Providence woman struck twice in a row

The Associated Press (c)

A Providence woman who survived a car crash involving a drunk driver minutes later was struck and killed by another, police said.

Joyce Dorbor, a Johnson & Wales University hospitality worker, was preparing to celebrate her 50th birthday with friends when she died.

The van she was riding in struck another car on Allen Avenue around 12:25 a.m. Saturday. The driver, Osvaldo Orellana, 27, of Providence, was drunk, police said.

No one was hurt in the accident, but about two minutes later, as Dorbor stepped from the van, a car driven by another drunken man struck and killed her, police said.

She died at RI Hospital about two hours later, police said.

Two reactors shut down at Russian nuclear plant

The Associated Press (c)

Two nuclear reactors were shut down Tuesday at a power plant in central Russia following a minor electrical malfunction, an official said.

There was no radiation leak at the Balakovo plant on the Volga River as a result of the incident, said Nuclear Power Ministry spokesman Georgy Kaurov. The problem was caused by a malfunctioning electrical switch in the junction box outside the reactor building, he said.

Immediately after the shutdown, at 12:41 a.m. Tuesday (2:41 GMT Monday), a maintenance crew replaced the switch. They were working to restart the reactors, the spokesman said.

According to Kaurov, the problem was not serious enough to register on the international scale for nuclear incidents. The Balakovo plant, with four VVR-1000 reactors, is considered one of the safest in Russia.

Boy sues city for being attacked at school

The Associated Press (c)

A 14-year-old boy is seeking $100,000 from the city because he says school officials failed to protect him from students who attacked him at Rogers High School.

Michael Hamill also claims the officials failed to notify police of last fall's attack, in which he suffered a concussion, two chipped teeth, a cut inside his mouth and a hole in his lip.

Lawyer Bruce Gladstein filed a personal injury claim on Hamill's behalf February 14. The claim is in Wednesday night's City Council agenda.

It is the council's policy to refer such matters to the city solicitor's office. A claim must be filed with the city before a lawsuit can be filed.

According to the claim, a cafeteria worker overheard a group of boys plotting to jump Hamill when he arrived at Rogers last November 5.

"At that time, the cafeteria worker either was herself or sent someone to get one of the supervisors of the school (e.g. principal or dean)," the petition said. "At that time, little or nothing was done to prevent the incident heard by the cafeteria worker."

At about 7:30 a.m., Hamill was jumped and beaten by a group of boys as he entered a side door.

"Michael was knocked unconscious by the severity and the duration of the punches and kicks," the petition said. "When Michael awoke, he was woozy and bleeding profusely from the mouth."

Hamill claimed two teachers ignored his injuries and passed by him as he made his way toward the dean's office. Another teacher eventually helped Hamill into the office and got him some ice.

Dean Barry Cooper "seemed agitated" when Hamill was unable to tell him what had happened and left his office to monitor the halls instead of tending to Hamill, the claim states.

"At no time during this entire incident was 911 called or Michael given any medical treatment (other than an ice pack)," the petition said.

Cooper suspended a 17-year-old boy who admitted punching Hamill after the two had argued that morning, but police knew nothing of the incident until Hamill's mother called them from Newport Hospital, where the boy was being treated, according to the petition.

The suspended boy was arrested November 8 and charged with assault, according to police.

Rogers Interim Principal Mary Beth Pike said she had not seen a copy of Hamill's claim and refused to comment.

Meeting expected responsibility

It was once said that no man is an island. Though it would be great to prove this statement false, the simple fact of the matter is that that cannot be done. Any attempt to better one’s life requires the support and stability of others. Applying for a job always requires references, as does applying for various sorts of loans or credit cards. Try as you might to avoid credit cards, avoiding the aspect of finding a job is not exactly a wise choice. Henceforth, we must forge forth and find amongst those professors and classmates, with whom we do as individuals interact, a meaningful and lasting relationship. Not an easy task to accomplish without a prescribed amount of time and effort, of course, but that is to be expected.

The initiating factor in a successful camaraderie is in fact the deciding factor as to how the relationship will progress. Working together with other students in a group project is indeed the most common way for forging friendships amongst your peers. As a group member, one must pull their own weight. You are not given the chance to simply chug-dilly around the issue at hand (in other words, procrastinate); your team members are counting on you to perform to your greatest potential, as they will also do for you. Professors must, of course, realize this. Though they will mention how particular students will outperform their team members, as far as an overall grade, simply because of the time they solely put into the project at hand, they also probably realize that the project can be done on an individual basis. Oftentimes students are in fact allowed to work on group projects alone. Is this beneficial? Sure, you know the work will get done, but in the long run, not joining a group in accomplishing the task could count against you. What type of occupation nowadays does not require interaction with others? Gaining these skills and perfecting them are quite a large portion of college is all about. Future employers will expect applicants to have some previous experience of working cooperatively with others.

In addition to group work for classes, a lot of group work is involved in extracurricular activities. As a member, you should be able to pull your own weight and contribute to the particular group. A fear of commitment accompanying the consideration to join a particular organization. Unlike classes, which only last one semester each, extracurricular activities will follow you through your college career, bringing your more and more duties as your rank in seniority nears the top of the list. Frankly, it seems that such available responsibility to be had scares away some prospective members, while it makes the club more enticing to others.

