Jacobs Elected To Rhode Island Hall Of Fame

Dr. E. Gardner Jacobs

Dr. E. Gardner Jacobs, President Emeritus and Chancellor of Bryant College, has been elected to membership in the Rhode Island Heritage Hall of Fame for his outstanding contributions in the field of education.

The Hall of Fame was established in 1965 to honor persons whose contributions have added significantly to the illustrious heritage of Rhode Island.

In all the cases, WTEV had filed letters of protest with the FCC, contending that the new stations would cause objectionable interference with the TV signal being received by people in the immediate area around the proposed stations. Some of those requests have been pending for as long as a year.

Donald H. Murphy, Director of Student Activities at Walpole High School, said that the substance of the agreement with WTEV is a pledge by school officials to notify families within 1.5 miles of the transmitter site that the new FM station could degrade the quality of their Channel 6 TV reception. The school would offer assistance to people experiencing interference to install "traps" on the back of their television sets to cut down interference.

The trap, the cost of which will range from $10 to $20, should help school officials, who informed WTEV that many of the owners, could cost anywhere between $100 and $200, and place on the strength of the interference. Mr. Murphy said that simply covering an antenna wire cut to a certain length on the back of the television set may not solve the problem, while others say a commercially-pro- duced device costing about $12 will be more suitable.

Value Eckerle, manager of Boston's WBZ-TV, and agreement worked out with Walpole officials might well be the pattern that will be followed by the other schools in reaching a solution to the problem of television interference.

WTEV's objections to educational radio stations is grounded in a problem affecting all Channel 6 television stations around the country.

Channel 6 stations operate on a signal covering 38 to 48 megahertz. The FM educational band is between 88 and 92 megahertz. Because tunes on television stations, particularly older models, are notoriously insensitive, they will pick up the FM radio signals, thereby creating a herringbone or "harsh" effect on the picture tube.

William B. Weakley, a radio engineer for Jackson and Milley Telecommunications, which does consulting work for WTEV-TV, said in Alexandria, Virginia, that even low power 10-kilowatt FM stations can play havoc with Channel 6 television reception, depending on such factors as the distance between the transmitting antennas and the location and quality of the TV sets themselves.

As a result of studies provided by the firm, WTEV has filed numerous objections to the FCC from Bryant College in Smithfield, Rhode Island, to Junior College in Franklin, Massachusetts; Bristol Community College; riverside Country Day School in Weston; the Rockland public school system; Southeastern Massachusetts University; Clark University in Worcester, Massachusetts; WISI-FM in Sudbury, Massachusetts; and WYTS-FM in Clark, Massachusetts. The latter is an existing station seeking to increase its power.

Mr. Weakley said the case involving the Bryant College station might easily be resolved.

"If I look at the frequency and location, there may be some problem, but it doesn't appear to be an extensive issue," he commented. "The transmitter seems to be on the countryside. I'm inclined to believe that if they follow the line of the Walpole schools, it won't cost much that much."

In any event, the blame for the problem rests with the FCC, according to Mr. Weakley. "The FCC has "no fixed policy" an rules on each case individually, depending on circumstances."

The FCC engineer ruled out moving educational stations to some other point on the FM band, noting that the band is already overloaded. He said he would do nothing with Channel 6, commenting there is no other place to put the stations since other channels are already "allocated.

Mr. Weakley said the problem stems from faulty TV receivers, and that the commission should have set up standards years ago that would have shielded the sets from FM interference.

The eighth dinner award will be held at the Civic Center in Providence on May 24, 1969. There are now 104 outstanding individuals enrolled. This year, Dr. Jacobs and five others will be inducted along with twelve deceased nominees.

This is the first year the Hall of Fame has had a home. It will be in the new and beautiful City Hall of Smithfield and all members will be

A Changing Curriculum

The Curriculum Committee and the Student Advisory Curriculum Committee has been working to introduce and deal changes in the curriculum of all departments of Bryant College. This year the committee is initiating a biweekly column in the newspaper to inform students of Curriculum changes.

