Nixon Plans The Next Four Years

More details of President Nixon's plans for his second term in office were unveiled today.

In an interview with the Washington STAR NEWS, Nixon said that in addition to peace in Vietnam, his chief goal will be to control government spending.

The President also said he wanted to restore a spirit of "independence, self-reliance, and pride" in the American people.

Nixon said he wants to trim big government down to size and cut the fat out of Federal spending in order to avoid a tax increase. In his words, "using money more effectively will be the mark of this Administration."

News Aid: Ronald Ziegler explained that Nixon considers his landslide victory Tuesday a mandate to single-handedly remake the Federal Government possibly cutting out whole offices and agencies.

To that end, Ziegler says the President has requested the resignations of 2,000 officials; and Nixon has had a study drawn up showing what kind of changes he can make without Congressional approval.

Nixon probably will face the first test of his financial policy shortly after the 93rd Congress convenes in January. Nixon says he does not want to throw large sums of money into new programs.

But the Democratic Congressional leadership is already planning to revive several programs Nixon vetoed last month because he felt they were too costly.

Winter Olympics—Site Unsure

The committee organizing the 1976 Winter Olympic Games in Denver was scheduled to notify the International Olympic Committee today that Colorado does not want to host the Games.

But a judge issued a temporary restraining order to halt the formal notification. The action comes after Colorado voters Tuesday refused use of any more tax money to finance the Olympics.

Representatives from the sites of the two earlier Winter Olympics— Squaw Valley, California, and Lake Placid, New York— today notified the U.S Olympic Committee that they will put in bids to host the Games.

McGovern Vacations in the Virgin Islands

Senator George McGovern and his wife today flew to St. Thomas Island in the Virgin Islands for a vacation at the home of McGovern's campaign manager, Henry Kimelman. McGovern had to line up and buy his ticket in Washington like everybody else, and he is no longer being followed around by Secret Service agents.

At an airport news conference in the Virgin Islands, McGovern said he hopes to spend the rest of his life in the Senate and will make no further Presidential bids.

When asked to analyze the Nixon victory, McGovern said—"quoting here—"the President successfully appealed to the fears and anxieties of the people. He convinced them they were better off with their problems than with trying new solutions."
The Problem
Of A New Dean

Upon returning to school this fall, the students of Bryant College encountered a new Vice-President of Student Affairs. For the students who don't know, the new Vice-President is Dr. Barry Fullerton. On September 8 and 15, THE ARCHWAY printed an interview with the new administrator. In the interview, Dr. Fullerton outlined his plans for Bryant, which, at the time, seemed to reveal a definite change for the better in the area of student affairs.

Soon after this interview, Dean Anderson Kurz resigned his position as Dean of Student Life to take a position at Brown University. This left Bryant with a very big problem. Now that Mr. Kurz has resigned, the office of Student Affairs is staffed by all new personnel, except for Mrs. Diccard, who is a secretary to the Vice-President. Dr. Fullerton has recognized this problem and is trying, along with Miss States, to combat the difficulties of adjusting to the Bryant life style.

Presumably however, Dr. Fullerton has been away from the office a lot. He has been traveling to conferences and meetings to gain knowledge—this is great; but when a student has a problem, he must be able to speak with someone.

This is where the problem lies.

The office vacated by Mr. Kurz has to be filled. It is said that a formal Search Committee will be formed to review the most qualified applicants, but when will this committee get started? All students of the Bryant Community need a full-functioning office of Student Affairs. If a person outside the school is to be hired, he, like Dr. Fullerton and Miss States, will need time to become acquainted.

The ARCHWAY would like to see a committee formed in the very near future to seek out a new Dean to fill the long-vacated job.

All the students who care about this problem should voice their opinions about this situation. Go see an administrator and tell him how you feel.

The Price Of Plagiarism

In the past, THE ARCHWAY has accepted advertising from any business concern that operates within the laws of the State of Rhode Island. However, this week, the Editorial Board has decided to amend this policy. We have now decided to refuse to accept any advertising from groups that sell term papers.

This was decided for a number of reasons. Within the past six months, the University of Wisconsin has withdrawn the degrees of more than 25 graduates. Boston University has just subpoenaed the records of a number of term paper companies that operate in the greater Boston area. Any BU student who has purchased a paper is now subject to loss of credit and possible expulsion.

Could it happen at Bryant? Possibly. Through increased pressure from the faculty, the Administration might be forced to act. How many students here would suddenly be put in danger of not graduating? How many students can afford to waste two, three, or even four years of study? Unfortunately, in today's world, the degree carries more weight than the actual knowledge attained. A student can ruin his career because he didn't take the time to do his own coursework.

The ARCHWAY would like to emphasize that this decision was not come to after or because of pressure from the Administration. We are, and have been, the independent voice of the student body; and will remain so.

What Price Must We
First Pay to Save Lives on Our Highways?

The intersection of Rtes. 116 and 7 is the most dangerous traffic hazard facing a Bryant commuter student. årn each day. With the high-speed traffic of 116 flying in all directions, the immense size of the crossroad, the blind corners, and the small, corroded stop signs stupidly placed almost in the middle of the intersection, a perfect situation exists for a serious accident. This, together with the early-morning back up of Bryant commuter traffic on Rte. 7 and the increased traffic on 116, creates a real mess and an outgoing threat to the many Bryant commuters using these roads.

Nothing has been done or is being done, however, about correcting this situation. Talk of putting up a traffic light was immediately brushed aside, when the cost of $10,000 was determined as being too high. Nothing else was suggested, and the safety of Bryant commuter students was set aside due to lack of concern by the Town of Smithfield or whoever is responsible for these roads.

Nothing else could be done, they said! On my way to school one day at twelve noon, I saw something I couldn't believe. A policeman stood in the intersection directing traffic not even half the load of the 7:30 to 8:00 a.m. bottleneck. What a waste! If a policeman can be spared at 12 noon to direct a trickle of traffic, why can't he be stationed from seven o'clock to eight-fifteen every morning at the peak traffic hour? If Lincoln Downs can afford a policeman, why can't Bryant College? The need of some solution is now, before something really serious happens. Come on, somebody, do something! How about you, commuters, can't you complain? Maybe is enough of us said something and put pressure on the Smithfield Town Council and other authorities responsible for these roads, action would be taken; and this menace ended—once and for all.

