Graduate Students For Resident Directors

When students began moving into the newly-constructed dorms in September, 1971, a program was initiated whereby several faculty members also moved onto the campus to serve in the capacity of resident directors. This year, however, marks the end of this program, as Jo-Ann Barclay, Guy Davis and Dennis Nordin have been informed that they are not being rehired when their contracts terminate at the semester's close. Instead, local graduate students—based on their psychology-related field, will be rehired.

When Peter Barlow was asked the reasons for the change over, he stated that graduate students would provide (a) more administrative help in the Student Affairs Office, (b) more counseling help for resident students, and (c) more contacts with the dorms. He feels that graduate students could spend more time helping students and getting involved in their day-to-day activities. As it stands now, Davis, Nordin and full-time faculty members, while Barclay works all day off campus and is taking graduate courses during the evening. It is the opinion of Barlow that the volunteer program is "potentially a better one and should work," since the directors will be available on a full-time basis. According to him, it is now standard practice at most schools to use graduate students as resident assistants and directors.

Barry Fullerton, who, along with Peter Barlow, made the decision to hire graduate students, said he "wants people who are committed to the field and have an awareness of what can be done." He feels that this "will eliminate the chaos and disorder which exists in the dorms" and, overall, improve life on campus. Although no definite job requirements have been set yet, the Student Affairs Office is close to defining the job specifications and official notices of the positions will soon be sent out.

According to Dr. Fullerton, each of the three resident directors received a letter in September informing them that they would probably not be hired at the end of the year. Two additional positions were phased out last year in preparation for the new program. Davis, Nordin and Barclay were told that they would definitely not be rehired at a meeting on February 14 and were given the reason why. At that time, no disagreements were voiced by any of the three, he said. Rather than meeting with each of the directors separately, the three of them were brought together in an open discussion of the matter. Speaking first, Dennis Nordin compared the dorms the way they are now to an apartment house—the life of the resident isn't controlled at all. However, the students know where he is and should need help and quite often they come down just to talk. Although it doesn't make much difference to him because he wasn't planning on living here next year, Nordin said he could accept the 'fact better if the philosophy governing activities were more defined.

Miss Barday said that the role of a resident director was never actually defined. They were never told to do anything, nor were they included in the dorms. For the first year, only one was called on by Mr. Barlow to act as a third person in straightening out a matter. In addition, the recommendations for the dorms were followed through and specific requests for information were given to the dorms. She feels that the resident directors had been instructed to be available at specific times, when they had been available at those times. When asked about the new program, Barclay commented that "the turnover factor would be another. With the students, the numbers will only be at Bryant for a year or two."

Guy Davis, who was undecided about living here next year, feels that it is important to have faculty members living on campus because it makes them more human and shows, through association, that they care. He thinks "one of their (administrators') basic motives is to separate the constituents (students and faculty)." He continued on to say that "The faculty is the continuity of the school because they stay here the longest. Students leave after a few years, while administrators stay only a very short time." In a letter to Peter Barlow, he also suggested that if they definitely intended to hire graduate students, "why not look to Bryant veterans and married couples—someone who knows the campus, someone who's not a stranger and has a feeling for the Bryant community. Why give our tuition dollars to somebody else?" He feels "they'll be strangers on campus, putting in time and that's it." In a subsequent interview, Guy Davis was told that it is none of his business what Student Affairs does.

All three directors agree that they were not given specific reasons why they are not being rehired. They also consider some of the main problems on campus to be that "more faculty and administrators haven't associated with the students" and that having graduate students as resident directors will not improve the situation.

STREAKING!!! What is it? Where is it? Who is it? Well for those of you who've been sleeping snugly, studying studiously, or just plain dead for the last week, it's romping around in nature's own. That's right, DESNUDO! It's true, Bryant College has gone natural, and just who's been freeing their spirit and displaying the bare essentials of the genus homo sapien is anybody's guess.

Streaking started at Bryant last Saturday with the manifestation of a few lone streakers on the campus. The first good showing of streakers took place early Tuesday morning at about 12:45 a.m. A merry band of jolly jumlers sped around dorms 7, 8, and 3 (we're mixing haven on campus. Many a student dragged themselves to their windows in hopes of catching a glimpse of this unveiling of the human spirit, and were not disappointed. The leader of this cascade known as the "Caped Phantom is believed to be the first streaker at Bryant. This melange of streak freaks is often seen in the area of dorm 10, and are old hands at their antics. Later the same day at about 11:30 p.m. a group of 360 students turned out to watch the spectacle. Their patience was rewarded by eerie displays of streakers who kept their audience amused away into the wee hours. Centered in two areas of the campus near dorms 4 and 5, the streakers kept the crowd in suspense, coming forth at unexpected moments. Unfortunately, a number of pseudo streakers in dorms 3 and 5 ruined the spirit of the night by exhibiting their "moons" from their windows. The true streaker not only performs an natural, but runs from here to there with the speed of light. The highlight of this week's streaking came Wednesday evening at approximately 11:30 when a Bryant male student lead three female non-students around dorms 7, 8, and 9. This group is the first in which girls have streaked, and is also the first cool streak at Bryant. Rumors have been circulating the campus that the girls were members of SIB, and the sorority has been receiving harassment from people. As stated earlier the female streakers were not students of Bryant College, but they're expected to return! The most unique and creative streak of the week came Wednesday night during the Continued on Pages 6 and 7

Senate Referendum

Last week's Senate election ballots included a referendum asking for an increase of the present Senate badit allocation of $5.15 per student, per semester, to $12.50. The referendum was passed by a vote of 529 to 360. This will bring the Senate budget up to $62,000 for next year.