Three proposals have been submitted but not yet passed:

Accounting Proposal III - Requirement for Accounting Majors

Analyzing and Interpreting Accounting Data

The course, through problems and interpretation of accounting data, is designed to develop skills in developing and interpreting tax law, examining the business unit and its integration with other tax entities. Prerequisite A 343 Accounting Major Elective Proposal

MG 435 - Introduction to Modern Business

This is a fundamental course in the operations of business, its relationships to society and government within the context of the American free enterprise system. Major emphasis is placed on the interrelationships of marketing, production, research and development, personnel and their effects on organizational dynamics. Particularly recommended for non-accounting majors.

MG 436 - International Management Seminar

This seminar is based on direct observation and analysis of business structure and practice abroad. Discussions with members of overseas firms and institutions will be accompanied by a continuing seminar to provide a comparative study of development for government and integrated management philosophies and practices from the international viewpoint. A major report is required. Prerequisite MG 365, Enrollment limited. Additional fee for travel and living expenses. Offered during intersessions.

This proposal has been passed recently.

Accounting Proposal I - Accounting 101 and 102

This course has three hours per week implemented two years ago and has produced very unsatisfactory results. It has not been found to be essential to students and is regarded as a non-essential foundation needed by our students on which they can build their future business courses. The department strongly believes additional contact hours must be restored to the area. (4 hours)

Illegal Parking - Towing

Dear Editor,

I would like to take this opportunity to address those members of the Bryant College Community who feel that they have suffered an injustice thru the towing of their improperly parked vehicles.

The use of towing as a means of enforcement of traffic safety and parking regulations has been the subject of recent criticism. The fact that the towing of one's vehicle generates a considerable amount of anxiety and unhappiness among those whose cars are towed is a fact that should not be overlooked by the administrators of the college. Although the regulations are based upon the need for order, they must also be perceived as humane. There is no reason to believe that the regulations are being enforced in such a way as to justify the complaints.

I wish to express my sentiments of continuing support for the parking regulations, which have been in effect for two years. At regular intervals announcements were made in the college newspaper and on the radio station informing the college community of the upcoming changes in the regulations and the procedures for notifying owners of improperly parked cars.

To those of you who feel that the regulations have not been properly enforced, I would like to assure you that the parking regulations have been enforced in a fair and impartial manner.

Sincerely,

Dr. Thomas A. Manion
Professor of Business Administration
Shortnotes: The Music Column

by Bruce Meyer, United Press International

It's been so long since Donovan produced a new album you almost tend to think of his new L.P., "Comin' Through," as the Comeback Album. In any case, the Donovan of "Comin' Through" isn't the same Donovan you'll remember from the flowers-and-incentse period of the '60s. His sound is a lot harder, though not quite what you'd call "heavy." And, despite a couple of good moments and some excellent back-up people, the new album is just about as successful as most of Donovan's albums, which is to say not very. Still, there is a suggestion that the music scene may be moving to more of the '60s and there's no doubt that the album will be a welcome one for Donovan fans and must be some Donovan fans around somewhere.

Small Businessmen Meet For Breakfast

Bryant College was honored yesterday with the first of a series of "S.B.A.N.E. and college community gatherings at a breakfast meeting in the main dining room.

S.B.A.N.E. is the Small Business Association of New England. It is a unique group of entrepreneurs in small business who have joined together to support their common interests. Probably one of the most active small business groups in the U.S., it has affiliates abroad. The organization is interested in maintaining the competitive ability and vigor of smaller businesses and through combined efforts seeks to provide some of the advantages of larger organizations. Mr. Edward Pendergast, President of the Association, in an introductory statement listed some of the purposes of the organization is to bring about group benefit programs, active liaison with the government, and a program of continuing education.

The guest speaker, Mr. Donald P. Hayden, Executive Director of the American Association for Industrial Management spoke on "The Occupational Safety and Health Act Means a Business." Referring to the act as being the "sleeper of the '70s" he expanded on certain areas of the act as related to the application of safety standards on the job. Mr. Hayden listed the most safety hazard areas of work as the longshoremen, sheet metal-type work, lumbering, and meat cutters. Points raised to improve safety standards were the establishment of a good health program, train supervisors in this area and establish joint safety committees of employees and management.