Grievance Committees

Dear Students:

The following are the charges of the Academic and the Non-Academic Grievance Committees. They were established to serve you, the students. So if you have a grievance, please take the time to present it in full to the Committee. The charge for the Academic Grievance Committee stands as:

The Student Academic Grievance Committee shall hold hearings to insure that academic student rights have not been violated. The appeal process for an academic grievance should be pursued through the instructor, the Chairman of the particular department, and the Dean of Academic Instruction. The Committee shall meet only when the student has not been able to follow the appeal process.

The charge for the Non-Academic Grievance Committee stands as:

The Student Non-Academic Grievance Committee shall hold hearings to insure that non-academic student rights have not been violated. The appeal process for a grievance should be pursued through the Vice President for Student Affairs. The Committee shall meet only when the student has not been able to follow the appeal process.

Any students with any of the above charges can get in contact with either Committee through the Senate Office.

Cafeteria Unsanitary

To the Cafeteria Staff:

During the past several days, I have been quite upset with some of the things I have seen in the cafeteria. After having worked in a better restaurant for nearly three years, I am well aware of the way in which certain matters should be dealt—namely, hair in the food and cracked or chipped dishes.

More than once I have found hair in my food that I know could not have been my own (for reasons of length and color). Also, the other day I took a glass which had a large chip broken out of the top. Unfortunately, I did not notice this until after I had nearly ripped off the upper half of my lip. Furthermore, as I was eating lunch the other day, I found that my plate had a large crack down the middle—a crack from which I easily chipped pieces of the china with the touch of my fork.

There have also been many instances where I have gotten a glass of Coke at noon time and found pulp from the morning orange juice. When I pick up my silverware at lunch, I often find it covered with dried up egg. There is nothing like having my stomach turn before it’s time to eat!

Isn’t it the responsibility of the kitchen staff to notice things like this BEFORE they reach the students? I find it a little more than coincidental that I should come across things like this more than once. There must be more things of this type going on without anyone saying anything.

It makes me wonder what goes on in the kitchen behind the backs of the students. I feel that there should be tighter restrictions for the cafeteria staff—SPECIFICALLY, matters concerning hair nets and being more watchful for chipped or cracked glasses and dishes.

Sincerely,

A Leary Student

Call To Arms At Rutgers

New Brunswick, N.J. (CPS) - Rutgers University has become one of the ever increasing number of colleges with armed campus policemen. Before the new gun policy went into effect last July 14, 22 officers had resigned from the campus force. Robert Och, assistant vice president for public safety, noted that since officers were authorized to carry weapons there has been a "marked improvement in morale of campus patrol officers." There has also been a noticeable decline in crime on campus, according to Och. In the summer of 1971 there were 92 crimes of violence on the Rutgers campus. This summer there were only 62.

According to the Rutgers campus patrolmen, reaction to the new policy has been mostly positive. A Rutgers secretary described the new policy as a "welcome change."

"It's wild all over," she said. "Not just in New Brunswick. It's not even safe to walk downtown at noon."

The new policy stems not only from the discontent of the members of the campus patrol (five were injured while on duty last semester) but also from a failure in co-operation between the Rutgers campus patrol and the police forces of the neighboring municipalities.

Many students there say they would rather see armed R.U. patrolmen than having armed New Brunswick policemen on campus. There was some dissent: Doug Seaton, a teaching assistant in the R.U. history department viewed the new policy as "part of a national conspiracy to suppress the people."

New Brunswick police have guns, he argued, but there's "still too much crime in New Brunswick."

Mike Cohen, chairman of the Rutgers Community Action Program, was also disappointed to see the new plan go into effect.

"It's really going to hurt out Big Brother program," he said. "Think about it -- before we lived in an ivory tower, and now we live in an armed ivory tower."

Why Can't Students Have A Voice In Their Own School?

The above question is directed to the Administration of Bryant College, which seems to enjoy operating a college on the closed-door policy. Student opinion as to the legitimacy of the Administration's decisions is ignored and thus there is very little student representation, if any at all, on administrative committees, such as the Curriculum Committee, the Student Senate, and the Trustees Committee. David Brown

In an ARCHWAY interview, Student Senate President David Brown strongly criticized this apparent closed-door administration. He said that there is no excuse for a lack of student input into Bryant Administration. In the interview, Mr. Brown challenged the legitimacy and effectiveness of any committee within the College community in which students do not have representative and voting powers. The decisions made by the Administration directly affect the students of Bryant College, and therefore, students should have a say in the decisions and the right to vote on them. Mr. Brown also said that the lack of communication between students and the Administration has created many misunderstandings, also raising many questions. Mr. Brown then went on to give examples of several recent policies which reflect the lack of student participation.

Recently, a 8200 increase in tuition was instituted. The Student Senate was not notified of this decision until twelve days after it was made. This, having a major and profound effect on the student body, was not explained to the students. No, did we have anything to say about the increase. Another fine example of the closed Administration is the Dorm Deposit. The $100 deposit is supposed to cover any damage done during a student's stay here, refundable when he or she leaves. Questions have been raised whether the Administration did this to make a profit or what. Most likely they did, but they don't say. Students weren't consulted on this policy either. Brown went on to question the validity of a mandatory meal ticket for every dorm student, giving the student three meals daily.

Some students, said Dave, can't always use the meal ticket, since they work off campus, missing either dinner or supper, or their class schedule conflicts with meal times. The meal ticket, to such a person, is a waste, since they may only eat one meal a day, instead of the three they pay for. Students shouldn't have to pay for meals they don't eat. Again, we weren't consulted.

Student opinions on the existing program were not sought, thus the close-minded administrators won again, not explaining as usual any reasons for the meal policy. Re-calling curriculum seminars were closed to students, not allowing us to suggest courses we feel would be relevant to a good business education. Thus, we still have many irrelevant requirements that waste our time; yet the

"HERE'S A PAPER WITH REAL SOCIAL RELEVANCE - THE CAMPUS TREND TOWARDS BUYING TERMPAPERS!"
Goodbye, Columbus... Hello Elizabeth, Leonardo & Wolfgang

Imagine yourself in Paris sipping wine at a sidewalk cafe, in exotic Istanbul gazing out over the Bosphorus, in sun-baked Athens roaming around ancient ruins.

These popular cities—and the whole world for that matter—are more than places to read about. They’re places for YOU to see, to touch, to experience.

Every week, therefore, this column will give you practical advice on work, study, and travel abroad, along with lively features on how to groove in Austria, Belgium, Yugoslavia, wherever.

As a student, you have opportunities for traveling that you may never have again. Since you’re not tied down with a year-round job, the time to go globe-hopping is now.

