"It's Spring!"
Open Discussion
Non-existent At Bryant

Dear Editor,

There is one characteristic about this campus that disturbs us. In an academic community there should be open and free vigorous discussions about issues that are important to the College. On this campus, this does not occur often because it seems that many people are afraid to speak their mind in fear of punitive action being taken.

When I wrote my last letter to the editor, I jokingly asked me where I would be teaching next year or about the possibility of a return to a different school by a student staff, and no comment on the subject. However, comment on the subject.

Very plainly, we had hoped that this feature of The ARCHWAY would be taken in the same light in which it was offered. Apparently, some didn't see it our way.

We think that it is only fair to mention that the idea was raised several weeks ago (by an ARCHWAY staff member) that a serious and factual guide to instructors be offered by The ARCHWAY to all Bryant students. We would like to make this an actuality, and we would like it to see it happen next Fall. In order to do this, we need help. If those mentioned above are really concerned about the need for a guide to instructors, then when the time comes to write and publish such a guide, we will hope to hear from them again.

Did Your Letter Get Rejected?

Dear Editor,

Pre-registration time is here again bringing tough times and out-of-date procedures to the lives of these students that work or are involved in sports during hours that cut into the school day are given the chance to register early so they can make their schedules coincide. It was required that each applicant for early registration policies is needed at this College.

I do not wish to be held individually to guide classes.

Sincerely,

Dr. Robert Obutelwica

Registration!

Chicago Stockyard

Dear Editor,

It's time to get out the combat boots as Bryant's pre-registration is soon to be open us once again, and certainly everyone knows what that means. Unless one is a Dick Butkus or a Mohammed Ali, it is a time of season few enjoy.

How foolish and archaic a registration procedure we have as students, we pay a healthy enough sum for which we are deserving of the right to register for courses free of the open warfare tactics we are required to participate in. One would hardly think that a college as progressively appearing from the outside could be so lacking on the inside.

Other colleges have successfully instituted programs whereby personal advisors were assigned individually to guide students in their course selections, to answer questions, and to eliminate such anticipated pre-registration procedures as we now have at Bryant. How ridiculous it is that we are compelled to assemble hours beforehand of time to await a stampede of charging students when someone "blows a whistle" that it is time to register, excuse me, pre-register. I greatly doubt that schools such as UMass with over 12,000 enrollment force their students to all line up in front of a door to sign up for classes.

I believe a change in registration policies is needed at Bryant and I am sure that I am not just a voice crying in the dark. I'm certain others share the same view as I. Those who do not, probably have never registered for courses anywhere but here and are unaware that a better system exists.

Sincerely,

John Orelli

Dear Editor,

On December 12th I was part of a mass movement of human flesh into the conference room above the auditorium. The official purpose of this progression of poundage was referred to as Bryant Registration. Being demented of a decent schedule, I trickled myself at what I considered an advantageous position for entrance. I adjusted my position to a relaxed position and checked my official time of arrival - 9:10 a.m. The next three hours passed with little commotion; but as it neared 12:15, the action picked up. As the number of students increased, the ever increasing pressure from the rear caused an influx of about 50 to 100 students into a 1,100 ft. area.

As I was standing in the middle of this area, I was consequently crushed by the burly left hip of a 250 lb. accounting major. Like the quaking tide of the sea the relentless pressure caused an occasional squall from within the ranks, which was only answered by a surge of pressure from the rear. About this time there had developed a certain "air" about the area which no doubt was the direct result of the waving flesh of the human hord. Finally, as the hour of admission arrived, the door opened and the crowd trampled in.

I could see through the meshed glass the eyeballs of the register pushing the lens of his glasses. Out of bewilderment I looked closer and realized that he was trapped behind the door with the knob embedded in his stomach. This was just another nude for the Register at Bryant or the cowhand at the Chicago stockyards.

Advice Given
In Haphazard Manner

Dear Editor,

As a teacher, social scientist and a member of the Bryant community, I was greatly disturbed by your recent column, "On Professors" (March 30, 1973). I am absolutely opposed to the haphazard manner in which the summary statements regarding individual professors were handled. It was done without regard to profsional personal or professional integrity. As such, it fell far short of its expected goal of aiding students in their teacher selection. Comments were lodged 'ad hominem' rather than directed at the course; its structure, and presentation.

