Marathon - Personality Highlight Tonight

At the crack of the gun, the first event of Personality 70, the judging for Mr. and Miss Personality of Bryant College, went off with full success. Remember that 40 per cent of the selection rides on today's voting of the student body.

Tonight, for the first time ever, Personality Ball will be held at Holiday Inn Hotel in downtown Providence. Thrice, the winners of Mr. and Miss Personality 70 will be announced. In addition, for the first time in Rhode Island, The Underground Railroad from New York will be doing their thing to bring you an enjoyable night of music and merriment. The brothers of Beta and the sisters of Theta cordially invite all students and Grecians to attend.

Tomorrow, Saturday, October 24th, in the gym, there will be the ultimate contest of both mental and physical endurance - the Dance Marathon. The thrill of victory will be climaxed when a brand new, crisp hundred dollar bill touches the cool, damp fingers of the exhausted, winning couple. It could be you! Also, all during the night, refreshments (the type that are satisfying) will be served at a reasonable price.

For the Fun of the Fund

Hold on Bryant. . . it's that time of year again! That's right, it's that time of year for the United Fund Week. United Fund Week, November 1 through 6, is just the week set aside in Bryant's calendar when everyone: students, faculty, and administrators alike have a good time and yet help the United Fund.

This year the United Fund week will be referred to as "FUN OF THE FUND WEEK." Starting on Monday, November 2nd, and continuing until Thursday of that week, there will be daily activities devoted to the purpose of collecting money for the UF campaign and for providing good times for everyone. The schedule of activities looks like this:

MONDAY - A volleyball championship match between the "best of the girls" of both the students and the faculty and administration. This should be a most interesting match. Of course the student team could win hands down . . . they've been practicing all semester.

A second event scheduled for Monday will be the Car Wash with the students, faculty, and administration providing the manpower . . . and you providing the dirty car. Can you think of a better way to get your car washed cheaply and yet get a free comedy show in the process?

TUESDAY - A favorite of yours will be a Car Wash with the students, faculty, and administration providing the manpower . . . and you providing the dirty car. Can you think of a better way to get your car washed cheaply and yet get a free comedy show in the process?

Wednesday - Something new for the FUN OF THE FUND WEEK: A real live auction! Students and Faculry and Administrators will be asked to donate any old items of anything that they don't want. Then many brand-new items will be added to the used items and the entire lot will be auctioned off. This could be a good chance to add a few new records to your collection, or to pick up a few cheap nick-knacks for your room in the dorm. There is also a chance that the specific services of students and faculty might also be auctioned off to the highest bidder. For example, the professor might offer his services as a car washer, or a

Kennedy Attacks Administration on Issue of Fuel Oil Shortage

Saying that he wonders what it would be like to go to a United States Senator for confession.

Senator Kennedy's remarks during the press conference and his speech, either praised the Democrats for their record, or criticized the President, his administration, or Spiro Agnew. "Many of you heard about me through Spiro Agnew. He's been mentioning me a lot these days. I think it was ever since that day that my sister-in-law, Ethel, wore a Spiro Agnew wristwatch. You know, up to that time I was never mentioned among those wonderful list of people that he talks about. I can tell you something, if he keeps talking about me, my name is going to become a household word up in Massachusetts."

After the speech, all the candidates stayed on the stage for a receiving line. Senator Kennedy said that he was now starting to work actively on his campaign.

Senator Edward Kennedy was the guest speaker at a Democratic fund raising event at Rhodes-on-The Pawtuxet. The main purpose of his trip was to endorse the entire slate of Democratic candidates in Rhode Island. Prior to the main event, Senator Kennedy held a press conference with Governor Licht, in which he released a new book, "Wealth consists not of great possessions but of few wants." — Epicurus
ACE Convention: National Policy on Education

(CPS) — The American Council on Education has commended the Scranton Commission for its fair and factual definition of the problem of campus unrest.

The commendation was first announced at ACE's 53rd annual meeting here October 7-8 and urges that the Commission's "full report should be widely and thoughtfully read" and that "serious and open-minded consideration be accorded the recommendations in the report."

This year's ACE convention was convened around the subject of open admissions but resulted in no general endorsement or plan of action on the theme: "Higher Education for Everybody."

In the wake of this spring's anti-government turmoil on the nation's campuses, the conference held eight panel discussions focusing on problems of "Higher Education" using background papers from various sociologists, political scientists and administrators. Student representation on the panels was limited to two students from Washington University in St. Louis. None of the demands or issues of last spring's student strike were discussed.

The main task confronting "Higher Education," issued in pleas by two separate keynote speakers, is the development of national leadership in the academic community in pressing for legislation to establish universal higher education.