R.I. "Players of the Year"

By Bryant's Dave Scoular (center) was selected Rhode Island College Division "Player of the Year" by state coaches. Also selected were: P.A.G.'s Marvin Barnes (left) — Rhode Island University Division "Player of the Year," and Johnson and Wales' Larry Kelley (right) — Rhode Island Junior College Division "Player of the Year."

The players were honored at a luncheon last Monday by Rhode Island Coaches, fellow players and members of the local news media.
Non-Frat Parties Are Possible But...

Dear Editor,
To the Students of Bryant,

So there can be a party that is open to all, with all the spirits available for all on campus. Yes, it is possible for an entire floor to organize and run a party successfully here at Bryant. We, the people of Dorm 10 4th floor, wish to thank everyone for coming up and having a good time and making our goal together a blast. Everything ran quite well except for a few problems which can easily be ironed out so that an entire floor can be used more efficiently for possibly future parties. I would like to thank the rest of the 4th floor of Dorm 10 for their participation and enthusiasm and the few hundred dollars that was fronted for the party. The only thing we can

Attention Evening Division Students!

Dear Editor,

It has been brought to my attention that Evening Division students are not eligible to participate in the day school's streaking competition here on campus; but, as always, we are afforded the opportunity to form our own organization for evening students only! Therefore, in keeping with the intense competitive spirit in which we evening students take pride, I call for volunteers for the First Annual Co-ed Evening Division Streaking, which will take place on or around the frog pond, depending on weather conditions.

The ARCHWAY does not condone the newest fad called STREAKING, it just thinks it's a piper. When the heaviest thing on the mind of students is how to organize a coed streak, it must be a sign that world pressures are easing off or American youth is again rebelling against the circus of today's politics to society.

Watergate is still dragging on, President Nixon is still dodging impeachment, the Pentagon is still supporting Vietnam, and the Big Oil Companies are still squeezing the last dollar from the American public. When one Bryant streaker was asked why he was streaking he said, "it's something I can do with my friends, enjoy myself, and it doesn't cost anything."

As time passes, the interest in streaking will subside until it will be remembered as just another college prank. Since no one is getting hurt by streaking, why not just except it for what it is. Students Together Removing Every Artical Knowingly Inspiting Naked Games.

This week THE ARCHWAY would like to congratulate the Bryant College Infirmary for their never-ending dedication to fight against ill health. The doctor, when and if he decides to bless us with his presence, is always very eager to see each patient as a new challenge to his profession. It seems as if the doctor is more concerned with getting away from our campus than he is in seeing that the students who are ill are taken care of properly. Sometimes he won't see people if the waiting line gets too long.

Again, congratulations to whoever is responsible for keeping the health service under control. In the meantime, if you happen to feel sick, you might find it a little easier to go to the hospital— at least you'll get taken care of there!
Dear Madame Lovonda,

I think that the idea of the Town Forum is a great idea. This gives the leaders of the Administration, the Faculty and the Student Body a way to speak with the other members of Bryant College in order to discuss the future of Bryant College. Why wasn’t President Evarts present? Could the reason be that Dr. Evarts doesn’t care about the future of Bryant College?

Concerned about the future

Dear Concerned,

Since I feel that your letter is of paramount importance, I went to see Dr. Evarts to find out first hand the reason for his absence at the meeting. He stated that he’d been invited to the first meeting, but he felt that Dr. Fullerton would be a better representative of the Administration being the Vice President of Student Affairs. The turnout of students at this first meeting was very poor so a second meeting was re-scheduled. Dr. Evarts was not invited to the second meeting; thus, this is a reason why he did not attend. Dr. Evarts did state that he is very concerned about the students at Bryant and he invites you to make an appointment to see him personally if you wish.

How about it, Concerned! It’s your move!

Sincerely,
Administratively, Madame Lovonda

Dear Madame Lovonda,

Could you please tell me why the College supplies only one lamp per living room in the dorms? You have to be a bat in order to find your way around the room! Not only is it difficult to read in such poor lighting, but it also creates a depressing atmosphere. Madame Lovonda, will Bryant College ever see the light?

