SALMONSON HONORED AT DEDICATION BANQUET

By Paul Carroll

"I'm flattered and very gratified to be here this evening," said Mr. John Leonard Salmonson, President of Adams Drug Company, as he was introduced to the audience at the dedication of the John L. Salmonson Center for Business Administration.

Dr. Salmonson, a native of Smithfield, was born in 1920 and received his B.A. degree from the University of Vermont. He has been associated with the college for over 50 years, serving in various capacities including President of the Board of Trustees.

As a leader in the pharmaceutical industry, Salmonson has made significant contributions to the field of pharmacy education. He is a past president of the American Pharmaceutical Association and has received numerous awards for his contributions to the profession.

The Salmonson Center, which houses the School of Pharmacy and Business Administration, was named in honor of Mr. Salmonson for his exceptional service and dedication to the college.

The event was attended by faculty, staff, students, and distinguished guests who gathered to celebrate the opening of the newly renovated facility.

"It is an honor to be here this evening," said Mr. Salmonson. "I am grateful for the opportunity to be a part of this special occasion and to see the hard work and dedication of the students and faculty come to fruition.

"I have always been proud of the work that has been done here at the college, and I look forward to seeing what the future holds for the students and the community.

"Thank you for your continued support and for making this possible.

The evening was filled with speeches, music, and a reception where guests had the opportunity to mingle and enjoy refreshments. The occasion was a resounding success, and Mr. Salmonson was visibly moved by the enthusiastic welcome he received.

"I am truly humbled by this recognition and I am so grateful for all the support that has made this possible. I look forward to seeing what the future holds for the college and for the community."
One booklet tells the secretarial majors, who are predominantly female, how to determine their correct bra and girdle sizes. How many 18-year-old girls are there who wear girdles? And what does a girdle have to do with performing well as a secretary?

Another booklet tells you what to wear when and where. It says that "for glamour...long skirts make you feel grown-up and 'different,' and important." But do they make you a better secretary?

The booklet on career planning held probably the most valuable information for Bryant's prospective secretaries. It contains a very good appraisal sheet which would be a measure of the students' personal attributes, human relationships, and professional characteristics. BUT!!! As I flipped through the booklet, I stumbled upon a section entitled, "A Mod But Moderate Approach to Dress." This lists a number of "Do's and Don't's" for the students' "personal development." The "Do's" are very logical—but all you need to have is a little common sense to know what to wear in an office. The "Don't's" tell you not to "go without proper undergarments," or "wear flats, loafers, sneakers." What are proper undergarments? Girdles? Besides being uncomfortable, girdles are bad for women because they tend to weaken abdominal muscles. As for the proper footwear for an office—flats are a lot more comfortable to wear than high-heels and they're a lot less dangerous!

I realize how important it is for secretaries to be well groomed. They are usually the first people to meet outsiders who come into their offices, and the impression secretaries make on business associates is very important because it is the first impression these people have of the firm. However, I see no reason for jamming the seminar packet with information that almost solely concentrates on fashion. It is far more important to concentrate on efficiency and courtesy when students are preparing to enter the business world.

I have never seen any literature given to the business administration and law enforcement majors that has to do with appropriate dress and proper undergarments. Why should the secretarial majors have to be insulted with this kind of literature?

I hope that future seminar packets will be designed a little more thoughtfully and with a more respect for secretarial majors. Girdles? Bra? Let's be serious!!

Michael Lynch, Treasurer for the Senate, presented a 17-page financial report to the Senate at last Tuesday's meeting. This report is a "statement of financial position of the Student Senate as of October 19, 1973. The report included four pages of recommendations, made by Mike, which the Senate decided should be considered as being separate from the financial report. Due to the length of the report, it was decided to table its discussion until next week so that the Senators could have an opportunity to read it in depth and have time to prepare any questions which they might like to discuss.

Fred Leonard submitted a report, listing the general rules concerning Senate committees. The report also contained the charges of six Senate committees. The Senate is presently preparing a complete report containing the charges of all the Senate committees. Discussion of this report was tabled until the next meeting to afford a proper review of it.

The following proposal was made to the Senate by Fred Leonard as Speaker of the Senate: "To accept the Bryant College Data Processing Management Association as a recognized Bryant College student organization." The Senate passed this proposal in a unanimous vote.