As Security Sees It

Dear Editor,

With the increase in letters being submitted to the ARCHWAY discrediting the Security Department at Bryant College, I feel it is time to let my voice be heard (or in this case read).

A recent article published in TIME magazine made the following findings:

1. "The biggest problem on campus is crime. It is borne out by student demonstrations or vandalism, but assaults, armed robbery and rape. In fact, two-thirds of students surveyed on campus have incidents on campuses across the country by 1970 by 50%.

2. "At Boston's Tufts, some 210 thefts of stereo, radio, wallets, typewriters, jewelry and clothes have been reported so far this year—already twice as many as in 1971-72 academic year. At Purdue as Champaign the value of stolen property has soared remarkably. Thefts have increased by 150% in the past three years in one county alone."

I, Mr. Fuller, do you seriously believe that Security is directly or indirectly responsible for these crimes which have been widely published, have been investigated by the proper authorities, and where appropriate action has been taken by them. I am not implying that crime in itself is a crime. As long as those responsible are later arrested or other action taken, I am only informing the student body that appropriate action is being taken by the proper authorities.

In last week's ARCHWAY, a student wrote a letter suggesting that a Security House be built at the main entrance to the college and each vehicle entering the campus would be individually checked to determine if the operator is the actual owner of the car. Also, all registration numbers would be timed as each vehicle entered, and checked off as the leaves the campus. The student has not even read as much as that the answer, or even a responsible response to the problem! I am certain that the greatest majority of the Bryant College community would be totally outraged if such a plan were put into operation. And Mr. Lockatell, would you yourself be not annoyed at such a procedure and inconvenience?

It is impossible to determine the extent to which crime is deterred by the Security Force at Bryant, only one certainty can be claimed—the value and extent of crime on this campus is greatly less than on other campuses across the country.

Times such as those mentioned will always occur in this world as they have for centuries. The Security Force at Bryant College works to deter crime on campus. It is inconceivable that crime could ever be totally eliminated.

In conclusion, I would like to thank the students whose letters have been mentioned in your letter. Remember Mr. Fuller, no one can pick our students. Only one will be allowed (as many as the class meets per week). All production will be timed for 20 minutes per day. Zoology needs a grade of .8. More errors than that will equal an "F." This is true for all students—even beginners.

This year, the students were given the benefit of any inexperience, and any question or doubt was treated as such an operation. Next year, we'll do it again. We may not achieve the same end, but we can have a fair right on it. Too bad we can't pick students!

If anyone wants to protest against me, do it now. Better yet, enroll under another teacher. I'm sure I'll get to wear a badge and boss people around. We'll, let me close you. Security works out of a basement storage room. Most of the time, the smell of the garbage compactor across the hall is enough to make your sick. Students work until 2 in the morning, and many of us have classes at 8. We work in the rain, cold, and snow. We take a lot of abuse from students who resent our uniform. Most of us use our own cars for patrol without compensation for gas or mileage. We do all this for a $1.80 an hour.

The students at Bryant jump on security's back every time we make one certain. If they can claim they're doing or something for someone as a favor to the students, Security goes on the go for it. When we're on patrol and see a car with its lights on, we go out of our way to turn it off. The picture, the police, there were five people on duty. As soon as there were more than five people on duty, they'd have a drug problem because everyone would come some excuse in his mouth or lights up a joint, a guard comes crashing through the window.

No student in his right mind would want Bryant to become a police state, but be too inactive or quiet should expect unamed students to face results. It is now known that some police forces like the one I just described. These same schools do not have a problem, because when a car is parked illegally, it's towed away in five minutes. Bryant College wouldn't have a drug problem because everyone knows some excuse in his mouth or lights up a joint, a guard comes crashing through the window.

In conclusion, I would like to thank the students whose letters have been mentioned in your letter. Remember Mr. Fuller, no one can pick our students.