Dotty, Batly and Blindly

Dear BBB,

The reason that the College provides only one lamp per living room in the dorms is many fold. First of all, it cost money, I mean, those ornate, sturdy, deluxe lamps go for a lot! Secondly, they aren’t meant to be used to read by. After all, what do college students have to really worry? Textbooks! Noddy! Thirdly, why should the students have better lighting conditions than anyone else? I’m sure that the Faculty and Administration members only have one cheap plastic lamp in their living rooms at home!

In the Dark,
Madame Lovonda

Dear Madame Lovonda,

I was mortified the other morning when I peeked out my window and found a band of streakers dashing by my dorm. I immediately called Security to put an end to this vulgar display of the human anatomy, but I couldn’t reach them, Madame Lovonda, do you know where Security was when I needed them?

SHOCKED!

Dear Shocked,

I sure do. They were out streaming! Hahaha!

Nudely,
Madame Lovonda

Dear Madame Lovonda,

I keep hearing people mention the name “Harry” around the College. It’s “Harry this,” and “Harry that,” and I just don’t know who they’re talking about, Madame Lovonda, could you possibly tell me who Harry is? He sounds like a real swinger!

Linda Lovely

Dear Linda,

I think he’s the maintenance man for the swimming pool.
(Hahaha hohahahaha hohahaha)

Naughtily,
Madame Lovonda

Dear Madame Lovonda,

I recently had the misfortune of being exposed to the inside of one of the boys dorms. The state of the halls and the stairways was deplorable. I’m surprised they don’t have “rats” (no pun intended). Will there ever be a time when one will be able to run barfloored through this dorm without fear of being bitten?

Ms. Clean

Dear Ms. Clean,

Unfortunately I must agree with you in that the boys dorms are below standard living conditions. I must say that there are a few that are kept in a presentable manner, though. However, I suggest that the next time you venture into one of these “dens of iniquity” that you use staffs. Just make sure to use a pesticide on them or else you’ll get a feast for the termites!

Lyssly,
Madame Lovonda

Fifth Annual Law Enforcement Seminar

The Department of Legal Studies and the Evening Division will sponsor a three-day law enforcement seminar on March 18, 19, and 20. The program will comprise 24 hours of lecture and illustrations given by experts in the field of law enforcement. Topics will include radar, polygraph, breathalyzer, video tape recording and electronic surveillance. The seminar may be taken for two credits by evening division law enforcement majors. However, in addition to attending the lectures, a research paper on any of the topics discussed must be completed. Tuition for the seminar is $50.

Students from the day school are invited to attend any or all parts of the seminar without charge. This will give the students an opportunity to be exposed to some of the practical applications in the criminal justice system.

Time Out

Most red-blooded male types would be green with envy of Herbert Polk. He lives in the Oakland YWCA Hotel with about 60 women. It sounds like a fantasy but, in reality, it is an experiment in communal living—with no sex overtones.

Polk and ‘even other men have taken a permanent residence in the hotel for women in a YWCA experiment. Polk told U.P.I., “Thus far it has been fine with me,” but he had an advantage. He had been a janitor at the “Y” before and knew most of the staff and women. It isn’t entirely communal. The men and women have separate bathrooms and shower facilities. Polk says “The women have tended to be a little more formal in their wearing apparel.”

Polk’s male partners in the unique experiment are students and full-time workers.

How do the women feel about it? In Polk’s words, “Both the younger and older women seem to be happy about the whole idea—there haven’t been any problems.”

The women often ask the men to serve as their escorts when they go grocery shopping or have to travel to downtown stores.

The Oakland “Y” has many different classes—one teaching students how to cook, and the men are getting in on the kitchen act. Often the women will experiment with their cooking and serve the men. Polk says “They like to do this—especially for a nominal fee.”

The “Y” has five floors and much classroom space. Residents and outsiders can take such subjects as Kung Fu, art and swimming. But Polk says there is no nude swimming.

Dean Li, Director of Operations, says the response to the experimental program has been great. In fact, the occupancy rate has been going up drastically.

Li admits the founders of the “Y” might have shuddered about men and women living together. But, “he repeats, “Everything is great.”

It costs $100 a month for a large room with a private bath. And it costs $50 a month for a room without a bath. Residents can use the kitchen any time they want. There are no restrictions. But what about the dirty dishes?

No sex discrimination. Everyone serves as a dishwasher.
STUCKUP STICKUP

Two stickup suspects had to be untuck yesterday when Oakland, California, men were caught from a liquor store robbery. Police chased a getaway car until it crashed. Police say the suspects ran, and one tried to stuff himself into an eight-inch culvert. He got his head and shoulders in and then couldn't get out. The deputies tried to free him, but couldn't. He was stuck, too.

BUBBLEY BURNOUT

When a friendly stranger driving a black Lincoln Continental rushed to ease an automobile fire at a Charleston, West Virginia, diner did it with the style of class you might expect from a man with a luxury car. The stranger bolted from his car to the flaming auto owned by West Virginia state assistant treasurer Don Adams carrying a bottle of champagne. Adams stood speechless as the man popped the cork and sprayed champagne on the flames that had broken out when gasoline spilled from the carburetor of the Adams car. When the fire died out, the man drove off without saying a word.