In order for a club to be officially recognized as an organization of Bryant College, it must have the approval of the Student Senate. Through an anonymous vote by a number of clubs which are in existence have never received this official approval. Technically, clubs without this approval are ineligible for Senate funds. At last Tuesday's meeting, the Senate corrected this error by officially giving their approval to the following organizations: Veterans' Club, Bryant Oorums, Bryant College Accounting Association, Delta Omega Professional Society, Karate Club, International Student Organization, and Greek Letter Council.

Alan Chep, Chairman of the Ad Hoc Committee, requested the Senate's permission for him to submit a possible solution to the "happening" problem to the ARCHWAY. The Senate granted this request.

Mike Lynch announced that the Senate Ways and Means Committee would be meeting this week with the International Student Organization, Delta Omega Professional Society, and the Karate Club, to review their requests for Senate funding.
MBA Alumni Association

The first general meeting of the new MBA Alumni Association, which was being formed within the Bryant Community, will take place on Tuesday, October 30 on campus at 7:30 p.m. All Bryant MBA Alumni have been invited to attend. An informal talk will be given by Raymond Caine of the Graduate Business Advisory Council, who is also Senior Vice President of Cramer, Towbridge, Case and Basford. He will speak on "Rhode Island Economic Climate As Seen from the Governor's Office." Mr. Caine, a member of the Council, is also Vice President of Imperial Knife Company.

MBA Highlights

The first meeting to Fall, 1973, of the Graduate Business Advisory Council took place on Thursday, October 25 on campus. The Council, which comprises 15 presidents and vice presidents of leading Rhode Island institutions, it was established to provide a bridge between the Graduate School and the business community. The current status of the Graduate School was discussed and an informal talk was given by Mr. Henry Fazzano on the "Rhode Island Economy As Seen from the Governor's Office." Mr. Fazzano, a member of the Council, is also Vice President of Imperial Knife Company.

Pedestrian Safety Programs

In conclusion, North Providence's efforts should be extended to encompass a program which will insure compliance with the instructions set forth in the classroom. They will concern themselves with traffic studies of elementary grade schools, etc. Pedestrian safety programs which will be killed on our highways. This is more due to the efforts of the Vietnamese War. Of this $8,000 the school before being ordered to be killed will be carefully scrutinized by the Governor's Office to determine its relative value. It is in the intention to carefully review all films and slides before they are purchased.

This project proposes comprehensive training for the officers who will use this equipment. This training will include the operation and the utilization of the equipment in the demonstration of pictures that will have an educational value to the viewer. The officers will be instructed to operate this equipment in the entire area of Pedestrian Safety. This project will help pay for the Governor's Office. We must help the Undersecretary of Transportation, the tragic deaths and injuries inflicted upon our children and the tragedy involving their parents.
Movie Review

Everything Changes

Siddhartha

R.R.

"Nothing remains the same, everything changes, everything returns." Consciously stated, this is the recurring theme of a film based on the popular novel by Herman Hesse entitled SIDDHARTHA. The search for truth, and essentially the reason for existence becomes the cross which the lead character, Siddhartha, must bear in this "extremely heavy" work. A film for those who wish to search within their own conscience, and not for those who seek light entertainment.

Filmed on location from the shores of the River Ganges in India. The truth search begins as Siddhartha leaves the village and the teachings of his youth. His quest appears to span the gamut of all conceivable walks of life. A sampling of the philosophies he endeavors to include doxologies which advocate the abandonment of all worldly possessions; Buddhism; discovering the distasteful "language of business" from the hand of a wealthy merchant; the act of love from a beautiful temple priestess whose knowledge of lovemaking is as keen as the merchants lust for multiplying gold.

Realizing that he was being diverted from the truth which he ultimately sought, Siddhartha discards his entire accumulation of wealth of lead the simple life of an apprentice ferry-boatman transporting people across the Ganges. He has finally uncovered the truth and happiness in this capacity—he hasn't remained the same, he has changed and he has returned to the life of simplicity he once knew in his youth.

Now playing at the Cinearama Theatre, Hope Street, Providence.

Transcripts Reviewed for Police

Officers in College Degree Programs

Governor Philip W. Noel on Wednesday, October 24 announced that John J. Kilduff, Executive Director of the Governor's Committee on Crime, Disaparancy and Criminal Administration, has completed his review of college course transcripts submitted to him by Municipal Police Departments for their officers who are enrolled in college degree programs under the Municipal Police Incentive Pay Act.

The Committee has forwarded payment vouchers for 984 municipal police officers, totaling $782,876.98, to the State Controller for payment under this act for the period September 1, 1972 to last August 31.

