French for only $3, and we are both in (Kong). Programs exist which are together and depend on each other taught in English. In this case, the years in High School, and study a language while abroad. The country you would like to study in.

There are several options available to those students who believe they can not afford the additional expenses while others are afraid they do not know a second language well enough to live abroad. Well, for all of these students, there are alternatives. Eric and I are taking it upon ourselves to dispel some rumors about studying abroad.

The first step is to decide which country you would like to study in. If you speak and read a second language fluently, then the choice may be easy for you. Others are afraid they can not study abroad because their only language is English.

There are several options available to these students. Why not study in the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, or Hong Kong? (Eric studied French for 4 years in High School, and Studied French for only 3, and we are both speaking English and learning some Cantonese very well in Hong Kong.) Programs exist which are hosted in countries with a foreign language while classes are still taught in English. In this case, the study-abroad students are grouped together and depend on each other very much. Often times, there is no language requirement for entrance into the program, and in some instances, there is no requirement to study a language while abroad.

The closest friendships can develop when a group of people are forced to depend on each other as they are all submerged into a foreign culture with little or no knowledge of the language. While traveling through China, we chose to go out most evenings, and it was up to 16 students to explain to three cabs or mini-buses exactly where we wanted to go, and then there were other difficulties to encounter, the worst of which is ordering foreign food from a waiter or waitress speaking another language. Some advice for studying abroad: The Hard Rock Cafe is the same throughout the world and can be relied upon for a safe meal. But trying the local cuisine can be fun!

Show Me the Money!

There are many options available to those students who study abroad through an exchange of students. If you can afford to go to school at Bryant, then you can afford to study abroad. If you are a good student and that they can not afford to study abroad. If you hear of a new program, apply for it regardless of financial need. Once accepted, then make them realize they will have to keep you in the program. They will know they have a good student and that they can keep you if only they give you a little more money. Tempt them by applying and being accepted. Then they have taken the bait.

The second advantage is that the program is also more willing to spend money on banquets and other miscellaneous costs to keep the students happy. You also get a lot of personal attention from a new program.

Let's now take a moment to reflect on the additional benefits of having studied abroad. In addition to all the wonderful new experiences, benefits can be enjoyed in your career after graduation. Regardless of whether you choose to work in a foreign country or not, you have already proven that you are flexible, that you are capable of surviving and even thriving in a new environment. Employers today want proven flexibility. They want a new associate or partner to have the ability to deal with diversities.

Enriching Experiences

Study abroad programs take students from their comfortable environments and place them in a new environment, with new rules and new challenges. The student is then given the tools to explore the new scene and culture. Surviving and thriving in the face of adversity is the name of the game. This skill is developed through programs like these; the skills are nurtured and...Continued on Page 3

The demise of unions over the past couple of decades is a very sad affair. They offered equality and job security to the blue collar worker. But now, with a large portion of the workforce shying away from unions, those in unions often suffer. Such is the case with the RI Electrical Workers picketing in front of Fidelity.

In speaking with Thomas Lynch, the Business Manager of IBEW Local 99, it appears that the bid they offered to Fidelity and Gilbane (the construction company) was considerably underbid by those non-union electrical firms of Massachusetts. The reasoning of the Massachusetts firms is that they pay their workers whatever they want to pay them, whereas the IBEW Local 99 has a collective bargaining agreement that offers their employees higher wages. So, despite the fact that RI taxpayer money was used to entice Fidelity (as stated by Lynch) into our little state of despair (well, actually hope), the Massachusetts' firms were brought in to do the job.

"I feel bad for the guys working there; they're working for peanuts," said Lynch. "It's corporate greed, pure and simple. The burden is put upon the shoulders of the working class." Nevertheless, Lynch and his work force will continue to frequent the area along Route 7 in hopes of getting some future contracts with Fidelity. When asked whether he would indeed head to their main headquarters, he said this was not out of the realm of possibilities.