OF HUMAN INTEREST

Gary Edwards is 27 years old, weighs 300 pounds; repairs auto-bodies for a living in San Luis Obispo, California, and claims a world record.

Edwards also won savings bond and a trophy for eating 35 doughnuts in 15 minutes. According to the Guinness Book of World Records, the maximum doughnut consumption was recorded in two minutes, and 28 in 15 minutes. Edwards ate 11 doughnuts in two minutes, and 35 in 15 minutes.

Asked if he would ever eat another doughnut, he said, "Not for a long time."

BETTER LUX NEXT TIME

Eric Jarvis into a foot-wide concrete pipe does not go. But he found out the hard way in Bournemouth, England. A stage contortionist, Jarvis tried the trick for the first time at a cabaret performance and got stuck. An ambulance was called when stage hands and people from the audience failed to pull him free. 28 at the Royal Victoria Hospital Dr. Brian Burr solved the problem with dishwashing detergent. Several pints of detergent were tipped into the pipe and with nurses pushing his feet and the ambulance crew pulling his arms, Jarvis was freed from the concrete jacket. He was semi-conscious, but he says he wants to try it again.

OUT OF GAS

A vehicle carrying 17 persons ran out of gasoline of U.S. 89 near Houston, Texas yesterday, but nobody got out to push. The passengers were prisoners being carried in a paddy wagon from the downtown jail to the County Rehabilitation Center. The deputy driving called for assistance.

"CASH OR CHARGE?"

The police chief of Cannon Beach, Oregon, has decided to start accepting BankAmericard from tourists who want to post bail up to $500 dollars. It's not for the convenience of lawbreakers, but to help out the city treasurer. Chief John West says his office issues about 150 citations a month in the summer and only 30 or so in the winter. And he says too many of those summer lawbreakers have been disappearing without putting up any time.

"A BLUE STREAK"

(Cambridge, Mass.)—Several hundred students and Cambridge residents gathered at midnight last night to watch 15 male strokers, students from M.I.T. run a one-minute course around a woman's dormitory. Among the spectators at the much-anticipated event was a large showing of women who watched from the dormitory roof and lined the sidewalk. Charles Bruno, an M.I.T. senior from Pittsburgh, California, who is organizing the streaking unit, "We're goin' to do it every Sunday night until we break the record" for the most people doing it any one time.

INVERTED STREAK

All over the country—college students are duffing their duds and running around wearing—at most—a ski mask and shoes. The epidemic is called streaking, and the idea is to surprise people with nudity. But yesterday someone performed the first known "inverted streak.

A spokesman for the "fun in the sun" radioty of Devil's Punchbowl, Oregon, reports a man was spotted running across the grounds—fully clothed.

Many foreign countries have definite ideas about what kind of tourists they want. For instance—did you know American visitors can be jailed for up to life in Tanzania for wearing mini-skirts or tight trousers, wigs or long hair? Or that other countries in Africa refuse entry to travelers whose attire or appearances do not meet their criteria?

Under a decree passed last October by Tanzania, it is illegal for women to wear hot pants, mini-skirts or dresses with side, front or back slits above the knees. Women also are forbidden to wear form-fitting dresses, clothing made of see-through materials, wigs, and even certain forms of make-up.

Men are prohibited from wearing long hair, short shorts, belt-botton shorts or skin-fitting trousers.

The law applies to visitors as well as Tanzanians. And it provides for penalties ranging from outing for first offenders to terms of up to life for repeated violations.

Malawi and Uganda also have official restrictions on hip-length clothing and hair styles. Visitors who don't meet the requirements are refined entry until the violation is cleared or until the violations have been corrected.

Libya and Saudi Arabia also foreign law applies to foreign women to wear hot pants, mini-skirts. There is a law that makes it illegal for women to wear hot pants, mini-skirts or dresses with side, front or back slits above the knees. Women also are forbidden to wear form-fitting dresses, clothing made of see-through materials, wigs, and even certain forms of make-up.

Israel adopts a more liberal view. But a visitor who comes in wearing anything with a Nast-type mustache could find himself on the first plane out. Swastikas are banned in Israel. Most of the West European and Scandinavian countries couldn't care less what visitors look like or wear. Nor do Japan, Hong Kong and other Asian countries.

An exception, however, is Singapore. Hot pants, mini-skirts and beard are tolerated but not long hair on men.

So, if you're heading for one of those foreign countries, be warned and plan to dress and look accordingly.

Mr. Lawrence Hookey, President of the Bryant College Chapter of the Data Processing Management Association, was presented with the group's charter by Mr. David Carpenet, President of the Providence Chapter of the DPMA, at a recent dinner held at Bryant.

ARCHWAY informing students of the vacancy

Sharon Kirker, a student at Bryant, requested the support of the Senate in her quest of obtaining gymnastics equipment for the women’s intramural room in the gymnasium. She feels that there is a need for such equipment and would like the school to provide a trampoline, boxes, parallel bars, a balance beam and other gymnastic equipment. The Senate referred her to the Buildings and Grounds and Curriculum Committees, which will assist her in her efforts.