The General Assembly annually appropriates funds under this Act to provide annual incentive bonus payments to municipal police officers who have successfully completed college or university courses, and degree programs designed to upgrade their skills in performing police work.

From a modest beginning, in 1968, when 219 municipal police officers participated in the program at a cost of $70,249, the Municipal Police Incentive Pay Act program has expanded to the present participation by 56 percent of Rhode Island's 1723 full-time sworn municipal police officers.

Governor Noel said that the Municipal Police Incentive Pay Act program assures that the people of Rhode Island will have highly trained, well-educated, and professionally competent police services available to them at all times.

He indicated that this year's incentive payments, under the Act, should be made within a few weeks.

John Jolley Returns!

by Paul Carroll

After being absent for a year from Bryant due to illness, John Jolley has returned to act as good-as-new to re-establish his Dynamic Flare for teaching—which is the quintessence of a successful class. Mr. Jolley, who has been on the faculty at Bryant for the past 20 years, holds a B.A. in Medieval History and Sociology from Mississippi State University and a Masters degree from the University of Nebraska. In the past, he has served as Chairman of the Curriculum Committee and has been a liaison for student/faculty relations. He is presently involved with the Bryant 20 Club and also functions as a fraternity advisor.

Originally from Michigan, Mr. Jolley has lived most of his life in Mississippi and now resides in Massachusetts where his appetite for the arts is satisfied with the many cultural programs which Boston offers. When asked how he came to teach in Rhode Island, he replied that the East was the only section of the country that he'd never lived in and he thought he'd give it a try. He originally came to Providence to study at Brown, but stumbled onto a teaching job at Bryant—and he's been with us ever since.

This past weekend, candy machines got hit all over campus. They say it was the Sweet-Tooth Phantom. You can recognize him by his chocolate hair, peanut butter cup eyes, and the Baby Ruth outfit he prances around in. Anyone seeing him or any look alikes should contact his local congressman.

P.S. And if the Phantom is listening...I HOPE ALL YOUR TEETH FALL OUT!!!

The Inquiring Photographer

by Jef Stein

Mr. Jolley likes being at a smaller college because of the closeness and personal atmosphere that they radiate. He has found that one can get to know students and teachers much better because of this friendly atmosphere which permeates Bryant. Unlike other colleges that Mr. Jolley has been to, Bryant treats its people like individual human beings, and not just a number in a computer bank, or a herd of cattle. Since his return to Bryant, Mr. Jolley has noticed that cliques have dissipated, and a much more relaxed atmosphere has enveloped the campus.

Mr. Jolley's success as a teacher lies in his basic philosophy of teaching, which is to treat the student as an entity which deserves respect and is individually important. He shows a deep concern for all of his students and is always willing to help them with whatever they might have. His performance in the classroom is of a style which combines book facts and theory with a personal understanding, presenting the student with a concept he can relate to and grasp with comprehension and interest. For a truly unique and gratifying experience at Bryant, John Jolley should be at the top of your list.
Currently enrolled evening students will be permitted to preregister for the spring semester between November 10 and November 16. During the week of October 25 to November 3, the evening students will be asked to assemble in the auditorium at 8:30 P.M. The purpose of the meeting each evening will be to receive preregistration materials and instructions for those students attending that evening. The meetings will last no longer than one hour.

Although the primary purpose of the meeting is to discuss preregistration, other topics will be discussed. Questions and comments from the students will be welcome.

To be placed on degree status, a student's high school transcript must be sent to the Evening Division Office for evaluation. Be sure to ask that the transcript be sent to the Evening Division and not just to the College.

Pre-registration is required. Advance payment checks for this semester are no longer being sent to the college. Students who declared their intention to attend that evening. If the student has not received his check should receive it but will be sent directly to the students.

Lawyers Guild Begins Campaign To Set Aside 1972 Election

NEW YORK (LNS). The National Lawyers Guild, an organization of radical lawyers and legal workers, has prepared a People's Lawsuit to Set Aside the 1972 Election. To direct the campaign, the Guild has established a Committee to Set Aside the 1972 Election, which is operating out of New York.

Explaining that "the lawsuit provides an excellent opportunity to bring the causes and effects of the whole Watergate affair into focus," the Guild has based the case on the charge that the 1972 election was "fraudulent, unlawful and unconstitutional."