For the student, Mr. Hayden suggests, "before making a decision for employment look at the small business." In the small business area one has high visibility, and most of one's work is of a personal nature, salaries and benefits are competitive, promotion opportunities are good and right ownership is certainly possible. The commission responsible for the breakfast meeting includes, Mr. Reginald Paseau, Coordinator of Small Business and Assistant Vice President of Old Stone Bank; Mr. Robert Godd, Rhode Island Chairman and Manager of the Price Waterhouse and Co.; Thomas Barber of Tab Enterprises; William R. Anderson of Matrix Inc.; Arnold Harriet of Atlantic Hardware; and Professor John Zeiger of Bryant College.

The breakfast meeting was actively supported by members of the Bryant community representing Administration, Faculty, and various student organizations.

Return to Piston Place

Innocence. A word relegated to those who were too young to realize or too old to comprehend. For those of us who lived in a sleepy village named Station Place, life was a series of goodbyes. Gradually they were too one word no one understood. We were too far removed from the grotesque events of World War II. The most violence we ever heard was cracklings of kitchen fires. At night we may have kept it happy, but it also kept us wandering in the dark.

I could never understand why Papa kept his National Geographic Magazines locked in the one-room house. One evening while we were enjoying dinner, I asked Papa why the magazine was not proper for me to see. I was seventeen. I had a right to know! His response was an angry glare in a most forbidden fashion.

That night, I cautiously slid down the bannister and quietly examineed and opened a heated discussion. Papa did most of the kettle-warming.

"I just don't feel that Todd is ready to know about those things," belayed Papa sternly.

Mother spoke calmly, choosing her words carefully.

"All I'm saying is that if a large insurance firm like Metropolitan Life thinks it's important to run an advertisement revealing the dangers of those "sexual diseases," I think our children should not be left in the dark... I feel they should...

"'Hush," Papa retorted; 'I'll hear no more of this.'

Then, innocently. How it lies in so well with well, you might have guessed what happened. Papa may have demanded that he hear no more; but this was just the beginning. Bobby, my older brother, got this sweet chick who worked at the mail shoppe in Dutch. Yeh, he knocked her up. Well, she gave him a present in return. Something called syph... syph... I think Papa called it Syphilis. Bobby could be taken care of, except for the loss of sight in his right eye. I never found out what happened to the girl. Maybe it was better that way.

Beer. Saturday night was matches-burn night. We'd all congregate in back of Louis's Pool Emporium and drink ourselves silly. If we were lucky, Rudy would be on the register at Film's Package Store; he would never refuse us-twenty-one or not. Why did we do it? My cohort Riley said something which made sense, I guess.

"If you want me to let me try and drink him under the table just once, I'd never touch the sweet sauce again. But it's a believable lot of fun to be smacky."

We laid Riley's pool side to rest today. He went off on a real teet & nuck and tucked up his old man's arr. His papa cried. If only Riley had had his way, he'd be alive today.

Things were peaceful around Piston Place, but that's no different from what we had known in the past. Saturday nights Papa stood the ice box with Pabst Blue Ribbon and my friends drop over to speak most kindly of Riley, over a chilled mug or a beer while smoking punks to keep away the bugs. Papa even joins us sometimes.

How about the College folks? They're out there now, sitting on the oak table in the living room, I guess Papa figured that knowing how things really are was real. After all, doesn't Father always know best?"

"Feasting With Panthers"

by David L. Panzani

A fact is it but not exactly that easy to digest. Trinity Square's new world premiere of "Feasting With Panthers" is the last of three productions of the Trinity Festival '73. This play which is a perfect example of the total theatre concept in staging, may be a bit too much for even the avid Trinity buffs. A knowledge of Oscar Wilde's works may be helpful but one may not recognize them in their new versions.

Richard Kielczak leads the cast of four actors and a fine actress to a triumphant achievement in this theatre of today. As Oscar Wilde, Mr. Kielczak displays a desperate and lively character in this personal glimpse of a man who is a victim of his own convictions. He is sent to prison for committing acts which society disapproves and here the play takes its focal point.

The scene is the interior of prison in England and we view the daily activities of the inmates, Oscar Wilde is one of them. A young man and very gifted, he has a most difficult time adjusting to the strict laws of his new world. Sent to solitary confinement, Oscar is compelled to examine his life and his beliefs.