Terry Curley, Secretary of the Senate informed the Senators that all items for the weekly meeting’s agenda must be submitted by the Friday prior to the next meeting. She also stated that these items submitted after Monday afternoon will not be placed on the agenda and will be missed for the next meeting.

Following Greg’s meeting the Senate held this week’s regular meeting Tuesday afternoon. It was decided that the Senate would begin examining the agenda three minutes prior to the meeting to give the Senate an opportunity to work on the paperwork as the Senate meets weekly without fail.

The Senate’s task was to decide on the matter at its next meeting. Later Monday afternoon, the Executive Council met and voted not to sponsor a concert on the same weekend as Watu Wamiri’s Black Week concert. Watu Wamiri (for the Indiana University Soul Review concert) still stands.

Another important topic of the meeting was to decide to fill three vacant seats in the Senate, it was decided to place an article in The ARCHWAY informing students of the vacancy.

Student Of The Week

Editors’ Note: The ARCHWAY has instituted a new column entitled, “Student of the Week.” It will include a profile of a Bryant student each week and will present his life at Bryant and his views of the College. All students are selected at random from the College Directory. This week’s lucky student is Steven Lerner.

Steven Lerner is a six-semester institutional management major here at Bryant. A native of Albany, New York, Steve plans to return there after graduation and work with his father, who owns and operates four restaurants in the Albany area. In conjunction with his studies in the field of institutional management, Steve is a member of Bryant's Servitium Club, whose members are afforded the opportunity of experience in the Hospitality Service Industry. A member of the Servitium Club for the past three years, Steve is now its Club’s Treasurer.

Steve likes Bryant; yet he feels that there is room for improvement. He related that the Institutional Management Program does not receive enough recognition from the Administration. It is through Mr. Camper, the Department’s Chairperson, that people have

Most of collegiate America seems to have been around and out last night.

Borders of garmentless students got into the act on almost all campuses.

North-East—South and West—bare skin covered the campus.

At St. Bonaventure College in Olean, New York—the thermometer was above 60 degrees at midnight. But observers say that did not deter an unusually large number of streakers from converging around the campus. An estimated 360 men took part in that particular charge of the light brigade.

The streakers were reported to number 300 at the State University of New Paltz, New York early today—60 coeds among them.

At Rochester Institute of Technology—also in New York—an estimated 400 of them streaked around the school hockey rink during a game with St. John's College.

A few hours after his warning, about 40 male and female students streaked outside several dormitories on the URI campus. Never before has any group had such an entourage as the streakers. Although a few condemn the activities in disgust, the majority, and I do mean the majority, approve of streaking as can be proven by the droves of students outside the dorms and coming out their windows during the event.

Streakers are a very motivated group, and little keeps them from their "call in life": not even the chill of the night air. Streakers are also becoming more courageous and outrageous in their activities. Wednesday night a male streaker was baptized in What motivated people to streak is individual, but one thing is known, that once a person has streaked he is hooked. Never the first time, it seems commonplace on the return engagement.

What direction streaking will take next is unknown, but one thing is for sure, that it will continue to grow in popularity and participation for some time to come. A huge turnout is expected tonight here at Bryant with streakers dancing in the moonlight and the glow of flashbulbs.

Whether or not streaking is right or wrong is up to the individual, but one must give them credit for bravery, or is the right word insanity? Whatever, streaking is far from over, so either sit back and enjoy it or buy yourself a pair of blinds. And if you're one of those who'd like to get into the "swing" of things but are afraid of being recognized, don't worry 'cause nobody ever looks at the faces!

(Columbia, South Carolina) More than 300 students, including a dozen girls, streaked naked across the campus of the University of South Carolina tonight while police directed traffic.

As a prelude to the mass streak, several nude motorists rode around the campus.

A crowd of about three thousand gathered on the campus to observe the event. Many took pictures. Several campus policemen ignored the nude students to keep traffic flowing. No arrests were reported.

In other parts of the South, where warm weather added impetus to the fad, school officials took a more serious view of the proceedings. UPI 3-6-74

Vermont

(Burlington, Vermont) A campus police officer directed a student on his motorcycle down a student court at the University of Vermont early this morning, clearing the mixed group of about 300 streakers. The student manager of KUUR-AM, Tim Lewis, a 20-year old junior, said that the store had been coordinating the streak for about three weeks.

Lewis was on the scene as streakers lined up waiting to streak across the campus.

"I think we've really got the number up to about 300. At one point, there were so many streakers that the police had to come in and direct traffic," said Lewis.

"It's a neat stunt and I'm proud we had it here," Lewis said. "But we're not going to let it continue. We had to turn some streakers away because of the number of them."