It doesn't seem to me that Fidelity much minds the extra publicity they are getting. I am very glad that the RI Local 99 guys brought this sad state of affairs to our attention, though. They have a very valid point; they can't compete (bid-wise) with those who work for little more than minimum wage. It seems to me that they probably have a sincere desire to win the job. They offered equality and job security to their workers whatever they want to do the job.

"I wish the picketing electrical workers the best of luck in their ventures."

honed to perfection. Out of the survival mode, grows a better understanding of yourself and your abilities, as well as an improved awareness of others.

Benefits of studying abroad are obviously not only experienced once you begin your career, but also include the wonderful opportunities

you will discover in your new surroundings. To truly understand

Hong Kong and its people, we have been living off campus, in apartments near a main area of Hong Kong Island.

We live in an area of Hong Kong where most of the people residents of Hong Kong. There are other areas where the people are mostly expatriates and/or wealthy.

Our program teaches us about a multitude of cultures in Hong Kong, and we are living among the majority in order to foster a better understanding.

Each day of our classes, Eric and I walked up and back down a very steep hill toward the University of Hong Kong where our classes are held. During our walks, we would pass by stores with live chickens, fruit markets, or street-side as well as live seafood being sold from baskets along the sidewalks. We made daily stops at our local bakery where our tastes and preferences have become known to the shop-owners.

Now that the class portion of the program has ended, we have begun working in internships. Between 8:00 and 9:00 A.M. we gel on a round trip to Kowloon or Lantau

Island. The five Caucasians living with us in Hong Kong have learned a lot about our own culture.

Eric is interviewing with a firm specializing in international business. All of us have had our pressing moments, but we have learned to handle them with confidence.

Eric and I are both playing active roles in our future careers as we are looking to build our resumes.

We want the best jobs, and we are showing our willingness to compete for them. Studying abroad in Hong Kong, I believe, gives you a leg up on your future employers. Many Fortune 500 firms earn more than half of their income from overseas. A degree from a foreign university should be able to adapt to the firms needs, study abroad, as well as help a student to offer that new skill.

Why do students not study abroad who have the opportunity? They claim that their financial circumstances should not hinder them. As you can study at Bryant, you can study abroad as well.

Eric and I would both like to take this opportunity. I would like to work alongside Ron Machitch and his wife, Karen Machitch. They helped us in our planning for the trip, and they also provided us with contacts

here in Hong Kong such as spending

Sunday with an American family. The President was very active in strategic planning for our trip and helped us consider the importance of the trip to both of our careers at Bryant College and beyond.

The administration at Bryant is very supportive to students who wish to study abroad. Eric and I will all try to ensure a safe and successful semester abroad. The first step is to talk with the Office of International Affairs.

Ceremony. It was my honor and privilege to deliver this invocation for this outstanding event. Food was served as we were entertained.

A very pleasant occasion was enjoyed by all.

One observation that I would like to note was the enthusiasm of the students.

They were as other students who had been transformed by standing ovation, and celebrating the moments of achieving recognition of personal and professional success. Another observation that was perceived as pleasant to this chaplain’s eyes was the impressive collage of bright dresses, suits, sport coats, and ties worn by the students and their closets or wear for special occasions. This willingness to honor another by doing our personal best helps to motivate ourselves in order to achieve excellent results. Well done to all! Hats off to the Student Activities division of Student Affairs.

Redefining feminism

Juvenile Durmow
Archway Staff Writer

For several years, I have considered myself to be a feminist. However, I never really talked about it much or took an active role in the feminist movement—until recently. Somewhere around the end of last semester, I met Jennie Rudin, President of the Alliance for Women's Awareness (AWA). Through talking to Jennie, I learned of all the things that had been sponsored by the Student Programming Board (SPB) this past weekend recently in Washington, DC. Two weekends ago, I went to the summit with Jennie, as well as two other women from Bryant, Bar Bennett and Sharon Pacheco. I was simply very excited to be there, taking part in a movement born hundreds of years earlier in our country with the likes of Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton. There were 1,065 women there from colleges, high schools and even middle schools from all over the country. That first morning, sitting there and listening to the opening speech made me feel as though I was finally part of something that would change the world. I felt honored to be there, and the experience has really affected how I thought and felt about all types of issues. I know that because of this experience, I will never think about things in exactly the same way as I did before.