Although we know Oscar Wilde remains in prison, various excerpts from his works are deployed on the stage as if were inside his mind. THE PICTURE OF DORIAN GRAY, SALOME, THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING ERNEST, and others are well staged and create images that evoke thought and opinion. To add to the diversity of this feast, even a mermaid appears to entice a young man to give up his soul and live with her in the sea.

A major contribution to this total theatre concept is Eugene Lee's scenic design. Whether dungeons, coffins and graves, or jail cells were displayed on the stage as if were in side his mind. His presentation will be held Tuesday, May 1st at 12 noon in Room 316. Interested parties are invited to attend.

MARKETING IS...
by Thomas Czaplienski

MARKETING THOUGHT
No man goes as far as the man who does not know where he is going.

The Lady Says
Advertising

Women in advertising? Not so absurd according to Mrs. Ellen Diamond, a dynamic advertiser and Media Director for the Ilo Bernstein firm. As Advertising is a challenging field and is becoming more challenging every day. The person is bombarded by 1500 commercial messages a day. Women are facing a very complex problem of media selection. The advertising person has to pick the best suited media to sell his product to the greatest number of potential buyers at the most economical cost.

In a per day breakdown of the media, it has been found that there are 3 hours, 45 minutes are spent watching TV; 2 hours, 31 minutes; listening to radio; newspapers 37 minutes; 25 minutes on magazine reading.

Facts and Figures

More Women in Marketing is the goal being pursued by actress Arlene Dahl, a former vice-president of Kenyon & Eckhardt, a New York ad agency, in her new capacity as director-at-large (and the first woman board member) of Sales and Marketing Executives International, a federation of marketing associations. "Long before Women's Lib, the marketing field attracted a wide variety of advertisers find excellent of advertising..." says Arlene. And to give them an idea of the exposure she has been counterincing job interviews, she will now handle her job interviews by emphasizing its traditional 'quality' and the new social concepts and concerns. The movement seeks to protect the rights of consumers by requiring such practices as honest packaging, labeling, and advertising.

MARKETING THOUGHT
"TV used properly is probably one of the most dramatic media..." cited Mrs. Diamond. An interesting case raised about TV advertising was the Tonight Show. Advertisers in this time slot get in the unwatchables-those that do not watch prime time television. The Tonight Show offers a very desirable type of programming. It is a case of cost versus return. The ratings may not be those of prime time but the cost high is because the advertisers that are advertising find excellent exposure this from the particular viewing audience.

Beginning her career as secretary earning $25 a week she expanded her wide area of advertising clientele. "The only way to start is from the bottom up." According to Advertising, it is a part of Marketing for all people to attend and express their opinion by voting for their candidates.

Commuter 7 Win Third Straight

By Michael Kata

The Commuter 7 with an 80-72 thud over TKE, in overtime, won their third straight intramural basketball championship. It wasn't until Commuter 7 guard, Mike Delekta made both ends of a one-and-one situation twenty seconds left that the Commuter 7 were admired of a victory.

The championship game, which pit the formidable champion against the Independent champion, was a very physical ballgame just as expected. In the first half, the Commuter 7 jumped out to a 15-10 lead behind the shooting of Charles Wood and the playmaking of Mike Delekta. After a time out TKE quickly went on a surge, led by forward, Ernie Crollow and guard, Gary Cohn. TKE took the lead 17-16. The Commuter 7 came right back with a surge of their own, however, and overtook TKE 23-13 during the remainder of the half to go into their locker room with a 25 point to the TKE.

In the second half, TKE came out and worked their first break to near perfection as they overtook the Commuter 7 10-2 in the first four minutes to make the score 41-40 in favor of the Commuter 7. A basket by Garv Coeh of TKE with 14:40 on the clock tied it at 6-6 all. Three minutes later, Cohn hit on a three-point play to give TKE a 44-41 lead. The teams then played about even for the remainder of the game and regulation time ended with the score tied at 66 splice. In the overtime period, the Commuter's scored the first six points to lead 72-66 with about two minutes left of the five-minute overtime.