The Dead...Live

After a few setbacks, namely the arrest of Jerry Garcia in New Jersey last week, the San Francisco5 became “Dead” and were able to complete their schedules in New England. They gave performances in Springfield and Boston respectively.

Their highly acclaimed European Tour of 1973 brought forth a new vocalist to the band, Donna Godchaux. The three-part harmony in which she engages with Garcia and Bob Weir is definitely one of the reasons for the band’s sellout performances shown last summer.

If ever a band should give a concert, it would be the “Dead.” It isn’t rare for them to give a five or six hour performance, and then come back for an encore. But that’s the Dead. They’ve always been known for their extended jams and unburied pace as they carefully prepare for each tune. They emerged from the San Francisco rock culture where the Jefferson Airplane and it’s a Beautiful Day, and they are very much alive now as they ever were. But then again, that has always been the Dead...Live.

IN SIGHT

Loneliness

Loneliness is being locked within one’s mind; it is being closed in or out by someone or something.

It is now four o’clock in the morning; and I have been walking alone in the snow for three hours, though it seems as if I have been walking quietly through it all my life.

Everything is quiet. The snow covers the grounds, making all it surrounds peaceful and at rest. All the parties have come to an end, yet some of the lights still remain on in the dorms. I walk around the campus and do not see a soul in sight. The pond stands there in front of me frozen and covered with snow. In the snow are little footprints from one lonely field mouse. All the lights are out in the Rotunda with the exception of one. The person in that one room among hundreds of empty rooms must feel as lonely as I am right now.

When I am alone, thoughts run through my mind that if I were with others would run through without my noticing them. I can sit or walk and think about them. This puts my mind to rest with some of my problems. When I am thinking of my problems I have a tendency to block out everything around me and just concentrate on the problem. I see beyond my problems so much and it scares me. I wish that I could talk to someone.

Economics Club Sponsors Field Trip

On April 26th the Economics Club will be sponsoring a trip to the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston (at school expense) as one of its spring activities. We feel that this trip will prove to be invaluable to all students majoring in Finance and Economics. However, we expect that this trip will be especially beneficial to those students planning to take “Money and Banking” in the near future.

It has been the goal of the Economics Club to give interested students the opportunity to broaden their grasp of economics, as well as introduce you to the aspects of the subject that cannot be covered in class. In the future we plan to have guest speakers and other activities which we hope will be of interest to you. If you plan to make the trip or have any questions about the trip or the club, we urge you to come to our next meeting on April 10th at 12:00 in Room 242.

Other Planets

To be Explored

Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter...they all have one thing in common. They’ll be visited by American space probes to be launched during the next five years in a new effort to explore the Solar System.

Only the outermost planets will escape the scrutiny of cameras whose instruments aboard robot spacecraft now on the drawing boards or in extra clean assembly buildings. Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto will have to wait until Venus and Mars.

Jupiter, the almost star-like colossus 480 million miles from the sun, is the first target of the new series of planetary explorers. One little spacecraft is more than halfway there and a twin, Pioneer-11, is scheduled to be launched April 5th.

The job of the two pioneers is to pay the way to the 70th planet out from the sun and guide man’s first closeup look at its brilliantly striped atmosphere and its deadly radiation belts.

Pioneer-10, launched a year ago, is due to fly within 87-thousand miles of Jupiter next December. Pioneer-11 should reach the planet on December 5th, 1974. Both will take 10 pictures and examine its atmosphere and environment with a dozen other experiments.

Jupiter stands at the gateway to the outer planets and will serve as a junction point for future spacecraft enroute to Saturn and the planets beyond. Pioneer-10 improved the outer boundaries of our solar system for such flights when it passed safely through the debris-filled asteroid belt last month between Mars and Jupiter. None had gone that far before.

The key to the rapidly expanding interest in the planets is the question that has intrigued thinking men for centuries...Is there life in the only place to harbor life?

Many scientists think there must be some kind of life somewhere else and they say Mars is in the best place to start looking. This idea was buoyed recently when photographers taken by the Mariner-9 revealed that Mars is a dynamic, evolving planet with what seems to be unmistakable evidence it once had great volumes of water flowing across its surface.