There were all types of workshops that addressed issues pertinent to women. Some of the workshops addressed the issues of women in the workplace, women in the media, lesbian women, eating disorders, how justice and the law affect women, abortion rights, etc. Everyone who went to the workshops brought interesting ideas up, and, as a result, we learned a lot about what was going on in different parts of the country concerning women's rights. Jennie, Sharon, Bar and I brought insight and astonishing facts surrounding our campus as well.

While in DC, I learned facts that I had never known before regarding the status of women in the United States today. For example, women still make only $7.11 for every dollar that men make. I had known that we weren't yet making equal pay with our male equivalents; but I didn't realize that the difference was that extreme. Some of the workshops discussed that our country could not be modern and age immune, and we were still harboring these age-old stereotypes about women, and that some firms were still actively practicing discrimination towards women in the workplace. That weekend, I vowed to myself that I would always take an active role in a feminist and speak up when a woman is denied rights to something she desired simply because she was a woman.

One of the things we discussed in one of the workshops was what it meant to be a feminist. Many people have a preconceived notion of what a 'feminist' is; something that's usually understood as someone who, because a larger percentage of the population would consider themselves to be feminists. One dominant issue feminists support are equal rights for women. It does not translate to "I hate men," or "I think women should overthrow the government and banish men from positions of power forever," or "I am a lesbian," or anything like that. I saw all over the place while in DC read, "Feminism is the radical notion that women are people." That's all it is. And with this article I can convince just one more Bryant woman out there to start considering herself a feminist. It would be even more wonderful if all this has a chance to make a difference. If someone wants to become a feminist, there are women there in the conference, and no, they weren't all gay.

The excitement was at a high pitch when Patricia Ireland, the President of NOW, spoke to a mesmerized audience of approximately 1,000 young women from around the country. She had been an active feminist for quite a few years now and had many interesting stories to tell. On one, it was really made an impact on me.

Several years ago, when Geraldine Ferraro was nominated Vice Presidential Candidate for the Democratic Party, Patricia was working on her campaign. She told the audience about an experience she had the morning after this nomination. She announced that a woman would be the Vice Presidential Candidate. She took a taxi from her hotel to the Democratic Convention. The cab driver asked her which would happen if the Democratic Party won the election. When she softly asked what, the cab driver told her there would be three books in the White House. When she commented that feminism be a part of that, he then went on to tell her how men's and women's rights would be divided into separate sections. There was no sense of human equality. Patricia then went on to say that she was a feminist. Yes, there are actual women who consider themselves feminists. There were a few of them there at the conference and no, they weren't all gay.

Upon arrival, we were all very excited to be there, taking part in a movement born hundreds of years earlier in our country with the likes of Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton. There were 1,065 women there from colleges, high schools and even middle schools from all over the country. I know that because of this experience, I will never think about things in exactly the same way as I did before.

The Summit concluded with a rally in front of the White House. The screams of hundreds of people rallying for women's rights was deafening. Phrases like "What do we want? Equal Rights!" When do we want them? Now!" and "Hey, hey, ho, ho, this sexist shit has got to stop" were shouted in union by all the people that were there. The onlookers were generally supportive, and some even joined in our march. We were allowed to make our own signs or carry people signs that were made by NOW with the saying: "Young Feminists Mobilize." The atmosphere was still hairs on the back of the neck. I am quite sure that even those who didn't identify as feminists have a sense of humor, she then went on to tell him every anti-male joke that she knew. To top off, when she arrived at the Convention, many of the men there were wearing buttons that said "Fritz and tis." We knew that sexism was blatant in those days, but the men who were wearing those buttons, not even twenty-four hours after it was announced, were politically active men, probably Senators and Congressmen. When Patricia related this part of her story to the audience, everyone was shocked and couldn't believe how inappropriately our highly esteemed government officials could act.

A Plea for Our Missing Books

The Office of Career Services prides itself in the number of current, practical resources it provides to Bryant students. The policy of letting these resources on an overnight basis seems to work well both for students in quick need of information, and counselors, who use the books on a daily basis.