Pick up where Pres left off

Dear Faculty and Administration,

In the past weeks, we as a Senate have discussed the need for faculty advising. This was due to students concerned with why this does not happen already. The benefits of a program such as this would be tremendous.

First, there would be a solid relationship formed between faculty and students. Faculty have an expertise in their field that would allow them to advise what courses students should take to meet their specific goals. One of the major reasons students attend Bryant is to get a job after graduation. Faculty advisors could give tips as to what students can do to make themselves more attractive to prospective employers.

Second, one-on-one interaction is one of the prime selling points of Bryant. What could be a better way to foster the belief that each student has a faculty advisor to consult with for the rest of their stay at Bryant?

Third, this could also ease the nature in which internships are obtained. If there is a faculty member who a student already has a relationship with, then students will have possible advisors for internships.

Fourth, earlier in the semester, there was a “Buddy System” that President Machtley initiated. We, as a Senate, feel that this was a start, but faculty advising would be a greater way for a system and infrastructure to be set-up.

We hope that both the faculty and administration will work with us in getting the faculty advising program here at Bryant. If we work together, this can and will be a great program!

Sincerely,

The Student Senate

Advising in need

Dear Faculty,

This year, the Student Senate has discussed the importance of Academic Advising here at Bryant. Each student should be able to have their own advisor to seek advice about his/her major and the courses that adhere to it. There is definitely a need for advising is valuable to every student here at Bryant. Therefore, we must forge ahead and not hesitate to seek needed assistance. Faculty advisors could give tips as to what students can do to make themselves more attractive to prospective employers.

As an advisor should have the knowledge of the student’s records so that the student has an appointment, he/she can refer right to that information. One of the attractions that allows high school graduates to Bryant is the excellent faculty to student relationship. Bryant students should have to sit in Undergraduate Programs and wait for a “first-come, first-served” appointment with an academic advisor. There should be an advisor especially focused on a student’s particular major. That student should be able to go to the same advisor anytime in his/her four years here. There is definitely a need for personal advising attention. Each student should be able to have a personal advisor whom they are familiar with and seek academic consulting from, as well as registration inquiries and career questions.

As a freshman, it was quite frustrating creating a second semester schedule and not having an advisor to go to. Giving students a set time to meet in a noise-filled freshman lobby with 100 other students to barely hear and comprehend the instructor’s voice was not what I call “personal.” One of the main reasons students choose Bryant is the pride it shows in attentiveness to the individual.

As a governing body and a source of communication between students and administration, the Senate feels academic advising is valuable to every student here at Bryant.

Disney rewarded risk-takers

E. Scott Beckett
AP Business Writer

Walt Disney Co. shareholders overwhelmingly approved a new contract for chairman Michael Eisner, which would be worth $300 million in stock and salary over the next decade.

By the same token, shareholders at the company's annual meeting on Tuesday also defeated resolutions requiring Disney to do more to police foreign workplaces and to examine pay policies to tie them more closely to job performance.

Tens of thousands of picketers outside the arena supported the resolution seeking to police foreign workplaces for sweatshop abuses.

Signs compared Eisner's salary to that of foreign workers who make Disney's licensed merchandise.

"It would take a Haitian 16.8 years to earn Eisner's hourly income of $9,783," one sign said.

Disney Director of Corporate Operations Safford Litvack defended Disney's policies regarding foreign workers. He said the company is aggressive in enforcing a strict code of conduct for licensees and contractors.

"People don't want to do it," he said.

He wants to do his taxes but he finds it too difficult to hold a pencil.

We hope to have the banner back up in the Kona soon and trust that it will stay there to promote all the great things happening on weekends at Bryant.
Summer Camp

Never forget your beliefs

Do you remember the last time you went to camp? Remember the feeling of excitement as you packed your belongings and prepared to leave behind the familiar environment of home? How thrilling it was to anticipate the adventure and experiences that awaited you at camp? The memories of the summer fun and friendships formed can last a lifetime.

Summer camp is a crucial part of a child's development as they learn critical life skills such as teamwork, leadership, and communication. It provides an opportunity for children to experience the outdoors, learn new skills, and develop social skills in a safe and supervised environment.

Nearby, a summer camp with various programs offers a range of activities, including sports, art, dance, and music. The camp is located near the city and offers a variety of programs for children of all ages. Whether your child is interested in sports, arts, or adventure, this camp has something for everyone.

For more information, please visit their website at www.summercamp.com or call 555-1234 for details.

Spring break security tips

TRAVEL TIPS: Photocopy all important documents such as licenses, I.D.s, passports and airline tickets. Keep the copies at home, separate from your luggage or hidden in a body pouch. Use the copies as proof of your identity. Don’t flash large amounts of cash or valuables in public. While walking, look alert, attentive, self-confident and in control.

TRANSIT TIPS: Familiarize yourself with the area. Locate your destination on a map. Have the street address and directions in your hand before you hit the road.

HOTEL TIPS: Make sure the neighborhood is safe. See that smoke detectors work. Ask to see a floor plan of the location of your room. Avoid rooms at the end of long, dimly lit corridors. Store valuables in the hotel safe. When you leave your room, hang your “Do Not Disturb” sign and play the radio loudly, to give the impression the room is occupied.