Daniel P. Moynihan, special counselor to the President, suggested that college and university administrators could begin to solve problems on their campuses by responding to the Nixon administration's proposals for higher education. He lauded the Higher Education Opportunity Act which would provide federal subsidies to be "used in such a way that the resources available to poor students are brought up to the level of middle income students."

It would also provide loan funds for upper-income students. Last year Moynihan called for reforms in the secondary education system which would emphasize "vocational" training, particularly "for minority" groups, to help build a "stable working class population."

Moynihan suggested that "the universities are so preoccupied with their own problems—the difficulty of managing what now exists—that they can not for the moment give much thought to the larger problems of expansion."

Noting that the Nixon administration is addressing itself to this need to "expand" access to colleges and universities to solve their problems, Moynihan described the proposal for a National Foundation for Higher Education, to be administered by a semi-autonomous board and director appointed by the President, whose purpose it would be "to redress the imbalances that earlier forms of federal aid have wrought."

The Foundation would provide funds to support "excellence, new ideas and reform in higher education;" would strengthen institutions which "play a uniquely valuable role" or are "faced with special difficulties;" and would provide an organization concerned with "the development of national policy in higher education."

Arthur S. Flemming, last year's ACE chairman and president of Macalester College, echoed Moynihan's pleas for major reforms and called for the development of a plan "that will narrow significantly the gap between the promise our nation has made of equal opportunity for higher education for all Americans and the reality which confronts us today."

He added that he thought that "all-out dedication to the cause of universal access to post-secondary education will provide new incentives for needed reforms in our system of higher education."

In another speech at the convention, Samuel B. Gould, who most recently resigned as chancellor of the beleaguered State University of New York, chided administrators for forgetting that they are educators as well. "There are four fundamentals: standards, discipline, teaching, and learning," he said, "—those in transition, those in flight, those in desperation, and those who are newly appointed."

BUFFALO-HOLY CROSS FOOTBALL

To Focus on Politics

(CPS) — Tentative plans for the half-time show on the afternoon of Oct. 31, when the State University of New York at Buffalo meets Holy Cross in a regionally televised game, have been announced.

According to Phil Leaf and John Charles of the Student Association, a half-time show with the influence of the Student Association was formulated after rumors during the summer that some sort of protest might disrupt the televised game. Accordingly, the Student Association met with Dr. Lawrence Capello, who represented the administration, and it was agreed that the Student Association and the Buffalo Marching Band would have a voice in the formulation of a relevant half-time show.

The main participants in the planning of the half-time show include, John Charles and Bill Fenrider of Ross Lutheran College, Harvey Homan and Bill Krons of the Buffalo marching band.

Before the game, the traditional ROTC color guard is expected to be replaced by the Jimi Hendrix version of the National Anthem. This will be the only pre-game activity in the plans of the strategist.

Martin Fenrider said: "The aims of the half-time show are in line with the Oct. 31 Moratorium. We will not stress one single issue, but we will emphasize the aspect of two wars—a war in Southeast Asia, and a war at home against Third World."

He also explained the meaning of the proposed songs to be played by saying: "The flow of the music will show how the peace movement started in a peaceful requesting manner and how it has moved on towards militancy to gain benefits."

Accompanying the music will be band formations dealing with issues like repression of the Black Panthers, the meaning of power to the people, sexism, and ecology. Guerrilla theatre and skits will also be included.

After revealing their tentative plans, Fenrider said: "We hope to make the show educational and our narration along with the music and skits seek to educate. We remember that last year President Nixon was at home watching football on television on the day of last year's Vietnam Moratorium day."

John Jolley To Advise Theta Delta

 Theta Delta held its Fall Dinner Speaker Meeting at the Chamada Inn in Seekonk. Mrs. Joan F. Marsella was the speaker. Mrs. Marsella spoke on the "Profil vs. the Prophet Generation." Everyone who attended the meeting enjoyed Mrs. Marsella's speech.

 Theta Delta is happy to announce that they have a new advisor, Mr. John Jolley. Mr. Jolley has expressed an interest in this organization, and we are happy to have him as our advisor. Mr. Frank Ferguson, a past advisor, is with us again this year.

 Theta Delta is trying to change. We want to become more active, but it is up to us to work to an increase of 8500 over a past advisor is with us again this year.

 Gay Liberation: Meet Me in Minneapolis

(CPS) - Almost 150 members of gay liberation groups from around the country met here last week-end despite action by the University of Minnesota administration which prevented the convention from being held on campus.

A campus homophile group called FREE - Fight Repression of Erotic Expression - asked four months ago to use university facilities for the meeting, but were told only a few days before it began that the request had been "neither approved nor dis-approved," according to Jim Cheesebrough, a leader of the group.

University officials reportedly said they feared approval of the request would prejudice the University's case in firing Jim McConnell, member of FREE who had announced his intention of applying for a marriage license to wed another man. The district court held that McConnell's homosexuality does not affect his ability to perform the job.

