CALCUTTA, India - A open coffin carrying the body of Mother Teresa was taken from St. Thomas Catholic church Sunday, where the Nobel laureate will be in state for the next week. Wailing mourners filed quickly through the church before Mother Teresa's body was taken from its wooden coffin and placed under a glass case on a four-foot platform draped in white and blue cloth. Among Sunday's mourners was Indian Prime Minister K. K. Gujral, who old reporters his country was "fortunate that Mother Teresa started her mission of compassion in India." The 87-year-old Roman Catholic nun died Friday [September 5, 1997] of a heart attack.

LONDON - Prince Charles pleaded Sunday for Britain's press to relax its tactics on the royals enough to give his son peace to deal with their mother's death. "The Prince of Wales wants some time and space for the boys so they can come to terms with their loss and prepare for the future."

WASHINGTON - Lingering effects of a frosty 500 years called the Little Ice Age may be helping to slow global warming, according to a new study University of New Hampshire researchers say cold winds roaring over the North and South poles are almost the same now as they were during the period of global chill that started in 1400 and apparently ended at the beginning of this century. Other scientists say the research does not mean there is an underlying warming trend to the climate. "This engine was full throttle, then all of a sudden I didn't hear anything. The engine just quit. It died," said Chris Rossi, an airport maintenance worker who saw the crash. Four people were declared dead shortly after the 5 p.m. crash, state police said. Two men in their 30s were flown to Rhode Island Hospital for treatment, hospital spokesman Rick Pieter said. A fifth victim died late Saturday at the hospital. The surviving passenger was in critical condition late Saturday. Gas from a ruptured fuel tank leaked from the plane, Roan said. Several firefighters were hurt in two explosions at the scene, but the injuries were not serious. Distraught staff of the Boston-Providence Skydiving Center hugged, cried and stared at the fire trucks and ambulances that crowded the runway. One young man who said he knew some of the victims sat on the ground staring numbly at the crash site. "I don't feel like I can talk about it right now," he said.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The New Archway

Welcome to The New Archway. As the new editor-in-chief, I want to tell you how excited I am to head an organization with great potential. I want The Archway to concentrate on issues that concern Bryant students. Our mission is simple: to educate and inform our readers about the issues facing the world, the nation and Bryant College. The Archway will continue to voice the ideas, comments, and/or criticisms of its readers.

After all, it is you, the readers, who we will be writing for.

This year, there will be a few changes in the format, layout, and content of The Archway. Some of those changes include: new layout, more in-depth coverage of Bryant and national issues, more pictures and graphics, and finally a new monthly business section. These changes are designed to bring about a higher readership, and most importantly, to make The Archway an outstanding college newspaper.

The Front Page will now have a different look. We will run a column devoted to keeping track of the news in our world. A second column will appear next to the first one. This column will be news that happens in the Bryant Community. We are hoping that this will keep you better informed of current affairs both on and off campus.

Inside the paper, we have set aside an entire page for world and national news. Our focus on Bryant College and its surrounding communities will be the subject of our next three to four pages. This part of the paper will consist of features and columns written by Bryant students and professors.

Our Sports section will consist of two pages, with one devoted to Bryant sports. This page will give details of how each varsity team fared in the past week, this week's sports schedule, and the Athlete of the Week. In addition, we will have a weekly interview with a Bryant Athlete. The second page of the Sports section will consist of a weekly column by the new Sports Editor, national sports news and other newsworthy articles.

The back page of The Archway will be comprised of Entertainment news. We will have a weekly update on the top songs of the week as well as top movie receipts. The Entertainment page will have Movie, Theatrical, and restaurant reviews, along with any other noteworthy stories.

Last but not least, The Archway will run a monthly business section. The business section will report on the biggest business news of the month. It will also include a stock market report, personal finance column, tips for job searching, and a major feature.