The Glenn Miller Story

F. J. Talley, Ph.D.

For those of you unfamiliar with Glenn Miller, and especially the film, The Glenn Miller Story, starring Jimmy Stewart and June Allyson, Pennsylvania 6-5000 was a telephone number at which Glenn Miller’s wife could reach him while he traveled to a far away city. Miller later used the telephone number as the title for a song he dedicated to his wife (I have it re-mastered on a CD and it’s great.). I chose it for the title for this week’s column not because I’m talking about Glenn Miller or swing music, but because I wanted to address the issue of how students can best get the services they would like at Bryant—by asking for them.

A couple of weeks ago, I spoke extensively to student who wanted to get off the meal plan because he didn’t believe Aramark was providing the right kind of service to students. We disagreed in our discussion almost from the beginning and never came to agreement either on what Aramark should be doing or how they should be addressing student needs. What most concerned me about our conversation, however, was that he had never taken the time to speak to the Director of Dining Services, who would be the one person most able to listen to his concerns and do something about them if they were valid.

For traditional age students, a major developmental task for the college years is to develop autonomy. This means college students should be learning during the college years how to become more independent, and how to get their problems and concerns resolved on their own. This may not be easy—in fact, it will require students to take personal responsibility for determining their life’s direction.

One of the most common problems we face in Student Affairs is the number of complaints we receive from parents. Those are a problem not because the complaints aren’t valid, but because the students themselves aren’t trying to resolve their complaints on their own. Were we to resolve every complaint that came to our desk from parents immediately, without involving students, we would be compromising the ability of our students to develop the autonomy and personal responsibility they will need as adults. Our method, therefore, is to call the student afterwards to hear their complaints directly, then work with him or her to find a solution (Frequently, the complaint from the student is far less severe than was originally reported by the parent, but that’s to be expected and is understood). Part of finding a solution for the student may be to refer him or her to another office on campus that can help them— all with support and direction from us.

If what might the student learn from this encounter? Well, perhaps they might understand that they might have resolved their problem far more easily and quickly had they simply asked us for help in the first place. Or they might learn more about how the College works, so they can get future issues resolved more efficiently. But most importantly, the student would have taken an important step toward the development of an adult-style autonomy, and that is and must remain a major goal of the educational process at Bryant.

Please understand me. I’m not suggesting that students shouldn’t tell their families when they have problems or concerns at the College that aren’t being addressed. I fully expect and hope students will let their families know all that is happening with them while they’re at Bryant. I’m also not implying that we have yet to achieve a campus that is self-sustaining and in which students will have no complaints. I’m simply suggesting that when students have problems or concerns about their Bryant experience, they should allow the people most able to fix their problem to try to do so. You might be surprised how willing employees in all areas — whether clerical, faculty, maintenance, administration and other areas — are to help you. In fact, getting help might be as easy as picking up the phone.

Invasion of the concept-snatchers: Games-as-films vs. films-as-games

Emory Thomas, Jr.
MSNBC

For years, movie studios arrogantly assumed their hit films could be neatly translated into interactive games. But hundreds of flags (entertainment software based on the hit movie "The Mask," for instance, sold less than 1,000 units) and dozens of corporate re-engineerings later, we've been backed away from that simplistic conception, perhaps realizing that movie plots actually get in the way of gameplay.

Now, though, the trend is gathering steam in the opposite direction. Game studios, with Hollywood dollar signs dancing in their executives' heads, are aggressively pursuing movie deals. It doesn't matter whether the game comes from a video game hit publisher like Activision or a mainstream video game publisher like Acclaim Entertainment. In fact, Acclaim Entertainment sees its recent release of "Turok: Dino Hunter" as a copy of films like David Lynch's "Lost Highway" and Steven King's "The Lawnmower Man." They may be losing the wide-eyed wonder and have become cynical. I find myself drawn to Arthur Fishles, films like David Lynch's "The Lawnmower Man," "Clear and Pre sent Danger" and so many more "crooked president" movies. Wanna Catch a Movie?

Nigel Kody Rakoztokov
Fahara

I am overwrought by the feeling that everything worthy saying has already been said, that there is nothing new. Hollywood is just another of these. Have we not seen them as a second skin. We are a society recycling our past glories, playing with the same themes and achievements, and selling them to ourselves as new. The only difference is that we are cannibalizing different cultures and claim portions for our own. We even prop up the corpus of greatness, of one time inveniveness, and dress them in shiny new clothes. We shamelessly hack the waves of our father's generation, because we have none of our own. We are so afraid of the great beyond and what lies ahead to let go of the past, too terrified to do anything but repackage stories of "Remember when..." We have lost our creativity. Even the few who do write for enlightenment are cast as parodists, scorned for not being satisfied with the way things are.

