The Community Relations Board of the Student Senate held its first function with officials of the Town of Smithfield at the new campus last Saturday. Steve Cohen, Chairman of the Community Relations Board along with the other members of the Board - Bill Kisiel, Barry Gerard, Charlie Boklan, Dean Smith, and Mr. Hagan met informally with members of the Town Council, Police Department, and other Smithfield organizations in an effort to open communications link between the Town and Bryant Students. In Speaking to the group, Steve Cohen stated that "the Board is an attempt to handle any mutual problem of the town and Bryant students." He also said that "one duty of the Board will be to channel the talent on our campus which may be requested to help or support various groups in Smithfield." The informal gathering joined in the old barn on the campus for refreshments and friendly conversation following a tour of new campus facilities. Besides the Smithfield officials and the Community Relations Board, Dr. Evans, President of Bryant; Dr. Manier, Vice President of academic affairs and a Smithfield resident; Mr. Delmonico, Vice President of Financial Affairs; Mr. Cornelius, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and Allan Kluge, Senate President; were present.

One prospect for the beginning of next year is the request by one of Smithfield's councilmen for a student member on the town's youth advisory council.

Delta Omega and George W. Bates who is leaving as advisor to D.O. Mr. Richards told how it was when he and Dr. Jacobs began D.O. many years ago. He explained how it originally met as a five o'clock meeting at the Dreyfus Hotel in downtown Providence. The organization grew in size and stature when members of the management and accounting departments joined with members of the Marketing department of the school. He told how one individual recruited 150 members and how the group moved from club to club trying to accommodate the crowd.

Mr. Bates, a younger according to Mr. Richards, joined the group as advisor 17 years ago and has been with D.O. ever since. Among those attending to salute Mr. Richards and Mr. Bates were Professor Yorks, Dr. Evans, and Dr. Jacobs, Chancellor and past President of Bryant. In the final action of the evening awards were given to the past officers and board members, of D.O. and the new officers and board members announced. The officers for next year are; Howard Rivkin, President; Ted Weiner, Vice President; Ken Miller, Secretary.

Delta Omega Professional Society ended the school year with a triple fete this past Monday. Besides being a regular speaker meeting, special tribute was made to George Bates and George Richards who are retiring as advisors to the organization. The new officers and board members were also announced at this meeting.

The evening began with the meal which was followed by a talk by one Johnson, Vice President of L.T.T. Powerflex division. He explained the marketing procedures which he had just supervised in the introduction of L.T.T.'s new Powerflex cable. He showed examples of the product as well as some of the ads and visuals used by salesmen and the marketing department in promoting this new line. King Kong was used as a name in all promotions along with photographs of a hairy fist clutching a segment of cable showing its strength. L.T.T.'s "new kid on the block" with this type of cable used in mines and industry, and has been extremely successful since the beginning of the promotion seven months ago.

In Memoriam — Kent State May 4, 1970

Last Tuesday marked the first anniversary of the Kent State tragedies. On that fateful day in May four college students were shot to death by stray bullets from the weapons of National Guardsmen.

In retrospect it is easy to say that the events leading up to the shooting were clear indicators of what was to happen. But at the time of the incident, most people were oblivious to the impending doom. No one individual can be held responsible for the events which took place. Rather, it was a culmination of events with an inevitable end.

There had been disturbances for a month prior to May 4. Emotions were running high on all sides. The National Guardsmen who had been sent to the Kent State campus after the burning of an R.O.T.C. building had gone without sleep for an extended period of time and were being subjected to almost constant harassment by student demonstrators.

No one seemed to know who fired the first shot or why. In a matter of minutes it didn’t matter who or why, for four students lay dead or dying and a dozen others lay wounded.

It is difficult, if not impossible, to put into words the emotions that were felt about the tragedy. Even now, a year later, one gets a lump in his throat at the thought of it. May 4, 1970, was a tragic day in the pages of American History, it was an even more tragic day in the lives of those involved, and in the lives of their loved ones.

We were witnesses to what violence can bring. We are told by some that there is no way that the system can only be changed by violence. I prefer to believe that this is not in fact a truth. It is fitting and right that we remember what happened at Kent State. It is fitting and right that we remember the names of those students who died that day:

A Rendezvous With Death

Alan Seeger

I have a rendezvous with Death
At some disputed barricade,
When Spring comes back with rustling shade
And apple-blossoms fill the air.
I have a rendezvous with Death
When Spring brings back blue days and fair.
It may be he shall take my hand
And lead Ill into his dark land
And close my eyes and quench my breath.
Or it may be I shall pass him still
And lead me into his dark land
And close my eyes and quench my breath.
It may be I shall pass him still.
I have a rendezvous with Death
On some scarred slope of battered hill,
When Spring comes round again this year
And the first meadow-flowers appear.
God knows 'twere better to be deep
Pillow’d in silk and scented down,
Where love throws out in blissful sleep,
Pulse sinks to pulse, and breath to breath,
Where hush’d awakenings are dead.
But I’ve a rendezvous with Death
At midnight in some flaming town,
When Spring trips north again this year,
And I to my pledged word am true.
I shall not fail that rendezvous.