It was learned that the university examined FREE's constitution as a student organization, but could find nothing out of order.

FREE tried to obtain legal help in bringing an injunction to force the university to allow the meeting, but could not find legal help.

The Minnesota Civil Liberties Union, which has assisted in McConnell's own suit, declined to take FREE's case. The convention was held anyway, in a run-down auditorium on the "left bank" of Minneapolis - a low-rent district with many students and street people.

The delegates, many of whom expressed radical political views, promptly unveiled their proposed schedule, which included such "straight" (non-homosexual) speakers as Minnesota's commissioner of human relations, who was to speak on gay people's employment problems, and a representative of a Lutheran church agency, who was scheduled to speak about religion and the homosexual. It was decided that the convention would be "for gay people and by gay people."

Discussion centered on the experiences and problems of gay organizations around the country and on the problems of the Revolutionary Peoples Constitutional Convention, sponsored by the Black Panther Party, to be held starting Nov. 1 in Washington, D.C.

An important topic was how members of the gay liberation movement would relate to other oppressed people, primarily women and Third World people. In that context, the subjects of racism, sexism, and male chauvinism were discussed, as well as the polarization between moderate and gay people, and communications problems within the gay community.

Another concern of the group was the difference between the problems of gay people living in large and small cities. Representatives of the Lawrence (Kan) Gay Liberation Front said, "The problems of educating the community (a small town) are vast beyond our comprehension." (Continued on Page 6)

Letters:

As a result of various errors made concerning the last election, the Student Senate Election Committee has called for a re-vote. I will not use this letter to condemn or criticize my other opponents. I simply wish to make my position clear to all freshmen commuter and dormitory students. More than ever, I want to instill our class a strong, influential, and united body at Bryant. You must realize that by calling for this re-vote, a change or correction must be made when you vote again. Next year we move out to Tupper Campus. Our class must be instrumental in forming the kind of academic and social life we all want. This year’s freshmen success, along with the rest of the student body, must work together to do this. If elected president of our class, I will try to provide this kind of unification. I will not fill this page with empty promises, but will honestly try to do the best job possible. My qualifications are simple — I am an interested Bryant freshman who wants to see our class a successful one. You must make the decision to vote on Tuesday, October 27.

Sincerely,

Tom Vathaly
Candidate for President
Freshman Class

Dear Editor:

Yesterday, October 19, the Executive Council of the Student Senate declared that a new election be held for the office of Freshman Class President. This decision was made by an objective body that upon investigating the circumstances of the election, found sufficient violations of the election rules to justify a re-vote. It is unfortunate that another election must be held, but it would be even more unfortunate if more of our rights, as may have happened in, at least, two cases. My name will again appear on the ballot when the new election is held and I hope you give me a chance to serve the Class of 1974. We can do a lot to build a good freshmen class and a better Bryant College only if we are willing to work long and hard for this goal. I am ready to give me a chance. I'd also like to thank the other candidates for all their help and encouragement and thank you for your support.

Mark Vincent
Candidate for Freshman Class President

Dear Editor,

Attention Freshman Class:

For those of you that have not been informed, a protest has been lodged against my election. It seems that the other candidates feel that Identification Cards were not adequately or shall we say rigidly checked. Therefore there will be a re-election on Monday.

I wrote to you before the election in order to get your support at the polls. It would appear that the other candidates cannot face defeat.

I don’t want to start attacking any of my opponents. I just want this mess cleared up so that I can get to work implementing my ideas.

I apologize for any inconvenience which this re-vote may cause you, the voters.

Sincerely yours,
your elected president,
Michael Bulkin

P.S. The Executive Council decided on a re-vote only because of the incompetence of others, not me! Only the I.D. Cards was the issue. I appeal to you not to believe any other reason for this revote.

Student Senate
What’s New?

The Student Senate has a proposal to establish Grievances. The proposal has been voted upon by the faculty members. We should have an answer by the end of this week.

The Senate is sending a letter to all faculty members asking about student membership on the Board of Trustees. We are asking for two students to be appointed to the Board of Trustees and that the procedure for appointing students to the Board to be as follows:

Students are nominated. A student must receive at least 40% support from the student body to be nominated.

The Board will select two out of those nominated.

The Senate Selection Committee has appointed students to the different college committees. The positions are still left open. After all the candidates have been interviewed, the names will be made public.

The Senate is in the process of drafting a letter to all faculty members asking them to reconsider their position on the attendance policy.

The Executive Council decided to hold another Executive freshmen, the President because I.D.’s were not checked and the election was very close, where a few votes could make a difference.

The United Fund is about to begin, Doug Hazelett will be handling the program for the Students.

At the next Senate meeting, the Senators at Large will be chosen. The form for Faculty Evaluation will be revised and a new position to meet with the faculty will be appointed.