If ever a concert, it would be the “Dead.” It isn’t rare for them to give a five or six hour performance, and then come back for an encore. But that’s the Dead. They’ve always been known for their extended jams and unburied pace as they carefully prepare for each tune. They emerged from the San Francisco rock culture where the Jefferson Airplane and It’s a Beautiful Day, and they are very much alive now as they ever were. But then again, that has always been the Dead...Live.

Struggle At Wounded Knee

by Waleen MacLean

(Weaken MacLean spent three years at Wounded Knee. Weaken's family was one of the few to leave the town by Richard Wilson, Ogla ta Sioux tribal leaders and some of his supporters.)

Wounded Knee, South Dakota (CPS) - The armed occupation of Wounded Knee by the American Indian Movement (AIM) continues into the second week.

The image of the 1890 massacre of Sioux men, women and children that occurred in the same village seems to constantly hover over the struggle here.

There are about 350 AIM supporters living in this village of a hundred or so people, and they are well armed with rifles, crossbows, and handguns.

Ringing the area, in an attempt to seal off the Indians, are 500 Federal marshals in blue jumpsuits with prominent American Indian Movement insignia. The Indians have taken to calling the marshals "bluecoats."

There are also two FBI agents, camouflage marksmen with sniper rifles, and Bureau of Indian Affairs personnel. The Justice Department admits to having 18 Armed Personnel Carriers, but rumors suggest that 80, along with helicopter gunships, are on the way.

In the glare of the threatened violent confrontation, the causes and politics and power structure have tended to be buried. The Indians, who have felt by some Indians—police brutality, the "murders" of Valkyries and Red Heart Bull, discrimination in flood relief, etc.—have led to the current situation in Wounded Knee.

The latest trouble was in February in Cutter and Rapid City, South Dakota, where Indians held civil rights investigations, demonstrated for the release of Red Heart Bull's death, and burned the Cutter Chamber of Commerce down.

Two Indians were arrested in these occurrences, and the National Guard was called in.

Most Bryant College students remember Father Haas for his announcement in the Koffer Rotunda on behalf of the Board of Trustees concerning the administrative dispute at Bryant in early February. At the present time, Father Haas is a post-doctoral research associate in the Philosophy Department at Boston University.

ECONOMICS CLUB

Pre-registration Counselling for Freshmen

On April 10, the Economics Club will be sponsoring a pre-registration counselling session for freshmen majoring in or wishing to major in Economics. Members of the Economics Department and a number of seniors will be available to assist freshmen with any problems they may have in planning their new schedules.

During this session, Dr. Li, Chairman of the Economics Department, will discuss the new concept of dividing the Economics Curriculum into five major concentrations. A guide listing Economics courses as well as the Liberal Arts and Professional Electives associated with the major concentrations will be distributed to students desiring help in planning their future path at Bryant.

The program will start at 12:00 Noon on Tuesday, April 10 in Room 242. All interested students are invited to attend.

To Wed Or Not To Wed

Father Haas's Decision

The Rev. William Paul Haas, O.P., member of the Board of Trustees of Bryant College and former Providence College President has requested dispensation from his priestly obligations and permission to marry from Pope Paul VI. It was learned this week. The announcement was made at this time in order to give Father Haas "an opportunity to seek academic employment." His request for permission to remain at Providence College as a married lay professor has been denied. Also, in the usual Church practice, authorities in Rome have required that he leave Providence College and the Diocese of Providence. "The purpose of this policy is to reaffirm the dignity and spiritual value of the permanent commitment of the celibate priesthood for the life of the Church."

The former Providence College president, married Minnie Pauline G. Burke, former administrative assistant to the Vice President for Student Relations at Providence College, has been appointed secretary during at least part of his six years as president of the college.

Most Bryant College students remember Father Haas for his announcement in the Koffer Rotunda on behalf of the Board of Trustees concerning the administrative dispute at Bryant in early February. At the present time, Father Haas is a post-doctoral research associate in the Philosophy Department at Boston University.

Today our American society dictates that to get a good job we must get an education. Yet our society dictates policies which prevent those who need education from getting it. It takes money to get an education. Some of the high schools which have the best government. This year though, Mr. Nixon’s budget is bringing about the downfall of equal opportunity education.