KARATE TOURNAMENT

by Woody Best and Chuck Baechel

When someone mentions the art of karate, the immediate image that comes to the average person's mind is a picture of a small Japanese man clad in bulky white pajamas fanatically pounding the side of his hand on a pile of thick boards while screaming some blood-curdling yell at the top of his lungs!

This is not karate. It was never meant to represent karate although, truthfully, it has. Karate is the art and science of mind and body coordination whose by-product is the best system of unsarmed self defense ever devised; like an art of movement and body awareness. It is a science, a philosophy and a personal training. Karate entails many hours of hard, tedious effort and dedicated practice usually covering many years in devotion to the struggle for perfection. All comes before the student can really gain any insight into the true feelings and purposes of karate.

According to some, there are three main categories or types that the study of karate falls into. These are: karate-do, bujutsu, karate, and kara-do. Karate-do is the breaking of various numbers of heavy bricks, tile, glass, ice, bottles and animals. It is said to show the power of karate but it has become an instrument of superstition and ridicule for the outsider to criticize the art as an act of mind over material fact and body. Kerate has no reference or relationship to the true study of karate. The next type is called jujitsu-karate. This is the hoaxed-up art of self defense when mail-order expert or dropouts open a school for themselves to gain money and give so-called karate lessons. A year of training is inferior to barroom brawling and excites the false to go out and start fights and further the cynical cause of outerworld copycatting. The second type of karate is the true karate or kara-do. It is a way of life. Its study spreads the feeling and shapes the personality. It becomes part of the student, not whatever he does in his personal life and in his contact with others. Karate expresses the truth of accomplishment or the way. In karate, the way represents finding the true meaning of life through the study of karate. Karate-do is practiced every day, every hour. It has its own distinct philosophy of life. The only way you learn this philosophy is by hard work; no shortcuts. The obvious is simple; the intuitive is hidden. Within kara-do is the potential for a new person, a life like capabilities that make him respected and confident and as an individual.

On Sunday, March 10, the Bryant College Karate Club will host its first Karate Tournament. For a few years now, several students of the martial arts have been informally practicing. This year they organized into the Bryant College Karate Club. There are seven original members: Woody Best, President, Tom Schindt, Vice President; Chuck Baechel, Secretary-Treasurer; Mr. Joe Marcella, Dennis Lada, and "Hawk-eye" Kwan.

Since the Club's organization, its first effort further the martial arts was to set up and sponsor karate classes. The Club brought in an instructor from the Kajukempo Institute of Karate on Route 3 in Smithfield. Bill Gregory, the owner of Kajukempo, provided the services of a Samari swordsman while Nick Rotta, the karate classes have progressed successfully and several have joined the Karate Club.

The Club has very recently set up an all-girl self-defense class and is now about to sponsor its first Bryant College Fire Dragon Inter-school Tournament. In a tournament, it is a way to teach students to compete in Kumite (fighting), Kata (forms) and each tournament provides several demonstrations. The schools competing in this first tournament besides the Bryant Karate Club will be the instructor of Kajukempo, and as an individual.

Black Students: The Second Generation

A detailed look at "The Second Generation of Black Students on White Campuses" will be offered in a day-long symposium to be held tomorrow on the Brown University Campus.

Sponsors of the symposium are the Organization of United African People, a student group; and the Sanjorge Society (named for an ancient African university), an organization of black administrators, staff and faculty at Brown. The organizers have scheduled workshops, role-playing sessions, discussion groups and panel sessions designed to illuminate the nature of the academic and interpersonal experiences of black students at a predominantly white college.

According to Geoffrey Black, Assistant Chaplain at Brown and one of the organizers, the symposium will begin at 9 a.m. in Wilson Hall on the campus, is free and open to the public.

Governor's Sub-Committee on Status of Women

A Sub-Committee on Education has been appointed by the Governor of Rhode Island to investigate sex stereotyping in the state education system, Ms. Joan F. Marcella, Assistant Professor of Social Science at Bryant College and a member of the Commission on the Status of Women, will direct the research which will include assessment of materials, procedures and methods employed in the educational process. At the first meeting, held on February 28, 1974, it was procedures and methods employed in the educational process. At the first meeting, held on February 28, 1974, it was decided that a questionnaire was to be developed and sent to the 39 school communities in Rhode Island. Ms. Marcella's committee is comprised of seven members of the Bryant community: Mrs. Mary Jane Pelkey, Tom Schmidt, Joann Lyons, Mrs. Mary Jane Pelkey, and four students, Mr. Joe Haydu, Mr. Wayne Shink, Mr. Steve Polak, and Miss Debbie DePonte, as well as Mrs. Irma Slavit, the Director of the Blackstone Valley Neighborhood Youth Corporation, Ms. Irene Smith, The Consultant for the Department of Education for the State of Rhode Island, Ms. Michele Wiesley, Principal of the Hillgrove School and a NOW Representative, and Dr. Pat Shocli, Professor of Education at Rhode Island College.