Much to our disappointment, there are a large number of books missing at the close of this academic year. If you have possession of one or more of these books, please return them to Career Services. We are asking all students to return books to their rightful place as soon as possible.

Putan Earth Day to Work

Earth Day comes and goes, but The Environmental Careers Organization focuses on making the spirit of Earth Day last not only all year long but all career long. The Environmental Careers Organization (ECO) is a non-profit based in Boston that has spent the last twenty-five years developing environmental professionals and promoting environmental careers.

Work with the organization's regional offices located in Boston, Cleveland, Seattle, and San Francisco; ECO places over 600 new environmental professionals directly each year into the workplace with short-term, paid internships in corporations, government agencies, and non-profits.

"The internship program is just one part of our organization. We also help those trying to clarify or find our more about environmental careers through our career workshops, web sites, conferences, books and many other resources," says Jeff Cook, President and Founder of ECO.

The organization is host to the nation's premier environmental career conference each year, and will draw more than 1,500 students. In its thirteen year, the National Environmental Career Conference (NECC) presents sessions that address all levels of environmental careers including a networking event for those interested in entering the workforce. The 1997 conference will be in Boston, MA on October 24-25.

"Our web site acts as a resource for those interested in having a career in the environment. One can not only learn about ECO programs and services but also about hundreds of other resources," says Cook. For more information on ECO, NECC in Boston, or how to start a career in the environment, visit the organization's web site at http://www.eco.org or call 617-426-4375.

Special Olympics

The games are just over a week away. Things are all falling into place well for the management team. Volunteers are still needed, so if you haven't signed up, you can still show up the day of the games and help out. There will be skydivers in the morning during opening ceremonies and a band in the afternoon, so come and cheer on the athletes and become part of the Bryant College Special Olympics.

Spring Break!

What happens when you take thousands of college students who've just come out of togetherness and pack them into beachfront hotels in Daytona Beach, Florida? Spring Break '97!

An intrepid team of "PEOPLE" Online reporters and photographers ventured into this woman's land to take in the sights, sounds and smells (unavoidable) of Spring Break. What they found: no group discussions of French literature and the American political system, but lots of people willing to drink beer from a funnel. There were plenty of things (and not the plastic flip-flop variety), and dozens of men willing to participate in a "Wet Willie" showdown.

Using words, photographs, games, Quicktime movies, and QTVR, "PEOPLE" Online takes you on a vacation at your keyboard. Want to peek behind the scenes, nosy into the understanding etc. Speak and steal comprehension etc.

CAMPUS SCENE

BACCHUS
Leonna Monsour

Hello everyone! BACCHUS had its last meeting and is now looking forward to an end of the year get-together. On Friday, April 25, we will be serving cocktails during dinner at Salamisoso, so stop by! We are getting ready for our national conference in November, which will be held in St. Louis. This will be an adventure for everyone who attends. Well, thanks for the great year, and good luck on finals!

Betatheta Pi
AJ Costa

We would like to thank Rugby for a great time on Thursday night. Alumni Weekend was held this previous weekend with great success. We would like to thank all the Alumnae who attended this weekend; it was a great time. The brothers would like to extend our gratitude to Sledge and his wife, in which we hope she gets well soon and safely. Nice job this week by both our softball teams as well as the soccer team. Phi-Sig's formal was held this weekend; thank you to the inviations given to us.

Syd assured Oter, but he was comfortable in Ottis's bed. Boyd and Treat are new friends. Monk was looking for a shower. Bull got Mick Jagger-faced Saturday night. Step played some Nintendo in Spots's room. Bulldog and Alston. Floyd met his new friend Steve, the mechanic at Parente's. Boyd was playing Commando during the softball game. Ren came to Beatty's Spring Formal of the Week. "Hello Betty", "All I have to say is I'm glad it wasn't me."