The case details crimes including obstruction of justice, perjury, violation of civil rights and explains that "the purpose and effects of the lawsuit was to destroy the possibility of free and open elections."

According to the Guild, local Committees to Set Aside the 1972 Election have already been set up. The local groups will coordinate such things as teaching on wages, inflation, profits and Watergate campaigns to force local governments to become plaintiffs in the suit.

Any person or organization can become a plaintiff in the case "since it was all of us who were deprived of the ability to make a real choice based on the truth." The Guild hopes that through the law suit they will be able to involve thousands of people in political activity.

All kinds of free trips have been offered by radio stations to lure more listeners. The latest to arrive from this area is the "all expense paid ego trip" that will include billboards with the winner's picture, a hollywood-style party complete with a fan club to rip the clothes off the winner's back, and famous voices offering congratulations. The stations are paying up to $8,000 each for the package.

This is my second year at Bryant College. It was just about this same time last year that I and some of my friends started to bum out. You know what I mean? It’s time for all the work that you have been putting off for lack of interest to start. With the first round of tests here, or maybe even gone for some, it looks like it’s going to be a long, cold winter.

One night last October, we were all sitting in our suite watching TV and getting away! You all know what that means, don’t ya! We heard a knock on the door and in walked this big looking guy with long, curly hair. He looked like a poodle! He informed us that there was going to be a big Halloween Party down at the Coffee House on October 31. At first I thought it was going to be the usual type party. Well, let me tell you all something. I rapped to this guy for about a half an hour; and he convinced me that this was going to be one of the biggest events here at Bryant. The whole idea sounded great!

That night last year was better than great; it was fantastic. For the wall-to-wall people, all of whom were dressed in far-out costumes, that night was one to remember. I’ve been hearing rumors that Country Comfort is throwing another Halloween Party next Wednesday night, October 31. Rumors have it that this one is going to be even better than last year’s. So for all the people who missed last year’s, get yourself a costume and join me and all the other people down at Country Comfort for a very interesting evening. Remember, next Wednesday, October 31. I’ll be looking for you!

I WAS IN LOVE WITH A GIRL NAMED CATHY.
I KILLED HER.

It was last summer, and I was 18. Cathy was 18 too. It was the happiest summer of my life. I had never been that happy before. I haven’t been that happy since. And I know I’ll never be that happy again. It was warm and beautiful and so we bought a few bottles of wine and drove to the country to celebrate the night. We drank the wine and looked at the stars and held each other and laughed. It must have been the stars and the wine and the warm wind. Nobody else was on the road. The top was down and we were singing and I didn’t even see the tree until I hit it.

Every year 8,000 American people between the ages of 15 and 25 are killed in alcohol related crashes. That’s more than combat. More than drugs. More than suicide. More than cancer.

The people on this page are not real. But what happened to them is very real.

The automobile crash is the number one cause of death of people your age. And the ironic thing is that the drunk drivers responsible for killing young people are most often other young people.

Last year despite a storm of criticism of the Rolling Stones' "Exile on Main St." album, a majority of the critics polled by one national rock magazine picked "Exile" as the best of the year.

Now U.P.I. rock music critic, Bruce Meyer, didn't agree with that majority judgment, but "Exile" was good despite its flaws. And that points out how very strong the Stones are even when not at their best. It also rightly suggests that 1972 was not the best of Stones years.

With 1973 drawing rapidly to a close, we have a much different situation: It's been a good year for rock—indeed, for pop music in general, from Paul Simon and Doobie Gray to Mott the Hoople and the New York Dolls. But the Stones are still on top, or very near.

Their new album, "Goat's Head Soup," is not only at the top of the charts in sales; it's also the best thing the stones have done since leaving London records to form their own company, "Rolling Stone Records." And, as usual, Meyer's personal favorites tend to the harder rockers: "Dancing with Mr. D.," for example, a kind of rock 'n' roll horror movie or death-trip nightmare. Best cut on the album is "Doo Doo Doo Doo Doo (Heartbreaker)," one of the few effective topical songs he's heard in years, which expresses all of the frustration so many of us feel about the senseless violence of our world.

As for the Stones, well, they may be practically elder statesmen in the rock 'n' roll game these days, but there's no sign of moss yet. U.P.I. 10/15/73

Shortnotes: The Music Column

The American has recently heard from its own national rock magaz ine "Exile" very strong the Stones are, even right ly for rock — indeed, for pop music in general, from Paul Bruce Meyer, didn't agree with best thing the Stones have done near it.