In addition to the three programs by which students can get government aid: Direct Student Loan, Educational Opportunity Grant, and the Work Study Program, a fourth program is being introduced: The Basic Opportunity Grants (BOG). Where will the cutbacks be if Nixon’s budget is passed? Mr. Nixon wants to cut out BOG, (loss of $380 million), work study by $20 million and close out Student Loans (loss of $265 million), but he wants to put most of the $959 million he will give into BOG ($622 million.)

By Marjorie Heizer. (Under the 1972 Higher Education Act) is that BOG, Work Study, and Student Loans be fully funded and now they are also and have BOG. These programs would be a basic grant program for all students with a limit of $4000 based on need. For example, if your parents can afford $100 for your education, the government might give you $3000 under the BOG. You would then receive money for the BOG, if your family is in the bottom income bracket and they money from student loans at 7% or other sacrifices.

Not since Joe Valachi told all about the mob has there been so violent a disclosure of sinister individuals as violently opposed the right of criticism and free speech. I speak, of course, in regards to the heavy criticism Nixon receives from some of our country members in regard to last week’s Archway article entitled, “THE ARCHWAY: ECONOMIC PROGRESSION.” Many members of the faculty apparently had a pretty good thing going and the Archway article being published by student’s for the Nixon’s budget is passed? Mr. Nixon’s budget is passing, and it is very invigorating,” Editor Steve Sidoruk, the author of the article said labor problems with his node models this week. When asked if he thought they might have been bought off by the nation’s security, he replied, “Frankly, I don’t trust anybody. For all I know this might be some plot inspired by the government.” Precautions against violence in the Archway office are at a maximum. Two security guards sleep in the office twenty-four hours a day, and Federal agent disguised as a maintenance man sleeps out against the wall smoking a package of cigarettes.

Meanwhile in the Registrar’s Office officials are concerned that some teachers’ classes will be empty. Under consideration to remedy this situation is a selective Service System in which students will be drafted to serve in hazardous classes. Lottery numbers will be selected next Tuesday at 3:00 p.m. in the Rotunda. Will this happen? Will students defect to other colleges rather than serve? Will this create an amnesty issue? How the hell do I know?

THE LEDGER

THE LIGHTER SIDE

I Want My Loan
by Michael J. Lynch

Will be no fifteen hour per week maximum limit. What this amendment will do is to free the student from money hazzels and various oxygen pressure while in school. The interest is under the Pell Amendment which would be passed, required by law is 1.2 million dollars if passed April 18, 1973.

What Nixon is doing is increasing last year’s budget in education by approximately $50 million dollars but cutting out last year’s programs. The increase is not enough to cover the increase in education costs. Also, the only student who would benefit would be the low income student. The middle class is severely impaired.

Under the Pell Amendment, all students are eligible for government loans in the BOG to get the sufficient education that society dictates it needs, getting like little from BOG, work study ($20 million cutback). But many students are going to find out that the government will not give loans to anyone but their customers if at all. (Low income students would probably have problems getting loans because they would be considered financial aid candidates.)

It is stated in the Higher Education Act of 1972 that BOG in supplementary programs are funded. But the way to get them is to consider these programs by law.

It seems to the layman by now that any one can see that the cutbacks are going to be severe this year and school, and if that happens the public schools (colleges) are in trouble because they can’t facilitate all those students. So what is the problem? Nixon’s budget is bringing about the downfall of equal opportunity education. Many students were wondering why there wasn’t any running water around 12:30 Tuesday night. There was a leak in the mechanical zoom which had to be repaired, and as a result the entire campus was without water for about two hours. The delay was due to valves being replaced.

Sound Track

by Bruce Meyer, United Press International

Much of the 20th Century's best-known art has been created more toward the ridiculous end of the scale than the sublime. Of perhaps bizarre would be a harder word.

Take the painting of Salvador Dali, for example...soft clocks, strange shapes and colors and shadows, stretched and squashed and chopped-off people. And in rock music, there's Alice Cooper, the ultimate reaction against the Love, Peace and Flowers of the Woodstock nation.