This column also intends to dispel some of the myths that loom in the minds of potential student travelers: Can you really travel on $5 a day? Is working and living in a foreign country as glamorous as you think? Is getting a passport as complicated as it sounds?

Three broad alternatives facing the student interested in seeing the world are:

1) Working
2) Studying, and
3) Just plain traveling.

Most of our stories will deal largely with the latter category, giving you helpful hints on charter flights and ways to save money on trains, planes, and accommodations overseas.

A column on the difficult task of landing a job abroad and how to choose a study program will also be passed on in charte r. You aren’t going to be able to obtain the various books and pamphlets.

The notion of traveling for a day in Western Europe is dead for the most part and has been for quite a while, some book titles to the contrary.

This recent devaluation of the dollar (accounting for price increases in Europe of 5 to 12 percent) on top of the annual rate of 6 to 8 percent inflation on the Continent, you see that your dollars aren’t getting you as far. And last year’s fantastic youth fares of $200 to Europe and back, will be up to over $300 starting April 1.

But Spain, Portugal, Greece, and Turkey are still $6-a-day countries, and you’ll find many European bargains in lodging and eating that you never thought of.

Out column will provide information on how to get by cheaply abroad and will lay down the alternatives available for students itching to do their thing in foreign surroundings. With advance planning and a realistic picture of travel abroad you can accomplish more than simply daydreaming about exploring our planet—you can do it!

For a pocket-sized pamphlet “The International Traveler,” including essential facts on foreign countries and new dollar exchange rates, write TOJ. Enclose 25 cents for postage and handling.

Three Days Of Fun

On the weekend of November 16th through the 18th, the brothers of Phi Epsilon Pi will present their initial “Three Nights Of Fun” weekend. And as usual, it will be highlighted by surprises which will be announced only at the event itself.

Thursday, November 16th, the first annual “Beer chugging contest” will be held at Country Comfort. Each participant will be expected to compete. Anyone who wishes to compete may get information from any member of the Phi Epsilon Pi staff or in Dorm 1, Room 413. The winner as well as second runner up will receive a trophy. Admission for the event will be fifty cents.

James Montgomery and Sarge will take the stage on Friday the 17th in the gymnasium. Accompanying the groups will be several strange and mystifying acts, the context of which will be revealed at the event itself. This night should provide complete entertainment for all faces of the College Community at inexpensive prices. Admission for individuals will be $2.25 in advance, or $2.75 at the door; and an advance price only of $4.00 per couple.

On Saturday, November 18, the conclusion of the weekend will occur in the auditorium. This night’s feature will be two showings of the movie “Performance” featuring the Rolling Stones. Admission for each showing will be $5 cents and the showings will be at 7:30 and 10:30 p.m.

Everyone is invited to come, listen, enjoy, and take part in the weekend.

Sound Track

Close To The Edge

by Bob Irland

Another fine album, their fifth, has been released by the English supergroup, Yes. Close to the Edge maintains the standard of excellence reached in their four previous albums but also adds a new dimension, former Strawbs Keyboardist Rick Wakeman’s work on the Strawbs led him to be called a “Young Keith Emerson,” which is a fine compliment but doesn’t quite tell the whole story. Although Emerson, while with the Nice, allowed himself to experiment and improvise, the joining Greg Lake and Carl Palmer he has stagnated to a certain degree, while Rick Wakeman has continued to grow musically and has blossomed into the most inventive rock keyboardist playing today. Thus, maybe they should call Keith Emerson an “Old Rick Waterman.”

Jon Anderson’s vocals continue to amaze me—his ability to harmonize with Steve Howe and Chris Squire is impressive. Their harmonies make Crosby, Still, Nash and Young look like amateurs. Chris Squire bass work continues to make him one of the best bassists around.

Although Yes was neglected by the public for years this time, they’ve finally made a name for themselves. My only complaint is that Close to the Edge isn’t a two-record set. I guess I’ll just have to wait until they release another album—I can’t bear enough of them.

Coming up—PhI Epsilon Pi and Fantasma Productions present the James Montgomery Band in Concert next Friday, Nov. 17th at 8 p.m. in the gym. The dance-concert, beer blast will also feature Sarge. Admission is $2.25 per person or $4.00 per couple in advance. More info next week.
Movie Review

"A Separate Peace"
by david t. pandozai

Peace within one's self is the most lasting kind of peace man can make. He must be at peace with himself before he can enter the world and involve himself with the problems that confront him.

Parker Stevenson as Gene must make this "separate peace" with himself at a time in his life when the rest of the world is in turmoil. During that famous summer of '42, two boys are made to accept the fact that a fearful war is raging outside the peaceful ivy-clad walls of Devon. Devon is an old New England prep school for boys where friendships are made only to be threatened by outside forces.

John Heyl, as Finny—the athletic and energetic roommate of Gene, forms a sort of secret society. Finny stipulates that each new member must jump from a tree into the river below. As they are the only two who ever do jump, they become best friends and we learn of their special relationship as the movie progresses.

A strong feeling of competition is shown between the quieter and studious Gene and the influential and witty Finny. Together they pursue courses during the summer session at Devon and together they become inseparable friends. Unfortunately, a serious accident occurs which is the cause of a terrible tragedy that effects the lives of both boys.

Larry Peerce's direction of "A Separate Peace" can be considered adequate; and Fred Segal, in keeping with the original story by John Knowles, has cinematically created a good, simple story of youth and their problem of accepting the adult world before them.

Women Veterans Rights Finally Acknowledged

by E. McLaughlin

A women veteran’s “bill of rights” is included in the veterans’ education law, signed by the President October 24, 1972.

To receive the additional amounts of VA education allowance, compensation, and pension money that men veterans are allowed for their wives, women veterans no longer will have to prove their husbands are disabled and permanently incapable of self-support.

This provision applies to GI bill, Vocational Rehabilitation, pension, compensation, and dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC), which is paid for service-connected deaths.

The new law also liberalizes the criteria for paying additional amounts of VA educational allowance and compensation money payable for children that have been paid to male veterans.

The new law says that for all VA benefit purposes, a “wife” shall include the husband of a female veteran and the term “widow” shall include the widower of a female veteran.

Women veterans already have been receiving the same additional amounts of VA educational allowance and compensation money payable for children that have been paid to male veterans.

The new law says that for all VA benefit purposes, a “wife” shall include the husband of a female veteran and the term “widow” shall include the widower of a female veteran.

Arriving home, I proceeded to hang the mirror on the mantel, and I was then that a strange sort of light enveloped the room. The mirror began to project images; but were these images of the past, present, or the future?