Ma Bell Wins Again

(CPS) — Students at the University of Arizona in Tucson lost a landmark battle against the phone company in their effort to have a WATS (Wide Area Telephone Service) line installed on campus.

A WATS line is a special service offering the user to make an unlimited number of long distance calls at a flat monthly rate.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) ruled last week that the tariff hired by American Telephone and Telegraph (AT&T) did not require them to extend WATS service to Student Associations. "The key phrase on which the FCC ruled in the direct interest of the purchaser," AT&T argued that personal calls would not fall under that guideline.

FCC added that present regulations may be unreasonable and suggested putting the matter on to the FCC tariff board to review.

AT&T spokesmen said they are sending a representative to the University of Arizona campus to discuss reductions of long distance off-peak hour rates but the students plan to make an amended appeal to the FCC on original grounds.

The Associated Students at Arizona had read AT&T literature that advertised nationwide WATS line at the cost of $3000 a month. The students had figured that by allowing people on campus to take turns in using a WATS line rather than their private telephones, a single WATS line could save the students a $60,000 a year. They had further calculated being able to install up to five lines would save the students up to half a million dollars during the school year. AT&T, which features this service for big businesses, decided the students' proposals would not be very profitable for the phone company and finally refused to install the special line.

Today is Friday, October 26th, the 299th day of 1973 with 66 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.

The morning star is Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Mars.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Scorpio. American gospel singer, Mahalia Jackson was born October 26th, 1912.

Also on this day in history:

In 1825, the Erie Canal, America's first man-made waterway, was opened for traffic between Buffalo and Albany, New York, China, France and Britain.

In 1942, the American aircraft carrier "Hornet" was sunk by Japanese warships in a force naval engagement off the Solomon Islands in the Pacific Theater of World War II.

In 1972, Igor Siokorsky, developer of the first practical helicopter, died at the age of 83.

The United Nations has taken over the gigantic job of assuring peace in the Middle East while U.S. armed forces around the world remain on alert.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim ordered troops of Austria, Finland and Sweden to proceed immediately to Egypt as the first contingents of a newly authorized U.N. Middle East peacekeeping force. The forces are currently stationed on Cyprus in a similar peace-keeping role.

Last week, in passing the area, I made a mistake—or so the members of the Administration tell me: I stopped. Maybe they thought I was somebody else. They all started running when I saw me or hid behind their desks or a reasonable facsimile. Undaunted, I strode through the library. Walking through the library reminds me of walking through a morgue. It's so quiet and the only thing you can do is look at bodies. That is what I do when I walk through the library, anyway—look at bodies. If I were a doctor, I'd have had a hell of a lot of fun with the bodies I was looking at.

But the library reminded me of the other only time I was ever in the Bryant Library, Kelly and I were walking through the broad aisles in between the broad shelves staring at the books. All of a sudden I noticed the tremendous number of books they had. "Hey Kelly, how many of those books are in here?" I yelled out without meaning to. This seemed to have caught the attention of the man in charge of the library. He came over and, in talking to us, he learned that this was the first time we had been in the Bryant Library. He asked us if we were prospective Bryant students. I told him, "Hell, no. We graduate from here next week!" I don't know why, but the guy turned very pale and I could see tears in his eyes. I always figured librarians to be a little strange, anyway.

Shortly after leaving, the library that day, Kelly and I took a walk down to the Rotunda. Anyway, just as Kelly was saying, "this student security isn't worth the powder to blow them to Hell," some kid tapped him on the shoulder and said, "I beg your pardon. I happen to be a member of the Student Security." Kelly looked at me and said, "see what I mean, pal?" Anyway, back to the present.

I had just left Wimpy's office, after having placed them in the latter stages of a coronary occlusion by telling them a memo had been circulated to the staff giving them the next day off as it was George Birtwhistle's Washday. Well, you'd never guess who I bumed into. Harry—OOPS!!—Dr. Evans. Since the Doc and I have always been bosom buddies, he took me into his confidence in regard to a problem of an administrative nature that had been plaguing him for some time. It seemed that several of the members of the College staff were coming to work intoxicated; but since they were drinking vodka, there was no way to prove it because the breaths didn't smell any worse than they usually did. In thinking over the problem, I suggested that the Doc recommend that they switch to whisky. That way, anyone who transacted business in their office would figure that they were drunk; not stupid. The Doc strode off smiling as if he'd just talked with a genius like Confucius or Dr. Kinsey.