The Bryant Players
Kelli Young

Hi everybody! Happy Passover! Well, here it is my first article in The Archway as the new secretary of the Bryant Players. I hope I live up to everyone's expectations. What do I have to say? Nothing! Due to my being in seclusion for the past week, I haven't had any time to socialize and find out what's going on out there in Bryant Players' Land. I hope you can all forgive me and give me a second chance to write a better article next week. I hope everyone has a good Spring Weekend and stays in one piece (PHIL!!!). Let's make it fun!!

Overheard: "Sorry, I'm dyslectic."

Commuter Connection
Sheri-Ann Penta

Commuter week was lots of fun! Thanks to all who participated in our events. The results are in for the 1997-1998 executive board. The results are as follows: President, Hannah Simon; Vice-President, Anva Tavakolova; Secretary, Sheri-Ann Penta; and the Treasurer will be announced next week; due to tie for the position of Treasurer, a runoff election will be scheduled within the next two weeks. Chairpersons for Publicity, Historian, and Social Planner need to be filled. Please sign up in the office if you are interested in holding a position. You have until Monday afternoon to decide whether or not you will decide on the positions and pursue the names of those appointed by Tuesday morning. That's all for now; have a great Spring Weekend!

Delta Kappa Epsilon
Vinicie Verducci

What's up Bryant? Sorry about missing the last year's Archways. Let's catch up on some old events. We would like to thank Theta for the party we had last semester. We had a great time and are hopeful that we can set upon the next two years. Sige's graduation party was great, thanks Paul. Nice job, team. You made the football championship.

Congratulations to Gregory for his new job at Toys "R" Us. We would also like to congratulate Dobel for his public speaking positions for Publicity, Historian, and Social Planner need to be filled. Please sign up in the office if you are interested in holding a position. You have until Monday afternoon to decide whether or not you will decide on the positions and pursue the names of those appointed by Tuesday morning. That's all for now; have a great Spring Weekend!

Delta Chi
James Swanson
and G. Frank Silverman

To start off, we are proud to announce that Delta Chi has been honored the Fraternity of the Year. Everyone knew F-Sharp would get us there, but Grandpa just kept holding us back with his top-down management. Congratulations also to the sisters of Delta Zeta for winning Sorority of the Year. And a special congratulations to New Sigma's selection for the new Sergeant at Arms. Shaking is a new part of the ritual. What's going on out there in Bryant Players' Land. Ren came to Beatty's Spring Formal of the Week. "Hello Betty", "All I have to say is I'm glad it wasn't me."
What you are about to read is Archway's View. This is the magazine that smells your fear, any sudden movement that triggers a panic attack, and no mistake about it. This is a cause for frantic celebration, cultural upheaval, and a serious mental disorder for the business-oriented student. I daresay you need a break from all that above—my final Archway column.

Some quick show notes: Check out the Senior Mike Lyon, who's still in the area (of course, goes anywhere and everywhere to make his graduation). As of Monday, the construction workers were picking up a detour sign. As of now, we've even been through this one: Will someone write a congressman or something?

Bryant College held several month-long festivities forrush, and consecrated archways would be finished by September. They didn't mention it would be in 2003. I think it's just a feel-good story about graduating from a really big conservative high school.

As long as I'm talking about everything that has been going on, a few other things that have been going on at the Madrasa of Bryant! Every time someone goes in, they get a new wave of happy. More importantly: Do they ever have a cuisine, that is, do they get a new wave of happy.

Final Thought of the Week: "Humor must not profane itself and the people of the country must do both if it will live forever.

That's it. I would like to congratulate the new Student Programming Board—E-Board President—Steven Lazon, Vice-President—Samantha Sirovich, Treasurer—Richard Graham, Secretary—terror Graham.

Friday, May 17th, from 7:30 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. as a part of the Spring Weekend. At least, I wish it was a part of the Spring Weekend. As for the rest of the things I said, I hope it's made some people laugh.

Vegetarians do, but vegans don't: (we're a by-product of milk.)

Student Senate
Barbara Walsh

Hello Bryant community! This is my first article and I hope I do the job as well as Scott did. I want to give my thanks to all of the senators. I want to give my thanks to all of the senators. I want to give my thanks to all of the senators. I want to give my thanks to all of the senators. I want to give my thanks to all of the senators. I want to give my thanks to all of the senators. I want to give my thanks to all of the senators. I want to give my thanks to all of the senators. I want to give my thanks to all of the senators.