My soul has fallen prey to the sadsickness of the long-tme movie critic. Rather than despise and revile Sekker and Ebert for their pretentiousness and self-absorpti on, I find myself understanding their psychosis and being sunk in it. This must be what it is like to count nickels the way the homeless are doing. You are now forty and Republican and afraid of the unwashed masses. To think that the sale of a record is more sacred than the loss of a great American. Having been completely replaced by thoughts of mortgages and the children's karate classes and tax brackets. More importantly, you begin to wish you had those carefree years back, so you could spend them more efficiently. Maybe spend your childhood summers mowing lawns for money, rather than using them being busied and bored. Have just as much faith with the average moviemaker, the man or woman who goes to the movies of the month and ignores the entertainment. Pure and simple. I am the paranoid schizophrenic who sees our past conspiracy, the master plan.

Hollywood is not only out of ideas, but the very old crap from the past (Star Wars, The Empire Strikes Back, Return of the Jedi not included) that they are trying to do is so derivative that it will perculate and steal from its present. Case in point, old movies about the crimes that trench all the way to the presidency abound, these movies have been made before, it is a minefield of those that have been made yet again. However, the pattern is getting more and more supercilious. The application is much faster, and less effort is being made to hide the fact that this is not greatness but that it is a cop of a cop, and a bad one at that.

Skewed towards independent films this year because—to be blunt—nothing but clutter emerged out of the major movie studios (see page 7 for nominations). Expect bad copies of the nominated films to come tumbling down the studio pipelines. Mimicking the content but not the true spirit, hundreds of budgets, filled with egomaniacal movie stars with more looks than acting skill. I am not the only one who has lost the wide-eyed wonder and have become cynical. I find myself drawn to Arthur Fishles, films like David Lynch's "The Lawnmower Man," "Clear and Present Danger" and so many more "crooked president" movies. While the movie itself is okay, the frightening fact is Charlie Sheen and Wesley Snipes are soon to release very close copies of the same movie. INTERNSHIP INSIGHT: UNITED HEALTHCARE

Christina Ferrari '97

During my junior year, I decided that I wanted an internship for the summer before my senior year. I felt that an internship would be an excellent chance to gain hands-on experience in the actuarial field. Before I began my job search in my junior year, I looked at the internship opportunities that were posted, but there were not any that I was interested in. I then went to the computers in the Office of Career Services and browsed through the CD-ROM (Careers Search) that has listings of many companies. I narrowed my search to the insurance industry in the Hartford/Springfield area. Career Search provided me with a list of hundreds of companies, their size, and different professionals to contact. This CD-ROM is updated often with new companies or company information. Check it out!

From this listing, I sent out cover letters and resumes. Every company that I sent to asked back from me in one form or another. United HealthCare called me a couple of months later to schedule a phone interview. A person in the actuarial department interviewed me on the phone for almost two hours. He went through every detail on my resume plus asked other questions. He also gave me more details on United HealthCare and the opportunity to ask questions of my own.

Approximately a month later, I was called back with an offer for the summer. It would be a paid internship in their downtown Hartford office. I was assigned to the Large Groups National Pricing team. My main task was to update claim distribution tables. First, I had to figure out how they did this in the past, since there was no documentation available. Then I used Lotus 123 to analyze, combine, and project data that would be used in the claim distributions, which are a part of a company-wide software release. I then had to test and analyze any changes and explain why they had the impact that they did. I also had to completely document any work that I did, so that this project could be reproduced at any time without having to do the investigative work that I had to do in the beginning. At the end of the summer I had to do a presentation on my project to all of the different people in the actuarial departments.

I experienced a very laid-back, friendly environment. They have a year-round business/casual dress, and Fridays are dress-down days. Everyone was great and helped me to fit in right from the beginning. My internship experience at United HealthCare was great and made my interest in the actuarial field grow.

My advice to those seeking an internship is to send out resumes to organizations that you may be interested in. The more you send out, the more chances you have of getting the internship that you want. Don't give up hope; there are many places that are looking for interns but simply don't advertise. Make sure that you are very familiar with spreadsheets and word processing programs, because they are used for almost everything; especially in the actuarial field.

If you are interested in United HealthCare, I recommend that you send your cover letter and resume as soon as possible. I'd be happy to answer any questions readers may have about the program. I can be reached at extension 8221.

United HealthCare is seeking junior actuarial majors with a minimum GPA of 3.2 and permanent residency of Connecticut. Submit resume, cover letter, and student transcript directly to the human resource office in Hartford. Information can be found in the Actuarial Binder at the Internship Desk in the Office of Career Services.

Students save on spring break using the Internet

AIRFARE.COM, an online travel reservation service, has set up a discounted air ticketing service especially geared toward students planning on getting away for spring break.

Students can contact AIRFARE.COM's web site to find and book discount on wholesale and standard airline tickets, hotel rooms, and car rentals. Wholesale fare ticket prices are regular fares that are available to travel agents through travel agencies and airlines. For example, the average standard round trip ticket to Rome, Italy, from Washington, D.C., about $900, but AIRFARE.COM's quick reservation search engine envisioned that our site would help people plan, and reserve their own travel package, without the trouble of using a travel agent or buying into some group sale. "Our reservation system is designed to give the traveler a significant amount in savings," says Derrick Montgomery, Representative of AIRFARE.COM.

Julia Silverman of The Brown Daily Herald reported that the average college student spends about $600 on spring break travel. AIRFARE.COM is an interactive reservation system that finds the lowest price in the market.