With all of the changes taking place, I would like to introduce some of the key personnel that will make this possible. First and foremost, Melissa Criscuolo, is the Managing Editor. Joyce Chang resumes her position of Photography Editor. Anne Bradnick returns for a final year as the Production Manager. Danielle Porter is the new Copy Editor. Eileen Demjen will fulfill the duties of Advertising Sales Manager. Our new Sports Editor, Columnist David Donnarrummo and Gayle Zahnke; and finally, staff writer Geoffrey Toth.

Again, I am looking forward to leading The Archway this upcoming year. With you continual support, I hope The Archway will become a quality newspaper.

Sincerely,

Paula Iacono
Director, Alumni Relations

Anti-smoking groups urge quick action on tobacco deal

by The Associated Press

The tobacco deal, laden as an historic truce just two months ago, now appears to be in serious trouble. Supporters say President Clinton can save it but only if he acts within weeks.

Clinton returns from vacation this week to finalize his decision, and Congress faces a deadline on the tobacco controverted deal is unlikely to pass this year unless he jumpstarts it quickly.

But Clinton, whose own aides still see fighting over the deal, is under growing pressure to let the deadline pass from critics who say Congress could make a serious mistake by acting in haste.

"My advice would be for Congress to take its time to get this job done right rather than get it done right now," said Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., chosen to lead Senate Democrats on the issue.

"There have been some very, very preliminary contacts there" about settling, is all the industry's chief negotiator, I. Phil Carlton, will say. But if Congress doesn't act on the federal settlement this year, it could unravel, Carlton warned.

"I think the president of the United States wants to do this thing," said Carlton, who held eleven-hour meetings with top White House aides last week to press his point.

The proposed national tobacco deal, if ratified by Congress, would settle 40 state tobacco lawsuits by setting new federal policy. Tobacco companies would pay $368.5 billion over 25 years, strictly cash advertising and pay up to $2 billion a year in fines if youth smoking doesn't drop. In return, they won legal protections and limits on how much the government could regulate nicotine.

But critics say Big Tobacco won too much, and the price tag is emerging as a particular concern. Sources say at least two Republican committee chairmen have joined Democrats in discussing whether cigarette prices should be forced to rise by over $1 a pack to slash teen smoking, instead of the 62-cent increase the deal is expected to cause. The Clinton administration already has said it will add $5 billion to the deal to compensate for a rebate the tobacco companies won when Congress voted to let them deduct the new 15-cent cigarette tax from any settlement. Clinton also will demand stricter nicotine control and higher youth smoking fines.

But congressional leaders said this week they have no desire to tackle such a complex issue in the two months left in this year's session, and will try only if Clinton quickly provides a clear outline of a deal that he would sign.

Tobacco companies say if they are forced to wait until next year, the deal will collapse. Why?

Minnesota's lawsuit begins in January, and it is the one the industry most fears.

Industry attorneys are holding daily conference calls to discuss concessions that would persuade Clinton to jumpstart the deal, but say they'll make no final decisions until the White House tips the industry to the president's final demands.

"There has been absolutely no agreement to change anything," Carlton said.

The wait-and-see game is proving tough for the nation's largest public health organizations who want the deal stiffened but also fear delay could prove a lost opportunity.

"There is a real sense of urgency ... and there is concern that if it's not accomplished this year, it could slip through our fingers," said Matt Myers of the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids.

WorldCom buying CompuServe in deal boosting AOL

by The Associated Press

CompuServe is being sold to telecommunications provider WorldCom Inc., in a $1.2 billion deal that will strengthen rival America Online Inc.'s hand in the computer online business.

WorldCom, based in Jackson, Miss., said Monday it has agreed to buy CompuServe from H&R Block Inc., which owns 80 percent of the online service, for stock worth about $1.2 billion. It then plans to trade CompuServe's content and its 2.6 million consumer subscribers along with $175 million to AOL, which already has about 9 million subscribers. In exchange, WorldCom will get AOL's America Online Inc., a joint division, which provides Internet access mainly for large business customers. It will also get a five-year contract to service AOL's network customers.