“A little of all three,” the mirror answered. “Oh, don’t be surprised that I know what you’re thinking; for every story requires an omniscient being. Over the next few days, I will show you how you have failed as a member of your race. Like all the others, you will try to smash me—even though seven years of bad luck would inevitably be your fate. But I am unbreakable, I am virtually indestructible, for I tell only the truth.”

All the way back to the shop, I kept telling myself that it was just a nightmare, but I could not. The fear of knowing the truth was too great, The old man’s prediction came to pass.

SIB Holds Alumni Dinner Dance

This Saturday evening Sigma Iota Beta will have their first Annual Alumni Dinner Dance. Entertainment will be provided by a three-piece Dixieland Sing-A-Long Band. The entire affair which consists of a cocktail hour, dinner, and then dancing will be held in the Faculty Lounge.

Alumni from as far back as 1945 will be attending as well as current sisters and other sisters throughout the years. About one hundred people are planning to attend this affair. Sisters as far away as Florida are coming back for the reunion.

Chairman, Julie Bouffard, has been planning things and contacting sisters since June. It should be a great time for all who attend.

Women Veterans Rights Finally Acknowledged

A women veteran’s “bill of rights” is included in the veterans’ education law, signed by the President October 24, 1972.

To receive the additional amounts of VA education allowance, compensation, and pension money that men veterans are allowed for their wives, women veterans no longer will have to prove their husbands are disabled and permanently incapable of self-support.

The bell would summon a matronly-looking sales lady.

As I left the curio shop with my new treasure, the words of the old timer echoed in my ears. Ten days would pass, and you will return it. We are all afraid of ten days will pass, and you will return it. We are all afraid of the truth, and you are no different.”

I pleaded the smiling old man.

"Sorry, no amount of money will compensate for the lack of this, my favorite artifact. Yet, I must share my good fortune. Go to hang the mirror.

Arriving home, I proceeded to hang the mirror on the mantle, it was then that a strange sort of light enveloped the room. The mirror began to project images; but were these images of the past, present, or the future?

“A little of all three,” the mirror answered. "Oh, don’t be surprised that I know what you’re thinking; for every story requires an omniscient being. Over the next few days, I will show you how you have failed as a member of your race. Like all the others, you will try to smash me—even though seven years of bad luck would inevitably be your fate. But I am unbreakable, I am virtually indestructible, for I tell only the truth."

All the way back to the shop, I kept telling myself that it was just a nightmare, but I could not. The fear of knowing the truth was too great, The old man’s prediction came to pass.

Ticket Splitting Helps Dems

The independent voter is becoming the most powerful political force in the nation. Ticket splitting, the sign of the voter who goes more for the man than the party, has become a way of life.

There was more ticket splitting Tuesday than in any election in modern history. Millions who voted for President Nixon voted democrat for governor, for senator and for congressman.

The net result was to enable the Democrats to hold republican gains elsewhere to a minimum, and make gains themselves, despite the landslide for Nixon.

The growth of the independent has been at the expense of both political parties.

A generation ago, surveys showed that about one out of every five voters labeled themselves independent, splitting their votes in elections and shifting from party to party.

Recent surveys have indicated that the independent vote may be as high as 35 per cent, or nearly equal to the Republican party base.

The immediate result of the massive party-splitting by the voters year by year is the coalition government. Some day stalwarts are the inevitable result.

That stretching it some. The democratic congress operated in the last two sessions as a Republican in the White House, without a stalemate. The record of bills passed pretty much matched the expectations of President Eisenhower. The last Congress didn't give President Nixon all he wanted and gave him some things he didn't want. But it wasn't stalemate. And the charges that Nixon had become a great vetor didn't hold up. He was about on a par with his immediate predecessors, Lyndon Johnson and John Kennedy, in the number of bills vetoed, and considerably under the experience of Eisenhower, who also served Congress controlled by the opposition.

Coalition in Congress doesn't have to be a formal institution. The talk of the Republicans trying to organize Congress with the help of a few southern Democrats is just that...talk. Too many southerners would lose powerful posts in Congress, based on seniority, if the Republicans formally took over, even through a coalition.

Republicans, starving for those positions of power, are not about to move over to make room for the southern Democrats who might vote the GOP way.

But there is something called a coalition — one in which the independent participates. The independent is no longer a man who splits tickets at random. He is a man who carefully studies the candidate, and votes for the man he likes. He is a man who bases his vote on the record of the candidates instead of on the party label. He is a man who has started to think of himself as a voter instead of a party loyalist who identifies himself as party followers.

That is the opposite of participatory politics which is supposed to be the thing these days. The independent voter turns over to the two political parties the power to select the candidates for public office. That is one big reason why many of the defecting democrats are expected to return to the fold before 1974.

Four More Years

Democratic Chairwoman
Plans To Stay

If Democratic Party regulars get rid of George McGovern's hand-picked national campaign chairman, it will be only after a fight.

National Chairwoman Jean Westwood said in Washington today that she has no plans to resign, and that she will fight efforts to oust her.

She made it clear she has heard the talk that Party regulars are thinking of replacing her as the first step in moving the Party back to the middle of the road.

In a separate interview after her news conference, Mrs. Westwood said she refused to be made a sacrificial lamb for the Party's loss Tuesday.

Mrs. Westwood says the greatest single factor in McGovern's crushing loss was the failure of both groups of Democratic and Independent voters. But she emphasized that the defeat was only at the presidential level.

There may be an effort to oust Mrs. Westwood at the December 9 meeting of the Democratic National Committee.

In every state he went, McGovern was bailed out by the northern rather than the surrogate at a political event.

Whether he seeks it or not, the nomination of Mrs. Westwood for the unofficial leader of the democratic party on November 6th, if the polls are correct, and Senator McGovern gets licked.

Kennedy can have the next Presidential nomination for the Democrats. He has been indicated in no event whether he would ask. But at this point, he doesn't have to make up his mind.

Kennedy stayed aloof from the nomination battles last spring and summer, merely to help him show that he was not available either to head the ticket or for the number two spot. But Kennedy did not isolate himself from the political battles. His efforts were directed to try to make the democratic party over in his own image. He spoke out and campaigned on issues ranging well into the war in Vietnam to nationalization of the medical industry, from party reforms to party platform.

In his New Year's message, Kennedy had been fatalistic about the possibility that he, as his brother John and Robert before him, may be the target of would-be assassins.

But he has never indicated in anything he has said that his concern would deter him any more than it did his brothers, from seeking the presidential office.

Kennedy In '76?

Senator Kennedy is doing what comes naturally to a man with Presidential ambitions.