"I got a great deal going to the Bahamas for spring break! I am definitely using AIRFARE.COM again to buy my summer trip to Europe," says Cindy Moore, a senior at George Washington University. The reservation allows the traveler to choose a specific time and place of departure and destination, as well as the choice of airline, hotel and car rental company. Once the traveler's reservation is confirmed, the airline ticket and itinerary are mailed directly to the traveler's home or dorm room using an overnight carrier service.

AIRFARE.COM is now working on marketing their service offline toward retired couples and ethnic groups.

"We plan on bringing awareness of our service in every market, not just those who occasionally use the Internet through computers at home or work," says his Boss, Management Director at AIRFARE.COM.

If you are looking to travel and would like the personalized service of a travel agent without all the added hassles and costs, please contact Derrick Montgomery at either (703)-779-7134 or <derrick@trax.com>.

Bryant offers free screening for anxiety disorders

Are you getting feelings of panic or fear for no reason? Is sitting in class difficult because you feel edgy, keyed up, or stressed out? Do you find social situations too taking because you become overwhelmed with anxiety? Do you repeat the same task to ensure accuracy? You may be one of the 23 million Americans suffering from an anxiety disorder, America's most common mental illness. Anxiety disorders include: panic disorder, social phobia, generalized anxiety disorder, obsessive compulsive disorder, and post-traumatic stress disorder.

Anxiety disorders are treatable illnesses and do not have to ruin your life. Help is available. Come to a free anxiety disorders screening program sponsored by Bryant College Counseling Services and Zeta Phi Beta Sorority on Thursday, March 4, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in 2A, Room 200 of the Bryant Center.

During this time, you will have the opportunity to view a video, complete an anonymous questionnaire and review it with one of the Bryant College counselors, and select from a variety of free educational materials on anxiety disorders.

From 12:15 - 12:45 p.m., Dr. Weselyn Ball from Butler Hospital will speak about "Anxiety Disorders." Feel free to bring your lunch. Beverages will be provided.

If you would like additional information or have questions about this program, call Bryant College Counseling Services, 532-6065.

The number of homeless and malnourished individuals in America is not getting any smaller. Each day 4,500 people die of hunger or hunger-related causes!! That is one person every 40 seconds, or 180 individuals an hour. Of the 3 million individuals in American who live on the streets or in abandoned cars or buildings, 39% are families, with 750,000 of the homeless being children!! That is over 1 million families that have to fend for themselves. In Smithfield, over 12% of the population are individuals who are 65 years of age or older are below national poverty pov-erly levels. We have all seen the homeless and hungry people begging for money or sleeping on vents just to keep themselves warm. Now is your chance to make a difference.

On Saturday, April 19, the Bryant community will be going into Woonsocket and Providence to help clean the community up through the National Hunger Cleanup. This event entails the members of the community getting into the streets of Providence and helping them clean up. The volunteers get spon-

Bryant students hold executive positions at Crystal Springs

Betty Yacobius

The Board of Directors of Crystal Springs appointed three Bryant executive positions within their organization. Crystal Springs (Times Beach, Missouri) is a multi-million dollar, domestic manufacturer of hand held water filtration systems. The recent realization that there are substantial problems with the purity and safety of local and regional water supplies has contributed to the fast pace that this industry is growing. Competition in the industry includes ArTechnologies (San Diego, California), Sol y Mar, Inc. (Boise, Iowa), Northern Arizona, Inc. (Flagstaff, Arizona), and Undercover, Inc. (Portland, Oregon).

The firm recruited at Bryant as a result of the reputation that Bryant has established in preparing students for careers in business. All second semester juniors and seniors majoring in Business Administration were invited to apply. From the highly qualified applicant pool, three finalists were selected for site visits. These included: Daniel Holmes (1998), a combined Marketing and Finance major from Dublin, Ireland; Francis Doehrer (1998), a Finance major, with a minor in Economics, from Epson, NH; and Craig Stevens (1998), a Financial Accounting major, with a Finance minor, also from Epson, NH. Daniel Holmes was appointed as company President and Director of Marketing, Francis Doehrer as Vice President of Operations, and Craig Stevens as CFO.

The new management team assumed their positions in January of this year. They are in charge of strategic planning and decision making for the next five years. In the first quarter, they took a bold step and internationalized their marketing efforts and production operations. They opened a sales office in Sao Paulo, a typical Latin American country with low labor rates and inflationary pressure. They also commenced construction of new production facility in Sereno with a production capacity capable of producing 1.7 million units per year. This site will be available for product scheduling at the beginning of the fourth quarter. These major investments should position the firm nicely for the first two years, with additional investment is capacity anticipated for the end of next year.

Major investments in initial training of production workers, ongoing training of existing production workers, R&D for development of enhanced products and more efficient processes, and development and implementation of a new marketing strategy resulted in a first quarter loss of almost $300,000. The investment paid off quickly with Crystal Springs assuming a leadership role in both market share and profits. Net income for quarters two and three amounted to $60,000, 76% higher than the next most profitable industry competitor, Sol y Mar, Inc. President Dan Holmes said, "We are looking forward to a banner year and anticipate that fourth quarter profits will be even more impressive."