The Archway
After a great deal of thought, I have decided that no longer can I hold back the truth from any fellow Bryant College students. I am now prepared to expose a vicious plot taking place at this very moment. It all began a few months ago, but has already grown grossly out of proportion. I admit to knowledge of this plot and by doing so must admit to part of the guilt. However, by revealing this plot at this time I feel that I am relieving myself of at least partial guilt. We are being taken, that's right taken. The Bryant College student body is being taken by a group of androids and robots from the planet Yarroux. These alien beings were created by none other than that disabled genius Lex Luther, himself. That's right, he's back again, and this time his plan is more horrible than ever before, this time, he's playing for keeps. Taking over the minds of the Bryant students, he plans on infiltrating the business world and eventually taking over. Imagine it, every business mind in the world, trained, programmed to one single purpose—to aid Lex Luther. The goal of this diabolical genie is obvious—to corner the world market on Kryptonite. Superman, Supergirl, and even faithful Krypto all in jeopardy. Right now, this very moment, the Junior League of America is in closed door conference. In future Earth, the Legion of Super-heroes has met and even Brainiac 5 was able to be of any use. Truly, we are playing a large part in a major devilish game, unknowingly Flash Gordon and Buck Rogers flew in yesterday. The group is planning on taking America and try and figure out how to save us from this plot; as of now they have reached no conclusions. All these really-super great people gathering together has made me realize my own doing. I have known And now to reveal this vicious plot. Have you ever heard of the Faculty Federation? Have you even noticed where it came from, how it started, what it means—that's right—Lex Luther. Have you ever tried to ask a Faculty member what the Federation is? Even they don't know why you ask because they haven't been programmed to it. I have broken down the code. Faculty in fact is not what they are.

What faculty is is the Fiendish And Criminality Unstable Little Tiny Yarroux—FACULTY! Now you can realize why there are absence regulations. You figure by making the Freshman and Sophomores go to class they have time to program them to their evil and corrupt ways. By the time the student is a Junior or Senior he is already properly hooked. They have created mind divorcing devices to get you to see their ways. "We have ways of making you talk," said one Faculty higher up.

Now is the time to come to the aid of your college. We must take our responsibility to Bryant College to America—to the world.

Superman's not just anybody—he's Superman. And its not by coincidence that the colors he wears are red, white, and blue. There is only one alternative—we must realize what is happening and we must strike—strike the right Strike. We must close our minds to these FACULTY, before they ways of making us faster—than a speeding locomotive. After Superman, who knows whose next. I can not suppress information. I needed that.

Annouic Comes To Bryant . . . or so it would seem to any average student of the Junior class. Mr. P has engaged two sections of his class into a practice element of his teaching, the "Society Plan." He goes on to say that every individual has four stages of response, security, and new experience. It is in quest of the last stage that he's perfectly confounded their research. Their search for a new experience was the direct cause of their "abnormal" behavior. "Deviant behavior," says Mr. P. "may occur when people get tired of social customs; in a person's quest to be distinguished he may revert to deviant behavior."

In essence the assignment was to break a social norm and to record the observer's reactions.

A paper submitted by Charles Bolkan, George McKenna, and Anthony Grant demonstrated to shed some light on class distinction in regard to their deviant behavior. Their experiment encompassed three public places of notable class distinction; an upper-middle class lounge, a middle luncheonette, and a lower-middle class bus terminal. The premise of the venture was to have McKenna, in business attire, seated when Bolkan and another student were to enter and arrest him. Nearby was Bolton to record the observers' comments. Their findings were quite interesting. The observers' surprise to the arrest dwindled as the trio proceeded from the upper-middle to lower-middle class. It seemed almost commonplace in the bus terminal. In fact, "while the arrest took place in the terminal, a middle-aged man seemed noticeably upset by the arrest and tried to cover his face." Their research uncovered some answers which appear to have validity in the social class distinction. Most observers thought McKenna to be a drug pusher and his arrestees to be F.B.I. agents. By this reaction, it would seem that people interject exciting imaginary characters, both of whom are supposedly receiving national attention, to relieve their suburban melancholic moods.

Another interesting paper was done by Pauline Dunn. She chose I Walked Into a Men's Room as her title. She had her boyfriend, the recorder of observations, planted in the men's lavatory of the Union. Pauline walked in and proceeded to wash her hands. Observers' reactions ranged from shock to condemnation to apathy. "The younger the observer," said Pauline, "the more understandable he tended to be." Pauline concludes her research finding that younger people would accept her deviant behavior more readily than an older person could.