Having caused enough havoc within the walls, I decided to take leave of the place before something similar took place. On the way down the front walk I spotted a group of maintenance men working (?) near the pond. I chatted with them for awhile and in leaving told them to slow down and take it easy. They yelled, "Okay," but I hope they didn't take my advice. If they moved any slower, someone might think they were dead.

Mail—With Impeach

(Washington)—New England senators today reported telegramgrams and letters being sent to their offices are running more than 90 percent in favor of impeaching President Nixon. A UPI survey shows little significant change in the ratio of protest mail received since the President's decision Tuesday to turn the Watergate tapes over to U.S. District Judge, John Sirica.

Massachusetts Senator Edward Kennedy has received 2,000 273 telegrams for impeaching and 77 supporting the President since Monday. A staff member of his staff "are quite decisive" and "very sweet and to the point. New Hampshire's Senator Norris Cotton has received 25 pieces of protest mail to each pro-Nixon letter while Maine's Senator Edmund Muskie reports a ratio of 36 to 1 in favor of impeachment. Muskie's office had been receiving a ratio of 536 to 3 before the tapes agreement was announced by Nixon Tuesday. UPI: 10/25.

The United Nations has taken over the gigantic job of assuring peace in the Middle East while U.S. armed forces around the world remain on alert.

Last week, in passing the area, I made a mistake—or so the members of the Administration tell me: I stopped. Maybe they thought I was somebody else. They all started running when I saw me or hid behind their desks or a reasonable facsimile. Undaunted, I strode through the library. Walking through the library reminds me of walking through a morgue. It's so quiet and the only thing you can do is look at bodies. That is what I do when I walk through the library, anyway—look at bodies. If I were a doctor, I'd have had a hell of a lot of fun with the bodies I was looking at.

But the library reminded me of the other only time I was ever in the Bryant Library, Kelly and I were walking through the broad aisles in between the broad shelves staring at the books. All of a sudden I noticed the tremendous number of books they had. "Hey Kelly, how many of those books are in here?" I yelled out without meaning to. This seemed to have caught the attention of the man in charge of the library. He came over and, in talking to us, he learned that this was the first time we had been in the Bryant Library. He asked us if we were prospective Bryant students. I told him, "Hell, no. We graduate from here next week!" I don't know why, but the guy turned very pale and I could see tears in his eyes. I always figured librarians to be a little strange, anyway.

Shortly after leaving, the library that day, Kelly and I took a walk down to the Rotunda. Anyway, just as Kelly was saying, "this student security isn't worth the powder to blow them to Hell," some kid tapped him on the shoulder and said, "I beg your pardon. I happen to be a member of the Student Security." Kelly looked at me and said, "see what I mean, pal?" Anyway, back to the present.

I had just left Wimpy's office, after having placed them in the latter stages of a coronary occlusion by telling them a memo had been circulated to the staff giving them the next day off as it was George Birtwhistle's Washday. Well, you'd never guess who I bumed into. Harry—OOPS!!—Dr. Evans. Since the Doc and I have always been bosom buddies, he took me into his confidence in regard to a problem of an administrative nature that had been plaguing him for some time. It seemed that several of the members of the College staff were coming to work intoxicated; but since they were drinking vodka, there was no way to prove it because the breaths didn't smell any worse than they usually did. In thinking over the problem, I suggested that the Doc recommend that they switch to whisky. That way, anyone who transacted business in their office would figure that they were drunk; not stupid. The Doc strode off smiling as if he'd just talked with a genius like Confucius or Dr. Kinsey.

Having caused enough havoc within the walls, I decided to take leave of the place before something similar took place. On the way down the front walk I spotted a group of maintenance men working (?) near the pond. I chatted with them for awhile and in leaving told them to slow down and take it easy. They yelled, "Okay," but I hope they didn't take my advice. If they moved any slower, someone might think they were dead.

Mail—With Impeach

(Washington)—New England senators today reported telegramgrams and letters being sent to their offices are running more than 90 percent in favor of impeaching President Nixon. A UPI survey shows little significant change in the ratio of protest mail received since the President's decision Tuesday to turn the Watergate tapes over to U.S. District Judge, John Sirica.