These students are actually representing Bryant College in the Undergraduate Division of the International Collegiate Business Policy Competition sponsored and administered by San Jose State University, in which 32 student teams from around the world are participating. Ten quarters of decisions will be submitted electronically, as well as a Strategic Plan and Stockholders Report. From April 10 - 12, all teams will meet in San Jose for a head to head competition involving ten more sets of quarterly decisions and a formal presentation to a mock Board of Directors comprised of business executives. We plan to keep the Bryant community informed about the ongoing performance of Crystal Springs.

Northwestern Mutual Life internships rank high in America

Northwestern Mutual Life’s College Agent Program ranks among the "Top Ten Internships in America," according to the 1997 edition of America’s Top Internships, published by Random House/Princeton Review. The book has been available at major book stores since September, 1996.

Also named to the top ten internship programs were: Microsoft, Hewlett Packard, Fidelity Investment, The Wall Street Journal, Jardans, LucasfilmLucas Digital, the Public Defender Service for the District of Columbia, TBWA/Chiat Day, and the Academy of Television Arts Sciences. The authors gave Northwestern Mutual’s College Agent Program high marks in areas of competitive compensation, and quality of life.

Northwestern Mutual is the only insurance or financial services featured in the book in either 1996 or 1997. The selection of the College Agent Program for the 1997 edition marks the second time it has been one of the book’s 50 featured internships selected from a pool of nearly 2,000.

This year, Northwestern Mutual agencies select over 500 students nationwide for their internship programs. The internship is open to full-time undergraduate and graduate students.

"There are several factors that make our program unique," says Dennis Tuscins, Senior Vice President Agencies. "Very few insurance companies have anything as all like our internship. College agents are embued both by the insurance business and our community of agents. As members of an agency, interns are invited to training sessions and business outings, as well as other activities."

As part of the College Agent Program, college interns can form teams within their agencies and participate in a nationwide competition against teams from other agencies. Tuscins says that this competition breeds a lot of excitement and encouragement among the agents.

"Our internship allows students to learn about the life insurance industry, explore selling as a career, and foster a self-discipline," says Tuscins. Since it began in 1987, over 3,000 college agents have gone on to choose life insurance sales as a career. According to the book, more than 50% of Northwestern Mutual’s Top 100 agents began either as college agents or were contracted immediately after college graduation.

Northwestern Mutual Life is the country’s sixth largest life insurance company with assets of more than $60 billion.

My girlfriend and I broke up, but this time I felt sure that I would always be alone.... and I would never again have someone in my life.

I told my dad. He said, "Don't feel bad. Take comfort. Being alone.... can be a lovely peaceful gift to yourself. Also, as many people have done before you, you can spend a portion of your life feeling for others and trying to cultivate mercy, hope, truth, beauty, and daylight." I asked him if there was anything of his I could break. He brought me his favorite tobacco smoking pipe. I said, "Thanks dad."

Life is good.

How is everybody's semester going? The Accounting Association is proud to say that we are up and running with our volunteer income tax assistance program. We have started helping Bryant students prepare federal and state income tax returns, and starting next week, volunteers will be traveling to Woonsocket to help members of the community prepare returns at the local YMCA.

If anyone needs help with their returns, especially non-resident state returns if you work here at Bryant, the Association will be in the library again on Tuesday, March 4, from 7 – 9 p.m. Tuesday the 4th as well, there will be a meeting in Bryant Center 2B at 4 p.m. Becker CPA Review will be talking on a certain topics. Pizza and soda will be served.

I want to thank our members for being involved in our activities. Keep an eye out for Executive Board elections; they will be coming up after Spring Break.

BACCHUS

Leanne Moustard

Hello everyone! Sorry about the last article somehow the wrong one made the paper. Two weeks ago, condom games were held in hall 14. Not too many people came, but those who did had fun! We got to see how big a condom really is! Our meeting time and place have changed. We are now meeting in Health Services, Donor's office, at 4:30 p.m. The day is still Wednes­day, but now it is every Wednesday. This way, we can get to do much more accomplished. This has already been proven.

Safe Broken Spring is approaching rather quickly. Make sure to sign a contract to not drink and drive over break. There will be an information table with the contracts. You may win a car, to take this opportunity to save your life and the life of those you love by being safe over spring break.

The regional conference on Sunday was a good time! BACCHUS members and Peer Educators learned a lot of useful info. Everyone had fun, especially in the "cool" van! You know who you are. By the way, Liz–don’t look!

Thanks to all those who helped serve Mocktails at Drawing the Shades. Your help was greatly appreciated. Also, the cast did an excellent job! The performance was very powerful.

I will see everyone at the next meeting, past Friday. If you want to join our group, feel free. We always welcome new members! Until next time.