The deal makes the fourth-biggest long-distance service provider provider a powerful player in the online world when giving America Online a longer lead in the business of consumer online service.

"We are excited about the prospect of forming this strategic relationship with AOL, the leading online service provider," said Bernard F. Ebbers, president and CEO of WorldCom, in a statement.

WorldCom owns UUNet Technologies Inc., one of the largest Internet service providers.

The deal would have to be approved by government antitrust regulators. If approved, AOL's biggest competitor would be Microsoft Corp.'s Microsoft Network.

WorldCom has been on the market for roughly a year by H&R Block. A plan to make CompuServe a separate stock company owned by H&R Block shareholders, a realignment planned for late last year, was withdrawn after Internet stocks in general declined.

WorldCom's $1.2 billion offer for CompuServe amounts to about $13 a share. CompuServe stock closed Friday at $13.50 per share.

CompuServe pioneered the online business in the 1980s, but it was overtaken by America Online in the 1990s.

Welcome back to Bryant! We’re happy to have everyone back on campus and anxious to assist you in using its technology to your best advantage. Last year, Information Technology connected over 250 of you to the campus network, providing Internet access from every residence hall and townhouse. This year we anticipate doubling that number to 500, or about 30% of the total resident population. To make this process smoother, we have instituted several changes to the installation process.

This year we have again contracted an outside vendor to install your network card if you need help, only this year the service is provided free of charge. A technician from DataCare will be in Meeting Room 3 of the Bryant Center every Monday through Thursday from noon to 5 p.m., until September 30. After that, we will provide installation assistance on an appointment basis only. The bookstore will be selling 1COM network cards and patch cables throughout the year for your convenience.

Once your network card is installed, or if your system already has a network card, you still need to inform Information Technology that you are ready to connect your computer to the net. Make note of the number above the data port in your room and head for the Koffler Technology Center. Connect in the World Wide Web via Netscape and go to the address http://web.bryant.edu/resweb. This page provides you with an electronic form you must fill out for network access. An e-mail message is sent to our Network Services team, who will activate your data port and contact you with further information.

Please note that if you were connected to the Internet from your residence hall last year you still need to use the ResWeb page to get reconnected this year. Not only do we need to activate the data port, but the IP address you used last year is no longer necessary. We now use a new addressing scheme called DHCP, which issues your computer an IP address each time you connect to the net.

Everyone should be aware that although we are not requiring you to sign up for an appointment to have your network card installed, that does not mean your machine will be ready to pick up the same day you drop it off. Chances are that many people will be bringing in their PCs the first several days, and there are only so many machines that can be worked on in five hours.

Once you have been connected to the ResNet, if you have any problems with connections or computer problems in general, you can contact one of our Resident Computer Consultants, or RCCs. We have set up an RCC troubleshooting line for you to report problems. Just dial ext. 6550 and leave a voice message detailing your problem, and an RCC will contact you with a solution or to set up an appointment.

If you have any questions, comments, or concerns regarding the ResNet installation or our support services, please contact Richard Botelho (ext. 6299) or Michael Thompson (ext. 6349) or miker@bryant.edu.

ARMY ROTC CORNER
SFC Brad O. Stubb

hopefully everyone is settling down now that school is under way. I have noticed that a lot of changes have taken place over the summer, with new people coming to Bryant and all. We also have had a recent addition to our department staff that I believe will be of great benefit to all of our cadets. Tim del Giudice, our new counselor, is a former officer in the Army and qualified as a Ranger and a military parachutist. As a retiree, Colonel Lieutenamt Mather is the new Professor of Military Science at Bryant College. He recently retired from the Army after twenty years of service. A native of Massachusetts, he graduated from West Point, held a Master of Engineering degree from the University of Virginia, and is licensed as a professional engineer. His career was cut short by an accident that took his leg, but he continues to serve as an officer in the Army and qualified as a Ranger and a military parachutist. As a retiree, Colonel Lieutenant Mather is part of an experiment testing the concept of firing ex-military personnel to teach ROTC on selected college campuses.