A third and final sample paper was authored by Marshall Duncan. Marshall's premise was to be observed placing a baby carriage containing a German Shepherd puppy while a har­nessed three-year-old walked obediently beside her. In short, the dog and the infant switched places, or did they? Anyway, her observers' reactions were quite vindictive. Marshall broke one of society's most cherished norms, child-carrying. Therefore, social pressures and conformities label Marshall an unfit mother. Tough luck, Marshall!

Other researchers broke such folkways as the black-white barrier, an unmarried couple searching for an apartment, fighting in public, and bringing your own food into a restaurant to eat, to cite but a few. Mr. P. had some noteworthy comments on the behavior of his class. He said, "although some students think radically they were psychologically restrained in this experiment, which is somewhat healthy." He feels that the geographical location, inhabited New England, had a great deal to do with the mildness of the students experiments. "If I had asked a class in, let's say California, to do the same, the attempt would definitely have been wilder." He sums up the entire experiment by saying that, "the majority of my students are actually carrying forth the norms of society."

One of Mr. P.'s female students gives a very logical but eloquent reason to Mr. P.'s conclusion, "my final analysis must be that as far as I am concerned deviant behavior takes balls."—Robert Ribault

G.L.C. Elects Officers

In action last week, The Greek Letter Council announced the officers for next year. Gary Brown of Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity, (center) was elected President, Jay Eidsen (left) was made Vice President, and Patsy Murphy (right) was elected Secretary. Gary Nichols (not shown) was chosen Treasurer. In other action the G.L.C. voted to continue the present system of each fraternity-sorority sponsoring its own weekend.

Inland parks are highlighted in the Bryant neighborhood by Lincoln Woods containing facilities for fishing, swimming, boating, and picnicking. There are also two amusement parks: Rocky Point in Warwick, and Crescent Park in East Providence complete with rides and other amusements. Another park which needs to be mentioned is Roger Williams Park in Cranston which has rides, boating, picnicking, a zoo, and fantastic scenery.

Now that good weather is finally with us, students have the urge to get out and enjoy the outdoors. Many Bryant students come from places other than the Rhode Island area and are unaware of the many places they may visit and enjoy in the short time remaining this semester. To quote Frank Licht, the Governor of Rhode Island, "Rhode Island has been generously endowed with natural attractions." Rhode Island features white sand beaches, inland waterways for fishing, boating, and swimming, and historic sites and landmarks.

Traveling on Benefit Street in Providence is both a cultural and historical event. Many houses on the street are landmarks as can be seen by the plaques on their walls. Also on Benefit Street is the Rhode Island School of Design Museum, a great place to spend a sunny or rainy afternoon.

The following are just briefly some of the places you may want to visit. Rhode Island is famous for beaches and Providence is close to many. Most well known to Bryant students are Horsehead (a half hour east off Route 195) and Narragansett (30 minutes down 95 to route 2, to route 4, to route 1A). Probably one of the nicest areas in Rhode Island for students is Newport. It contains beaches and historical landmarks as well as the famous summer festivals.

For students remaining for summer school there are many festivals and concerts which may be attended, Diamond Hill in Cumberland is noted for its summer concerts as is Newport for its Jazz and Folk festivals. This list is not intended to be a complete one, but just a guide to a few days of fun. More places and a complete list of summer events in Rhode Island are available from the Rhode Island Development Council.

The full list is available from the RISD Museum entrance on historic Benefit Street.

Senior Class Boat Ride

The Class of 1971 is holding a boat ride on Friday, May 14, at 7:45 p.m. The boat has been chartered through the Prudence Island Navigation Company which is on the Church Street Dock in Bristol, Rhode Island. Directions to the dock will be available with the tickets. The boat has been chartered for four hours and will include a band and refreshments.

Admission is free for seniors. Seniors may bring a date or escort at a cost of $3.00.

Tickets will be available in the Student Union next week. Because of the limited number of tickets that are available, seniors are urged to pick up their tickets as soon as possible. In the event of an over-load, seniors will be given preference over guests.

Summit Work-Study Program

During the summer the number of students employed in Work-Study programs will increase. Most assignments are on public or private campus agencies and will be made to jobs related to the student's field of study. The college will keep a record of all Work-Study programs sponsored by the government and will try to keep students informed on the availability of such programs. The program is designed to provide students with the opportunity to gain practical work experience and to earn money to help meet their financial needs. Students who wish to participate in the program are encouraged to notify the Financial Aid Office of their intention to apply for aid. Information about the program is available from the Financial Aid Office.