The next meeting will be on Monday, October 26, at 3 in the Activities Building.

Dear Editor,

In a letter to the editor last week, someone unknown to me stated that a skit that several of us performed some weeks ago was perverted, disgusting, and "a gross degradation of the Italian nationality". Perhaps he or she was right.

However, when I first got the idea for this skit, I was given the impression that the purpose of campus follies was for a small group of college people to have fun on stage entertaining a larger group of college people. We enjoyed doing it, the audience seemed to enjoy watching it, and most obviously the judges liked it. Perhaps it was perverted, disgusting, and gross, but we assumed that no Academy Award for Dramatics was to be given out. We were just a group of guys having a good time.

Finally, I don’t believe it is fair to condemn an entire fraternity for the folly of one or two people. If anything, it must be me, my co-writer, my cast, the judges...

Folly Fights Back

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter in response to the one that appeared in last week’s issue. Senate New?

Senator has established a new committee. The committee has been voted to examine the faculty of the university and has an annual budget. It is sending a committee to the Evans Committee, which is charged with the task of researching the issues surrounding the faculty members. The committee has been directed not to make any public comments on its findings.

On October 14, Representative Richard H. Ichord, Chairman of the Select Committee, released a report to the United Nations. The report contains the results of a survey of the American public, which was conducted by the United Nations. The survey was designed to investigate the public's opinion on the United States' role in the world. The report contains the results of the survey, which shows that the majority of the respondents support the United States' involvement in international affairs. The report also contains the committee's recommendations for the United States' future role in the world.

Earlier, the American Civil Liberties Union asked Judge Gerhard G. Gesell of Federal District Court to prohibit the Committee to publish the findings of the survey. The judge agreed to issue a temporary restraining order until the United Nations could present a full report on its findings. The judge held a full hearing on the matter. Hearing of the judge's decision, Congressmen Louis C. Johnson, Chairman of the American Civil Liberties Union, and Jerome Salkin, the criminal justice, who prepared a study on the American public's opinion on the United States' role in the world, expressed their support for the judge's decision. The judge ruled in favor of the United Nations, allowing it to publish the findings of the survey.

The American Civil Liberties Union has also taken the matter to the Supreme Court, which will rule on the matter in the near future.

Insights

by Alan Kluger

The continuing episodes of protest and dissent in the United Nations have their base on the First Amendment to the Constitution, a great safety valve that is lacking in other nations of the world. The First Amendment creates a sanctuary around the citizen's beliefs. It holds the one true hope for peace. We cannot hope for many more.

Perhaps the greatest fault in the "liberals" reasoning is their opinion of the First Amendment. They lose freedom of speech, so long as that freedom applies only to those who refuse to listen to what the other side has to say. They may exercise their freedom of speech, they cry foul. They are the first ones to dwell upon personal attacks. They are the ones to bypass ignorance and faulty ideologies.

Today, with our divided political parties and chaotic country, the United Nations holds the one true hope for peace. We cannot hope for many more.

DRAFT CONVICTION RATE DROPS

Gay women presented two demands to the men concerning the Revolutionary Convention in Washington. They asked that in planning sessions for the Convention there be two gay women, and two Third World gay people for each gay white male. They also demanded that the gay delegations’ first priorities be the rights of women, lesbians, and Third World people. Both proposals were accepted.

In reviewing the proposals made by the male homosexual caucus at the “plenary session” of the constitutional convention last month in Philadelphia, the Minneapolis delegates affirmed the resolution that the Black Panther Party is at present the vanguard of the revolutionary movement in America.

The Bryant College Skiing and Ousting Club has planned an outing this year with the election of new officers. They are Danny Kahan, president; Doug Seligman, vice-president; Kathie Donahue, secretary; and Sudi Nunes, treasurer.

Many new and different activities are being planned by this year's members. This past weekend a small group of members took a trip to Mount Madison in New Hampshire. This overnight camping trip was enjoyed by all who went.

A trip to Austria is in the planning stages for January, over semester break. There will be many discounts on tickets and other rates. Anyone interested in this trip should contact Danny Kahan or Howie Kahn in Appleby Hall.

If you would like to join the Ski Club, the meetings will be held on most Tuesdays at 3:00 in Alumni Hall. All are welcome.

Golf Team Drives To Win

Perhaps many students didn't even know that Bryant has a Varsity Golf team, but on Monday, October 19, at the Rockleigh Country Club, the Indians defeated Clark University by an overwhelming score of 6-1. Coach Boulet's men also won matches against St. Francis and Stonehill College. John Williams was the medalist, beating his opponent with a 78. Also victorious were Gary Riker, Jim Feeny, Larry Ostrower, and Kirk Ikki, and all undefeated Rick Eden and Sean Garrity also played well for Bryant.
