welcome tryouts for the team!

Women's Tennis

We have achieved so much this season. We are currently 6-2 in the Conference with four matches left before the conference tournament. We are no longer the next to last team in the conference. We are now a team to be reckoned with. We're turning heads, which is a nice feeling.

Our recruiting efforts have paid off and are starting to pay dividends. It's been a welcome change. We look forward to the rest of our season including the conference tournament, which is next week. We have the potential to turn this season's losses into wins at the tournament.

We also have some players that could walk away with a Conference accolade. Alex Spencer is up for freshman of the year. She is 7-1 in singles play. She has beaten last year's NE-10 player of the year and freshman of the year. She's had a great season, Alanna Santantello, could be on the all-conference doubles team...they are 7-1. Sophomore, Ashleigh Melanson could make another conference team...she is 17-0 in her career at Bryant. She plays out of the fifth singles spot.

Other team members making significant contributions to our overall improvement are: Sophomore, Heather Malo at third singles, Liz Gladash, a senior at fourth singles, Lauren Knight at sixth singles and our second team doubles specialist, sophomore, Ariana Rinnaudo and Sasha Garbedian.

The Bryant College Women's soccer team is back on track after a late September bump in the road. The Lady Bulldogs started the year off-4 and ranked #12 in the nation.

The had an uneventful streak early on, which began with a 4-0 win against UMass Lowell here at Bulldog Stadium. Junior Goalkeeper Christina Richard started her first shutout of the year on her way to being named Conference Goalkeeper of the Week. In that game, Junior midfielder Allison Kelly became the program’s all time leader in assists, as she fed Sophomore Kristen Harmon for the game winner.

Later that week the Lady Bulldogs went on the road to Assumption to pull out a dramatic 1-0 win against the Greyhounds. Down 0-2 at the half the team turned it over in the second half behind goals from Freshmen Sarah Diamond and two including the game winner with 1.44 left in regulation from Kelly.

Next the Lady Bulldogs traveled to Manchester, N.H., to face Southern New Hampshire. Kristen Harmon scored the lone goal on a feed from Kelly as the game ended in a 1-1 tie. Bryant faced a tough Southern Connecticut team here at Bulldog Stadium and took a 1-0 lead on a shot by Allison Kelly, SCSU equalized with 15 minutes to go and had an opportunity to take lead with 2 minutes left when a penalty shot was awarded to the Owls. Christina Richard saved the shot and energized the team and with a million seconds left Bryant scored the game winner as Kristen Harmon scored the game winner.

Senior Jason Clary finished with a one-over-par total of 141 to win the individual title and lead Bryant to a fifth-place finish in the team standings during the Black Knight Fall Classic at the West Point Golf Course at the United States Military Academy. Clary, who fired a two-under 68 in the first round, turned in a 73 Sunday to win the individual medal by one stroke on Delaware’s Chase Miller. The tournament saw Clary’s second of the fall season. The Bryant Men’s Golf team also tied for third place in the tournament, placed fifth in the team standings with rounds of 304 and 307 for a total of 611. Clary also helped the Bulldogs to a second-place finish at the Northeast10 Championships, held Sept. 22 at Drumlin Golf Course in Syracuse, N.Y.

Introducing Art
By Justin Setter
Variety Editor

Do students dare leave the walls of the Bryant College without first expanding their cultural horizons? That might come as a shock to some, but you may need more than your $25,000.000 education to make something of yourself in the real world. Don't worry though — your opportunity to explore this cultural world is available to you right now.

The Bryant College 2002-2003 Art Series, sponsored by the Office of Student Activities, draws a variety of artistic domain. Students and faculty are exposed to plays, musicals, films, poetry readings, photography classes, crafts, and art exhibits.

Students and faculty can further their artistic journey with theater staples such as, "A Christmas Carol," presented in late November, and "Phantoms of the Opera," in March. These shows are located at Trinity Repertory Company and PCAC, respectively. Discounted tickets can be purchased on campus.

The Bryant community also has the opportunity to explore the classic film "Mommie Dearest," on November 12. Two poetry readings highlight the series:

Baron Woerner, the past host of Maine, and Bryant's own Professor Bron Chandler, the poet laureate of Rhode Island. Woerner will be in Janikies Auditorium on Wednesday, Oct. 32 at 7 p.m. The reading should prove to be quite interesting. The subjects will deal with book, movety & others, ranging from AIDS to war crimes with settings that jump from Las Vegas to Dallas.

Bartlett poet laureate Chandler describes Woerner as, a person of very strong character who understands the essence of daily life.

Position at Bryant:
Adjunct (part-time) professor in the Department of Communications, in which I typically teach two courses per semester.

Faculty Profile: Professor Steven Riggs

Chandler also provides Bryant with an opportunity to experience poetry on a more personal level with his poetry reading, which is scheduled for March 19 at 7:30 p.m. in Papitto.

Chandler will be reading selections of poems as well as doing a book signing. His newest book, Sad Jazz should be out in December.

Another interesting aspect of the series is the photography class, which began in late September and continues through October.

Chandler with his teaching mentor, professional photographer Suzanne Russell, has created a small class taught by professional Suzanne Russell, the small class taught is the teaching of poetry complex photog-ography using black and white film.

The overall goal of expanding Bryant's artistic appreciation is very reasonable considering the opportunities provided by the college through the 2002-2003 Art Series.

Look for more focused topics on the events of this years Art Series in upcoming issues of The Archway.