Goodbye – Providence

by RICHARD KAPLAN

The closing of this semester strikes a very sentimental note for many of us. For this semester is the last one spent at Bryant's luxurious Providence facilities, and we will all miss the daily routines and the wonderful daily routine of the wonderful daily routine. The wonder full daily routine in the wonder full daily routine... At Bryant's, we might even have to buy alarm clocks. The dorm students, especially from Appleby and Gardner Halls, are going to miss the air conditioning system during the winter and the heating system during the spring. The commuters will miss the street parking facilities here, and the kindhearted police who spent so much time making sure that Bryant students get their tickets. All of us will miss the modern architecture of our classrooms and the unified clock system. On Friday mornings at 9 o'clock, what building will we all be able to lock up? How are the commuters going to get along without our well equipped hilliard hall? Very easily. But can Bryant Grimes, Treasurer: William Wiener, Assistant Treasurer; and Charles McMahon, Publicity Chairman. Board members are Alan Crockett, Tom Fleming, Bob Nadeau, Scott Gallant, Brian Merrett, Gary St. Pierre, Edward Voska, Jeffrey Millman, Daniel Ostrowski, Greg Pepe, and John Silinsky.}

The New Yankees

by STUART DIAMOND

On May 1, 1971, I had the honor of being a guest of the New York Yankees. The Yankees opened invitations to all the college sports editors to attend a press conference and a game at the stadium.

Our (being Steve Monaco and I) first pleasure, or experience, was meeting with the manager of the Yankees, Ralph Houk. Houk answered questions concerning this year’s players and games. When asked whether he felt it was proper to pay ballplayers 100,000 dollar salaries, he replied, “It’s great if you get fed up with reporters.”

Our next speaker was Mr. Villani of the Batton, Barron, Durstine, and Osborn, Inc., Advertising Agency. He demonstrated sponsor techniques in advertising and promoting a major league baseball club with a sponsor (Schafer Beer). Mr. Villani explained why in the last 5 to 6 years the Yankee attendance dropped so severely. He felt that people always had the impression that the Yankees were upper class of baseball and that it was only for the upper class people. The second reason he gave was the existence of the New York Mets.

The reason the bunch of losers started a long uphill battle and gathered in new and old baseball fans to a dramatic climax, the World Series.

The basic approach that the advertising company will put into effect is—We’re Coming On. You Coming Out? This was displayed by the use of posters and bumper stickers. On television, commercials with Yankee saying—We’re Coming On, and with Ralph Houk saying—They better come on.

The radio will be the final source of promotion with a catchy tune being played with an announcer saying the slogan in the background. All in all, the Yankee organization feels they are a young team starting to produce and should be considered this year.

The next speaker was Bill White. Bill White, ex-baseball player, explains the process of changing from the field to the broadcast booth. He feels he will be beneficial to the listeners because he understands what goes on in the player’s minds in certain situations. White feels one disadvantage is that he takes for granted some situations and forgets to explain it to the audience.

The next speaker was Leon and Koppett, a sports writer for the New York Times. Mr. Koppett talked on all the phases of baseball press reporting.

The final speaker was Michael Burke, President of the New York Yankees. He covered the ball club and its community responsibilities. Burke then answered many questions which were the following:

Q: What are the Yankees doing concerning their future home?

A: The Yankees have three choices facing them. They can either move to New Jersey, move to Shea Stadium and put a dome over it, or moderate Yankee Stadium. We would like to stay here and moderate the stadium with the money Mayor Lindsay promised us. We don’t want to run out on the people that have given us their support.

Q: Do you feel it is right to pay a ballplayer 100,000 dollars?

A: I feel a ballplayer was given the talent and skill to be the best in his profession and should be rewarded for it. He wants to go where he wants to go.

Q: What has Mickey Mantle been doing lately?

A: Mickey is partners with Joe Namath in a few business deals that aren’t doing that well.

Q: Wasn’t Mickey supposed to coach the Yankees?

A: Yes, Mickey started off as a first base coach for the Yankees. That isn’t for him, he can’t stand being out there and not playing. Mickey gets a weekly salary from the Yankees and is welcome to do whatever he wants for the team, even play ball again.

Q: Do you think a ballplayer should discuss politics or view his opinion publicly?

A: A ballplayer should definitely exercise his rights as a human being. He should involve himself in his surroundings, since he is too affected by them.

Q: Why did the Yankees purchase Felipe Alou?

A: Felipe will serve two purposes as a Yankee. He will be a great asset on the field with his batting and fielding, and he will also influence many of the younger ballplayers with his experience.

Q: Are the Yankees trying to get a pitcher?

A: Yes, we are still interested, although the price was much too high previously.

Q: Who is the Yankee’s top prospect?

A: Our number one draft choice in 1967, Ross Blohmberg.