The next S.P.A.C. meeting will be held on April 29 at 6:00 p.m. in Room 2B. Please remind the President of the Student Senate.

Shark Beach...
Women's Rugby
Sarah Couture and Kim Noyes

Hey Ruggers! We hope everyone is having a great Spring Week. We know that we are, for those who are interested, we have our final game on Wednesday, April 30, at 4:00 p.m., here at Bryant against PC. It will definitely be a good game, and we would appreciate the support. It's a lot of fun to watch. One field is on the intramural football field next to the tennis courts.

We would like to congratulate all those who won awards at the leadership banquet last Thursday night. Maybe we will win next year, girls and Carlos and Pat, we will make sure that you are there.

We would like to thank Beta for a great time on Thursday night. Sorry it started out so slow, but it ended up being a lot of fun. Thanks to Smithers and Merlin, who actually made it out of their rooms to socialize this time.

Friday night turned out to be quite the experience for some of us. Molly, we never knew you liked your mom so well. We all know that you were the one who really gave him your number.

A lot of the girls were MIA this weekend, but some of us stood around and headed to the guy’s Beant of the East tournament on Saturday. Toby knows, we are all lucky that we make it there alive. Maybe he has a lot of the battles to prove it. Watch your head next time! We would like to also congratulate the guys team on their games at the tournament. You guys played great.

That’s all for this week. We hope everyone has a great Spring Weekend! Once again, we leave you with a question to ponder: "How exactly do they figure out how to make it out of their rooms to see this?"

Sigama Sigma Sigma
Ivy May Kaiser

Hello everyone! It’s finally spring week, yay!!! The work was kicked off with a little pledge class competition. Due to some technical difficulties, though, we were unable to declare a winner! The winners definitely put up more of a fight than we thought they would. You guys make us proud! Don’t skin anyone! You were pretty brave! Melissa, I’m disappointed! Cindy, you pulled through! Maureen, I think A-black was appropriated! Joey, I showed you my true colors; it’s pretty, isn’t it? Dangit, thanks for the except! She’s up and going around the block! You caught me!!!

Tuesday night was definitely cool, we gotta make that an annual thing! Why did you all make me match you? Too bad we all kicked out and had too much to do. Mel, Stacey and Al, what happened? Her BUTF ugly! But they won’t know it was us. Al, you made it in the parking lot? How’s your key doing? It’s now Mel and Stacy vs. Al and I.

The sisters who attended Phi Kap, Delta, KT, and Delta Chi would like to thank them all for a great time. A great huge thanks also goes out to the Miss America Police for taking care of Mike. Sarah wants to know exactly how big butt was. Christine, does your father swim? Ann, can you show me how to drive in reverse with no keys? Ericka’s house is a madhouse, someone left Deacon to hang out more. Ericka, how big was that hole in your walk again? Sherry, compliments go out to you on working well with words and things. Ann, Christine, and Ericka, don’t run, just walk real fast; don’t chug, just drink a lot; now it’s your turn, Ericka, Christy, you’re eating glass! Maureen, together again. I missed you.

That’s about it for this week. Hope everyone has a fun Bar Mitzvah week, Mel’s 21st in Friday, so you know where to find us if you want to celebrate. Happy Birthday, mom!!! Thanks for the talk; it was good to catch up! Happy Spring Week everyone!!! Delta Chi, Beta, Sig Ep, Theta, Phi Kap, Delta, and KT, we’re looking forward to some good times!

Hunger Cleanup
This past weekend, 55 students and faculty members from Bryant College and Roger Williams’ College went into the community to try to make a difference through the Hunger Cleanup. They cleaned up the local community service areas, including the Ronald McDonald House and St. Anthony’s Residence. These students got up early Saturday morning and worked for about three hours, while also earning money for the local Crossroads program run by Travelers’ Aid. This program gets individuals and families off the streets and puts them in a transitional housing program. I would just like to thank everyone, both students and faculty members alike, who were able to put aside some this past rainy Saturday.