Last month in New York...the two of them, Alice and Salvador, got together...to create a hologram portrait of Alice. For the uninstructed, a hologram is a three-dimensional image, produced with laser beams.

The sculpture, with Alice wearing a million-dollar diamond tiara and holding Dali's very strange idea of what Alice's brain might look like, will be included in a show of Dali's works in New York. The constitution of the Association will be discussed at this meeting.

Picture Postcards of the Bryant campus will be available soon in the Bookstore.

There will be a test for umpires on Monday at 3 p.m.

Check Athletic Bulletin Board for starting date and day-to-day schedule.

The Slimmatics course is still being held in the girls' exercise rooms on the upper level of the gym. Classes are held from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays every week.

The Jewish holiday of Passover is approaching soon. The Student Senate and ARA Services would like to sponsor the traditional Passover Sedar meal on April 16 and 17. All those interested in attending please contact Stretch Romiko or Shelley Weinstein or leave your name in the Senate Office.

What Does Building Bridges Have To Do With Human Relations?

That is what some of the fifty-one girls thought when they were asked to study a blueprint of a bridge and devise a plan to build it out of cardboard sticks, nuts, and bolts. This hilarious experiment proved not so easy as three different groups started the race following their carefully-planned directions. Some groups were all thumbs as nuts and bolts were drooping off desks, sticks were sliding around and demands for strikes and coffee breaks were made. A child probably could have done the job easier than these soon-to-graduate secretaries.

One of the three groups surprisingly came through finishing the bridge long before the others were even half done. Their success, without a doubt, was due to their fine method of organization, great teamwork, and superb supervision. Apparently, this type of control is needed to complete any job.

From right to left are the great female constructors: Patricia McKee, Donna Riedel, Linda Misiewicz, Barbara Marchetti, and Maureen Fote. If this sounds like a ridiculous experiment, you should give it a try!

Now let's see how easily we can complicate a simple project!

MARKETING IS...

by Thomas Grapeski

A firm without marketing is like a car without wheels.

The New Generation of Marketers

"Young marketers today are better educated, more aggressive, more sophisticated, more demanding, and more impatient for advancement, higher salaries, and more free time to enjoy modern life-styles, according to a recent survey of 110 marketing executives, as reported in "Marketing News."

The old marketers look upon the young marketers as reflecting the rush of modern society that they find themselves in. They are looking for too much too soon. They tend to overlook the need for experience, seasoning, training, and adequate preparation.

Many executives have found that impatience is a characteristic among graduates with advanced degrees. It seems that the more advanced the degree, the expectation is that much more unrealistic. A opinion often cited by executives was that, "they intend to become part of management in two or three years, young people 10 years ago also wanted to become part of management, but expected it to take 10 or 15 years."

The survey has indicated some distinct differences between young and old marketers. Some of the observations listed were that: their money expectations were sometimes unreasonable; personal life-style sometimes interferes; the young person's expectations and satisfactions from the firm are at times different from those of the firm; the beginning's intelligence, sophistication, communicativeness, and enthusiasm are a plus.

Recommendations given for postgraduate schools were that they place more emphasis on practical aspects, less on theoretical; give students more skill required in selling; let business executives do some teaching and conducting of seminars; make on-the-job experience an integral part of the MBA course.

The young marketer, in general, has a high growth potential; but as expressed by one executive, "imagination that potential—harnessing and developing it—is increasingly difficult."

Class Speaker

Herman Eisenberg, President of the Mark Hotel Chain, which is a management corporation of Loew's Sheraton and Howard Johnson's, was a guest speaker in Mr. Szuman's class yesterday. Mr. Eisenberg's topic was pricing as it applies to hotel promotion. The talks, lasting approximately twenty minutes, were followed by questions from students.

Struggle At Wounded Knee

AIM’s number-one demand was “that the highest-ranking official in the Department of Interior...come to meet immediately at Wounded Knee to discuss problems and to offer solutions...”