Baskets by Norm Train and Ernie Crollow for TKE made the score 74-70 with a little over a minute left and once again it was anybody's ballgame. TKE went into a full court press in an attempt to get back the ball and fouled Mike Delekta who made both ends of a one-and-one situation to make the score 76-70 with 51 seconds left. Mike Delekta scored four more points all from the charity line while TKE could only score once to make the final score 72-66. The high scorers for TKE were Charlie Wood and the play making of Mike Delekta.

Tennis Team Strive For First Victory

The Commuter 7 in dramatic fashion won the girls' intramural championship by the score of 17-16. Previously the Grubbs had won Tuesday night's game over SIX by the score of 24-14.

The Grubbs started out to a 12-7 first half lead. April had all twelve points for the Grubbs. SIX suffered a severe blow when their star scorer Pat Cody sprained her ankle and was unable to finish the game. It appeared the Grubbs would easily win the contest.

But SIX, sparked by Mary Ann Massel, put on a wonderful comeback and took a 16-13 lead with 1:23 remaining. Then little Cheryl threw in an amazing off balance lay-up and the Grubbs trailed 16-15. Then with 23 seconds remaining, April stole the ball and was fouled in the act of shooting. Under severe pressure, April sank both foul shots to give the Grubbs a 17-16 victory for the championship.

It should be noted that the Grubbs finished the season with an 11-0 record. The exhibition April displayed throughout the playoffs will never be forgotten. But the team play of Jennifer, Sandy, Shelia, and "little Ernie" must not be overlooked.

Max, The 2,000 Year Old Mouse Is Coming To The Coffeehouse. DON'T MISS IT!
With a little luck they may escape. The second division finish is inevitable.

San Diego has Nate Colbert and Al Jackson, both of whom have the offensive ability to carry their team, but neither should be strong enough to carry the Padres to escape the cellar.

American League East

The most exciting race of the summer will be staged in the American, or Eastern Division. Four teams stand a chance, and with but a little a pennant can remain.

The Red Sox put up this winter hoping that they could win a pennant this year with a better defense and a more level pitching staff. Their pitching wasn't that productive, but their hitting is meager. The Yanks, meanwhile, have the better defense, but their hitting is questionable as is their infield. The Yankee double play combination of Clark and Michael also leaves much to be desired.

If Boston gets hot early, Detroit, Baltimore and New York may make it a race for first place, but that's about how far it will go.

Bringing up the rear are Cleveland and Milwaukee. Cleveland regained some respectability with Gaylord Perry, but bad pennant contenders they be not. Milwaukee, on the other hand, may be able to eliminate from the worst team in baseball; but it will take more than luck.

American League West

The Western race this year may be as interesting as the Eastern. The biggest one was the acquisition of Joe Page for Gaylord Perry.

Bryant Wins A Laugher

by Peter Lockett

It was rather windy when the Bryant Indians Track Team faced the Cleveland Central High School and the Ohio Northern State College and Rhode Island College, but it didn't stop them from scoring a victory over the two teams. Bryant was aided by eight first place finishes and seven individual second place performances, leading the Indian cast to their first ever a trophy in the 100-yard dash and the 440 yard hurdles, and a team win.

Bryant's third place in the 220 yard dash and their field team's first place in the 440 meter hurdles, the result was a three-second victory. Unfortunately for the opposition, Robinson still had another act to follow.

He surprised everyone by owning the 100-yard dash. To my recollection, Bryant has not won this event in more than a year, and this victory may have given the team the needed boost to carry through.

After the Robbins' victory in the 100-yard dash, Bryant fans thought they had a good chance to take complete charge of the meet. Bryant Stewart won his second high-jump contest in the season with a leap of 6'9", and John Jackson made it 1-2 with a 5'10" performance. Williams improved one place up the next jump with the triple jump with a 40'-3". Murray might have had a new Bryant record, but he fouled on his last two attempts.

Dave Stone did not arrive in time for the mile, but he later corrected the oversight in the 880-yard run. Dave, last year's 880-yard record holder, was the leading contender for another record.

Bryant's pitching staff may just pull through. Behind Bryant will follow either New York, New England or the best in the field for the Padres to escape the cellar.