The Rev. Thomas J. Trepeter, the head of the University’s Campus Ministry, has adapted his campus ministry to include the needs of our Bryant College students who are attending military colleges in Alabama, Henry’s, West Point, and the U.S. Naval Academy. Henry’s, military nursing schools, Civil War reenacting, and being near or—better even—on, the ocean.

This year we will be featuring the Leadership Principle of the Week in our article. We feel the leadership principles that we teach to our cadets, and the principles which Army leaders abide by, can also be related to the corporate world. The principles of Army leadership are excellent guidelines not only for the Army but for civilian leaders. The principles are universal and represent fundamental truths that have stood the test of time. Developed in a 1948 leadership study, the principles were first included in Army leadership doctrine in 1958. We hope you enjoy them and become a better leader by applying them.

Leadership Principle of the Week: Be Technically and Tactically Proficient. As leaders you are expected to be technically and tactically proficient at your job. This means that you can do your job in any situation that is required to accomplish your mission. In addition, you are responsible for training your subordinates to do their jobs, and for understanding your leader in the event you must assume those duties. You develop technical and tactical proficiency by training. This means attending formal schools (institutional training), in your day-to-day jobs (operational assignments), and from professional reading and personal study (self-development).

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Halogen Floor Lamps banned...

Due to the possibility of fire, halogen floor lamps are banned from all areas of the campus as of January 1, 1997. These lamps are marketed as "Torchiere" and have an unprotected 300 or 500 watt halogen bulb.

Because of the high operating temperature—in excess of 1000 degrees—any type of combustible material that comes in contact with the lit bulb can ignite in seconds. In addition to one small fire at Bryant caused by decorations igniting from the heat of these lamps, we have also been made aware of other fires on other campuses caused by sheets and curtains catching fire.

Due to a very real concern for FIRE SAFETY and LIFE HAZARDS, Bryant has decided to prohibit this type of lamp. INSPECTION of rooms will be done soon. Students in violation of the policy will be issued a $50.00 citation, and the lamp will be confiscated.

Thank You,

John Rattigan

Interact with Business Owners in SBDC Business Planning Series

The Bryant College Small Business Development Center is offering Bryant College students the opportunity to attend the SBDC's successful Business Planning Series. These four part, 2 hour seminars are held around RI throughout the year. Attendees at these seminars learn how to write a business plan which is critical for managing a business and a necessary part of a loan application. For Bryant students, this is an opportunity to attend a seminar where the participants vary from start-ups to those who have been in business many years. Experiencing first-hand in a relaxed roundtable setting what small business owners go through in writing a business plan and managing a business today is a great opportunity for those students who think that someday they may want to own a business.

This fall, the series will be held as follows:

9/23, 25, 30, 10/2    Aquidneck Island
9/15, 17, 22, 24    Business Information Center, 530 Broad St, Providence
9/16, 18, 23, 25    Fleet Bank, Johnston
9/30, 10/2, 7, 9    Bryant College
10/6, 8, 14, 16    Citizens Bank, Pawtucket
10/21, 23, 28, 30    Quonset Point, N Kingston
11/3, 5, 10, 12    Providence Chamber of Commerce

All sessions run from 6 pm-8 pm. A Business Planning guide is included. The reduced student fee is $25. Class size is limited. Please call 232-6000 ext 25552 to register and for further information.