In response, the Interior Department assigned Assistant Solicitor General, who had no decision-making power and was not allowed to talk to the press. They claimed that “...the Interior Department, as a matter of policy and law, will not and cannot interfere with the rights of Indians to govern themselves...” and said the problem was an internal tribal matter. AIM termed this “a complete lie” saying, “...Interior can do anything, anytime, on any reservation they want to...”

Government negotiations and police operations have been taken over by the Justice Department, and there seems to have been some apparent feeding over jurisdiction between the Justice and Interior Departments. There has been much shifting around and granting of minor concessions, but negotiations are still at an impasse.

A government spokesperson has said “...Let us make things perfectly clear...never was any amnesty, and there never will be any amnesty...The position we have taken does not represent any departure from the attitude of reasonableness we have maintained...even in the face of terrorism...The position taken by the leaders at Wounded Knee amounts to nothing more than intolerable blackmail.”

Means responded to this by saying, “I call it blackmail when our children are forced to attend boarding schools away from home, nine months a year; when the police jail the drunkards but not the bootleggers; when we are forced to deal with white businessmen who dominate our town; when a tribal chief can hire ‘good’ squads with federal funds; and when the government holds our land in trust. They offer us as choices—jail or death—and to hell with our demands. That’s blackmail.”

In addition to the conflict with the federal government, Wounded Knee is also a grassroots struggle addressing local problems. The government and Sioux Tribal Chief Richard Wilson have called the AIM action a “tribal power play.” They say AIM seeks to over the large Pine Ridge Reservation as a base of operations and funds. Wilson claims that AIM couldn’t win in tribal elections later this year so they have resorted to the occupation. The government claims AIM can’t supersede the duly-elected Tribal Council’s autonomy.

The tribal “program analyzer” estimates unemployment as high as 70%. Others say that of the 11,000 Sioux on the reservation, only 800 have jobs. Poverty, alcoholism, and suicide are said to be rampant on the reservation.

Three Sioux councilmen filed charges against Wilson February 8 for hiring friends and relatives, operating without a budget, misuse of tribal funds, and failure to call the Tribal Council into session.

The three walked out of council impeachment hearings claiming the judge was not impartial. They were followed by 150 people, marching to the BIA where Director Stanley Wyman refused to meet with them.

Wilson was supported by the 20-member Council by a vote of 14-0. This was the fourth attempt at his impeachment since he took office in April. The Oglala Sioux Civil Rights Organization represents many of the people opposed to Wilson. Their representatives point out that the constitution under which Wilson governs was drawn up for the Indians by the government. They say that Wilson, elected by a reported 10 percent of the eligible voters, uses intimidation to control council members. Petitions demanding a new constitution and elections are being circulated.

AIM states that they have the support of 80 percent of the people...most of the eight districts comprising the reservation have voted for Wilson’s impeachment. They also say that seven council members have resigned and a quorum no longer exists. Wilson replied to this charge by saying he hadn’t been able to reach most council members since the confrontation began.

Vern Long, co-chairman of the Civil Rights Organization, said that Wilson totally disregarded petitions in the past and that “...Wilson runs the BIA/Indian Police, the Tribal Council, and his private ‘goon’ squad of about 30 men.”

“AIM was asked to come in here after we got tired of hitting a stone wall. Eighty percent of the Indians in Wounded Knee are Oglala Sioux,” Long said.

Many bitter feelings have been generated on the reservation. Schools have been closed. The BIA has been closed to all but the staff, marshals, and the press; therefore, people can’t collect their checks.

Wilson blames AIM, saying them “outside troublemakers” and has urged people to take up arms against them. AIM blames Wilson and the federal government. They seem determined to hold out until the "solution..."

There is a sign screwed on the door of the Wounded Knee trading post. It reads: “It’s better to die on your feet than to live on your knees...We die only once-let’s die here together.”

Riley can bolster the attack, his efforts could be in vain. Overall, Bryant will be fielding pretty much the same team as last season. The Indians will most likely pick up most of their points in the field events. The running events will be a constant headache for Coach Drury, and this weakness will undoubtedly cost Bryant a few meets. Yet anything can happen, and the season should be a most interesting one to say the least. In any case, the Archway Sports Staff wishes Coach Drury and his squad the best of luck in the coming season. Noting: “The team’s first meet of the season is here, this Saturday afternoon.