That doesn't mean the last, surviving son of the White House-mind Kennedy clan definitely has the presidential bug. He may and he may not.

What Kennedy is doing is the classic way of preparing for a presidential bid. Political professionals recognize it as the tried-and-true way of building up political capital to be on hand and available for the presidential nominating conventions. Many of the people who are being helped by Kennedy stand to be powers in the Party Win or lose, they will indebted to him.

Senor Goldwater traveled that road in 1962 while he was the nominee for the Republican presidential ticket. While, in session, he was on the campaign, sometimes three days a week.

After Congress quit, the pace has stepped up so that when the campaigns are over, Kennedy will have ploughed for the election of Democrats in more than half the states.

His help is not confined to the nominations. He was one of the men who helped to knock out bills, especially those which were not of interest to him.

The split voting yesterday shattered President Kennedy's hopes to build a new majority. It's no secret that those hopes were based on large numbers of defecting democrats staying with the GOP after being shown the way by John B. Connally.

The large numbers of ticket-splitters indicated the hope wasn't about to be realized.

But there's another effect of the growth of the independent voter which is more subtle but perhaps more important to American politics. The voter who cuts himself adrift from both parties also cuts himself out from selecting the men who will run for public office. Nominees are those who think of themselves as party loyal who identify themselves as party followers. Only in a few states are independents allowed to vote in party primaries, or to cross over.

That is the opposite of participatory politics which is supposed to be the thing these days. The independent voter turns over to the two political parties the power to select the candidates for public office. That is one big reason why many of the defecting democrats are expected to return to the fold before 1974.

Pell Victorious

Senator Claiborne Pell, education's best friend in the Senate, won a close race against former Secretary of the Navy, John Chafee. After receiving the good news Tuesday night, the Senator and his family thanked all of his supporters. Bryant had the second largest group of Pell Volunteers composed of both students and faculty.
Reducing Tension III
Albert J. McAloon

In trying to understand sex and awareness, and the relation to tension reduction, we would do well to recall Harry Stack Sullivan's observation, "that implies a willingness to destroy the self of other for the satisfaction of the self, whereas love implies a willingness to destroy the self of the other." In this context, and in another context said, "love is the inner acceptance of the interests of another. Of course, have a common interest as my own interests." The Talmud says, "if you need to convince yourself who am I, but if I am only for myself who am I?"

We live in a community where the influencing our sex perceptions to regard human emotions as simply as a flow of sex can be enhanced by income from the pleasure principle. This does not jive with the reality principle, four hundred years, and reinforced by society. When we divorce sexuality from idea feelings, desires for the other, a commodity. Sensing emotions relay the feelings, mostly physical, even in a commodity relationship but a "laxtiness" of humanity is missing. We may have a powerful orgasm, and not the after memories, no kindness for the other, no sensitivity to the body and mind, the pressures of touching of sensory tips. It is not enough for human happiness, leaving a vacuum between the organs, when there should be celebration. The physiological let down is augmented by emotionality, and we are not designed to care for the other. Total humanness is lacking, thus the commodity aspect, and no diminution of tension in the long run.

Person-oriented people are aware of, conscious of sexual responses being related to other mental and psychological processes (1)which the other person is not simply a dispenser but a participant whose total humanness is to be respected in and out of the actual sexual episode.

Too ideal. Think of it this way, these are all very different at different times—our needs and our commitments fluctuate, so it's necessary to develop a basic structure into which sexuality can be placed. The view—there you are and here and how do I feel about you? How am I in your awareness? With your voice I hear you, not just my ears, but I also see you, and I can sense you in my nerver endings. My brain computes what we are, who we are, perceptively built on a whole system that respects your totality. It's mental, physical, quite metaphysical, if we are conscious. In a way, it must be that if we are to survive as decent, loving human beings. But our emotions are not all love. It has been shown that when Scandinvians are compared with Americans, the former are less developed in steady loving support of the basics in human existence and living. Demonstration of love can be a glance, a smile, or a silent exchange of eyes or nod of head; we understand the common ground of agreement which, if steady enough and emotional enough, can turn into love. We can learn how to speak, how to see, how to feel, to smoll with an acuteness heretofore missing, becoming so filled with the grandeur of nature, that our own life becomes a new experience we never thought possible. How to reduce tension? Learn the right words. Look at one's beloved straight in the eye can be deeply satisfying—yes on the person oriented. It must be that we are all trained to "desecitize" our odors for fear of offending; but there are times of both that we can create bonds strong enough to rein force our growing concern for protection and demonstration; but we are the other bodies which are good—no bad.

Play? It comes through looking at what had not been seen before, to say what had not been spoken; to stroke, to reinforce our growing concern, what had not been touched before. To know in the old biblical sense is to understand intellectually; to perceive sensually. It gives an impact and integration of spirit not attainable in sexual congress alone; but very much part of sex, when the latter is a glorious part; but a part, of the beauty of human aggregation. To be aware is to know, first others, then the other. Next week the possibilities and true areas of contact in our room. Looking at one's beloved straight in the eye can be deeply satisfying—yes on the person oriented. It must be that we are all trained to "desecitize" our odors for fear of offending; but there are times of both that we can create bonds strong enough to rein force our growing concern for protection and demonstration; but we are the other bodies which are good—no bad.

Today’s Commentary
by United Press International

During an assignment in Vietnam in 1965, analyst Newsom wrote a dispatch containing these words: "Splotches of red spread across the war maps of South Vietnam like bleeding wounds. They mark the areas of communist control. They are bigger this year than last and bigger last year than the year before."

American officials explained that this was a special type of war. Geography, it was said, didn't matter.

Most wars in which Americans had fought in the past used a strategy of "clear and hold." In this war, it was "search and destroy."

It helps to explain how the battlefront of the war maps marked off areas of control which soon, if it is hoped, will delineate areas of cease-fire.

It helps to explain also the difficulties of enforcing terms of a cease-fire, especially those banning troop reinforcements and equipment. The South Vietnamese are capable and equipment to replacement but not an improvement of those already Look at it.

At the 17th parallel dividing North and South Vietnam, the boundary line running from the South China Sea to the border with Laos is but 45 miles long.

This is South Vietnam's "I" or, more formally, first corps. Just to the north is Mui Gian pass through which the north for years has filtered men and supplies to the south.

Banyan trees east their leafy branches across the streets of Ban Me Thuot. At the edge of town, naked Montagnard mothers bathe their children in spring water, splashing off a concrete apron built with American aid.