It is estimated that the work will take one year to complete. The findings will be published as to aid the public schools of the state in preparing new and unbiased curriculums, and to solve the problem that is so prevalent today in the public education system.
Mr. Timothy Cartwright: Director
Of Evening Division

In 1972—changes have been made to “maintain an increasing enrollment.” Because of limited student contact, which is mostly during class session, the Administration has little knowledge of student problems. The result is attrition. One major development proposed to alleviate the situation was initiated in August of 1972. This involved distributing newsletters pertaining to student problems and feedback. Although not totally new, such correspondence has been as course registration similar to the Activities Director of Continuing Education. Besides his position as Director of the night school, he is working as a coordinator with the CPA Exam Review and with tax practitioners as an academic counselor for the night school.

In the Family circle Cartwright is a dedicated family man. He’s married to a Bryant graduate and has two lovely daughters. For relaxation one can find him on the basketball court or playing tennis. A life-long resident of Rhode Island, he graduated from Bryant in 1961 and earned his MBA at URI. His teaching experience includes eleven years at a junior high school, one year at a senior high school, seventeen summers in a dormitory business school, as well as a tax accounting instructor at Roger Williams College. In seeking further progress in the field of education, he enrolled at Bryant. Cartwright is currently working for his Doctorate of Education through Nova College in Florida. Most of his work for the course is done independently, except once a month when an instructor is Down here to conduct classes.

High school is the problem with enrollment. Although in evening class body has increased substantially since his arrival, 1958 as compared to 1972

Marketing Communication

“Advertising is a profession that is difficult to define, but competitive, dynamic and satisfying, frustrating and fun, rewarding and creative, and probably the most wonderful business in the world,” says Mr. Philip Johnson, Mr. Johnson, senior Vice President of Textron, the Industrial National Bank, Marketing Communications, has addressed marketing students Wednesday morning. His presentation dealt with the importance of communications with specific mention of clients that his company is handling.

The senior V.P. describes the Marketing Communications field in light of three main areas: name, company, media. Other areas of the presentation dealt with the difference between consumer and industrial advertising and the communications field. After a brief history of the founding of advertising, Johnson explained upon communicating a product to the public while displaying samples of his firm’s work—mostly in the areas of the industrial media.

Johnson’s company handles a combination of consumer and industrial advertising, including advertising, public relations, marketing counsel and all forms of advertising. Among the company’s larger accounts are the Spalding and Boston Post—the Boston Post and the Industrial National Bank, Digital Equipment Corporation, Meridian Division of Encyclopedia Britannica, Marken Corporation, and several names of General Electric Company.

WILL HOLD ELECTIONS FOR NEW OFFICERS

Monday, March 11, 1974

Room 230 3:00 P.M.

Members of the society and interested individuals are invited.

There’s still time to apply for one of the four Delta Mu Delta awards to be given this year.

You don’t have to be a member of Delta Mu Delta to apply. If you’re majoring in business, if you plan to continue in school full time for 1974, and if you have a pretty good academic record, why not try for it?

Ask the Delta Mu Delta Faculty Moderator for an Application form and the details. It won’t take long.

I. Fill out the one-page application.

II. Ask your Dean and favorite prof each to write a supporting letter; and

III. Ask the Registrar to mail an official transcript of all your undergraduate study.

These Application, two supporting letters and transcript—must be sent to Min. Mills Rd., E. street, Evanston, Illinois 60202—postmarked no later than April 20, 1974.

The awards are based on scholarship, leadership, character, motivation, need and potential. Most business students have these one combination or another so get the details and give it the old college try. See Wally Camper for details.

THE NUMBER ONE KILLER OF YOUNG AMERICANS IS YOUNG AMERICANS.

You don't mean to be. But you are. The numbers are simple. Latest available figures show that 8,000 American people between the ages of 15 and 25 died in alcohol related crashes. And almost all the drunk drivers who caused those crashes were also under 25.

1,380 died in combat. 3,420 committed suicide. 2,731 died of cancer.

It's incredible, but one of the most dangerous things you can do is to have a few bottles of wine with friends and drive home.

You can change it. You have to.

You march against war.
You fight for clean air and clean water. You eat natural foods. You practice yoga. You are so much for life. And you are so much against killing.

It would be unthinkable for you to kill another human being on purpose.

So then, why is this happening?

STOP DRIVING DRUNK.
STOP KILLING EACH OTHER.

They tried and lost. The 1973-74 edition of the Bryant basketball team has nothing but fame or Praise must be given to this young team and their coach. What was to be a disaster season turned around to be an exciting one only to end on a snub. Perhaps this student body expects too much from this team. After all, they must be a winner as well as a loser.

Many people attending the game would not accept this fact. Some of the comments heard from the fans by this writer throughout the first half were distasteful, absurd, and disgraceful. Who in their right state of mind could ask Dave Sorfine a "bum"? That's correct people, a "bum." He was only this College Division Player of the Year in Rhode Island, an honor that he is very proud of. The contribution Sorfine gave to this year's team needs to be noticed.