92 PRO FM vs. The Greeks
Softball Game for the Benefit of the Smithfield YMCA

Rebecca Robertson and Mike Petrussk
Greek Public Relations Co-Chairs

The Greek Community has challenged local radio station, 92 PRO FM, to a softball game to benefit the Smithfield YMCA. This game will raise funds and support the local community of Smithfield. The Greeks will be hosting this game on the softball field on Sunday, September 14 at 1:00 p.m. One member of each Greek organization will be playing on the Greek side, and members of the 92 PRO FM staff will be on the opposing side. We would like to invite the entire Bryant community to join us and support the Smithfield YMCA. There will be refreshments served at the field for all of the spectators. Representatives from the Smithfield YMCA will be present at the event.

92 PRO FM has generously donated numerous tickets and prizes to be raffled off at the game. This event will be a great way to show your support and enthusiasm for Bryant and the town of Smithfield, while also entering to win great tickets and prizes!

Sponsor the Greek Community in their mission to raise money for the Smithfield YMCA. Any donations can be sent to Box 4510 or the Greek Life Office. We hope to see you all out at the field!

The brothers would like to welcome everyone who made it back for this year. Congratulations to the Class of 2001. Anyone interested in Monday Night Football is welcome to the floor to watch the game (Hall 2, Floor 1).

As of this week, Jefro has only 15. There is something wrong with the TV on the third floor. Proctor is becoming our new plumber. Smile is existing in the Army. The dog got psychiatrist. Opi and Staff took 2 out of 5 vs. Lark and Monte. Marks looks good in red nail polish.

Quote of the week: “I am wanting like Lark trying to doa math problem.”

Welcome back, Bryant College! Despite popular belief, Jesse, Harper and I have returned for at least one more semester. Crash unfortunately wasn’t so lucky. Speaking of Crash, Remy would like to thank his single, with the sister has been putting to good use.

We would like to thank Bertie for finally giving Racey some sense of style. Now he needs a tolerance, as he was seen praying to the ceramic god in his suite earlier this week. Apparently Lew, Samtii, Hipman, and Spyder have started a heavy-weight training to prepare for the Smithfield Grammar School bench press competition. Some guys in the fraternity would to like to thank everyone who came down from Framingham State this weekend, and Chad for picking them up for no apparent reason. Jesse isn’t one of these.

Macko has fully recovered from the two heart attacks over the summer and is working harder than ever. Carmae Rockmore is ready to go from 4G until he can control his actions and complete a full sentence that somebody can understand.

Jessie was in the ROTC on Saturday, and Chad for picking them up for no apparent reason. Jesse isn’t one of these.

Hello and welcome back everybody! The sisters of Delta Zeta would like to welcome the class of 2001 to Bryant. A belated happy birthday to our sisters who hit the big 21 over the summer, and, of course, those of us who turned OTHER ages as well. Congratulations to all.

4. Clothing drive for donations of warm clothes, including jackets and sweaters that don’t fit anymore.

3. Trick or Treat for canned goods. Christmas, Thanksgiving, and many, many more canned good drives.

We can keep you up to date with future events if you come down to the next meeting on Wednesday, September 17 at 4:00 p.m. in the Lobby of 16 [That’s 16, W 1697, @ 4 p.m.]

There are three things to talk about, so where should we begin. We hope everybody had a great summer. Sorry that there was no newsletter last week. I know all the Phi Kappa fans out there were looking forward to seeing our weekly column.

Welcome back everyone and welcome class of 2001! I hope everyone had a great first week. It was definitely crazy. All these classes seemed to get in the way a bit though. J.K. I hope that everyone had an awesome summer, even though it seems like we just left. It's good to see that the freshmen seem to be adjusting to Bry­ ant life pretty well. There's nothing like going around the world your first weekend away at college.

Sorority Rush. It's a great way to meet left. It's good to see that the freshmen are being spotted everywhere. Marinna and Billie, I was proud to join the night at Corncrest ones! Good feel free to come to our practice next week. We start practices next Monday at 3:30 p.m., at the field behind the Unistructure. Everyone is welcome to play, and there is no experience necessary.