A little farther on is the luxurious lodge from which the Emperor Bao Dai hunted tigers and from which later an American headquarters directed jungle patrols on another deadly game of search and destroy.

Another 30-thousand or so North Vietnamese are believed in the second corps.

Three corps house Saigon...the ultimate target of the Viet Cong and the north Vietnamese...and to the south of that is four corps and the Mekong Delta.

Just to the south of Saigon is plain of reeds, a watery wasteland, westing west all the way to the Gulf of Siam and the border with Cambodia. For two-thousand years it has been a haven for dissidents.

A south Vietnamese patrol once accidentally discovered a communist hospital there which had operated for years under a jungle canopy within a dozen miles of Saigon.

Still farther to the south is the U Minh forest, a huge mangrove swamp and a Viet Cong haven never under allied control.

These are the areas which a cease-fire is supposed to protect against violations.

Position of the Irish Economy

Today, Ireland's principal worry is that of a high rate of inflation. Mr. John Mulcahy, featured speaker at yesterday's Economics' Department meeting held in the Faculty Dining Room, discussed the Irish economy past and present. Mr. Mulcahy is editor of HIBERNIA, which is said to be Ireland's liveliest fortnightly journal of opinion.

According to Mr. Mulcahy, the Irish economy has served as a pattern for economic self-determination, interdependence. Negative exemptions on exports.

Characteristics common to Ireland's economy today are its exceptionally small. It is regularly run with a deficit on balance of trade and lately with a deficit on balance of payments. The steady inflow of capital is due to foreign industry.

Mr. Mulcahy is a graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, with a major in economics and his minors are political science and literature. His traveling lectures, under the auspices of the Committee for Justice in Northern Ireland, cover speaking stops in Montreal, Providence, Washington, D.C., and Boston.

Mr. X Gets Bagged

by E. McLaughlin

What an honor! Mr. X was invited to become a member of the National Honor Society, Delta Mu Delta. An evening of prestigous education leaders and receipt of certification to be a member of Delta Mu Delta. How could he lose?

Mr. X was married, so a fee in excess of $6 was required for his wife's attendance. Okay, he paid.

Mr. and Mrs. X sat down to dinner after a small hassel with ARA. It seems that the director of catering wanted to split them up to "fill in" a few separated vacant places. He didn't seem to understand that Mr. and Mrs. X objected to being separated, so Mr. and Mrs. X solved the problem quite effectively; they simply picked out a table and sat down, oblivious to the sputterings at the door.

Dinner finally arrived. Yes, it was roast sirloin all right, served with a free dinner and drinks, taked by various red-blooded Americans, broccoli. Oh well, so much for the vegetable.

(Mr. X was heard to comment that the "roast Sirloin" tasted suspiciously like the dog meat he had once tried in the Philippines.)

Dinner was finally over, and the speeches began. Unfortunately, the main speaker had obviously never bothered to polish his delivery, with the expected result of delivering a far from enthralling talk.

But now came the moment for Mr. X. The delivery of certificates begun. WPRT-TV followed Mr. X as he walked down the aisle, ascended the stage and was presented an envelope and a congratulatory handshake. Mr. X returned to his seat and eagerly tore open the envelope and read:

President, Bryant Chapter, Delta Mu Delta:

I should like to apply for membership in Delta Mu Delta. Please order the items listed below. Membership Certificate $10 Delta Mu Delta Key $11 Delta Mu Delta Key-Pin $12 My check for the above, payable to Delta Mu Delta, is enclosed.

Signature

The form, by the way, was xeroxed.

After regaining his composure, Mr. X doubled up with suppressed laughter. Just think, his friends and relatives would watch him on the late news, surrounded by pomp and congratulations as he hopefully accepted his bill for membership in... Delta Mu Delta.

Mr. X claimed, though, that the drinks were pretty good.

At the end of the two groups ended their discussions and Mr. Camper invited members of the Council to lunch and to stay into two groups. Each panel met and discussed the meeting was divided into two groups.

MBA Highlights
By Dean Lebovitz
Bryant College's school of education and a Bachelors Degree become more and more readily available to any person who wants it, the Graduate Degree becomes a new goal to be attained, not only for status and position but also as a means of increasing earning power.

This is especially true for the MBA Degree. In New York City, for example, for a business trainee the starting salary may be $9,000; but for an MBA trainee, it may be $13,000.

Therefore, if you are thinking seriously of submitting application to graduate schools, you should not delay in applying. If you are looking for a good source of reference on graduate schools that offer the MBA, may we recommend that you check the publication entitled PROGRAMS OF GRADUATE STUDY IN BUSINESS 1972-73, that is published by Graduate Business Admissions Council.

This publication provides information with regard to career possibilities, curriculum and prerequisites, length of study, expenses and financial aid for 274 colleges and universities in the United States and abroad. These are the schools that require the Admission Test for Graduate Study in Business (ATGSB). Bryant College is listed in this publication.

With regard to admission to the MBA programs at Bryant, the Graduate School admits students as of September of each year. Generally, a college requirement is that you have a scholastic cum of 2.5 for four years of study, or alternatively 2.75 for your last two years of undergraduate study. Furthermore, we expect you to achieve a minimum of 450 on the ATGSB examination. However, in evaluating your application for admission, other factors are taken into consideration, such as relevant work and leadership experience, and reasonable indications of promise.

Naturally we welcome applications from our Bryant men, but business schools generally and Bryant College in particular welcome applications from women and minority students.

If you are interested or think you will be interested in applying for admission to the Graduate programs at Bryant College, we may recommend that you check with the Graduate sooner than later. We require a completed application form, three letters of reference, ATGSB scores, and your college transcripts. However, if you are a Bryant student, the Graduate Office will obtain your Bryant transcript for you.

Country Comfort

Zeiner and Hutson will play at the Coffee House Friday and Saturday night at 9:00 p.m. They have a style similar to the old Crosby, Stills Nash and Young and are worth stopping over for. They performed last year at Country Comfort and it was one of our best weekends. We hope the same holds true this weekend and hope to see you there.

A lot of things will be happening during this semester at Country Comfort, including a leather show after Thanksgiving. If you are looking for quality leather work drop in and have a look at our selections. Also if you are a craftsman in the sense that you make something you think would be interesting, come in and see if you can talk over the possibilities of selling your craft in the Coffee House.

If you are thinking of Fall, 1973 admission, there are four dates on which you can take the examination prior to September, 1973; but we would recommend that you take it as soon as possible.

Bryant College held its annual talent night for the Benefit of the United Fund and raised $100 Monday evening at 8 p.m. in the auditorium.