Thankso Glicky, Fauerbeck, and Pony for helping out with the re­treat this past weekend. Congratula­tions to Grandpa for being elected into Beta Gammas Sigma. Scooter got some dancing lessons this past weekend. Pia was MIA. Schlager went Scuba diving. Congratulations to Drew, Brandon, Shav, Knocka, Falt, Sharp, S-falack, Speaker, Widden, Will, and Wally for their outstanding performance at the last basketball game held in hall 15. The clean up included Kristen, Nicole, and soda will be served. Keep check­ing for up coming activities. Thanks to Glicky for being our speaker and making it to the finals. Meanwhile, our basketball team would throw in the towel, but the other team might steal it and score 100. Hey Mr. V, we’re going to UConn. Dutch and Jella, certain brothers would like to thank Tri-Sig for the good time this Saturday. Stash had some new passengers this past weekend. Apron­ces didn’t hurt. Ego is kept a little dirty while Gown hurt his back. Thanks to everyone who has been attending Touch of Glass on Thursday nights. It will be contin­uing for the rest of the semester. 3D Ian got flashed Saturday night. What’s happened to Sparkle? Gina was looking for her next victim at McDonalds. Q, this time we’ve definitely got next game…and thanks for the ride. Thursday Wolf GFD it all weekend. Epic just so you know, when you pay for room and board, that applies to the weekends, too.

Quote of the Week: "Are they trying to make the roof bigger?"-Knocka.

Scope of the Week: Schlager went Scuba diving.

Tip of the Week: Hold the ball!

Prediction of the week: Knock­les will win all in this coming Saturday’s game.

Kappa Delta Phi

David Kaplan

Well, not much has been happening in the last few weeks that is of any excitement. This is my first Greek News for this year.

I'm pleased to say that this semester we have Delta Brothers achieve Dean's List. Andy Cline and Billy-Bob Alexio made the grade on our看出, we are glad to see that everyone is making a strong academic effort. Let’s have a cheer for our New England Fratels, who gave a strong post season showing. Better luck next year. We have had a lot of free time as of lately and have been using it well. Many of us went to Boston and Portland to partake in a few activities.

Also, we have seen the faces of many alumni who have come down to the beach. The weather has been nice the last few weeks, and we even got a chance to go out on a boat. Too bad many had to be back on land.

In other news, we are not pledging anyone this year. Although this seems discouraging, we only go to suffer a loss of one brother... namely, myself. The future looks bright, and so does the sun, so don’t stare at either too long. But in truth nothing would be complete without a top 10. This is the spot, so forgive the lack of humor (there was any in the first place).

TOP TEN
1) The $1000 banner was stolen.
2) Apparently it wasn’t happening on Wednesday here at Bryant. Ever check the parking lots?
3) It was kind of donated to a charity who could actually use something USEFUL with $1000.
4) I used it for a shammy to clean my Temp.
5) Somebody must have stolen it and is probably holding it for ransom for a tuition reduction.
6) Ozzy Osbourne is going to be in town in the coming weeks for Spring Weekend and get $1000 to boot.
7) It’s never stolen. In a devilish attempt to get back at the school, Ole Man Tupper sprinkled invisible ink on it so we see it... you now don’t.
8) Its actually hanging in the Comfort. That’s why it really closed, wasn’t it.
9) Now Bryant can do "WHAT EVER IT TAKES" to get it back.
10) It was seized by Government Auditors. There is much suspicion of embellishment. Even the IRS doesn’t believe somebody would pay $1000 for a banner. Did you even see it in the first place?

MSU

Alycia Silva

How’s everyone doing? I hope everyone is keeping up with their classes. It’s that time of the year. I hope everyone who performed, helped out, supported the MSU Rugby Team... can appreciate it. If anyone would like to join MSU, we meet on Wednesdays and Saturdays at 4 p.m. in Bryant Center rm. 2A.

We are coming to the end of Black History Month, and I hope you will all continue to support our upcoming events. The last of Black History Month events are TONGIET. Black History Month Jeopardy will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Pappio; and on Friday, February 28, the closing ceremonies will be held at 12 p.m. in the Rotunda, and the last MSU Spartan Function Night of the month featuring 87.8 WJMF DJ’s will be right afterwards. Hope to see you all there.

Phi Kappa Sigma

Mike Hank

Well, we hope everyone had a good week and enjoyed the early spring weather. Unfortunately Lancia will not be able to write the article again this week, as he is in Acton doing research on the revolutionairy war. That’s where it started, you know... did you know that? Does everyone know that? I think, right, there he Acton. Squads, on the other hand, came back from Acton with a new mark on his neck which he claimed was from a ping pong table; I always thought Mrs. Martone was more partial to the pool table myself.

Thanks to Theta for a good time on Friday, I hope you understand the rules of our dice game, since we let you watch for at least five hours. Maybe next time you can play... maybe. Swain got the chance to check out the new engine in his car; unfortunately it was still as fast as the engines in Public Safety’s cars. The brothers would also like to extend our thanks to Tri Sig for a good time on Saturday, especially to our mutual date Sarah. Fegarty had Public Safety put out an APB on WJMF, so I think he may have walked off with his T-shirt and boxers, but the whole matter is still a blur. Anyone having any information on his mystery date, please call X4038, he’d love to hear about it. Maca was none too pleased with the quality of the punch he was served on Friday, so he threw it against the wall—a sure sign that he needed more. McGrath blew the chance of a lifetime on Friday; next time take a tip from Duder.