Massachusetts Senator Edward Kennedy has received 2,000 273 telegrams for impeaching and 77 supporting the President since Monday. A staff member of his staff "are quite decisive" and "very sweet and to the point. New Hampshire's Senator Norris Cotton has received 25 pieces of protest mail to each pro-Nixon letter while Maine's Senator Edmund Muskie reports a ratio of 36 to 1 in favor of impeachment. Muskie's office had been receiving a ratio of 536 to 3 before the tapes agreement was announced by Nixon Tuesday. UPI: 10/25.

Martino Wins Yale Invitational Golf Championship

By Peter Lockatell

Temple University finished two
October East Providence native carded Connecticut was third with a Championship on collegiate and amateur golfers in 228, and George McQuillan of competition by earning a berth in place finish among the 149.

By far and away, the Yale victory has been the greatest accomplishment in Martino's brief collegiate career. He beat players from most of the major college teams in New England and every team in the Ivy League. His accomplishment becomes even more incredible when one considers that North Carolina State University, Maryland and Temple also had players entered. Temple University won the team title with a combined score of 931. In the twenty team field, the Bryant Golf Team finished eleventh with a total of 901. Bryant's performance bested that of area rival Rhode Island University and Providence. Rhode finished twelfth with a 991, and Providence was thirteenth at 997. Bryant's performance in the tournament may have finally persuaded Rhode Island and Providence to put the Indians on their future golf schedules.

The Grandstand View WAIT TILL NEXT YEAR

by Peter Lockatell

Of course, the game was still steeped. The Mets were an inferior team compared to the Cardinals. Johnny Bench and Company were simply superior to anything else in the National League. But the Reds and the baseball public found out how real the Mets were this week. They were not a team that could be easily disposed of. They didn't go down for the count, and Rusty Staub, New York somehow scratched out enough runs to get the "first Machine" to win the National League flag.

It looked as though the Mets had finally met their match in the World Series. The Oakland hitting made New York hitting look tragic league. Reggie Jackson powered three twenty-home run bats, and a few 300 hitters. Oakland's pitching staff let in six game winners, New York had none. Those kind of odds against the Mets would have been the way they could win. It was no coincidence that the Mets went out of Oakland leading three games to two, and it looked like the Mets had a “409” of 409 had materialized again!

Unfortunately, Tom Seaver fast balls were still too good for the game six. R. Jackson stroked two more doubles. The Mets lost it all. The last two Mets were being silenced by Oakland's "terrific pitching." The Athletics had covered the whole Series. They did not come back to haunt New York. Seaver, who was making the series, was so stunned that he wanted to return to where he was the last legs of their season. The Mets and their fans, the Athletics had other ideas.

There is no doubt that the Athletics were a troubled and disillusioned ballclub when they returned to Oakland for Game six. The Team's owner had fired both the Mets kept it together. They did not come back to haunt New York. Seaver, who was making the series, was so stunned that he wanted to return to where he was the last legs of their season. The Mets and their fans, the Athletics had other ideas.

Bronco Power

By Rich Maged

The linebacking crew is led. By Tom Graham, Chip Myrtle, and Don Parish, the linebacking calls for impact. With last week's weakness is the defensive secondary. Bill Henschel is only the leader as All-American defensive backs Kim Lotman, the Boston Brevins were the leading A.F.C. team in quarterback sacks with forty-three. Paul Odom and Alagdo lead the pass rush. Smith is considered an excellent punter. His punt average last year was 40 yards per punt. This team has allowed the Broncos scoring. This week's game should be a tough one for the Broncos.

The Bengals (3-3) and the Browns (1-5) face off on Saturday night with both teams looking to get back on track. The Bengals have lost three straight games, while the Browns are coming off a tough loss to the Patriots last week. The game should be a close one, with both teams being in desperate need of a win.

The Browns have some key injuries this week, including incumbent starting center Nick Chubb, who is questionable with a sprained ankle. The Bengals have had their own struggles with injuries, but they've been able to overcome them so far.

The Bengals' defense has been strong this season, led by young star Jack Pressure. The Browns' offense has struggled, though, and it will be up to the defense to hold them back. The Browns' offense is led by quarterback Baker Mayfield, who has thrown for over 1,000 yards and six touchdowns this season.

The Bengals' offense has been potent, led by star receiver Ja'Marr Chase. The Browns' defense has been solid, though, and they've been able to limit Chase to just 130 yards and one touchdown in their previous meeting.

In the end, it should be a close game. The Browns have the advantage in the trenches, but the Bengals have the edge in the passing game. It should be an exciting contest, and the winner is sure to advance to the playoffs.