The two hour show of “Bryant’s Best” was well received by a number of curious and donating faculty and students present. Jon Frede, editor-in-chief of the Archway, wore a lab coat and made his informal welcome to everyone at the show. He started right in with introducing the first act: Russ and Steve, folk-duo.

Russ Francis and Steve

The combo of “Russ and Steve,” entertain with their now famous song, “You Can’t Change Dicks in the Middle of a Screw.”

“Irene Dunn and Pat Keelley sang a few duets. April in Paris, Autumn Leaves, and Summer Place were the most familiar of their numbers. Their voices blended very well together and their piano accompaniment, Al Simms, did a splendid job on his solo as well as playing for Irene and Pat.

Secondly, “Smithfield,” formerly known as “Providence,” billed as the hottest new group on the charts. Dr. Fischman on piano, Steve Cole on bass, and Joe Holtzman on the drums, played excellent renditions of a few Chicago hits. Satan Doll, Spinning Wheel, and Watermelon Man were the other numbers that

“Show Boat.” His deep and rich voice was a surprise to all.

Two very fine acts were the hit of the show. First Irene Dunn and Pat Keelley sang a few duets. April in Paris, Autumn Leaves, and Summer Place were the most familiar of their numbers. Their voices blended very well together and their piano accompaniment, Al Simms, did a splendid job on his solo as well as playing for Irene and Pat.

Secondly, “Smithfield,” formerly known as “Providence,” billed as the hottest new group on the charts. Dr. Fischman on piano, Steve Cole on bass, and Joe Holtzman on the drums, played excellent renditions of a few Chicago hits. Satan Doll, Spinning Wheel, and Watermelon Man were the other numbers that

Dr. Burton Fischman introduces his new jazz ensemble, “Smithfield.”

Valenti sang a number of memorable folk songs and added a bit of political satire about Tricky Dicky to their act. A hearty round of applause brought Jon Frede back to the stage and he made every effort to be a good master of ceremonies by telling the audience a joke about the silent monk. His attempt was fruitless for no one laughed; just still silence throughout the auditorium.

Also appearing that evening was Richard Woolf, another member of the Archway, he sang ‘Sunrise Sunset’ from “Fiddler on the Roof,” a Tewy he’s not!! The “God Squad,” a 12 member folk-rock group opened with two songs from “Godspell,” a current Broadway hit musical. Their final number, ’I am the Resurrection,’ was a catalyst for some hand clapping from the spectators.

Between acts, Jon Frede, tried a few of his jokes again and then resorted to awarding bowling trophies but only two winners out of nine were there to accept. An impromptu action was held for the other seven trophies. Jon Frede is not to be hailed as an accomplished auctioneer.

A special treat of the evening was when John Falardeau, manager of the bowling lanes and Old Man River’ from the musical caused a roaring round of applause from a most appreciative audience.

Jon Frede, bombs out on another worthless pun.

Master of Ceremonies,
Bryant Soccer Ends Best Season

The Bryant College soccer team ended its 72 season with a hard fought battle against ninth ranked Babson. This past season has been successful in many ways. First is the jelling together of this heavily loaded Soph squad, and the discipline the team showed. Secondly and very important is the fan turnout. That itself is a victory because Bryant will loose veterans Skip Harlow, Andy Stinton, and Bob Juskowiak, but should be able to fill these spots with incoming freshman some of them scholarship bound.

Coach Gerry Guy feels that Bryant will have a team to reckon with in the future and this power will hopefully be fulfilled by returning players Jim (Tex) Teixeira, Bill Flanagan, Hank Siepowski, Bruce Lostocco, Dave Sutherland, Ken Nigro, Tom Catto, Mark Shoham, Jeff L. Goldberg and John Warren. Bob Bauer, Jeff Goldberg, Steve Leech, and Dale Speicher will also be back.

With soccer gaining popularity and scholarships being given there is only one way for the Bryant sport to be heading and that is up. The squad has a lot of talent and the teams 3-8-1 record is really no evidence of the strong team Bryant really has. Next year should prove to be exciting so score a goal and root on your Bryant soccer team.

Their Winning Way

By Alan Temkin

SHOWDOWN!

LSU Vs. Alabama

By Peter Lockatell

At last college football fans will see the long awaited series of clashes between unbeaten and nationally ranked football teams. In the past, there has been only one game each season, which has earned the grand title “Game of the Century.” This season has already four upcoming games that could earn that dubious distinction. The first game, in “the game of the century series” will take place in Birmingham, Alabama. Unbeaten LSU takes on unbeaten and nationally ranked Alabama.

Independent Teams Battle

For Playoffs

by Jeff Doppelt

On Tuesday, the two top independent teams met in a battle for the playoffs. Top of the Twelfth was undefeated with one tie. The Eagles were once beaten. The supremacy of 44 against 43 Raiders showed again. A Lucifer to Costello pass late in the first half helped give the Eagles a 14-7 halftime intermission. The final score of 30-6 was a dominating defeat for the Top of the Twelfth.

Despite the Raider win, three teams still have a chance to make the playoffs. With one game left to play, the Eagles are in first place with a record of 9-0-1-4 ties; Top of the Twelfth is in second place with a record of 8-1-1-7 points; and Down Five is in third place with a record of 6-0-4-10 points.

The fraternity playoffs have long been decided. TKE, with a record of 8-0-1-7 points has won Division A. The Eagles, with the identical record, has won Division B again. This playoff game will be either West vs. East on Monday, depending on the weather.

The winner of the TKE vs. KT game will play the independent teams in the regional round.

College Football

by Peter Lockstall

As usual, Southern California is on top of the weekly UPI Board of Coaches Major College Football Ratings. Snared a total of twenty-seven first-place votes, to end up with a whopping overall total of 342 points. The Trojans had little trouble increasing their unbeaten record to 9-0 with a 44-13 trouncing of Washington State. Anthony Davis paced the Southern Cal attack on runs of 3, 6, and 14 yards. Besides his three touchdowns, Davis was also personally responsible for 196 rushing yards. Southern Cal will not be in action this week, but they collide with archival UCLA next week.

Nebraska moved into the number two spot by humbling Colorado 38-10. Quarterback Dave Humm passed for one touchdown, and John Rodgers, Gary Dixon and Bill Ols paid for others in the win. The victory ups Nebraska’s record to number three ranking. The Tide will play SEC rival LSU this week in Birmingham. Look for the profile of the game in this week’s sports section.