In other news, Lancia has just joined the BW club; congratulations, you’ve earned it. Thanks to Mona for getting together with Skemene; we were all getting a little tired of hanging out with him. And finally, Happy Pappy is now just waiting patiently; never underestimate the usefulness of a good book, or other publications. Oh well, until next time... What are you gonna do?

Tip of the Week: The tip of the week section is stupid.

Hello! I hope everyone is doing well. I know it’s been hard lately with all the exams, but we would like to congratulate Bundy on her job at State Street. Congrats also to Alise on her interview. Thanks to Jen McCr for planning and organizing for this weekend. You are doing a great job, Hadji, and all the sisters are really excited. Good job to Spice on Division Conference. Love, Pixie.

The sisters would like to thank everyone who came up on Friday night; we had a great time! Thanks to Rugg for Rugby Saturday night. Hailey is looking for the pieces from operation "weekender" 5 to go to TKE (H2) for a great time on Saturday. Sofa would like to thank Delta Chi for all their help Tuesday night. L7 thanks TKE for a good time too! Thanks to everyone for Parlez-vous francais, Bubba and Sofy. It seems that things have been a little "quirky" for Enzo in the desert lately. We may have to even cut him off from the late night activities. Tigis want to thank Spice for a bumberry plant. Montes, where are the balloons? Hailey. I love you Hailey. Spice, Thanks Don for guiding Sue and Christie home Thursday, or was it Friday morning? The yeah of the week goes to Lush, thanks for always being there. The quote of last week is, “I slept with Amy last night, F isp.”-Sofy. The quote of this week is, “Run from the border in the opposite direction, and fast.”-Eddie.

Anyone interested in meeting the girls of Phi Sig can feel free to stop by anytime. We are located in Dorm 2, 430’s and 440’s, and in townhouses H1 and L7. Till next week.

Hey Ruggers! First of all, we would like to congratulate the... of our team who made Dean’s List this past semester. We would also like to acknowledge Erica Wright and Aimee Carocha, who have both accepted to Beta Gamma Sigma. Quick job, girls. We are truly "women of accomplishment." Also, our community service project continues to go well; we all hope it will be a big success.

We will be starting practice on Monday, March 3, at 3:30 p.m., rain or shine. If anyone is interested in playing on the team, feel free to join us at practice. We have all been working out and staying in shape since last season, we hope. Those of you who haven’t better dig those running sneakers out of the closet!

We would like to thank all the new members who showed up for our informational meeting. We hope you had a good time last weekend and that you will be back Sunday! Trish, the final countdown is on. Only one more week left! Our Latin T-shirt was a huge hit last weekend; and we are sure they will get better.

Friday night turned out to be a good time. Next time we want to play the Supermodel game! Chrisy, we never thought you would be so outspoken about something that Punky’s mother wouldn’t even let her say. Salmonson was happy to see the crew reunited over a good meal.

Hello! Everyone! How was everyone’s past week? Mine was... well, let’s just say, I’m glad it’s over.

As for our formal dinner, it is tentatively scheduled for Tuesday, April 15 at 6 p.m. Executive Board elections will be held, so I encourage all those who are interested to attend. Having a position looks great on a resume and also helps you get involved. Pizza and soda will again be served at the meeting.

Bryant Hockey heads for playoffs

Bryant Hockey had their final tune-up for the playoffs Friday night against Southern Connecticut State University. The Bulldogs fell to the Ravens, 6-4, in the non-league contest. This game gave some of Bryant’s younger players a chance to get some playing time, while giving some of the injured players a chance to rest. Scoring for the Bulldogs were Dave Zielinski (2), Steve Delany, and Rich Bothem. Pete Somers had 49 saves in the defeat.

Saturday night at 7:00 p.m., in Framingham, MA, Bryant will begin their playoff run at the Northstar arena. With the Bulldogs first round byes, they have to wait to see whom they will be playing. As of right now, Bryant will either face Johnson and Wales, the Coast Guard, or Lyden State. Senior captain Rich Bothem stated, “It doesn’t really matter who we play. I am confident that all of our guys will be ready to play and that we will come out on top.” If Bryant had their choice of opponents, they would like to play J&W. The whole team agrees that there is nothing that they would want to do more on Saturday night then to slap J&W around again. The last time the two teams faced, the Bulldogs had J&W in tears because of the brutal beating and utter humiliation that Bryant put them through.

The team once again thanks their fans support and welcomes anyone who wants to attend the game on Saturday.

Bryant Downs Bentley, 83-76, In NE-10 Opening Round

Senior guard Noel Watson scored a game-high 22 points as Bryant defeated Bentley, 83-76, in the opening round of the NORTHEAST-10 Men’s Tournament.

The fourth-seeded Bulldogs (17-9) now face top-seeded St. Michael’s in the conference semifinals Thursday night in Winooski, VT.

The 17 wins is the most since Bryant posted an 18-10 mark in 1980-81.

Bryant took its first lead since early in the first half when a three-pointer by senior guard Herman Thomas made the score 71-70 with 5:24 remaining. Watson’s jumper with 2:45 left put Bryant up by three (75-72). The Falcons cut the lead to 77-75 on a free throw by Ed Maddox, but a pair of free throws by sophomore forward Fred Wände put the Bulldogs up 79-75 with 40 remaining.