This Thursday, we are having a Parent's night. Please come and support our team. That is all for this week, but we leave you with a question to ponder: "Who has Aries in the Pants?"
Pointless Thoughts

Doc Tien

A few random and pointless comments on the wide world of sports:

- Hey, didn't you used to be the Green Bay Packers?
- I wonder what would happen if the New England Patriots played someone good?
- You might as well hand the MVP to Drew Bledsoe right now the way he's padding his stats against the drags of the NFL.
- The Patriots have not played anyone worth mentioning so far, so it's hard to say that this team is headed anywhere.
- They're going to re-play some of the big boys before anyone should start making plans for San Diego.
- It all starts this week when Bill Parcells brings his New York Jets into town.
- I think it will be a nice, quiet game.
- Hey Steve Young, do you remember who you are?
- Without Young and Jerry Rice, the 49ers should start making plans for next year. Jim Druckenmiller and JJ Stokes are not the answers.
- The only reason that the 49ers were able to beat St. Louis was because of the play of Tony "No Hands" Banks.
- I think you could super glue the ball to his hands and he would still lose it.
- Dallas vs. Green Bay. Or not.
- After watching the Jacksonville Jaguars win again with another backup QB, you must be wondering whether it's the system not the quarterback.
- If so, they just wasted about 30 million dollars.
- Hey, Barry Sanders is your wallet too heavy for you?
- I don't know about you, but some of those college games were actually exciting this weekend.
- Maybe it was because Nebraska wasn't playing Little Lady U. from Alaska.
- With all the talk of a new era, the Norte Dame Fighting Irish looked like the old one.
- Now that's progress.
- Hey, didn't you used to be the San Francisco Giants?
- It's great to watch Jamie's run at Roger Maris' record, but let's be real. Unless he gets softball thrown at him, there is not enough games left for him to do it.
- That NL Cy Young race is looking pretty interesting isn't it?
- Maybe someone should remind Tim Martinez that baseball is still played after the All-Star break.
- Someone tell the Chicago White Sox they're supposed to be out of it.
- Hey, didn't you use to be the Detroit Red Wings?
- The Wings come into this season with some of their key players out. If that remains then you can look for another team drinking from the Cup this season.
- It's something to lose your best definsman in a car accident, but to not have your best all around player out because of a contract dispute is going to be tough.
- I hope everyone knows who I'm talking about because I just refuse to spell those names.
- Someone tell me why a player like Eric Lindros should deserve to be the NHL's highest paid player when he hasn't proved he can carry a team.
- The Flyers had Lindros and the Legion of Doom and they couldn't do anything with it.
- I just don't think that the Pittsburgh Penguins are gonna win much in the post Mario Lemieux era.
- Hey Joe Sakic, can I get a loan?
- Fifteen million up front for a player is why too much, but that's the cost of winning.
- Hockey training camps start this week.
- Hockey training camps start this week.
- Hey Michael Jordan, now that you're running Nike, you might try to get Kevin Garnett on your payroll. He does need the money.
- What is Garnett thinking? He's going to be saving coupons because he can't get by on 17 million a year. Instead he should keep in mind that no team will have the 22 million he's looking for come next summer.
- Damn, now he's only going to being able to buy one Jag a month.
- Anybody watch those thrilling soccer games over the weekend?
- Or did you fall asleep like me.
- The one great thing about this weekend was watching Venus Williams play in the US Open finals.

What do you find most challenging about playing division two soccer?

The fitness level is so much higher and more demanding. There is a lot more running and cardiovascular work. We have a light spring season and are on our own for the summer.

What was your summer preparation and pre-season training like?

I lived on campus during the summer, so after work I would go run for a couple of miles and play around with the ball at the indoor track. I also lifted every couple of days. For pre-season, we came back just over a week early. It was hell. Our first day had a 6 mile run. It was the toughest pre-season I have ever gone through physically. But, we needed it. We had triple sessions every day—9 a.m., noon, and 3 p.m., and 6:30 p.m. to dark.

How do you handle the extra responsibility of being a senior captain?