If you think Kodak is just pretty pictures, you ought to have your chest examined.

When a chest x-ray shows that you have a potential killer like TB or cancer, it’s not a pretty picture. But it’s an important picture because it can help the doctor detect and catch the killer in time.

When doctors are out to catch these potential killers, they want the sharpest, clearest x-ray films they can get. And that’s why people at Kodak spend so many hours creating new and better x-ray film equipment. Already, the results include convenience for the patient, economy for the hospital, an even more useful tool for the radiologist—and, most important, reduced radiation exposure.

Researching and creating better x-ray films is good for our business, which is why we went into them in the first place. But it does our society good, too—which isn’t a bad feeling. After all, our business depends on our society—so we care what happens to it.

Ed Raky Wins State Titles

This past Sunday, Ed Raky, former tabler tennis star of New England, won his fifth Rhode Island State Championship. In doing so, he subdued defending champion Jack Devereaux, Ludlow Bailey captured men's championship and class "A" title while Ed Raky teamed up with Jack Devereaux and defeated Bernard Kerke and "Doc" Lupien in doubles for the second straight year. With this, Raky was under the excellent direction of Bernard Kerke under the direction of Jean Devereaux and was able to achieve his goal. Raky was well represented by Neil Goldman, Howard Schreiber, Lawrence Selvin, and Dale Speller.

Thirty-one year old Ed Raky, a member of the collegiate league, played superbly during the seven hour tournament. On his way to the men's singles championship, Raky defeated Jack Buckham, Raky's (Ed's brother), and finally Jack Devereaux. In a closely fought match, Raky edged out Jack Buchkhan in the first round, Raky overcame a 2-1 game defeat and went on to win the victory. This victory proved to be the boost Raky needed to accomplish perfect 3-0 match victories against his brother and Devereaux. This enabled him to harvest his fifth state title in eight years. Raky's fine sportsmanship complemented his superior performance.

The (Beaule) Bailey, a sensational player from Brown University, displayed his awesome talents in winning both men's "A" and "B" singles championships. Bailey defeated two Bruce Stewart back to the team. Bruce still holds the school five hour umpire record, and he will undoubtedly add more strength to the Indian's powerful field team. Coach Drury may have been able to coax some of Bryant's former trackmen to return for another season, but he will stand to lose some valuable performances in the javelin, pole vault, hurdles, mile and three mile events. Regardless of these negative points, there should be some exciting individual performances this year.

One of Bryant's top performers, Bruce Stewart will again be anchoring a strong weightmen contingent. Last season, Bruce placed Bryant's first mark on many occasions, and he is sure to carry on this fine form. The 6'0" 275 lb. man will be looking for his brother and Devereaux.

In the consolation round Sparky James defeated Ray Cantwell in two games. The whole tournament was very exciting and interesting to watch. Tomorrow and Sunday the Providence Open will be held. This tournament will draw many of the nation's top players. Anyone interested in seeing table tennis at its best should see this tournament. It will take place at 74 Westminster St., Providence, between about 1 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. If anyone needs a ride speak to any member of our table tennis team.

In other field events, the performances of Bruce Hall and Smul are among the most beneficial to the Indian's cause. Hall had an extremely satisfying season in the long jump this year. Like Raskall, Bruce made record breaking a habit. His finest performance of the season came in the 1972 Tri State Track and Field Competition, where he established the existing school long jump mark of 22'6" and placed third in the triple jump. If Bruce can avoid the nagging leg injuries of last year, he may add the New England Champions to his list of long jump wins. With his superb form, Bruce is expected to win this competition.

Bryant's men's tennis team is off to a strong start. The team is in excellent form and has won all of their matches so far. Their schedule for this season is quite tough, but they are looking forward to the challenges. The team is led by their strong singles players, Bruce Stewart and Jack Devereaux. Their doubles teams are also strong and have been performing well.

Bryant's women's tennis team has also been performing well. They have won several matches and have a strong team. The team is led by their strong singles players, Jack Devereaux and Bruce Stewart. Their doubles teams are also strong and have been performing well.