The rest of the rankings stayed the same as last week. Ohio State maintains their fourth place ranking, and rival Michigan holds down fifth place. Louisiana State is in sixth spot, followed by Oklahoma, UCLA, Texas, and Auburn.

I had my best picking percentage with last week’s contests. I managed to stab four out of five, with the Air Force loss being my only mistake. This week, look for Ohio State to continue their Big Ten dominance over Michigan State. Ohio State will not be sidetracked with Michigan coming up in a few weeks. Navy should continue their fine season against Pittsburgh. Navy will take ‘em by at least one touchdown. UCLA should also have little trouble with Washington. The Uclaurs are pointing towards USC, and the Huskies are not the same team that started the season. In the South, look for Texas to take Baylor.

This week’s upset—LSU over Alabama.

Phi Ep Wins First

Phi Ep, UCLA, TKE and TKE Remain Undefeated

PHI EPSILON PI-14
TAU EPSILON PHI-0

On November 5, 1972, Phi Ep dominated the first football game in recent history by a score of 14-0.

The historical game began with Phi Ep handing the ball to TKE, but they were unable to move the ball as the Phi Ep defense showed its football strength. The Phi Ep Big Blue Machine began rolling down the field. On the first Phi Ep possession, the play of the game. Pet (Willy Joe) Tomack threw the half-back option to Larry (Moose) Nenstrom who put the ball (the Pela) Bedf (Bedford) with a 30-yard touchdown pass. Moose added the extra point and at the end of one minute of play, the score was Phi Ep-7; TKE-0.

The remainder of the first half was controlled by the Phi Ep defense. Some continued to stymie the TKE offense with three interceptions which raised the Phi Ep scores. The first half goal was missed by inches with five seconds to go in the first half and the score remained the same—Phi Ep-7; TKE-0.

As the second half began, Phi Ep’s offense began by Steve (Honeymoon) Bartlett and George (Bubba) Audette kept the Phi Ep offense intact. An interception by Polon helped start another drive. With five minutes left, Phi Ep was on TKE’s 2-yard line after a Moore-to-Bedford pass resulted in a defensive pass interference call. The next play was a pass from Pet Tomack to Moose Bedf in end zone. Moose kicked the extra point and the score was Phi Ep-14; TKE-0.

Lloyd Wehbeas was TKE’s outstanding player as he intercepted two Phi Ep passes. The outstanding play of the TKE’s entire team, as their offense rolled up more yardage than all their previous games.

Phi Sig (27)

TKE (0)

A bad snap from center proved to be the difference in the game. As neither team on the wet field could move the ball. However, credit must go to both defensive squads as between them they had six interceptions.

To the innocent by-slander it was a very dull game until the fourth quarter when Ron De Florio and Harvey Baker were ejected in order to try and end the game. In a not so exciting game this had to be the height of the afternoon.

The final score as the field cleared was Phi Sig (27) versus TKE (0).

Phi Ep (10)

Beta (7)

Beta scored first as they moved the ball from the field led by Q.B. Paul Choutka and finally took the ball in for a score on a pass from Choutka to McCallum.

And as the first half ended, a very inspired Beta team had the undefeated Kappa team down 7 to 0. But as the second half began a very poised Kappa team showed why they were undefeated. Under the leadership of Q.B. Joe O’Leirhe the drive patiently and methodically and capitalized their drive on a center eligible pass to Luke Jeffers. With the conversion being good the score was tied at 7 all.

Beta was forced to give the ball up to Kappa. But the timely Beta defense stiffened and forced Kappa to a fourth and ten on Beta’s 25 yard line. Electing not to go but to try for the three points they brought in field goal ace Carl Wiles who booted the up rights for the winning margin.

In all, only one touchdown in the better games of the season. The final score Phi (10) and Beta (7).

TKE (21)

Phi Sig (0)

It was another big victory for TKE as the rumbled to a 21 to 0 victory over Phi Sig. The first scoring play came on a pass from “Mountain” Lyons to wide receiver Dan Martin.

On the next set of plays a very weak Phi Sig offense was forced to punt the ball to TKE. And once again, the precision passing of Lyons led TKE on the 55 yard another score. This one on a center eligible pass to “Pudge” Greco.

As the second half started, two key interceptions by Phi Sig’s Brian Lombardo stalled two TKE drives that were headed for T.D.’s.

With five minutes left in the game TKE managed another score to wide receiver Gary Cohen.

TKE stand outs on defense were “Parko” Perkins and Dennis Rennie each had an interception.

Phi Sig (37)

Phi Ep (0)

The opening kickoff went to Delta Sig on their own 20 yard line from there. Q.B. Bill Nieman led the Delta Sig offense deep into Phi Ep’s territory. Not being able to score they called on the sure foot of Mike McGregor to kick a field goal for the first score of the game.

No sooner had Phi Ep gotten the ball when middle line backer McGregor intercepted a pass from Delta Sig’s first T.D. A pass from Nieman to center Bob McDonald.

On the next set of downs a strong Delta Sig defense forced Phi Ep into a punting situation. However a fire up Bob Hagen managed to get a hand on the ball blocking the punt. This set up Delta Sig’s third scoring play. A 40 yard bomb from Nieman to McGregor.

Delta Sig was not content to sit on their lead and with 38 seconds left in the half, Bob Tringale intercepted a stray pass and lumbered 30 yards for another T.D. With the conversion being successful, halftime came with Delta Sig up by 23 points.

On the second half Delta Sig managed two more T.D.’s. The first on a pass again to McGregor and then Q.B. Bill Nieman took one in himself on a sweep.

A fine all around effort by the team ended with many mistakes and capitalized on all of them.

For Delta Sig, however, it was more than just a victory because this game marked the complete return of the injured Pete Gordy.

Once again the final score was Delta Sig (37) and Phi Sig (0).

PRO BASKETBALL

Julius Erving of the Virginia Squires continues to lead individual scorers in the ABA. Statistics released Monday night show Erving with a 25.9 points per game. Artis Gilmore of the Kentucky Colonels leads the league in rebounds with 19.5 rebounds per game. These latest stats are not shocking, both Gilmore and Erving led the ABA in each category last season.

In other ABA news, Commissioner Robert Carson has made a new rule for foul calls. With a foul called, the injured player will be taken away because he hasn't fought any name number. Among other things, Ali said Joe Frazier's title in come as a disappointment to Brooks. Long a fine minor league reminder, Ross finally got his chance this season, and BOXING Commission's decision late last month to give the cup to out for at least two months. His shoulder will be in a cast for time on June 6th. He missed the beginning of this season, for the play any more until the knee was worked back into shape.