For me, I am usually a quiet person. Now I have to speak up more and fire up the guys instead of just leading by example. The other captain, Scott, and the five or six other seniors are also a big help in leading the team and getting them focused.

What motivates you and keeps your focus?

The comradeship of the team and spending so much time with the team is a motivator. We are like a small family. It is school and soccer, so I hardly have any free time. Plus, the reward is winning, especially at away games and when enjoying the ride back home.

What team goals do you have for the year?

Our team goal is to be over 50% and to make the NE-10 tournament.

There is a good possibility you will break a series of soccer records this year like all-time leading scorer and career points, and you may even be an All-American candidate. How do you plan on dealing with all that added pressure?

Off the field, I think about it, but when I'm on the field I don't think about trying to score. I try to concentrate on helping the team, so it doesn't matter who scores. I could care less if I break the records, but the guys give me a hard time about it at practice everyday.

How do you keep your daily three-hour practice intense enough to bring the team to the NE-10 tournament?

I don't. There are days when I don't even want to practice because we are so good. That is what makes everyone work so hard. That is what makes everyone work so hard.

Since soccer is such a team-based sport, do you and your teammates go to extra lengths to be a team off the field?

Yes, we do. The night before a game, we usually have a team dinner in one of the senior townhouses. We hang out all of the time, go to the movies, and share many mutual friends. After Saturday games, all of the parents being food up to the Bulldog room for the team, friends, and family. It is a tradition that started even before I got here.

How has the Bryant soccer program evolved over the past few years?

It has changed coaches two years ago. Now we are getting a lot more skilled players and the recruiting has gotten a lot better. The level of coaching has gotten a lot better with Coach Seanus Purcell. His knowledge of the game is incredible. He knows everything. He knows his stuff.

Carvalho will open the season with the explosive Rooney in the middle, flanked by co-captain Carvalho, Bryant's career-assist leader (3,183), and steadily improving junior Marcie Monaco.

Spielberg takes top spot on ‘Forbes’ list

by The Associated Press

The dinosaurs of The Lost World carried Steven Spielberg to the top of Forbes magazine’s list of the 40 best-paid entertainers — and lifted the story’s author, Michael Crichton, to No. 4, the highest any writer has reached.

Spielberg earned $313 million in 1996-97 for directing and producing the sequel to Jurassic Park and from related merchandise.

Crichton, who wrote the book The Lost World, also benefited from the film. His $102 million take was more than books alone could ever bring.

Right behind Spielberg was another special-effects movie maven, George Lucas, who remade his sci-fi trinity, Star Wars, The Return of the Jedi and The Empire Strikes Back, this year and raked in $241 million.

Oprah Winfrey, last year’s No. 1, finished third with $201 million. Last year, she needed a mere $171 million to top the list.

Spielberg and Crichton had been trading first and second place since 1993. Spielberg was last No. 1 in 1995.

The rankings, included in the magazine’s Sept. 22 issue, combine entertainers’ two-year estimated gross earnings in an attempt to compile a more accurate assessment of overall income.

The Beatles came in at fifth, even though they haven’t recorded in more than a quarter century, and Jerry Seinfeld was sixth with $94 million.

Some of the entertainers who fell off the Top 40 this year were Sandra Bullock, Tom Hanks, David Letterman, Luciano Pavarotti and Denzel Washington.

They helped make way for first-timers, including comedian-actor Tim Allen (No. 13), winner of a fat contract to stay with ABC and Home Improvement; singer Celine Dion (No. 15), who sold 30 million records in two years; and the movie directing-producing team of Ron Howard and Brian Grazer (No. 24), responsible for Apollo 13, Liar and Ransom.

Other newcomers were pop group Spice Girls (No. 32); Michael Flatley (No. 25), the Irish-step-dancing star of the movie Lord of the Dance; and the writers-producers of TV’s Friends — Kevin Bright, Marta Kauffman and David Crane (No. 39).