Personally, when we go out to the community and reach out our hand to the less fortunate and they grasp our hand, this is the best feeling. The feeling of helping others is something that can not be matched. All too often we find it hard to look outside Bryant College to relate to others. We are too enthralled with school work, activities, and parties. When we leave college, employers will be looking at our grades, activities, and character. Many of us have plenty of character, but, unfortunately, we are also looking for well-rounded individuals. Individuals that not just are in SPB, the College Community into Providence or Woonsocket, you view other people who are not as fortunate as some of ourselves.

This is not a “call to arms” by any means. Instead it is a general reminder of others that are outside Bryant College who could use our help. Both students and faculty alike have a lot to offer this community, and I hope we can continue to offer this community what we have to offer.

There is something that everyone should know about. If you haven’t heard the recent discussions about the drug Rohypnol, commonly referred to as Roosies, then you should read this article. Rohypnol is a sedative-hypnotic drug that is illegal in the United States, but can be obtained in other countries for a nominal cost. The effects of Rohypnol are ten times more potent than that of Vivali. This drug is being used in combination with other drugs, but is most commonly mixed with alcohol. Rohypnol affects memory and judgment. You may have heard it referred to as "the date rape drug." The following is a list of common effects:

- extreme feeling of drunkeness, slurring of words, difficulty walking, amnesia, respiratory depression, science
- The effects are heightened within two hours and, with alcohol, can last up to 24 hours.
- According to Dr. Rose, President Clinton made it a federal crime for anyone to give a person Rohypnol, or even being able to get to college or even being able to read and write.
- The college’s perspective is one of a global perspective.

We will graduate going out into a world where not everyone will be earning $27,000 a year. By going outside the Bryant College Community into Providence or Woonsocket, you view other people who are not as fortunate as some of ourselves.

This is not a “call to arms” by any means. Instead it is a general reminder of others that are outside Bryant College who could use our help. Both students and faculty alike have a lot to offer this community, and I hope we can continue to offer this community what we have to offer.

GOLF TAKES TITLE AT HOFSTRA INVITATIONAL; MEN'S TENNIS FINISHES THIRD AT NE-10'S

Bryant captured the crown at the Hofstra University Invitational on Long Island last Tuesday.

Led by senior Ray Issler (Attleboro, MA/Attleboro), who finished tied for second with a 75-80-155, the Bulldogs placed five individuals in the top 20. Sophomore Steve Keller (Woodstock, CT/Woodstock Academy) and Jamie Griffiths tied for seventh at 161 while senior Jeff Waber's (Chelmsford, MA/Chelmsford) 164 was good for 11th. Freshman Chris Mackin (Duxbury, MA/Duxbury) finished 19th, shooting a 166.

At the University of Rhode Island Spring Invitational last weekend, the Bulldogs were the highest finishing non-Division I squad, turning in a third-place performance. Issler again led the top 20.

Bryant finished one shot off the pace at the Quinnipiac Invitational Monday. The Bulldogs' 315 was second behind UMass-Lowell. Keller (77) and Griffiths (78) finished third and fourth, respectively, and Issler (79) finished in a tie for seventh.

MEN TENNIS:

Bryant (5-5, 5-4 NE-10) rolled to a pair of lopsided victories last week and turned in a solid showing at the NE-10 Tournament over the weekend.

The Bulldogs tuned up for the conference tourney by crushing American International (9-0) and Assumption (8-1). At the NE-10's, Bryant finished third behind Quinnipiac and Bentley. Senior Mike Gisler (Hauppauge, NY/Hauppauge) rolled to a 6-3, 6-3 win in the opening round of #1 flight singles play, then battled back in the semifinal match after dropping the first set to take a 3-6, 7-5, 6-1 triumph before falling in the final, 7-5, 6-2.

Gisler teamed with Derek Ryan (Enfield, CT/Enfield) in #1 doubles, cruising to three straight set victories before dropping a 6-2, 6-1 decision in the final.

BASEBALL:

The Bulldogs posted a 2-2 mark last week.