His playing ability was never equalled by any of his opponents. This feat is entitled to an "off" night.

Another one of the fan's controversial comments has been "Bob Moll's team, where was the ballplayer? Where were the remarks when he was nine for seven in the final game against Bentley?"

Bob Moll was called every name in the book for missing the final game. But I am sure Bob Moll isn't the first person ever to play basketball to miss two foul shots.

Fans can always second-guess coaches. This is what makes sporting events interesting. A coach's job is to have a team mentally and physically prepared for a game as well as determining winning strategies. It is pleasing to see that this strategy is carried on during the game. Coach Moll has proven he is capable of these characteristics. The one night his strategy fails to produce a winner, the fans let him know it. This shows the stupidity of some people.

The outspoken fans of this school should bow their heads. You know who you are. Your conduct at the game was disturbing. After all, these nights are for trying—and they deserve your support.

Thank you, Coach

Stonehill Tops Bryant in Season Finale

by Fred Cozlon

Bryant's hockey team dropped its last game of the first season against Stonehill College by a score of 8-3. The game was held at the First Night in Brockton. It was a disappointing loss for Bryant's hockey team, especially after a hard-fought 1-0 win after one period. Stonehill's, a club team, in their first meeting earlier this year at Smithfield.

The game went into overtime after neither team could find the back of the net. However, the game ended in a 1-1 tie after Stonehill scored at the 4:30 mark of the third period.石

Bryant's second goal of the game came when Defensive player Mark Pastula scored at the 10:40 mark of the third period. The goal was assisted by Forward player John O'Brien. The game was marked by many scoring opportunities for both teams. However, neither team scored any more goals in the overtime period.

Bryant's, Ohan, besides making his passes count, played the best defense of the team. He led the team in steals, and forced many opponent passes to go astray. Bob Mason, who was the key to the defense, was a thorn in the side of the opposition. A tireless performer, Bryant's 5'9" skater played 7 complete games. As a final recognition, the "Pearl" has earned an Honorable Mention selection of the ECAC's Final Team of the Week.

School records have been broken, and will be cracked in the future. The team has been a model of teamwork. Stonehill Tops Bryant in Season Finale.

starting man-to-man, Colucci's corps quickly regained their composure, trailing by just four, at halftime. Dave Sorfine was unacut to get the ball from the Indian backcourt. The tenacious Hawk zone forced the Indians to shoot from downtown. The ball did not bounce in the home team's direction, as Bryant's shooting was off target. The Indians' twenty-fours were futile. Sorfine, who had 19 points, was in control. The Indians battled from him by Hawk forward Bob Hopper and guard Dave Sorafine. Hopper denied the passing lane to Sorfine most effectively. He was the Indian marksmen only took 5 second-half shots. Datcher, an aggressive guard, was another standout for the Hawks. The co-captain stole the ball from the Indians, who were losing his team with 17 points. Bryant's Bob Hammel was the only player able to find the shooting range for Bryant. Despite shooting over the zone, Hammel's 16-point high was not enough. After Sorfine tapped in a shot at the buzzer, the Hawks still came out ahead, though by only one point.

As the players turned in their uniforms for another season, it was the last time for two of the Bryant players. Bill Goudailer, and Rich Shanley were the best captain he had ever had. Shanley was not just the cheerleader. People think what he was. Rich scored many key baskets in addition to his fine defense. Shanley gave 100% of himself both to his fellow team and the fans. Bill Goudailer's tribute is quite a compliment to a person—Rich Shanley.

Remembered for his shooting, despite being just 5'7"

Bryant Topples First-Ranked Bentley

by Steve Sadetsky

The Indians' rematch against Bentley threw mud in the face of the NCAA Selection committee. The officials decided on a four team tournament, selecting Hartford, Assumption, St. Michael's, and the Bentley Falcons to represent New England in the NCAAA Small College playoffs. The Bryant Indians, however, showed those watching, that the Smithfield team was indeed capable of playing in the tournament. As a result, Bryant entered the NAIA tournament.

Two sections of stands were closed for the television crew. Three cameras were used, lighting was added, and excitement was in the air with all 1800 fans on their feet. Bryant and Bentley were introduced and it was apparent to all that the Falcons had a height advantage. In the backcourt Bryant's Ned Bohan and Wart Washington were matched with Bentley's Robbie Robinson and Brian Hammel, both 6'2".

After All-American Brian Hammel had scored eight of Bentley's first ten points, Coach Tom Follard called a timeout, calming his young squad. Follard inserted Tom Dupont in the lineup with 12 minutes left in the half. The coach's substitution was probably the most important factor in the game, making seemingly impossible passes to Dupont and Dave Serafine. By game's end Tom Dupont converted 9 of 11 shots from the field and all four from the charity stripe. Dupont's 22 points stymied Bentley's defense. Dave Serafine at times had two and three men assigned to him. Mark Shea

Many records were broken by this year's basketball squad; all but one, however, are school records. Ned Bohan has established a new assist record for College Division Teams in New England.
